Is the CMA committee in error in putting up for debate an honest proposition? The over-overhead general practitioners in Britian are now urging their government to collect a "deterrent fee" to cut down the emigration of young doctors. The CMA's policy committee is not courting popularity; it is making only to be realistic. "There will be very real problems," states its report, "in persuading the public, the profession,and the doctor-sponsored plans that total prepayment approach should be abandoned. It is obvious that the substitute will be persuaded to give up the apparent blank cheque of his services currently only if he is offered material advantages in exchange. These advantages should be concerned with drugs, special nursing, ambulance services, physiotherapy and occupational therapy, for example, and would involve only a modest premium if protected by deductible and co-insurance features . . . A maximum should be set on these expenditures so as to protect any individual or family against the possibility of catastrophic costs." It might be noted that the committee also recommended provision of medical care to indigents and marginal-income groups on the public purse.

Doctors are the best informed on the problems of providing the best possible health care. Why not listen to them with careful attention?

At April 1964, Canada's money supply totalled $16.4 billion, about 10% per cent higher than 10 years previously.

BAPTIST CHURCH REPORTS ON SEMI-ANN. CONFERENCE

The General Baptist Conference of Alberta held their semi-annual conference in the Killam Baptist Church. Delegates and friends were present from all Churches except Grand Prairie. The guest speaker was Rev. Lawrence Swanson from headquarters in Chicago. The Sunday School Conventionette which was held on Saturday with work-shops on various aspects of the Church School. The reports of our mission churches was most gratifying, with our most recent work, begun this summer, in Calgary showing real growth and vitality. In our local church at Killam, the Sunday service was well attended with a goodly number of visitors in attendance. In the evening one of our laymen challenged us with his short message on the stewardship of life.

Mr. Robert Johnson of Banff is spending a vacation at his parental home here.

CURLING TIME AGAIN — The curling season is on again, even if there isn't any snow yet. The Sedgewick Curling Club started last Wednesday night, first ice-breaker being a match between Mayor Frank McSmith and wife President Grant Charnas and George Andersen watch the rock come into the house. The Curling Club opened their ice for the season and the place was full of kids for two days, Monday it was back to curling again. — Community Press Photo.

Lougheed History Entertains Meeting

(Mrs. Marion Centorier)

Approximately 22 members and associate members sat down to a lovely ham supper in the Lougheed Cafe on Monday, October 26th at the monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. President Cliff Nens asked the Blessing, and following the supper thanked Wally and his helpers for the lovely supper.

Everyone then moved to the Legion Hut where Reds Marlow and Dave Boulter showed a film entitled "Mexican Hayride". "Babe Ruth in Hollywood" and "Wild Heroes and Little Brave." These were thoroughly enjoyed. President Nens expressed thanks to Mrs. Marlow for showing the films and Dave Boulter for getting them.

The meeting opened with Secretary Andy Knapp reading the minutes of the previous meeting. Moved by C. Ingvaldson, seconded by H. Lescreu they be adopted as read.

It was asked that the slogan contest be kept within Lougheed Community and school. Motion made by Ted Paxton, seconded by J. Quast it be limited to local adult and pre-school children.

Harry Barton gave a brief outline in how the Skating Rink operates, and how Boulter gave a complete date of donations etc. and what it was used for, since the rink was built.

Some suggestions were made on obtaining hockey sweaters for the boys this year, also ways of raising funds for the operation of the skating rink.

Moved by D. Boulter, seconded by H. Barton that we have a Talent Show and Box Social on November 21st with the Chamber sponsor. Ernie Pedersen was asked to take enteries for the Talent Show. Prizes were set at 50c and 12 & under free.

Some suggestions were made on where trailers, running to Camrose could park. Motion made by C. Ingvaldson seconded by T. Paxton that a recommendation be sent to the Town Council re trailer parking, carried.

President Ness asked about the use of the gymnasium at the school. Cens's Ingvaldson said it was now able to be used if anyone wanted it, if they went through the right channel to get the use of it, and someone responsible had to be there at all times and proper footwear worn. It was suggested a letter be written to CFRN, Channel 3 TV, Edmonton re: the showing of a TV Saddlite at either Viking or Irma, as we could have better T. V. reception.

Pres. Ness made it clear that each chairman of the different committees have something ready for next month's meeting. C. Ingvaldsen is planning to have a speaker in for next meeting.

Everyone of rural and town please turn out for this meeting.

Don Routledge was then called upon to give an outline of the beginnings and past history of the Lougheed District and Village. This topic was very much enjoyed by all present and will continue at a future date.

Next meeting is set for Monday, November 23rd.

Moved by Angus Grieve, seconded by J. Black, the meeting adjourns.

Fifty Years Of Operation For Killam Co-op Association

KILLAM — The Killam Co-op Creative Association, the oldest existing and continuous Co-op Association in Alberta, entertained large groups of members and friends on Friday evening last, in celebrating the 50th birthday of the Assn.

Mr. Prod Forster, president of the Board of Managers at the evening program, welcomed the members and visitors to the program, and introduced Mr. R. A. "Archey" Baker, who took over as M. C.

Councillor Arnold Saunders, on behalf of Mayor Hilker, brought greetings from the Village and Mr. Dick Kinzer introduced the invited guests, which included Mr. Hank Boles, Co-op Supervisor, Mr. Art Turner, Public Relations, Mr. and Mrs. Ole Lavrod and Henry Moen of Banff Co-op, Mr and Mrs Hoschensen, Mr and Mrs Art Hass of Stettler Co-op, Mr. Walter Pachuk of Co-op Paints Division.

The program of speakers and local entertainers was interspersed by several selections from the Camrose Shepherd's Quartet, with George Myers acting as spokesman. The singing was much enjoyed, as were the whistlings by Mr. Myers.

Mr. George Stewart gave a testimonial on the original founders of the Assn., and paid high tribute to the vision and activities of the late Wm. Hall, instigator and founder of what is now known as the Killam Co-op Assn. It was in 1914 that Mr. Hall had a vision of great prospects for the Co-op movement. From this came the founding of the Willow Hollow Co-op, with 22 members. Mr. Stewart traced the interesting growth of this founding organization into the present Assn. which has an annual turnover of a quarter million dollars.

Mr. W. McMahon had the distinction of being the only member present of over forty years standing. Also present was Mr. Herbert Wilson, long-time member.

The guest speaker, Mr. Mervin Jervis, president of the Wetaskiwin Co-op, and member of Federated Co-operatives, was introduced by Mr. Tony Schnettler.

Coffee was served by the Co-op Staff. Draw for door prize was made, Mrs. Hackhausen winning the spice rack. Mrs. Sewell, Mrs. Kaplar, Mrs Wisner and Mrs. Heisler were winners of ten pounds of flour each, courtesy of Scarlet-scheuren Wheat Pool Flour Mills. The afternoon was sponsored by the Strome Co-op.

Original Willow Hollow members in 1914 were, Malcolm MacDougall, Paul Schabacki, A. Hawley, Joe Grant, J. Hauser, Wm. Anderson, Wm. White, John Gaty, J. E. Hampshire, J. Schluttenhofer, J. J. Murray, Tom Robson, Wm. Galt & Wm. Calliban. D. McMahon, Joe Storrow, Fred Robertson, A. E. Stoltzfus, J. D. Willis, Dave Anderson, F. Hoffman. Fred Sedgewick Cranberry, Wm. Haizell, S. H. Brooks, A. Lyssenburg, C. Gaudia, John Bly, O. Tigman, Bergal Bros., Audrey Sorenson, T. Tharp, F. Fitzlayson, Wm. Hampshire.

Mr. Bob Cartwright, manager of Killam Co-op, was the behind-the-scenes director of efforts, and is highly appreciative of the assistance received from the Board and store staff.

Battle River 4-H Beef Club Organized At Hardisty

HARDISTY — At a meeting held in the Hardisty Curling Rink the Battle River 4-H Beef Club was formed. The young people were addressed by Art Edwards D.A., who told them something about 4H movement, and laid down the requirements for the formation of a beef club. Fourteen young people signed up as members and then took charge of the meeting.

The following adult committee were appointed: F. Alderson, leader; Ivte Gaenard, Reg Barnes, H. Elie, Sec. Chart, Gus Johnson as assistants. The members are reminded that the formation of November 14 is the date set for weighing and tagging calves.

Baking Parade For 30 Strome Ladies

On Wednesday afternoon approximately 30 ladies attended the Baking Parade at the Parish Hall. Demonstration in Memorial Hall kitchen. This was ably handled by [illegible] of the Strome Home Economics staff. A variety of new dishes were prepared and the samples were passed around.

Mr. C. P. Hayes acted as chairman and during an intermission introduced Mr. Art Turner, P.R. officer and Mrs. Olsen of Bashaw, who gave a short talk on the possibility of organizing a women's guild.

Coffee was served by the Co-op Staff. Draw for door prize was made, Mrs. Hackhausen winning the spice rack. Mrs. Sewell, Mrs. Kaplar, Mrs Wisner and Mrs. Heisler were winners of ten pounds of flour each, courtesy of Scarlet-scheuren Wheat Pool Flour Mills. The afternoon was sponsored by the Strome Co-op.

Fairdenian Valley Local November News Report

Valley Local No. 862 was held on November 4th at the home of Mrs. Gwen Weber, with 8 members answering the roll.

This month our group is sending a parcel to CMHA and giving $5 to CNIB and to Fitzgiaff Lodge Auxiliary Christmas Fund.

Plans were made for our December meeting to be held on the 9th at Mrs. Harriet Wilsons. Following adjournment and ten a surprise entertainment honored 4 ladies of our group who were brides of twenty-five years ago. Mrs. Bruce, Mrs. L. Wilson, Mrs. J. Armitage and Mrs. J. Hallum were the honored ladies.

Lougheed C.G.I.T. Entertain At Party

The Lougheed CGIT entertained the Hardisty CGIT at a combined Hallowe'en and Initiation party on October 23rd. The new members are Gwenda Skoberg, Joanne Aldridge, Shirley Calahaw and Jean Wright.

Mrs. Sax, the Lougheed leader, conducted the formal initiation service which was followed by one of a comical nature. The balance of the evening was spent playing games, singing and dancing. Lunch followed an enjoyable evening.

Rams Trample Camrose 15-0

SEDGEWICK — In the last home game of the regular season played at Sedgewick Sunday afternoon, the Central High Rams defeated the Camrose Composite High team by a score of 15 to 0.

The Rams put on a real team effort, much the same as when they defeated the Wetaskiwin second week ago, and could do this win must go to the whole team.

Camrose's main scoring threat comes from one player who has been quite successful at gaining yards on the ground all year but on Sunday the Rams had his number and repeatedly stopped him at or near the line of scrimmage. Only twice in the whole game was he able to make any major gain and then goes the story of the Camrose offence which didn't show very much against the Rams strong defence.

On the offence the Rams mixed their large group of clever leaders on hand to cheer them on and Sunday was no different as the club went through their well rehearsed songs and cheers. No other team in the league seems to have a group like this, or at least if they have, they don't bring them along when the team is on the road. The girls do a good job and we feel that part of the credit for the win goes to them for their good showing.

SCORING

3rd Quarter — Safety touch at 8:18.

Final Score — 15 to 0 for Rams.

John Muirhead Sells Kin Slaves

SEDGEWICK Auctioneer J.L. Muirhead showed just how good an auctioneer he is, as he sold all the Kinsmen and 12 Kinettes, to a relatively small crowd at the second Kinsmen Slave Auction held in the Sedgewick Community Hall on Friday, November 6th.

Auctioneer Muirhead started the sale off by selling several of the Kinette teams. The Kinettes were sold in pairs by their admirers each on a white screen. This provided a bit of suspense as the bidders didn't know for sure who they were buying.

After selling a few of the Kinettes, the Auctioneer moved over to the Kinsmen and proceeded to dispose of them in the same rapid order. Half way through the sale the rest of the Kinettes were sold, and the sale finished with the last half of the Kinsmen.

Following the sale the Kinettes served free coffee and doughnuts. Proceeds from the sale will be used to put the finishing touches on the Little League Baseball Diamond, the Arena at the Recreational Centre, Sedgewick Lake, and Kinsmen Housing.

The list of buyers who purchased Kinsmen Slaves is headed by John Bly, O. Tigman, Bergal Bros., Pete Martin with two, and Stanley Bowen with two. Fritz Hovenday, S. Hoschensen, Ken Kortgaard, Reinschauck, John Kortgaard, Golf Club (Mike Eardley), Ferdie Wong, H. Beairsto, E. Osbuck, W. Hillike, S. Galletly and Jim Hallum.

Daysland CWL To Host Xmas Dinner

(Dolores Dahna)

The monthly meeting of the CWL was held Tuesday evening in the parish hall with 24 members present. The meeting was opened with the Rosary.

The Secretary and Treasurer's reports were read and adopted. This was followed by the monthly reports of the convenors.

It was moved to serve the Christmas dinner for the hospital staff and the Ladies of the Auxiliary.

It was also decided to have a Christmas party for the parish children.

The Knights of Columbus Communion breakfast that is coming up later on this month was discussed.

The Mass intention for this month is for poor souls.

The roll call in December is to be answered with some used clothing which will be sent to the Good Shepard Home in Edmonton.

Mrs. Paul Gubie won the attendance prize. Lunch committee for December is Mrs. Jim McCrorl & Mrs. A. Shikaski and Mrs. Alex Blatz.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Chris Wilson, Mrs. M. Zwack and Mrs M Boggs.

Rustling and the Lynch Rope!

According to the Western Stock Growers' Association the old-time expression "there's beef in them thar hills" still holds true, for their spokesmen indicate that cattle rustling is big business today.

I can recall the day when my father used to tell me about cattle rustling in the early days of ranching, when it was a known fact that many large ranchers got their start on rustled stock. The stories used to thrill me, and the excitement of it all took hold of my imagination, until he invariably ended a tale by describing the ugly sight of a rustler dangling from the end of a lynch rope. That curled me, and with a tender caress of my young neck I resolved to take up some less precarious vocation.

Now, it seems, cattle rustling is again becoming a bold venture, the only difference being that the law has taken over from the vigilante, and replaced the lynch rope with leniency.. The Western Stock Growers' Assn. puts it this way:

The courts of this western country take a much too lenient view of cattle rustling in the view of the cattle owners as represented by the Western Stock Growers' Association. Traditionally, in cattle country, stealing cattle has been a serious offence and a rather hazardous occupation. In the old days, justice was swift & sure at the end of a rope. That period was followed by one in which, almost without exception, the convicted rustler was sentenced to a jail term.

Then along came the psychologists to discover that the criminal "had an unhappy childhood and is not responsible for his conduct", and with this, jail terms became the exception. In a recent case the accused was fined $125.00 and, reportedly, allowed to keep the $200.00 worth of stolen beef then in his deep freeze. In another, the sentence was the time already spent in custody which amounted to about 38 days. In still another, sentence was suspended which, for practical purposes, meant acquittal.

A merchant can protect his property, at least partially, by locking his doors and in addition the state maintains a police force for constant patrol. The cattleman has no such protection. His trapper tation is so rapid these days that rustler can be miles away before the theft is discovered.

Western Stock Growers have been instrumental in a few cases in having the Crown appeal these lenient sentences and some appeals have been successful. In addition, the Association pays rewards for information leading to arrest and conviction. In general though, it appears to cattlemen that the punishment of rustlers went out with the spanking of children and that maybe it should come back.

A Change Of Horses

OTTAWA — Mr. Diefenbaker appears to be trying to change horses in mid-stream, usually considered a pretty precarious exercise in river crossings or politics.

But the Tory leader has been getting into pretty deep water and there is a strong possibility that his present nag may not be able to get him and his Parliamentary group safely to the other side.

In other words the flag issue is going over inside the party more pessimistically outside. His chief lieutenant, the Hon. Leon Balcer is in open rebellion with most of the Quebec Conservative members behind him. He has declared publicly that he will not support any continuation of the flag filibuster when this may not prove so serious to party unity as remaining of discontent from some other members who have been spending a little time in their constituencies find that the voter is getting impatient. He is ready to cry "a plague on both your houses" and while there may be an election the government as Opposition it is scarcely an encouragement to carry the fight to the hustings.

But just when the swirling waters look threatening, up comes a fresh stream to alter the shape of a constitutional issue.

Shades of Mackenzie King!

The "Pulen formula" for amending the B.N.A. Act in Canada, adopted by the Liberal Government has been accepted by the Attorneys General and Premiers of all the provinces but has still to be approved by Parliament. And Mr. Diefenbaker has already condemned it.

He refuses to accept the draft bill as the same which his Minister of Justice proposed to a Federal-Provincial conference in 1961 and some within are of getting unanimous approval, although Mr. Pulton says it is essentially the same bill. If he can now shift emphasis from the flag to the constitution without losing too much face for himself or the party, and reform ranks around this issue, he would like to do so. Mr. Pearson may conceivably give him that opportunity. He and his party too have been getting reports from the grass roots.

When Mr. King in 1926 announced that he would appeal to the country on the Byng issue there were plenty of doubts within his cabinet. But he didn't allow these hands the academic complications that are still being argued today by the constitutionalists were swept aside and the then-simplified form the Byng incident. Mr. King back with a majority.

The Pulen formula provides a method whereby a Federal Parliament may delegate to Provincial legislatures any of the powers given to it under the British North America Act. The request must come from the legislatures of at least four provinces and by practice one of these provinces must be either Ontario or Quebec. This is designed to take some of the fidelity out of the division of powers laid down in 1867. It would allow Ottawa, for example, to confer on provinces that want it the right to impose indirect taxes.

These appeared, however, point out that if any province showed up on Ottawa and were able to bring enough pressure to bear on a Government or a sufficient number of French members they may take over the power to issue money, foreign policy, external trade; in fact, denude the Central Government of all its power. The chances may be so remote as to be academic. Alberta, conceivably sided by B. C., might want to repeat the Aberhart experiment of the 1930's. But could they get support from other Ontario or Quebec, much less central a majority in Parliament? Quebec has had a run to control broadcasting in the province, but it would find it impossible to get support from other provinces.

So it goes down the list of any major powers which it is essential that the Central Government retain. These situations are difficult to explain to an electorate during an election campaign and the ones here will fall on the Government, not on the Opposition.

Mr. Diefenbaker has already accused the Liberals of trying to "balkanize" Canada and Canadians are going to hear that word a great deal in the weeks & months ahead.

One difficulty Mr. Diefenbaker will have is that the Tory Premiers of Manitoba, Ontario, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, are as much parties to the Pulen formula as is the Liberal Government in Ottawa.

If Finance Minister Gordon's recent speeches can be considered as straws in a wind the Canadian taxpayer may be in a happy frame of mind after his next budget. He is emphasizing the need for continuing expansionary policy which is the plain English of the man on the street can be interpreted as tax cuts. Figures speak even louder than words and Mr. Gordon's revenue picture at the end of six months means that his deficit this year will be very moderate, perhaps less than $200 million, and that by budgeting for a similar deficit in 1965-66, he will have room for tax reductions in some form.

A NORTH AMERICAN PROBLEM

Why is it that in English-speaking North America there is an existential unemployment while in Europe the struggle is to find workers for available jobs?

In the United Kingdom 334,000 jobs are available for applicants and none is forthcoming. In Germany there are 681,000 jobs for 169,000 unemployed and most of the unemployed are unemployable. The Netherlands needs 156,000 more workers, France 50,000 and even in Sweden there are 48,000 openings for washers, Spain, Portugal, Yugo-Slavia, North Africa and Turkey have sent nearly a million workers to busy Europe and the demand is for more.

Here in English-speaking North America the agitation is for a 30 hour week and for wages to be paid to an army of workless people for whom there seemingly are no prospects for jobs, and never will be. — Brooks Bulletin.

Mr. Editor:

I don't know about you, but I think it's been a good year. I'd like to congratulate an opening up the rusting rich for public shaking over the past week end. Public relations is a very important item today, but it is my belief that the Carling Club took a big step in that direction in silvering pubic skating on their rink. As a father I appreciated the act very much, and I know my children were pleased the same way. Thank you. — Yours truly, Ex-Skater.

With last winter's huge wheat movement to fill the Russian order the facilities of Atlantic ports were taxed to capacity. With no Russian order a short winter has been anticipated. Now with the unexpected sale of 20,000,000 bushels to Russia and a further 2,700,000 bushels to Hungary there will be a substantial winter movement.

Overseas Christmas Mailing Dates

With the Christmas period approaching, the Canada Post Office urges the public not to delay posting parcels to friends and relatives and relatives overseas. The public is cautioned to mail as early as possible. Last minute posting, if general, might render it impossible for the Post Office to find sufficient accomodation on the last steamers leaving in time to ensure Christmas delivery.

Mail for Armed Forces Overseas — The dates for surface mails shown below to Britain will apply to the posting of surface mail addressed to the Armed Forces Overseas regardless of destination. The dates for air mail to the Armed Forces in Britain are the same for civilian air mails to that destination. The dates for the European continent will not apply to air mail for all other Armed Forces overseas.

BE WISE — 2 WISE

Christmas is only two months away. Don't you think it is about time you started saving those pennies?

Here are a few ways to save money — points to keep in mind not only at this season but throughout this year.

FOOD

As a rule buying food in quantity, particularly staples, provides the largest saving if one has sufficient storage space and the cash.

A shopping list made out in advance will also help to cut down expenses and avoid buying on the spur of the moment. Using a menu economical item is found to replace an item on your list.

Compare prices of various brands — often there will be a difference of 2-3 cents or more for the same grade, quality and waught.

Fancy packaging adds to the cost of an item, therefore, avoid paying for fancy containers, wrappers, etc.

Advertised brands generally sell for more than upbervertised brands.

Meats are the most expensive item on the food budget. Cheaper, less tender cuts are just as nutritious as the more expensive cuts but require somewhat longer cooking, e.g. stewing meat, chuck roasts, liver.

Using skim milk powder at 10c per quart is a real saver for casserole dishes and baking. It can be used to extend fresh milk as well.

Compare prices of fruits and vegetables in the fresh, canned and frozen state to determine which is the best buy.

Canned food is all graded, fancy, choice and standard. Standard quality, the least expensive is fine for basic use.

Compare the prices of food per unit. Divide the units — ounces, pounds or number into the price (use paper and pencil) and buy the one that costs the least per unit.

Avoid buying food or household items that offer additional premiums such as china, cutlery and towels.

The type of store will also influence the cost of food chain voluntary chain, individually owned, and co-op).

Ready-to-eat cereals are more expensive than home cooked cereals and don't provide you with the same nutritional value.

Desserts — bread puddings, cream pies and milk puddings are economical and nutritious.

Look for inexpensive substitutes for foods.

Purchase canned goods by the case at a discount if possible.

FIXED AND MAJOR EXPENSES

Examine

Combine several types of insurance in one policy, rather than purchasing each separately.

The cheapest form of all insurance is through a group — at work or an organization.

Health

It is cheaper to spend somewhat more on nutritious food (stead of paying for doctor, medical and dental bills because of a poor diet.

Vitamin preparations are not necessary if a normal adequate daily diet is available except in certain cases and when prescribed by your doctor.

Immunization against smallpox, diphteria, tetanus, whooping cough and polio at clinics or public health units are free and paid for by your taxes. Check with the local health unit about their free services.

Many wives leave business undertakings to their husbands and this is a mistake. Women should be informed regarding wills, estate planning, investments, pointed etc. it is wiser to plan now than be sorry later. Ignorance often costs you more money.

Look for more ideas on this topic next week.

SUGAR AND SPICE
by Bill Smiley

I get a few fan letters. About half of them are from dear, sweet, intelligent people who tell me they read the column faithfully, and like it.

About a quarter of them are from mutton-headed, wrong-minded, opinionated people who read the column faithfully and disagree with my politics, language and philosophy. The other quarter is made up of frantic chairmen of the program committee of various service clubs, wanting to know if I'll speak to their group on July 1st.

The answer to the last one is always no. I speak to a service club once, and swore I'd never do it again. I have never had such an ignorant audience.

After spending a week preparing a speech, and driving fifty miles on a winter night, after a hard day's work, I was asked politely by the president if I could "keep it down to ten minutes or so."

About half the members were half-oiled and two or three went to sleep while I was being introduced. This is about standard. The president and members kept looking at their watches. Before the ritual "Thank you" night or ten members had slunk out. The president apologized, "they hafta ge curlng."

The minute the vote of thanks (in which the mover called me Mr. Wiley, the female columnist) ended, the club came to life with typerich intensity, and I sat there listening for three-quarters of an hour to them quibbling about whether they should spend fifty bucks on a donation to boys' hockey, which would get them a picture and a half a column in the local paper, or twenty-five bucks on a donation to a schoolroom Fund, which would get them a paragraph in the paper. Guess which won.

However, as you have long since guessed, this experience has nothing to do with what I'm going to talk about. What I started out to say was that we had a switch this week. My wife got a fan letter.

It was a lovely letter — warm, kind, friendly, intelligent, and utterly mistaken.

In part, it reads, "I'm sure you must be a very patient woman and a very happy son, as I think I can tell from your husband's column he is a happy and contented man, and this is making a wife needs to be happy herself. Perhaps?"

Bless you, dear lady, for that — perhaps". There's still hope for the reading public.

My wife is about as patient as Henry the Eighth, about as happy as Hamlet.

She's a good kid, basically, but it's been a long time since she was on base. Or even knew what issuing it was.

At least once a week, she's so depressed she says, "I just feel like jumping off the deck." I reply, "Go who's stopping you?" She, old Pollemus, believe "You'd just love that, wouldn't you? You'd go right out and get married to some young flibbertigibbet who couldn't keep you in line". And so on.

She thinks she's smarter, financially, than the president of the Bank of Canada. But she never has any change for the milk bottles.

She claims she's so neurotic she can't drive a wink, ever. I take her to a movie, she falls asleep in eight minutes and it takes the combined efforts of me, the ticket taker, and the manager, to get her out of the theatre when it closes.

Last week she wanted to go to Africa and teach all the kids in the Congo how to play the piano with the proper finger movements. Next week she'll be herding bull ent of me because I haven't been bowling half ent of the kids about something or other.

Happy? No. Patient? It is to laugh. Interesting? St. Almazing? St. Natty? Naturally. And perhaps her best description of me is "Mr. Ambivalence".

Well, I'm not. I'm a happy man. I'm a patient man. I'm a man who loves his wife and children and his job. I'm a man who is grateful for the good things in life, and who tries to take the bad things in his stride.

I'm a man who is grateful for the fact that my wife has written a fan letter about me, and I'm a man who is grateful for the fact that it's the first one she has received.

Hugh McLeod
of Edmonton
AN ALBERTA JUNIOR CITIZEN OF THE YEAR

Eleven-year old Hugh won his award for his scholastic achievement under an extreme physical handicap. Hugh was born with glaucoma, which resulted in the loss of one eye and blindness in the other. Following surgery, he spent three months at Jericho Hill School for the Blind in Vancouver.
After regaining a minimum of sight in one eye, he was admitted to Jasper Place public school — determined to keep up with his class.
He has done this, not only by studying hard at school, but also by giving up all after-school activity or play, to listen and learn his lessons of the day from his family.
In spite of this tremendous handicap, Hugh was among the top students in his Grade Five class.
We congratulate Hugh, and thank Alberta's Weekly Newspaper Editors for their active co-operation in the Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year program sponsored by Alberta's investor-owned electric utility companies.

This is one of a series of Junior Citizen Award announcements. We also congratulate Hugh's father, D. McLeod, Editor of the Suburban Times, and thank his nominator, Art Keller of Edmonton.

All Gone But The Memory!

There seems to be a growing tendency today among the younger set, to regard any person over thirty as an old has-been, a worn-out old derelict ready to be taken off the chartered routes of life and relegated to the scrap heap of human endeavor. More particularly is this the case so far as physical action is concerned. There is no doubt this is true so far as it goes. The human body is so put together by the Almighty that the years depiete ability to compete in the physical activities of an increasingly active world. That is why, for instance, the life of an athlete is a fleeting moment in the span of his life. That is why the younger pick up the shovel and the hoe (or the pen). But the physical aspect of the situation is only a small part of the contribution that people over 30 have to offer to mankind.

The best brains of our country in the scientific, academic and business field as well as in the arts, are men and women who, according to our young friends, are "over the hill". The man over thirty still has plenty to offer.

But how about the man who has arrived past the half century mark? Would anybody suggest that he has become a useless liability in today's society? Here again statistics will show that the best and steadiest brains of our country are contained between the ears of those age groups of thirty to fifty and fifty to seventy. There is no doubt that we have slowed up, physically that is, but mentally we can still compete. Experience covers a multitude of sins, and while some may think the old boys have "had it" we can still cling to the one thing you can never take away from us—memories of what we've done and where we've been. How do I know my youth is all spent? Well, my get-up has got up and went. But in spite of it all, I'm able to grin, When I recall where my get-up's been. Old age is golden, so I've heard it said, But sometimes I wonder when I get into bed. My ears in a drawer my teeth in a cup, My eyes on the table until I get up. Then sleep dims my eyes, I say to myself, Is there anything else I should lay on the shelf? And I'm happy to say, as I close my door, My many friends are the same, perhaps even more.. When I was young my slippers were red, I could kick up my heels right over my head. When I grew older, my slippers were blue, But still I could dance the whole night through. Now I am old, my slippers are black, I walk to the store and puff my way back. The reason I know my youth is all spent, My get-up and go has got up and went. But I really don't mind when I think with a grin, Of all the grand places my get-up's been. Since el have retired from life's competition, I busy myself with complete repetition. I get up each morning, dust off my wits, Pick up the paper and read the O-bits. If my name is missing I know I'm not dead, So I eat a good breakfast and go back to bed.

Remembrance Day!

November 11th, a day that remains steadfast in the memories of those who lost loved ones in two world wars, was observed once again this week, with public worship services in towns and villages throughout Canada.

Remembrance Day! It should be forever a day set aside to remember the fruitlessness of war: a day to reflect on the causes of war; a day to determine that wars must be abolished as a means of settling the differences between mankind; a day to realize that the proper regard and respect of each person for another is the only means by which the abolishment of strife can be obtained.

REPORTS from PARLIAMENT HILL

For this report, I can think of no material of more importance than some of the facts about our country's present healthy economic condition, as given recently to the House of Commons by my colleague, Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp.

The Canadian economy is now in the fourth year of advance and is moving strongly ahead. The rise in our gross national product this year surpasses even the 6.6 per cent increase of 1963. Employment so far this year is up four per cent from the same period a year ago. Despite a more rapid expansion of the labor force, there are fewer people without jobs.

The general advance has been widely diffused throughout all major segments of industry and all geographic regions.

Output in secondary manufacturing industries has continued to grow, service trades and construction have been more active and substantial gains are also being realized in resource industries.

Canada's 1963-64 crop year, which ended July 31, was the most successful wheat marketing year in the nation's history.

It was a record year for production, exports and income, as each case will show previous highs. It is a year that will be difficult to match.

A number of importing countries have harvested large crops this year. Nevertheless the outlook for wheat exports is favorable.

Canadian wheat is ideally suited for blending with the indigenous soft wheats produced in these countries. Agreements concluded with mainland China and several eastern European countries assure a continuing heavy movement to these markets. Forward sales for the current crop year are encouraging.

In short, 1964-65 is going to be a good year for exports of wheat.

Internationally, economic conditions remain generally good, with world production and trade moving steadily higher.

Sales of Canadian products have been more than holding their own in international markets. Rising exports have played a major role in Canada's current expansion.

For the period 1960 to 1963 Canada's merchandise exports rose by 30 per cent or nearly 10 per cent each year, and so far this year they are up by a spectacular 23 per cent for the same period in 1963.

Even exclusive of wheat, exports are up by 17 per cent. Items contributing in a major way to this increase include lumber, pulp and paper, iron ore, base metals, aircraft and automotive products.

Especially encouraging is the further growth in a wide assortment of manufactured goods which, as a group, are assuming increasing importance in Canada's export trade.

Canadian manufacturers continue to break new ground in terms of both the broader range of products sold and the growing number of markets penetrated.

A significant part of the growth in sales of manufactured goods consists of capital equipment sold under long-term financing arrangements of one kind or another, with or insurance or direct financing by the government under the Export Credits Insurance Corporation.

All major foreign markets have absorbed more Canadian products this year. Exports to the United States are up by 11 per cent, to Britain and the rest of the commonwealth by 21 per cent, to the European economic community by 23 per cent, to Japan by 18 per cent.

Wedding

Bouquets of white shasta daisies and carnations with two 7 candle candelabras decorated the alter of St. John's Anglican Church, Sedgewick for the candlelight wedding of Muriel Ann Reinicke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Reinicke to Mr. Svend Erling Madson of Edmonton.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an floor-length gown of white satin, featuring a wide stand up collar and lily point sleeves. Lace and sequins accented the scalloped neckline and lace motifs were employed on the full skirt which extended to a cathedral train.

Attending the bride was her sister Carol as matron of honor. She wore a teal blue rayon crepe frock with filmey rayon chiffon sleeves. Her bouquet was of pink carnations and shasta daisies.

Mr. Cecil Henderson, friend of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Mr. Brian Reinicke, cousin of the bride and Mr. Chri Reinicke, brother of the bride.

Parents of the groom, living in Denmark, were unable to attend.

Organist was Mrs. David Bloom.

Out of town guests included: Mrs. Sam Hoyland, Drayton Valley; Mr. Max Hoyland, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Hoyland, and Canton and Mrs. Crawley, Viking; Mr. Cecil Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Bethlew, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Seuchen, Mr. and Mrs. George Voigt, Misses Gene Abbot, Rita Kibrt, Diane Bloom, Doreen Titterington, Beverly Forester and Mary Copeborne all from Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Svend Madson will make their home in Edmonton.

Down Memory's Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantion, Hardisty, Alberta)

SUNNY, SOUTHERN ALBERTA

The head of the Real Estate Co. for whom our men worked, often drove out to where we were, he had a model T Ford, quite swanky in those days, to see how things were progressing.

My husband had previously arranged with him to bring out some of the more staple groceries, such as flour, sugar, smoked meats, etc., each time he came out, then, if something un-foreseen happened, like fuel weather or no, that we women couldn't get into town with Brian at least we would be able to manage for a while. Of course, he always brought our mail.

I mentioned in last week's article about us moving from section to section, as each of these settlers were broken. On such a vast expanse of un-broken flat Prairie, with no land marks for guides, one would wonder just how our Boss could locate us. But he assured us he had no trouble whatever. Of course he had a map, which did guide him some, but he said he looked for the Sun to shine on a pile of tin cans which was always there at our last settling, then he would follow our tracks to the next place.

About the middle of November, the weather became quite cool, and as my Father and Mother had never become adjusted to the poignire rigors of pioneering (as they termed this type of living), decided that if my husband and brother could manage the outfit without Father's help, they, with my older sister, would pull out and spend the winter in Calgary.

Our first addition to the family, a wee daughter, arrived the first day of November 1917. So, after I arrived home with her from the Calgary Hospital, my Father, Mother and Sister left for the brighter lights, leaving my husband, my brother, my young sister, myself and wee daughter out on that vast and now more lonely then ever, prairie.

The fall of 1917 stayed open until about the middle of December, enabling the men to break more and more of that virgin land. But before that time, we began to worry about our baby living in that old drafty caboose, heated by one of those little portable coal-oil heaters that one could pick up by the handle, like a pail, and carry around, placing it wherever one wished.

We cooked with a gasoline burner stove, with oven, which we did use for heat on real cold days, but I always was afraid of the fumes from it, if we turned it all on, so that old caboose was drafty, especially for bathing a wee infant.

So when the Boss came out one day about the middle of December, my husband told him he would be pulling the outfit into Cereal soon, and move the family into Calgary for the winter.

The Boss lived on his Father's homestead just one mile east of Cereal. He ran a herd of from 75 to 100 head of cattle, as well as about 25 head of horses. He proposed that we move into his house for the winter, he would move his family into town, and if we would agree to it, my husband could live in a furnished house and The Boss would pay my husband $75.00 a month wages. We could start into the plowing job in the Spring as soon as the weather permitted.

This arrangement suited us fine, so we settled in, and were quite comfortable and happy. Incidentally my younger sister and brother went to Calgary to live with the folks, planning to return in the spring.

I must mention here, that white farmers in that area harvested a real bumper crop in 1916 the year of 1917 was so dry, there wasn't even the seed back, no crop whatever.

So, as soon as we were settled on the Boss' farm, one of the big jobs facing my husband, every day, Sunday included, was to haul a big load of 1916 wheat straw from about four miles west, to supplement the hay for feeding the stock which had to be kept in the barns. The climate in Southern Alberta was warm enough to permit most of the stock to run at large, on the range which eliminated considerable work fortunately.

Our wee daughter was doing not too badly on cows milk, oat-meal gruel, and Arrow-root biscuits (no formulas or orange juice, nor prepared baby foods in those days) and I was quite happy, in a house again, even though there was no electricity nor bathroom, still there was flowers, and that was something.

POPLAR & WILLOW TREES!

Previous announcements stated that Russian Poplar and Willow were not available this year. The Government Tree Nurseries now report a larger supply of Rooted Willow and Poplar than expected, because of favorable growing conditions this fall.

Russian Poplar and Willows are in fair supply. North West Poplar are still in short supply. Orders for Poplars and Willows will be accepted by the Department of Agriculture up to the end of December. Please get your orders in soon. We have also been notified that the Fruit Bundles of Ornamental Shrubs have been divided into the Low Growing and Tall Growing Bundles with about 20 plants in each bundle. As we stated in last week's column these shrubs are for plantings in the farmstead shelterbelt.

AWARD TRIP FOR 4-H'ERS!

Terry Leslie of Morrin, Gerry Scheler of Forestburg and Dwight Smith-Gander of Strome were selected at Provincial Eliminations in August to take the award trip to National 4-H Club Conference in Ottawa and Toronto at the time of the Toronto Royal Fair.

Fourteen Alberta 4-H boys and girls left Edmonton on Tuesday afternoon via CNR for Ottawa. Miss Glenna Robbins, Supervisor of Jr. Activities in Edmonton, and I will be supervising the delegation this year.

Monday evening the fourteen 4-H delegates from Alberta, their parents and club leader were honored at a banquet in the MacDonald Hotel. Some of the highlights of the award trip are:

Thurs. Dru. — Stay in the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa; Visit the Embassies and Government House, tour Parliament Buildings & meet our member of Parliament.

Saturday — Fly to Toronto and stay at the Royal York Hotel. Attend the Hockey Game at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Sunday — Attend Church, then go by bus to Niagara Falls & tour the falls all day.

Mr. Louis Shirvell has returned home after spending a few days in Hardisty Hospital.

Harold Hoogen was home from the Killam hospital the weekend and the Monday that he will be home to stay soon.

Mrs. Doris Collins and daughter of Edmonton has been a visitor with Mrs. Closston the past week.

Welcome to the home of Mrs. Bob Teers, our newest residents in town.

Mr. Lars Soethum, Mr. Hans Hildgard and Mr. M. Hillbo all left last Thursday for a holiday in Norway.

Mr. and Mrs. Ole Hanson were Edmonton visitors last week.

Mrs. Hugh Dervaugh is home from Killam hospital.

Mr. Bruce Keck spent last week end at his home in Edmonton.

Mr. Derek Collins of Edmonton was a week end visitor, Mrs. Collins and daughter returned home.

Mrs. Lee Rosborough and son spent a week with the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barton.

A lovely 35th Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Johnson was celebrated in the Lougheed Community Hall November 6. A program was held, after which many lovely gifts were opened. Lunch was then served and a dance followed.

Door prizes opened with the break of dawn November 7. Hunters were out early. But tell me, why early hunting season is the only time it takes five hoogs to clean a car door. Could it be buck fever.

Don't forget the Talent Program and Box Social to be held inLougheed Community hall on November 20th.

WINTER SOIL DRIFTING — IT CAN BE PREVENTED

Why is it that many farmers in the Prairie Provinces have never experienced a serious soil erosion problem? The main reason is they have followed a program of good trash cover management. By saving every bit of straw and stubble properly working it into the soil they have prevented serious drifting during the winter and early spring months.

Trash protects the soil. Crop residues, when properly used, can protect summerfallow fields against winter soil drifting. They not only shield the soil from the wind, soon but protect it against water erosion as well. Straw and stubble properly anchored at the soil surface prevents run-off by providing channels through which water really enters the soil. Furthermore, a good trash cover returns to the soil important organic matter which improves soil structure and supplies essential plant food elements.

TRASH COVER PRACTICES

Under no circumstances should straw and stubble be burned. They should be incorporated into the soil. In general, it can be stated that, where the straw has been properly spread, one or two operations with a heavy duty cultivator with medium lift shovels will do a good job of establishing efficient trash cover. Depth of cultivation should be four to five inches. It may be necessary to employ emergency methods to prevent soil drifting during the winter months. These include tillage to bring clods to the surface, rodging or furrowing, and spreading straw or manure on knolls, ridges or areas of light soil. It has been found that a load of straw will "hold down" soil over a surprisingly large area if it is spread in the form of "feral patts" before drifting has started.

Soil drifting could easily become a serious problem on many fallow fields this winter if the snow cover is light. Farmers should go "all out" this fall and winter to prevent their valuable topsoil from blowing away.

For further information on the control of soil drifting obtain a copy of our Circular No. 19 "Protect Prairie Soils" from your local Inter Elevator Agent, or from Line Elevators Farm Service, Winnipeg or Calgary.

"Give me one good reason why I should build my home this winter"

You Get a $500 Cash Incentive

To help keep Canada's building trades busy and productive during the winter season, the Federal Government is again offering to pay a $500 cash incentive to those who build or buy a winter-built home.

What is a Winter-Built Home?

A winter built home under this program is one that has not proceeded beyond the first floor joist stage by November 15th and is substantially completed by March 31st, 1965.

How Do You Proceed?

It's easy. Pick up an Application for Certification form at your National Employment Office or Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation office, fill it out and mail to your nearest CMHC office. If you wish, your builder can do this for you. Complete information on the program is included on the application form.

Act Now

See your builder and arrange to have your home winterbuilt. Help yourself to that $500 cash incentive and help Canadian industry stay busy throughout the winter.

Last Winter more than 28,000 homes were built under this program.

WINTER BUILT

Special Speaker At Lougheed Church

The Rev. Carl Opsahl, a member of the Commission on Evangelism of The Lutheran Lutheran Church, will be in Sedgewick Lutheran Parish from November 15th to November 19th conducting a series of special preaching services in Trinity Lutheran Church north of Lougheed, S. J. Christopherson, pastor. He will start the series by preaching in all the three churches of the parish including Bethania and Sharon at the regular Sunday worship hours.

Pastor Opsahl is a native of Avon, Minnesota. Two years of his academic training was received at Rockford High School and this course was completed at Spokane College in Washington where he also finished junior college work. His college training was completed at St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minnesota. Through Bible conferences held by the Lutheran Bible Institute the challenge to a life of Christian service brought him to spend a year of study at this institute.

After his graduation from Luther Theological Seminary four years were spent serving a Home Mission Field at Lewistown, Montana. Pastor Opsahl has also served a parish at Jewell, Iowa and one at Hetinger, Minnesota, from where he came to join the Evangelism staff. Before entering the seminary he spent three years as a teacher at Spokane College. He also served as an army chaplain during World War II, spending 27 months in overseas duty.

While in the area Pastor Opsahl will also conduct special personal meetings with members of the Church Councils, ALCW and Luther Leagues. Special musical numbers are being prepared by the 3 congregations to add to the value of the services. Special question and answer periods will be conducted during each service. Everyone is most cordially invited to attend any or all of these special services. You will learn and be blest.

Elected to office for the coming year were: Fred Vanderveerde, President; John Kvill, vice-president; Joyce Dietrich, secretary-treasurer; program committee, Caroline Kvill, Donna Pelego, Mel Dietrich, and Laurine Semeniuk.

The next meeting will be held on December 14th at the Sedgewick School.

BOARD OF TRADE PLAN MEETING

KILLAM — The annual supper meeting of the Killam District Board of Trade will be held in St. Joseph's Parish Hall Wednesday, November 18th at 6:30 p.m.

Limited advance sales of tickets at $1.50 each to the public may be purchased from the executive members.

The guest speaker for the evening will be Mr. H. C. Macbeth, superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Edmonton Division, speaking on an interesting subject, suitable to the occasion.

A business meeting will follow to discuss the past year's activities for a new slate of officers will be elected. All those interested in a strong District Board of Trade are urged to attend and give their full support. Wonderful support was demonstrated lately by the very successful smoker at the Bingo, the proceeds of which substantially reduced the arena debt.

SEDGEWICK W. I.

At the regular meeting held on November 4th nine members were present. Mrs. Bjarnay read the secretary's report in the absence of Mrs. Cooper.

Mrs. C. Robertson, convener of the campaign for the Blind Chevra and Tag Day reported the proceeds amounted to $210.

Mrs. D. Smith gave a short account of a meeting of various organization representatives where plans were discussed for catering at the Recreation Centre Lunch counter.

It was decided that we get together in December for a supper meeting.

A nominating committee composed of Mrs. Wellman and Mrs. Stave was appointed to draw up the slate of officers for next year.

The roll call was answered by giving a review of a book one had read recently.

Articles were handed in to be sent to the Christmas Pair for the patients at Oliver Mental Institute.

Recreational Grants Available

A standard application form has been prepared and is now available to Alberta communities who desire to make application for recreational facilities Grants Program, which was announced earlier this year by the Provincial Secretary, the Honourable Ambrose Holowach.

Application for a grant must be made on these official application forms, and must be submitted no later than the 31st day of March 1965. They should be addressed to the Department of the Provincial Secretary. In the case of a town or village, application will be made by the town or village council; in the case of a hamlet or community organization in county or municipal district, by the county concerned; in the case of a hamlet or community in an improvement district or special area, by the Department of Municipal Affairs.

Under the terms of the extension to the program, a town, village or hamlet whose population in 1964 totals one hundred or more persons and which has not previously received a Recreational Grant or any part of it is eligible for a grant of $5.00 per capita of population

A town, village or hamlet whose population in 1964 totals at least fifty persons but less than one hundred persons, and which has not previously received a Recreational Grant or any part of it, can qualify for a grant of $250.00. In addition, a town, village or hamlet with a population of at least fifty persons but less than one hundred persons, and having an active community organization in the area, may apply for a recreational grant on behalf of the community organization.

Recreational Grants may be approved for any feasible plan for recreational facilities, and projects planned jointly by adjoining qualifying communities will be given consideration.

Baptist Church

On Thursday evening the WMS met at the home of Mrs. Ted Wen. Cotton with thirteen ladies answering the roll call with a bible verse on prayer. Mrs. Lorena Danielson was in charge of the devotion. A skit was presented by six ladies from the group and a solo by Mrs. Froedrich was enjoyed. Much business was discussed with committees appointed in charge of: packing and mailing a quilt to Esther and Raymond Lawson, packing and clothing for the "Friends of Israel", plans for the Thank Offering program and an anniversary celebration, and also the purchase of table cloths for the kitchen. Lunch was served by the hostess.

On Friday night the Young People's Group sponsored a film entitled "The Seed of Quaker".

We wish to extend our best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Ted Wenden (nee Sybil Haffel) whose marriage took place in the church on Saturday.

The Sunday services were well attended with evangelist Rev. Bennet Elias, teacher at Three Hills Bible Institute, as guest speaker. Special music was supplied by Gordon Head, choir director of Three Hills Bible School choir and Lorne Rubeck, a Border Bible School student. We welcome you to attend the services more night this week when Rev. Bennett Elias will be speaking.

M.D. Division No. 4 Will Elect Councillor Sat. Dec. 5

Nominations for councillors in the M.D. of Flagstaff closed Saturday, November 7th with four names being submitted to fill two vacancies. Prior to the 48 hour expiry time one name was withdrawn. As a result Mr. A. E. Morgan of Meuler was returned to office by acclamation for another 3-year term as Councilor for Division 6.

In Division No. 4 an election will be necessary, as nomination papers were filed for two candidates, Mr. Andrew Sereniuk, Division 4 and Mr. Leonard Scoville, Strome.

Polling will take place on Saturday, December 5th from nine in the morning until five in the afternoon.

The Division has three polls. Poll No. 1 is at the Co-op Hall in Killam. Poll. No. 2 is at the home of Nicholas H. Bodry of Strome. Poll No. 3 is Flemington Church, located on NW 22-43-14 W4th.

The results of the voting will be made public by the Returning Officer on Wednesday, December 9th at noon.

ST. JOHN'S W.A. MEET

St. John's Anglican W.A. held their November meeting in the Anglican Hall with 16 members present.

The meeting opened with prayers and a reading from the Study Book. A subscription was made to help the Anglican Chaplain at the University, with his work among students. It was decided to purchase 6 card tables for use in the Hall.

Conveners were appointed for the Bazaar and Tea to be held on November 21st. It was also agreed to cater to a banquet on December 4th.

The Annual meeting is to be held in the Rectory.

Remembrance Day Services

The annual Remembrance Day Services and festivities were conducted under the auspices of the Legion branches in all towns and villages served by the Community Press, on Wed., November 11th.

As is the usual custom, church services were held in the morning commencing at 10:30 a.m., followed by the laying of wreaths at the Cenotaphs and Memorials.

Legion members, Auxiliary and Cadets, along with large numbers of civilians, turned out to pay tribute to those who had died in two world wars. The customary two-minute silence was observed, following the reading of the names of those who had fallen.

Legion members & their friends enjoyed, in most instances, a banquet and get-together during the afternoon, and dances were held in the evening.

November the 11th was a cool, frosty day. The trees in the backyard of this Community Press Photo show the heavy coating of frost received on Armistice morning.

Wavy Lake 4-H Beef Club

The Wavy Lake 4-H Beef Club was organized and all officers were elected at the meeting on October 19 held at the R. Little home. The club has 17 members.

Officers elected were: President, Patrick Miller; Vice — President, Dwight Lawson; Secretary, Dennis Kempster; Treasurer, Bob Meiknabb; Reporter, Christine Meiknabb; Club leader, Bill Hawkins; Assistant leaders, Robert Little, Kenny Heister; Adult Committee, Mr.L. Lindroth, Mr. A. Lawson, Mr. Kempster.

The club meets every first Monday of the month. Club calves were weighed on November 7 at the Pool Elevator in Strome.

The second meeting of the Wavy Lake 4-H Beef Club was held at W. Prichard's home. The meeting was then brought to order by the new President Patrick Miller at 8 p.m. on Monday, November 9th. The project books and record books were explained to the new members. The meeting adjourned at 9:16 p.m. Lunch was then served.

ST. GEORGE'S W.A. MEETING

KILLAM — Seven members were present at the November meeting at home of Mrs. Evans. A hymn, memory work, and a prayer read by Mrs. Brown, was followed by roll call which was answered with D.T.O. offering. Connie Matthews presided.

Minutes were read and approved, the treasurer's report, cemetery report, Sunday School report, and visitations to hospital, were given.

Monies sent to the memorial for Mrs. Chamberlain will be used for the training of divinity students.

Church calendars were distributed. The annual meeting will be in December at the Matcher home.

Meeting was closed with the Lord's Prayer.

Harry Moodys Leave Hardisty

A popular and highly respected couple, Harry and Esther Moody, received homage from their friends at St. Paul's United Church, Hardisty on Sunday, November 8th, after the morning service.

At this farewell social regrets were expressed by the Minister, W. G. Zwicker on behalf of the congregation. Others also rose and expressed their regrets, mingled with esteemed tributes for long and faithful service rendered to the Church and community of Hardisty and Rosyth, where Mr. Moody was a genial buyer for years. They were active in the Elks and Royal Purple Lodges.

A purse of money, enclosed in a farewell card with names of donors, was tendered them by Howard Hays, Chairman of the Committee of Stewards. They received and were delivered by Mrs. F. M. Castles.

After community singing a lunch was served by the United Church Women. Mr. and Mrs. Moody leave for Calgary on November 18.

WINTER ARRIVES

Winter arrived with a long last week when all of a sudden it turned cold and started snowing. The roads were icy and many cars came to a stop in the ditch. Now it is melting and most of the snow is gone again.

Visitation Program On November 22

The program, developed by the Central Council of Women, and used by many denominations in Canada, is called Partnership in the Gospel, and is designed to challenge people to commit themselves more deeply to the Christian way of life.

Through Bible study and Congregational analysis, the Mission of the churches for 1965 was planned. Three areas of concern were singled, the church's mission to the nation and the world, the church's mission to the community and the church's mission to the congregation. This vision of the goals for the churches will be taken by the visitors into the homes of the congregations on Visitation Sunday. The visitors will be commissioned for their task during the morning worship service on November 22nd.

Local Delegates At 4-H Conference

Alberta's delegation of 14 outstanding 4-H members and two Department of Agriculture officials left Edmonton Tuesday for Ottawa and the National 4H Club Conference. Prior to Departure the delegates were guests of the Alberta Wheat Pool at a banquet given in their honor at the Macdonald Hotel. Other guests at this function included the parents and leaders of of the delegates. Guest speaker at the banquet was Mr. Robert Clark, M.L.A. Carstairs. Mr. Clark was himself a delegate to the Conference in 1946.

Travelling with the group will be Miss G'wen Robins, Associate Supervisor of 4-H Clubs, and A. Dalgetty, District Agriculturist, Sedgewick. In addition to general supervision of the delegates these officials will have responsibilities in connection with the Conference program.

CURLING ICE? It doesn't look much like a curling rink but there are the score boards in the background. The Sedgewick Curling Club halted operations recently and turned the kids loose for the week end and they had a ball. Sunday afternoon after the kids left the curlers went to work and on Monday were back at the curling game.

Daysland Council Meet

The regular monthly meeting of the Town of Daysland was held on November 2nd in the Town Office.

Present were four Councillors with Mayor Pryce presiding.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and discussed. The financial statement of the month of October was read and discussed. The balance at the end of October was $25,894.29. It was moved that the financial be adopted as read.

Mr Martin Mandrusiak, manager of Daysland Hotel again explained that he was not in charge for the Hotel should be lowered. He was told the By-law authorizing Council to cut the rate from $30.00 to $40.00 per month was in the hands of the Local Authorities Board and Council could not lower the charge until this Board approved the By-law. He insisted on a further cut to $35.00 per month, to which Council suggested that he wait to see if the present cut is approved. If it is then he could possibly apply again in 1965.

Constable A. Schatz and Mr. Nels Cruse gave a report on the EMO police short course held in Camrose earlier this fall. They were told by Camrose that the next RCMP would supply free training should local volunteers be interested. Council suggested that Constable Schatz contact the Killam RCMP in regards to this course. Should they need further information then the secretary would contact EMO headquarters in Edmonton.

Building Permits: Watson (Telfield) Ltd. applied for an option to purchase Lot 31, Block 2, Plan LV and a building permit to construct an office for Calgary Power. This option was accepted and permit granted.

Revelstoke Building Materials Ltd. applied for a building permit to construct a dwelling for Mr. R. McTavish on Lots 11, 12, 13, Block 5, Plan 7107X. This permit granted.

Mr. Ronald Hanrahan applied for a permit to move his house onto Lot 3, Block 7, Plan LV and build an addition. This permit was granted.

The Killam School Division No. 22 applied for a building permit to construct a 14x32 garage on Lot 11, Block 1, Plan 7107X. Permit was granted.

Peachy Oil Co. wrote the Town stating they have no further use for Lot 5, Block 17, Plan 3054KT and asked if the Town would be interested in buying it. Council instructed the secretary to answer this letter stating the Town was not interested.

Mr. L. E. Frankson had suggested that he could come to Daysland and meet with Council to discuss the possibilities of a recreational director for this Town. The secretary reported he had written Mr. Frankson stating he should suggest a date in early November.

A letter received from the MD of Flagstaff informing Council that they had employed a full time Constable that would police the entire M.D. of Flagstaff. Constable Schatz's services would therefore be terminated as of December 31, 1964.

Other letters received were from the Public Utilities Board in regards to their decision of natural gas along Highway 13, from the Department of Industry and Development in regards to annexation outside of Town limits, from the Recreational and Cultural Activities Branch enquiring about local activities in Arts and Crafts, and from the Battle River Planning Commission explaining eligibility and membership dues as well as services rendered for members.

There Will Always Be Unemployment!

Canada at the present time is enjoying the highest rate of employment percentage wise, in recent times, and yet we find that some 300,000 Canadians are without work. Political parties, with a view of taking over the reins of government, have included in their platforms the fact that there is no need for unemployment if only the affairs of the country were properly managed. Truth of matter is that we will always have unemployment with us, and it will continue to be a problem with which governments will have to concern themselves.

Today Canada finds herself bursting at the seams with industrial expansion, while the economist establishes new records, and more and more people are gainfully employed, either as employees or self-employed. But there will always be the hard core of citizens who are not mentally, physically and intellectually equipped to handle the technical and skilled positions which are more and more required by society. We will always have with us the contingent of people who, to put it squarely, are equipped only to handle the pick and shovel jobs. That is not to say that these people can serve no useful purpose, for there are many areas where their talent is needed. It is the reluctant attitude of these people to accept menial tasks, while their more talented companions are finding more cushy employment.

If ever there was a need to instill in our rising generation the necessity of higher education and training in skilled vocations, that time is now. If thereby a shortage of labor in the menial class arises, there is noimuch doubt that industry will find a way to take care of it. In the meantime there is a growing shortage of skilled and professional personel in this country, which can only be overcome by instilling in the minds of the young that a good education now is the answer to personal security later on.

Once this situation has arrived industry will have to face up to the fact that wages and working conditions must be brought up to a standard where employees will remain content in their positions.

Canada today accepts many thousands of immigrants, and in fact during the most recent few years has accepted some two and a half million, mostly skilled, while during the same period she lost just about one million skilled and professional people who sought and obtained better working conditions and higher pay elsewhere.

There is not much sense in training and educating young people, only to lose them, because conditions are not acceptable, and financial returns inadequate.

The Right Of Veto!

Canada will some day be a completely autonomous nation, and has in fact only two steps to undertake to become so. No one doubts but that the flag issue will be settled once the federal legislators decide to stop playing politics with the issue and get down to business. The changing of the B.N.A. Act will also be brought about, removing forever the stigma of Colonialism, once the governments can reach agreement on how it shall be done. But many, like C. J. Harris, are holding reservations on the methods being bandied about. It is very doubtful if any one province should have the authority to veto the procedure.

The agreement reached by the federal and provincial premiers on a formula for amending the constitution has been hailed as putting an end to "a ridiculous and humiliating situation, a survivnt of colonialism." It is true that the procedure for changing the British erica Act — by petition to the British Parliament is an anachronism, but its survival has not been Britain's doing Britain has long wanted to be rid of the formality. It has endured only because our federal and provincial authorities have not been able to agree whether, in accepting the transfer from the United Kingdom to Canada of amending powers over the B.N.A. Act, future changes would require a unanimous vote or only a majority vote of the eleven governments involved. Now a compromise has been arranged, but it is questionable that the issue has been settled.

Under the draft agreement, as a general rule, constitutional changes could be made if they had the approval of the federal Parliament and two-thirds of the provinces representing at least 50 per cent of the population. However, as a further general rule, "some fundamental provisions of the constitution, such as those relating to the division between federal and provincial authorities and the use of the English or French language." could be changed only by the unanimous consent of the federal Parliament and the legislatures of all the provinces. In other words, the area which is certain to be of the greatest significance, any one province would hold the right to veto.

It was also stated in the announcement regarding the amending formula that a minimum number of four provinces could delegate specific provincial powers to the federal government. This provision could permit many variations of federal and provincial authorities that it would be hardly possible to say that Canada was one country.

There is no question of the need of constitutional guarantee of protection of traditional provincial rights. But there are also federal rights and responsibilities. The proposed amending formula would petrify the constitution, make Ottawa a follower rather than a leader, and probably delegate amendment to the Supreme Court.

The draft agreement must be subjected to careful and critical examination.

Get Them Into Church!

We don't know about you chaps but we're getting sick of reading about "pub crawling preachers" the latest two to join the tomato juice parade in the dens of silky suds being a couple of worthy souls in Prince George. Not that we do not believe they aren't doing a job, mind you, because heaven knows there ARE those who need guidance along the path of purity. But I imagine it's pretty embarrasing for preacher Joe to walk into a bar and look one of his chief officers in the eye. Just for the record we know a lot of very fine Christians who give their all to Church and God and yet enjoy a cocktail before supper. Our two latest pub crawling "Revs" were surprised to learn that there ARE men who have a beer or two and call that "sin" without harm to their spiritual life or health. Look fellows, do a good job in the pulpit and you'll find the job of pub crawling will be reduced to a minimum. Anyone can coax a man out of a bar. The challenge is getting him into church.

Forty-Sixth Year of Service

★ MACDUFF REPORT

Three Strikes . . .

OTTAWA — A cost of living bonus for this country's million odd old age pensioners has been announced by Health, and Welfare Minister Judy LaMarsh. She made the announcement when she introduced the third version of the Canada Pension Plan.

The Minister noted that one of the criticisms made of the earlier Canada Pension Plan legislation was that it failed to provide for Canada's elderly citizens who were already in receipt of pensions and who will have no opportunity to contribute to the Plan. She believed that pegging future basic pension payments to the living cost index would answer this criticism.

But she stirred up a storm that resulted in Stanley Knowles, New Democratic Party member from Winnipeg North Centre, labelling the Liberals as the "six bit boys". He was incensed over the 75 cents increase in the basic pension which would not take effect until 1966. He denounced the proposal as a "fraud" and a "cruel hoax". Miss LaMarsh was equally incensed at Mr. Knowles' reaction and said so. The old age pensioner now receives $75 a month is now payable to all those 70 years of age and over in Canada. Under the new proposal it is to be linked to the cost of living index in this country. It will provide small increases in the basic pension commencing in 1968, if the living costs rise.

Miss LaMarsh told the Commons that in addition to the $10 increase in the old age pension implement-ed a year ago, under the provisions of the revised Canada Pension plan "all future old age security pensions will be pegged to the cost of living index".

Members of Parliament applauded her announcement. But when copies of the new bill were distributed later in the evening it became apparent to the M. P's. that the old age pensioners would not benefit under this new provision until 1968. And if that year the cost of living index had risen by one point in 19-67 the old age pensioner would get an extra 75 cents. If the cost of living index in 1967 had risen by two points or more the most the pensioner would get extra would be $1.50.

The new bill provides that the maximum amount of an increase in any one year that pensioners may get on their basic old age security pension is $1.00. Consequently if the cost of living index in1967 went up by three or more points the increase in the pension tied to the cost of living would be not more then $1.50.

Mr. Knowles rose on a question of privilege in the Commons the next day. He accused Miss LaMarsh of misleading the M. P's. and the one million Canadian pensioners into believing that they would get an immediate increase in their basic pensions, pegged to the cost of living increase.

Miss LaMarsh denied this. She said that her remarks in the House the previous day referred to the Canada Pension Plan and that all M. P's. were aware that it was not scheduled to become operative until January 1st, 1966. The Minister pointed out that providing for an increase in the basic old age security pension of $10 tied to the cost of living index was the first time such a procedure had been made in Canada. She noted that the New Democratic Party members had applauded enthusiastically when she announced it in the House.

The Minister also emphasized that there was nothing in the proposed legislation that would prevent the Federal Government, sometime in the future, increasing the basic old age security pension above Rs present $75 level.

The basic old age security pension will go on the sliding scale on January 1st, 1967. The first adjustment will be made in 1968. If the cost of living has risen by less than one percent the change will be ignored. If the cost of living has gone up by more than one percent the pension will be raised by the same percentage up to a maximum increase of two percent in any one year. If the cost of living falls the pension will not be reduced, but the decline will be taken into account in adjusting for future increases.

"This is not good enough," said Mr. Knowles. He felt it was misleading the old age pensioners. They had thought they were going to get an immediate increase, now they learned they might get 75c increase in 1968.

T. C. Douglas, national leader of the NDP urged Miss LaMarsh to give consideration to having the cost of living bonus for pensioners brought into effect immediately as an amendment to the Old Age Security legislation. In that way it could be based on the cost of living as of October 1962.

The cost of the increases for the pensioners will be paid out of the present old age security fund, supplemented by a three-per-cent sales tax, three-per-cent corporation tax and four-per-cent personal income tax. No new taxes will be needed to pay the cost of living bonus. The growth of the economy is expected to make it possible to make these payments out of the fund which is already showing a surplus.

The cost of living bonus when it comes in its effect will mean that each one per cent increase in living costs will require an additional payment of about $9,000,000 per year in pensions.

The new version of the Canada Pension Plan is set out in a bill that is half an inch thick. It affects the lives and livelihood of 5,000,000 Canadians. It is a complex piece of legislation. It is the third major revision of the pension plan. The latest version was evolved after negotiations with Quebec and other provinces.

It will be sent to a committee of the Commons and Senate for thorough study. That committee will have before it the detailed actuarial and economic reports. The committee will probably summon expert witnesses to hear submissions from those now operating private pension plans. If it finally passes the legislation is scheduled to take effect in 1966. It will apply everywhere in Canada, except in Quebec. That province will have its own plan which is similar in most respects to the Federal plan.

CASHING PAY CHEQUES

Reports from Capitol Hill say that Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker isn't cashing the cheques he receives in pay as leader of the opposition . . .

Some people may argue that Mr. Diefenbaker, recognized as Canada's number one vote-getter with-out much help from his little "gimmick" to arouse sympathy for himself, should be cashing them. Just as he turned the Conservative "Camelot Revolt" into an asset during the last election.

We prefer to think, however, that Mr. Diefenbaker has no such motive in mind. Rather, we feel that Mr. Diefenbaker assessed the attitest of his worth to Parliament during the year, and wants to be paid accordingly. In the present, most disgusting session at Ottawa, more of the members should assess their true worth to Parliament and take out their pay accordingly.

REMEMBRANCE RETROSPECT ION

Is there any point in prolonging the observance of that middle-aged and melancholy sensation known as Remembrance Day?

They mean nothing to about 30 per cent of the several million immigrants to Canada since World War II. How would you feel about Remembrance Day if you were a a run of bad luck. One day he an Italian ex-infantryman?

Both the world wars of this century are ancient history to school children, and the old cliches of the day — "sacrifice," "laid down their lives," "fought for freedom" — leave them solemn but uncomprehending.

And most, but not least, it interferes with business. Merchants will tell you, with tears as big as turnips in their eyes, that they'll go broke if they have to close for three November 11. Manufacturers will assure you that the one-day interruption of production will force them to the wall.

In view of all this, is there any sense in keeping on to this special day? I'm not sure I know. But a one-hour coffee break on November 11th? Within a couple of years, this could be further reduced to a two-minute silence. And within a decade, the whole silly business of remembering a few million dead men could be abolished.

Is there any meaning in it may more? I don't know how you feel, but my answer is a resounding, reactionary Yes! It is based not on facts, but on emotion.

I'm a sucker for Remembrance Day. There's something to mist the eyes in the jaunty gallantry of the old vets as they try to match the swing they marched with 46 years ago, a stiff leg here, an empty there a pinned-up sleeve.

And there's something almost equally touching in the vets of World War II. They straighten their backs, pull in their guts, and force their kids waving at them from the sidewalk, and for a few brief moments toss away 30-odd years and become tough Canadian troops, ready to die for their country.

During the two-minutes' silence at the Cenotaph, I remember. I remember the two Sgt. Majors — John Spohn, Mrs. Keith Carta (Myrna), Mrs. Cecil Tiedeman (Jean), Mrs. James Pytlem (Ann), Lawrence, Anita and Linda, who are still at home, and thirteen grandchildren.

Burger's Funeral Home of Camrose was in charge of the arrangements. In a neighboring army camp, and the troops were rather hostile to airmen for a few weeks. Another time he was sent to England on the beer run. Flying back across the channel he spotted two German fighters about to attack him, jettisoned his extra tanks and prepared to defend himself. The extra tanks, full of beer, went into the drink. The German fighters turned out to be all spotts on his windscreen. And he was nearly lynched when he arrived and told his story. His luck ran out one day. Hit by flak, he bailed out and his parachute failed to open.

I remember the dreary November day six of us carried a coffin up a blockhillside to a stony cemetery in North Wales. It occurred what they'd been able to scrape up of Paddy Burns, Australian, age 20, after he flew into a hill.

And I remember half a hundred others: roaring boys, laughing boys, timid boys, gay boys, and boys unsure of self.

And when the Last Post plays their sweet ragtoons in the still autumn air, I'll be there, my face all crumpled and a lump as big as a bullet sqg in my throat.

Brag Remembrance Day? Not as long as I can still cry, and there's room for it at the Legion Hall after the parade.

OBITUARY

Funeral services were held on Tuesday, November 3rd at Our Lady of Fatima Church, Stronm, for a well known and respected resident of the district, Michael Mc-Ludwig (Louie) John Spohn, who passed away in the Camrose St. Mary's Hospital.

Born at Spring Lake on September, 1, 1911, he lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Spohn Sr. until July 22, 1933 when he was united in marriage to Laura Schaub. He then farmed in the Stronm district and became a faithful member of the St. Peter's Parish until 1947 when he joined the Parish of Our Lady of Fatima Church in Stronm. Mr. Spohn was confirmed in the Catholic faith in his mother in 1948, his father in 1983 and also a brother and sister.

Surviving are his loving wife Laura and eight children, Mrs. Willie Pytlem (Agnes), John Spohn, Mrs. Keith Carta (Myrna), Mrs. Cecil Tiedeman (Jean), Mrs. James Pytlem (Ann), Lawrence, Anita and Linda, who are still at home, and thirteen grandchildren.

Burger's Funeral Home of Camrose was in charge of the arrangements. Fr. Hegele officiating. Burial was in the Parish Cemetery. May his soul rest in peace.

Central Wins Again

On Friday, October 30 the Central girls travelled to Irma. At 2:00 p.m. the game got underway with Central making 2 fast baskets. Much to our disappointment the 1st quarter ended 10-4 in Irma's favor. By the end of the first half we managed to tie the game 16-16. Fast moving breaks and team cooperation brought the Centralettes ahead at the end of the third quarter 24-20. The Irma gyms took some getting used to, but Central held Irma down to a mere 2 points in the last quarter, making the final score 30-22 for Central.

Point getters for Central were: Sandy Paterson 10 points; Sharryl Grant 6 points; Lynnan Grant 6 points; Sandra Miller 4 points; Anne Harris 2 points.

The Central girls have done it again. On Friday the 13th Central hosted Heisler to a 35-17 ball game. The first quarter was a fast moving, shooting quarter which ended with the Centralettes leading 8 to 5. Even though Heisler had the ball quite a bit they couldn't get a basket. At the end of the half, Central led the game 19-8. With Central getting a few breaks and having a good team effort they ended the 3rd quarter by scoring 14 points to Heisler's 8. With Central staying ahead all the way the girls topped Heisler 35-17.

Point getters were: Lynnan Grant 14, Sandra Miller 7, Anita Palmer 4, Barb Cameron 4, Linda Bergul 2, Lady Sutter 2, Anne Harris 2, Goldene McGowan 2, and Sharryl Grant 1.

The Central boys dumped Heisler for a 29-26 loss with Curtis Rizwe leading the scoring with 19 points.

The 3rd quarter of the game was packed with action, with the Heisler boys coming out with a 1 point advantage. The fourth quarter Central took command and won with a 3 point margin.

Friday the 13th proved to very lucky for both girls and boys.

Central Highlites

The students of Central were issued their report cards on Friday. They were given out in the morning so that the students could get mistakes corrected that might appear on the report.

Some of the clubs in Central that meet this week were the Youth for Christ Club, the Girls Club, and the group that are working on the paper. The paper is published by the grade ten students throughout the year.

On Friday the 20th is parent - teacher interview.

On November 7th the Rams played Camrose Composite and won by a score of 16-0. The Rams are now in the play-offs and have to play Wetaskiwin at Camrose Saturday.

November 13
Daysland at Alliance
Galahad at Forestburg
Heisler at Central
November 20
Central at Daysland
November 20
Central at Forestburg
Galahad at Daysland
Alliance at Heisler
November 27
Forestburg at Daysland
Alliance at Central
Heisler at Galahad
December 3
Central at Galahad
December 4
Forestburg at Heisler
Galahad at Alliance
Daysland at Central

The girls have played two games and won them both. In the first game against Alliance they won with a score of 46-8. In the second game they played Irma and won with a score of 20-32.

Tenders Called For Agriculture Schools

Tenders will be called shortly for the final project in the 1964 construction program for Alberta's 3 agricultural and vocational colleges according to Hon. Randolph C. Colborne, Minister of Public Works. The project, a $45,000 maintenance and repair program, will bring the province's total construction cost at the three schools to over three-quarters of a million dollars.

Just being completed is a $186,000 Animal Science Building at Vermilion, Work has already started on alterations and renovations on the Main Dormitory, at a cost of $50,000 and on the Farm Mechanics Building, at a cost of $50,000.

Evidence of the continuing program of development may also be seen in the Olds and Lethbridge colleges.

At Fairview construction is approaching completion on a new gymnasium and a farm mechanics building. The gymnasium is to standard high school size, with locker showers and other recreation facilities. It is being built at a cost of $187,000. The $144,000 Farm Mechanics Building will contain a motors laboratory, carpentery shop, small drafting laboratory, and classrooms. Both buildings will replace facilities formerly housed in an old hangar, which was destroyed by five several years ago.

Construction is also nearing completion on a new metals shop building at the Olds College. The structure is being erected at a cost of $164,000. It will contain two classrooms and four separate metal working shops for all phases of metal work as related to agriculture.

HARDISTY HIGH-LITES

Hardisty Legion Holds Special Nov. Services

November 11th. Armistice Day, was observed as usual here. The morning service was held in the Hut with Comrade Ed Stang as chairman. President Ing. Johnsrud read the Scripture with Rev. Fr. Heffernan and Rev. W. G. Swisher giving the talk and prayers. Following the comrade service, coffee, cocoa and cookies were served to all, with members of the Cubs assisting very ably in the serving.

The banquet in the evening, delicious as always, was enjoyed by some 50 veterans, wives and guests. Comrade Stang as chairman called on Fr. Heffernan and Rev. Swisher to speak. President Ing. Johnsrud gave a brief report on Legion doings, while Auxiliary President Mrs. Dewitt did the same for her branch. The Legion secretary, Comrade Jack Thorp, also gave a short talk.

After the banquet guests were welcomed for the social evening of music and dancing. The draw made for the Auxiliary raffle. Mr. N. Hudson of Edmonton won the bed spread. Mrs. Bob Zimmer won the blanket.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Drever of Calgary visited with the Dirk and Cyril Drever families on Sunday.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Barnes, a son, on Friday at St. Anne's Hospital. Congratulations.

Mrs. Bill Woodcock of Kelowna has been visiting with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Krutzfeldt of Wetaskiwin were recent visitors at the Rembaugh home.

Bill Matthews, who has been pipe-fitting at Westlock, returned home on Saturday.

St. Mary's W. A. met at the home of Mrs. B. Matthews on Monday afternoon. The devotional period was led by the hostess. The secretary reported sending a parcel to the Oliver Mental Institution for their Christmas sale. It was decided to order new tables for the parish hall. A bake sale to be held at the Auction Mart was planned.

The Busy Bees bridge club held the first gathering of the season on Tuesday evening at the home of Helen Anderson. Three tables of bridge were played, winners being Lynda Cinfield and Evelyn Edworthy.

Sunday visitors with Mrs. M. Vandewark were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Patterson and family and Mr. and Mrs. Trad Archbold and Mrs. Archbold Sr. from Alliance.

WATER AND THE LAYING FLOCK

Laying birds must have a continuous supply of fresh clean water.

R. H. McMillan, Alberta's Poultry Commissioner, reports experiments have shown that egg production can suddenly drop as much as 50 per cent if the water supply is limited to about two hours a day.

Continuous water is more important than chickens than for any other farm stock because birds can not take in large quantities at a time. In addition to a large percentage of their bodies being water, every dozen eggs contains as much a pint of water.

Lack of adequate water is one of the unexpected importances in the metabolism of all birds and animals. It is the medium in which the various body processes take place, it absorbs the heat reaction produced by carbohydrates and fats and it regulates the body temperature.

A flock of 100 laying pullets may between 6 and 8 gallons of water on a hot summer day. This amounts to approximately 2,880 gallons in a year. A short dose of time and labour can be saved if a water line is run to the poultry house. An electrical drum with an outlet over the front will eliminate the daily chore of small fresh cut trough running dry when it is not possible to install a water line and an automatic float.

A continuous supply of water is more important than the actual number of water dishes. During very cold weather it is advisable to warm the water. Chickens will not drink when there is ice on the water. This results in a drop in egg production.

Chicken water should always be fresh and clean. It should be kept in clean containers and all other water sources should be removed. Contaminated water, says Dr. McMillan, is an ideal environment for many disease organisms to propagate.

Linda Hendricks and David Hooper Married In Hardisty United Church

St. Paul's United Church, Hardisty was the scene of the marriage on November 7th of Linda Hendricks, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clint Hendricks of Hardisty and David Hooper of Sedgewick. Rev. W. G. Swisher officiated.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was lovely in a gown of white brocade, fashioned with Aline shirt and split train. The plain bodice had lilly point sleeves. Her fingertip veil was held by a crown of pearls, and she wore a pearl necklace and earrings, a gift from the groom, and carried a bouquet of red roses.

The maid of honor, Karen Drever, wore mint green brocade, while the two bridesmaids, Marlene Cavanaugh and Arlene Miller, were in shrimp pink brocade, all with matching hats and carrying white carnations. Two dainty flower girls sisters of the bride, were Toni Ann and Stacey Swinimarki, in green and pink brocade with white baby bonnets. The banner was Trevor Hooper.

The bride's mother wore a dress and hat of turquoise with copper accessories, while the mother of the groom wore a ballerety yellow dress with accessories of brown.

The groom was attended by Robert James, Ron Cary and Ken Christiansen, while Lee Hendricks and Norval Smith acted as ushers.

Mr. Len Anderson was soloist, singing the beautiful "Wedding Prayer", organist was Mrs. Jack Edwards.

A reception for some 150 guests was held in the school auditorium with Bill Bin as master of ceremonies. The grace was said by the bride's cousin, David Coutts of Calgary. Her uncle, Orville Hendricks, proposed the toast to the bride. Mrs. Clint Hendricks and Mrs. Ken Angerino, Mr. and Mrs. L. Jordaan, Mr. David Coutts, all of Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Wattie, Mrs. M. Crosier, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Swaine, Mr. and Mrs. L. Maish, Mr. and Mrs. A. Merriam, Miss Sherryn Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Baltzer, all of Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. B. Manning of Drayton Valley; Mr. and Mrs. P. Manning of Camrose; and Mrs. Jim Hooper and Trevor of Westlock; Mrs. Dorothy Leyshon, Drumheller; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Potter, Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. D. Patten, Buck Lake; and Mr. and Mrs. C. James of Red Deer.

The bride's table was centered with the wedding cake, flanked by green tapers in crystal candlesticks. Flowers in autumn shades decorated the tables.

An open house was held at the home of the bride's parents from 6:30 to 9:30, when many friends called to express their congratulations and good wishes.

Later a dance was held in the Stampede Hall.

For her going away outfit, the bride wore a suit of gold wool, with black accessories, and a green orchid corsage. The happy couple left for a honeymoon at the coast and points in the States, after which they will be at home in Edmonton.

Among out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. John Swinimarki of Quesnel, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hendricks, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Hendricks, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Angerino, Mr. and Mrs. L. Jordaan, Mr. David Coutts, all of Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Wattie, Mrs. M. Crosier, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Swaine, Mr. and Mrs. L. Maish, Mr. and Mrs. A. Merriam, Miss Sherryn Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Baltzer, all of Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. B. Manning of Drayton Valley; Mr. and Mrs. P. Manning of Camrose; and Mrs. Jim Hooper and Trevor of Westlock; Mrs. Dorothy Leyshon, Drumheller; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Potter, Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. D. Patten, Buck Lake; and Mr. and Mrs. C. James of Red Deer.

SNOWSUIT FOR YOUR CHILD'S SNOWSUIT

It is time you started contemplating the purchase of warm winter clothing for your children.

How long a child's snow suit will last depends to a considerable degree on its outer fabric. Nylon was found to stand up better than cotton-nylon blends and far better than all cotton. Cotton were poorly at the knees. It also failed to drip dry to a satisfactory appearance. Bulks of fabric other than cotton need no ironing.

Cotton tagentry turned shabby as threads pulled and hung. Orlon knits (in jackets) and stretch nylon (in pants) pilled badly. All these fabrics were nonetheless pegged durable Cotton knits (in jackets) and Acrilan jersey (in pants) were less durable.

To help you in your purchase of a good buy here are the details of an ideal snow suit.

Outer fabric of all nylon, multicoloured in hide stains, bark-coated with water proofing.

Flat-fell seams sewn with nylon thread.

Diamond stitched nylon quilt lining in jacket and sleeves with nylon or acrylic fill (not cotton fill). Pile lined, attached hood which reaches well over forehead.

Hood closes parka fashion, with zipper that runs up to the chin and tie tapes or draw string tucked securely in the garment.

Kit ruffle inside quilt-lined regulation sleeves.

Roomy, quilt-lined pants with bib front and zipper to make dressing easy. Snap-on suspenders that stay adjusted and have some elastic in them.

Jacket with acrylic pile body lining, zipper patch pockets of outer fabric inside and out, and no trim.

Knee patches of outer fabric, easily replaceable when worn out.

Wide pant bottoms, zipper cuffs and elastic stirrups to make dressing easy.

Room for a full year of growth is important in a snow suit. An outfit when new should be long and full at the legs, sleeves and jacket bottom and deep at the crotch. Raglan sleeves will allow for broadening shoulders. Always be sure the waist fits properly before committing yourself to its purchase.

Canada's so-called robin, named by early British settlers after their fancied homeland's true robin, is really a red-breasted thrush.

In the St. Lawrence the effect of the tide is felt as far upriver as Trois Rivieres, more than 700 miles from the ocean.

Hog Market Prediction

Heavier hog marketing and somewhat lower prices to producers compared with last year are forecast for the final quarter of 1964 by Canada Department of Agriculture experts.

Marketings should reach their highest levels in late October and November but decline somewhat in December. Prices are expected to remain close to present levels.

According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics September hog marketings were 2,998,600 head on farmin Canada an increase of six per cent over the year.

In Eastern Canada hog numbers increased two per cent while numbers in Western Canada were 12 per cent greater that at Sept. 1st, 1963.

Farmers indicated that farrowings may increase nine per cent in Eastern Canada and 30 per cent in the West in the fall of 1964 for all Canada This is a 14 per cent increase over last year.

On the basis of the D.B.S. survey, hog marketings are expected to total 11,800,000 head (an average of 143,000 head per week) in the final quarter of 1964. This is a 5 per cent increase over the last 3 months of 1963, and the greatest quantity marketed in a quarter since 1960.

Marketings in Eastern Canada during October, November, and December are expected to increase 2 per cent to an average of 21,000 head per week. Marketings in the West may increase 31,000 head per week during this period — 11 per cent above a year ago.

In the first half of 1965, marketings may tota 1,910,000 head or 147,000 per week — an increase of 4 per cent over the previous year.

Marketings in the East are expected to range 17,000 per week with the main increase coming in October.

Western marketings may be up nine per cent to an average of 54,700 per week with increases distributed fairly evenly in the three quarte previews. Prices should be only slightly lower than during the fall and somewhat below last year in January, February and March 1966.

Marketings in the second and third quarters of 1966 will probably remain about five per cent above 1964 levels. Most of the increase again concentrated in the three prairie provinces. An 11 per cent increase is expected in the West in Eastern Canada, a two per cent increase may occur, primarily in Ontario and the Maritimes.

Prices in the April-September period of 1965 will depend to a considerable degree on the United States situation U.S farmers report they plan to drop farrowings sharply this winter.

A reduction in U.S marketings in 1965 is forecast and higher average hog prices should result there, however, four to five per cent heavier marketings in Canada over this period could prevent prices in this country from rising to the full extent of any upward movement in the U.S

Minimum Tillage For Summerfallow

SWIFT CURRENT, SASK. — Weed killers can be used effectively to cut down the number of tillage operations required for good summerfallow.

C. H Anderson, of the federal experimental farm here, reports that by careful selection and use of chemicals instead one tillage operation can be eliminated.

In experiments the weed chemicals did not control resistant grassy weeds or volunteer grain.

This year at the federal research center, four cultivations were effective in maintaining clean summerfallow. Where chemicals were used, three spray operations were needed.

Wheat grown on cultivated summerfallow in 1963 yielded 21 bushels per acre. chemical summerfallow yielded 15.5 bushels per acre Volunteer wheat and the presence of some resistant grassy weeds on the chemically treated fallow accounted for the use of much of the soil moisture and nitrogen that would normally have been available to the following crop.

The use of nitrogen in the volunteer crop in the year of fallow decreased the protein content of the following wheat crop from 15.8 to 14.2 per cent

The 4 to 5 grass cultivations should be in order to conserve moisture at a minimum especially in dry summer months. weeds should be destroyed in the spring of the summer before they have drawn too heavily on soil moisture reserves. Further tillage or chemical spraying should be carried out only as required to control subsequent weed growth.

In many cases the final growth of weeds after frost might be controlled by a shallow. The furrows cuts and prevents unnecessary exposure of the soil to wind erosion

The first practical use of steel rails in Canada was 1852, when Quebec Lake and Railway was opened to haul pine logs.

SHOWER HELD FOR JUDY LARSON AT THE HOME OF MRS. BARBER

A shower for Miss Judy Larson was held at the home of Mrs. Barber on Nov. 5, approximately 20 ladies were present. The evenings entertainment was a skit called "Tying the Knot" put on by Mr. Bell as justice of the peace. Mrs. Barber as father of the bride; Mrs. Betty Holmes as the bride; Alma Bennett as the groom; Mrs. Martha Nelson as mother of the bride; Dolores Bennett as bridesmaid, Dwayne Bennett as best man, Lynn Barber as flower girl and Vaughn Nelson as ring bearer. Several contests were also played. Gifts were brought in by Terry Lynn Bennett and Karen Barber dressed as the bride and groom, in a decorated wagon. Sarah Leaphon and Miss Kewiliuk assisted Judy with the opening of the gifts. A very lovely lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Doreen Barber, Alma Bennett and Mrs. Martha Nelson.

Baptist Church

Evangelistic services were held last week with Rev. Russel Cline of Three Hills Bible Institute as guest speaker. His Bible messages were challenging and heart searching. A ladies trio and pianist from the Bible School were also a real blessing to all who attended the services last week end. We were happy to welcome many visitors from other churches. The service on Saturday night was held in the lower auditorium where everyone enjoyed a good time of singing, testimonies, a message especially for the young people, and lunch. One hundred eleven children and adults registered for Sunday School on Sunday morning.

The Young People are wasting to purchase a Gestetner for the church. Some donations have been received and they are looking for more. These donations may be given to Mary, Eunice or Anita.

Attend church next Sunday. The church of your choice.

CAPITAL HILL

Despite a log jam of urgent and important legislation piling up, 2 members, R. W. Prittie (NDP) and J. H. Roxburgh (Lib.) are amusing themselves and their fellow members by proclaiming the relative rights of hockey and lacrosse to be designated as Canada's national game. Mr. Roxburgh has a bill declaring that it is hockey; Prittie, that it is lacrosse. This pastime may be innocent enough but to some observers here it is not designated to raise the low esteem in which many of the electorate, and with good reason, are holding their elected representatives these days.

UREA AS A PROTEIN SUBSTITUTE

I have heard several people talking about the use of urea as a Protein Substitue. The following is some information regarding urea as a feed from "Foods and Feeding" by Morrison.

Urea is best utilized when it is fed in combination with grain or some other starchy concentrate. Molasses is not a satisfactory substitute for all the grain. Urea gives as better results when used in a maintenance ration with good roughage than when all the roughage is poor.

In a fattening ration urea gives satisfactory results as a substitute for part of the protein when it replaces not more than 1/4 of the protein in the ration, and when some grain is fed.

Too large an amount of urea in a concentrate mixture may make it unpalatable, and animals may be poisoned if they consume more than a certain amount of urea. Not more than 2 to 3 per cent of urea should be included in the total concentrates fed. Urea must be borne in mind that Urea furnishes no energy to an animal, while the common protein supplements furnish both protein and energy.

KILLAM, NOV. 30

Former Lougheed Couple Honored At Ponoka

Millie and Albert Potter were married in Camrose Nov. 1, 1939 and resided in the Hardisty and Lougheed districts until 1941 when they moved to Ponoka.

On Oct. 20, eighty-five friends and relatives gathered at the Ponoka Riverside School to honor them with a surprise party, the occasion being their Silver wedding anniversary. Mr. Alvin Spelrem was Master of Ceremonies. Mrs. Paul Jess accompanied by Miss Win Roberts rendered two beautiful solos "Little Things Mean A Lot" and "Bluebird of Happiness". Miss Sharon Shultz sang "It Is No Secret" accompanied by Mrs. B. Smith. The highlight of the evening was when Miss Janice and Peggy Ann Potter sang "Memories are Made of This". Mr. Spelrem then led the guests in a few songs fitting the occasion.

Her then made presentations to the bride and groom of 25 years. They were recipients of many lovely gifts including a electric coffee percolator and TV trays from the children, a chest of silverware from the relatives, a polo lamp and a purse of silver from the community friends.

Millie and Albert graciously thanked everyone for the lovely gifts, long to be treasured.

The remainder of the evening was spent dancing followed by a delicious chicken supper. The lace covered table was centered with a three tier wedding cake baked by Mrs. George Wiggins and decorated by Mrs. Don Muller. Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. G. Potter and children, Salmon Arm, B.C.; Mrs. John Kobzeli, Wainwright; Mrs. Margaret Patterson; Hardisty; Mr and Mrs. George Potter and family, Lougheed; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Potter, Lougheed; Mrs. Roy Ferborg and family; Lougheed; Mr. and Mrs. Del Galloway, Irma.

ST. PAUL'S UCW MEET

St. Paul's UCW of Hardisty United Church reported a very successful Turkey Dinner held on October 24 in the Arena, during their regular business meeting on November 13. With President, Mrs. M. Redman in the chair, the ladies planned for a Tea and Bazaar on December 5th, to be held in the Shamrock Cafe, and a Christmas Party to take place in December, in the Church.

Rev. W. G. Zwicker conducted the Bible study session, dealing with the Study Book "God and His Purpose".

Devotional was led by Mrs. E. Edwards and Mrs. P. Cavanaugh. Mrs. P. Cantlie read a letter from the faster child of the UCW, a Korean girl, and also read her letter in reply.

Mrs. A. Moulder and Mrs. M. and a social hour brought the evening to a close.

Dragger served 6 delicious lunch.

Annual Meeting -

B. of T. Hears Talk On Changes In Railroads

Roy Manning was elected President of the Killam District Board of Trade at the Annual Dinner Meeting held November 13th. Ninety citizens attended the meeting catered to by the Killam Hospital Auxiliary.

Other officers elected for the new term include Ed Berth (Past President), Tony Schnottler (First Vice), Dick Kinzer (Second Vice), and Jens Lindseth, Bob Cawsrad, Reuben Link, Lorne Kerr and Joe Lorink, Directors. Others will be added to the Executive shortly when committee chairmen are named.

Mayor Gordon Hilker brought greeting from the Council to the gathering. Guest speaker at the meeting chaired by retiring president Ed Berth was Mr. H. G. MacBeth, Superintendent of the Edmonton Division of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Mr. MacBeth gave a very interesting address on the changes in railroading since the war. He covered such things as the transition from the old steam locomotive to the diesel engines, changes in train equipment and other improvements still in the trial stages. The guest speaker outlined the extensive use being made by the railways of the new electronic equipment both in signalling and safety devices and in office work.

Dick Kinzer replied to Mr. MacBeth on behalf of the Board of Trade. During the business part of the meeting, Secretary George Pettifer presented the financial report covering Arena and Medical Centre operations as well as general B of T activities.

The Executive's annual report made by Ed Berth. Discussions took place on the operation of the Arena, chairing dues, minor sports sponsorship and related subjects.

Preliminary discussions were also started on the operation of Killam's new Centennial Park, now in the making under the guidance of the Killam Council.

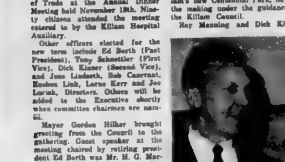
New President Roy Manning announced that an organization meeting of the Executive would be held on November 23rd.



ANNUAL MEETING — Retiring President Ed Berth introduced the guest speaker, Mr. H. G. MacBeth of the CPR, who spoke to the Killam Board of Trade on the changes in railroading since the war.

Slow Vehicle Emblem Will Be Introduced By 4-H Movement

A proposal was made at the 4-H meeting that club members should sell and distribute the emblems and flags as a contribution to Alberta's Farm Safety Program.

THE WEATHER

Cold, windy weather, steep with light snow settled in on Monday, with the temperatures dropping rapidly. The conditions prevailed on Tuesday as we go to press and indications are that winter has set in.

Slow vehicle emblems and florescent flags will be introduced to Alberta farmers during the next few months by the provincial 4-H Movement.

Statistics show that an average of 20 fatal accidents and about four times this number of injuries, involving slow moving vehicles, occur on main and secondary roads in the provinces every year.

The slow vehicle emblem and the florescent flags were demonstrated by the Alberta Safety Council to 275 delegates at their annual Leadership Camps in Edmonton. The triangular sign, which can be attached to any piece of equipment, is being considered as an international symbol for vehicles travelling less than 25 miles an hour.

The main part of the sign is florescent while the outer edge is covered with reflective tape for night driving. Florescent paint shows up clearly for a long distance in daylight. The flags, which are on 18 foot poles, are particularly valuable in pulling country where they give warning of a slow moving vehicle immediately over a

CWL MEETING

[illegible] DOUG LEISEN, REPORTER

The November meeting of the Killam CWL was held at the home of Mrs. Ray Manning with Mrs. G. Bergeson as hostess. Mrs. T. Bochnettler acted as President as Mrs. J. Schnettler was unable to attend.

The minutes of the last meeting were read. It was discussed and decided to buy some more glasses and silverware for the parish kitchen.

It was nabbed that all the ladies of the Parish save any empty preserve containers with the letters C.P. (Canada Preserve) on and turn into Mrs. R. Manning or Mrs. J. [illegible].

Reports were given by the various committees.

Mrs. H. Spiller won the attendance prize.

The meeting was closed by saying the Rosary. Lunch was served by Mrs. B. Spiller and Mrs. G. Bergeson.

15 Teachers Join A.T.A.

Inductees were honored on November 17 in Calahad at a very impressive ceremony at which 15 members were inducted into the Alberta Teachers' Association. The occasion took the form of a supper meeting. Following a delicious turkey dinner each inductee was introduced by his principal who gave a short background and a welcome to his staff. Mr. Miller of Hardisty read "Teaching, a Profession." Mr. Stein, president of the Local read the Code of Ethics after which the inductees repeated the pledge of membership into the ATA. A certificate was presented to each new member. The ceremony was closed by the invocation and a truly inspirational address by Mr. Heynyk [illegible].

Battle River Hockey League Re-organized

HARDISTY — The annual meeting of the Battle-River Hockey League was held recently at Hardisty and the League organized for the coming winter.

There will be six teams in the league this winter representing the following towns: Daysland, Killam, Hardisty, Viking, Irma, and Wainwright.

Plans call for the league to start on Monday night December 14th with all teams in action. If ice is not available games will start as soon as possible.

Central Drops Two By Close Scores

Two wild basketball games were played in Provostburg on Friday evening when Central took an Forestburg high. The girls played the first game and it was full of action. In the first quarter Central's lead by 2 points with the score at the end of the quarter 15-0 for Central for Central. The second quarter was just as exciting with a score of 21-18 for Central. At the end of the third quarter Central still led the game by three points. The fourth quarter was the most exciting of all; with only 16 seconds remaining in the game and the score 30-32 for Forestburg, it was a jump ball in Forestburg's end. Central got the ball and tossed it at the basket, it went in. Just before it went in the referee blew the whistle for a re-jump, the basket never counted, with Forestburg won by two points, making the final score of the 30-32 for Forestburg. The star player on the girls team for the game was Sandra Peterson who made a total of 12 points.

The boys game was also a very exciting game. In the first quarter Central made 8 points and Forestburg made 14. In the second quarter Central moved forward and made 14 points compared to Forestburg's 8. The score at the end of the second quarter was 22-22 for Forestburg. The third quarter wasn't so good, Central made 4 points and Forestburg made 12. The score was then 26-34 for Forestburg. In the last quarter Central made 11 points and Forestburg 8; bringing the final score up to 38-42 for Forestburg. The star players for Central on the boys team were Lloyd Cameron and Don Forester who made 9 points each.

The next basketball games will be played in Daysland on the 28th of November.

Social Crediters Talk Convention

The regular meeting of the Sedgewick Carnation Young Social Crediters was held on Tuesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Sandeleon. There was a good turnout, although there were still many missing, since our total membership stands at 27.

Several plan to attend the annual Alberta Young Social Credit Convention in Red Deer on Saturday. Many topics were discussed which may arise at the convention.

The motion was made that we sponsor one member of our group to attend the Senior Social Credit Convention in Red Deer on Saturday. Much discussion followed on a "Thompson Night" and it was decided to write to Dr. Bob Thompson to see if and when he could be our guest speaker.

The next meeting will be held on December 12 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Barry Gascoyne. Roll call will be a "Question on Social Credit". Chinese food was served by the hostess.

Lougheed 4-H Homemakers Plan Banquet

On November 16, the Lougheed Homemakers opened their meeting with O Canada and the 4-H Pledge. The roll call was answered with a good grooming hint. After the secretary's report banquet plans were discussed. The WI will help with it and December 7 dates for Christmas were drawn. The following talks were given: altering pattern, making biscuits, wardrobe planning and the recipe bar. The meeting was adjourned with God Save The Queen.

Grain Commission Appoints Secretary

Victor Martens, 44, who has been associated with the Board of Grain Commissioners' laboratory at Winnipeg in technical and administrative capacities since 1940, has been appointed assistant secretary of the Board.

Mr. Martens, who was born in Russia and emigrated to Canada, handled the administration, crop surveys and ancillary services section of the Board's Grain Research Laboratory at the time of his new appointment.

The newly appointed assistant secretary of the Board joined the staff of the laboratory in 1940 as principal technician with responsibility for the development of new grain testing equipment. His work included studies of methods to determine moisture content of commercial grain. The studies led ultimately to the adoption by the Board of Grain Commissioners and the grain trade of an electric moisture meter.

He is a past vice-president of the Winnipeg section, American Association of Cereal Chemists, a past president of the Winnipeg section of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, and a member of the Professional Institute of the Public Service of Canada.

A Place For Everything!

If the present razzle-dazzle hassle over the flag ever culminates in the Country having a distinctive Canadian flag; one we may unfurl to proclaim to the world that this is Canada, "Our Home and Native Land", we have in mind one place, perhaps above all others, where it should be reverently displayed, and proudly shown to all who expect-ant eyes may look upon it. That place is in the Immigration Courtrooms of our nation.

I remember being a witness to a scene held in the U.S. where immigrants were being accepted as citizens. Proudly and predominently displayed was the Stars and Stripes, the flag of the nation.

Canada, not having a flag exclusively her own, should do the next best thing and that is to display the Canadian Coat of Arms, a Canadian symbol, to the view of all immigrants who are taking the first step toward becoming citizens of our country.

The recent uproar by the opposition Conservative Party on the removal of the Queen's picture from Immigration Courtrooms is but another in the senaseless string of invictives heaped upon every attempt to make this nation Canada. Endeavoring to reap political hay at the expense of unity is as futile as it is senseless.

The Queen's picture certainly has its place, but that place is in the Judge's Chambers, where he relates to our new citizens the relationship between Britain and Canada, and the Queen and her relationship to Canadian citizens. There where these people get their basic instructions on these matters, is the place where they should see the Queen of England and Canada. There is a place for everything, and everything should be in its place.

Half-Baked Canadianism!

O Canada
Our home and native land
True patriot love in all thy sons command
With glowing hearts we see thee rise
And stand on guard O Canada
We stand on guard for thee

For those who have not yet discovered the fact, the above lines are from our Canadian national anthem.

To every true Canadian. whether a native son, or one who has adopted this great land as his homeland, these words are ringing words. Inspirational words, words to inspire a fierce and deep sense of loyalty and a profound feeling of obligation and responsibility to a land we, young, think of as young.

Yet each time we hear O Canada sung we renew again the feeling that the words of th Anthem bear little relation to our actual feelings. Too many just handle this joyous piece of music as though we were reciting the funeral dirge of Lower Slobobia. We drag it all over the city auditorium and finally mumble it off into the closet where its whispered remains rest in solitude until the next occasion when we feel obliged to rescue it from repose to again give it a half-hearted place on the program.

"O Canada! A land of destiny, not yet a hundred years old. One of the leading nations in the western world. A land of freedom. A land of opportunity. A land with international prestige. A land blessed in many ways. Sing its name with pride.

"Our home and native land". This is my home, my native land. A country that offers me the opportunity to procure a high standard of living and freedom to pursue happiness, comfort and a high degree of education.

"True patriot love . . . In all thy sons command. Patriotism and love for your country is a voluntary thing and not something that can be forced on the unwilling. Many immigrants, grateful for the opportunity to escape oppressions have come to Canada, and are fiercely proud of their adopted land — much more so than many of us who have spent our entire lives here. Should not we as loudly declare our pride in Canada?

"With glowing hearts we see thee rise. It almost seems there are many today who resent Canada 'rising', who would hold her back, keep her from ever reaching the heights of nationhood. If she is ever to do this we must develop in the minds of our citizens a pride in their country, such a fierce pride that they will ever . . .

Franking - Frankenstein!

For some years now, in fact as long as this writer can remember, the Postal Department has been waging a semi-friendly feud with newspapers over the cheap rates allowed weekly papers in mailing out the editions. This low rate of postage is particularly evident within a 20-mile range of the publishing centre. The postal department seemed to delight in pouncing on every trivial situation in an attempt to trip up a publisher and draw from him more revenue. This paper has consistently agreed that the rates were too low, and should be raised to a reasonable figure based on circulation and poundage. This has at last been done and everybody, including the postal department seems reasonably happy.

Now we learn that this federal department has turned its attention to another area; the practice commonly known as Franking, a situation where Members of Parliament are allowed to use the mails without postage. This practice is presently abused to the extent that it is costing Canadian taxpayers 5 1/2 million dollars annually. Franking has become a Frankenstien, a 365-man monster demonstrating dishonesty in high places. The practice extends to the annual mailing of Christmas cards, an entirely personal matter, yet the taxpayers pick up the tab. Men who are paid at the lowest $22,000 a year have no right to expect or accept such courtesies at the expense of the nation. Whover is responible for such a situation should take steps immediately to put an stop to this abominable franking system. The ordinary citizen pays for his mailing privileges. The MP should be in the same category. After all he sought his job and if he will not pay his legitimate overhead, he should go for broke, the same as any other business man. He should not be allowed to be dishonest and cheat with privileges, for with such also comes responsibility. M.P.'s cheat in parliament, children cheat in school. The sins of the fathers are visited upon the children.

Fifty-Sixth Year of Service

★ MACDUFF REPORT

The Army To Get Tools

OTTAWA— Canada's Defence Minister Paul Hellyer, the toughminded young minister from Trinidad, has built a reputation by wielding a sharp knife on departmental costs.

In the next few months a new image of Hellyer the spender will emerge with decisions to purchase hundreds of millions of dollars worth of new equipment for the Army, Navy and Air Force.

These decisions should come as no surprise to anyone. Mr. Hellyer himself has said many times that major equipment purchases must be made.

The whole purpose of the costcutting, streamlining job he has done so far has been to permit acquisition of modern, efficient equipment for the forces without significant increases in the total defence budget.

It has been Mr. Hellyer's whole aim to produce a lean, tough, mobile fighting force equipped with the best weapons t oserve Canada's interests anywhere in the world. It has been his whole purpose at the same time to do this while maintaining a total defence budget of around $1,500,000,000 a year.

Now a lot of the fat is being cut out of the Canadian forces. Manpower is being reduced to 100,000 with a far greater emphasis on the active soldier, and far less on administration.

Integration of the three services is proceeding. The reserve, or militia, is being cut by one-third and will be given a role of closer coordination with the active service. Physical facilities are being integrated as far as possible to provide greater efficiency for less money.

On paper, the Defence Minister's actions have meant a reduction in spending estimates of more than $100,000,000 between last year and this year.

In fact, the savings are not really sufficient to permit the Defence Department to proceed with all its equipment purchases without increasing spending at least a little.

The price tag on new aircraft, new ships, newartillery and army vehicles, is in the range of $600,000,000 over the next few years.

Mr. Hellyer is not about to overstep the budget limits he himself (and his Government) have set. But he is about to embark on a big spend program, essential both for the morale and the efficiency of the armed forces, which will strain the budget to the limit.

On November 6, he told the House of Commons: "As I indicated earlier, I hope to be able to announ-ounce within a few weeks a substancial part of our ship-building program for the next few years.

The same applies to aircraft. We have been giving detailed study to our requirements for tactical support in a close ground support role, and it is hoped that a decision can be made in this respect, too, within a reasonable length of time.

Also under consideration is the possibility of acquiring self propelled artillery and reconnaissance and other vehicles for the army," said Mr. Hellyer.

In other words, the Defence Minister is no more economizer. That hatchet has been clear even before his announced determination to purchase major new equipment.

After all, he has already ordered 600 M-113 armoured personnal carriers for the Canadian forces group in Europe. He has purchased 16 Hercules transport aircraft to increase the transport capabilities of the RCAF.

The most costly buying is yet to be made however. The next aircraft the Canadian Government buys for the RCAF will play a new role in keeping with this Government's basic defence philosophy.

The philosophy calls for a mobile force, able to answer a call anywhere in the world on short notice. The kind of aircraft the Government wants is one that can give close support to ground forces.

The Department is considering a number of such aircraft, and at the time of writing, the most likely choice was the Northrup F-5. It is a relatively simple 1,000 mph aircraft capable of landing on grass strips and costing about $700,000 a copy.

The Department plans to buy a large number of these U.S. aircraft, probably 200 or more.

Purchase of navy ships will also fit in with Canada's accepted naval role of anti-submarine warfare. One of Mr. Hellyer's early acts was to cancel the large frigate program then underway.

Now the time has come to supply the navy with new ships. It seems certain that the ships will be fast, filled with electronic detection equipment, and perhaps also equipped to transport large numbers of men and equipment.

The army will cost less to equip. Self-propelled artillery, reconnaissance vehicles, new signals equipment — again the accent on mobility, on lessons.

The changes wrought in Canada's defence forces by this 41-year old minister are deeply significant. Defence decisions are being made in a global context, on assumptions about Canada's role in the future, about the east-west conflict, about NATO. Mr. Hellyer is known to have ambitions beyond the Defence Department. On the basis of his conduct as Defence Minister those ambitions would seem to be thoroughly justified.

Impairment has reference to deteriorated ability and this results from some cause. The term "impaired driver" is usually applied in connection with drivers who have been impaired by the use of intoxicating beverages. All kinds of drivers ought to consider some other causes of impaired driving. There are many factors which contributed to the deterioration of reaction and ability to react quickly.

Medical and dental drugs administered by doctors in varying quantities have varying effects which last underwinsed lengths of time on different patients. Those who drive without glasses when glasses are a necessity for good vision are impaired without their glasses. Disturbed emotions such as anger, jealousy, sudden bad news distract the mind or blur judgement. as well as just normal sleepiness. Even driving against sun, rain, snow and bright lights inspire the driver's normal ability. Don't be an impaired driver. Drive with all your faculties alert.

It has been a long time since I first started taking your paper, and I have made many trips to the office, but this is the only opportunity to get my paper and see what you look like. Was sorry to hear you had been in hospital and hope you will soon feel good enough to be back at work. What I was wondering is why people do not make more use of the paper to let people know what is going to take place. There was a gathering in short Creek April 22nd liked to have been at, but did not know it was being held. Everybody reads the local paper and that is where they look for their local news, so I hope that when something is to be held from now on it will be put in the paper so people like me who don't get down town very much will know about it. I guess I haven't taken up too much room but just wanted to say this. — Yours truly,

SPEAK FRENCH AND BE HAPPY

Do you think these separatists in Quebec might shut up about the whole thing if all the rest of us learned to speak French flouently enough to give them a good caning next in their native tongue?

If this is a solution, let's get cracking. But I don't think it can be accomplished under our present system of learning the language. We are getting a great many teachers of French these days who can scarcely speak the language. But the system prevents them from passing it along to others.

As a supernumerary semester said the other day, "We take kids from unilingual families who speak poor English. We teach them French badly, encourage them to forget their native tongue, whatever it is, and wind up with youngsters who are illiterate in three languages."

I know from experience. My mother had to go to a French-speaking school as a child. She learned the language with the ease all children have in grasping a tongue. All her life she could rattle it off like a bob-last.

On the other hand, I studied French for five years in high school and four years in University. Nine years. Enough time, you'd think, to learn to speak French hed-wart-s. And that is exactly how I speak it

Perhaps the worst feature of the teaching of French in this country is the false confidence it engenders after the exposure to a few years of it. I have known quite literate westerners without, stumbling, and even a regular Maurice Chevalier.

I remember one time in Brussells. My young brother was a little one. The only French he knew was crude useless stuff like, "Bebe, je t'aime" and "Voulez-vous de baiser beef ou des nylons?"

In contrast, I had a solid grounding of high school French, and had been living on the continent for a couple of months, speaking the real thing.

So we met this young lady and her friend. She was belle, but her pal was voluptuous. This was my chance. In my impeccable Grade 12 French, I stepped up to the doll and informed her of her ravishing beauty, her ineffable form, and her distinguished intelligence. She listened courteously, turned to her friend, and shrugged hugely. My brother said, "Come on, bebe", and away they marched arm in arm. I was left to follow with the fat one.

A similar experience caused me to forswear French for life. It occurred in Lille, France, soon after the city had been liberated from the Nazis.

It happened in a night club. The locals were very happy about liberation and the troops were very happy about the locals. Everyone was dancing with the girls. Everywhere their French by friends were being.

I spotted a lolo, dark, charming, intelligent enough to appreciate the fact that I, almost alone among the invaders, spoke French. As I approached the table, she smiled and her escort, a handsome French lieut., jumped up, grinned, and shook hands.

So, in my flawless French, I asked for a dance. At least I'll swear that's what I asked her. She turned white and slapped me hard. Her boy friend simultaneously turned red and tried to kick me in the groin.

I still don't know what I said to her, but I've never taken a chance since. On the rare occasions, nowadays, when I have enough money to eat in a place where the menu is in French, I study it carefully for ten minutes or so, then inform the waiter, in pure English, that I'll bate roast beef. There's always Rosbif.

The only solution is to teach our kids French when they're learning to speak English. That way little one will avoid having their faces slapped for no earthly reason. And little girls will learn to say "Non" and "Oui" and "Peut-etre" in two languages.

And who, though absent is just as dear.
Ever remembered and sadly missed by husband and family. 29p.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear grandfather and great-grandfather, Charles McGee, who passed away November 23, 1953.
Always a thought and many a tear.
For one we miss and loved so dear.
The sudden way you had to die.
We shall always remember and wonder why.
To know we never said goodbye,
Will always bring regrets.
But the barsis that loved you dearly,
Are the ones that won't forget.
Ever remembered and deeply missed by Evan, Marlena and children. 29p.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our Dad and Grandpa, Charlie McGee who passed away November 23, 1963.
The Golden Gates stood open,
One year ago today;
With farewells left unspoken,
You softly slipped away.
You suffered much in silence,
Your spirit did not bend,
You faced your pain with courage,
Until the very end.
You tried so hard to stay with us,
Your fight was all in vain,
God took you to his loving home,
And freed you from all pain.
Ever remembered and sadly missed by Eva, Violet, Lorne, Guy and family. 29p.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my husband Charles McGee, who passed away November 23, 1963.
One year has passed since that sad day,
God came and took my dear husband away;
You don't know the sorrow to be be left alone,
Till God sends a message to your home.
Ever remembered and sadly missed by his loving wife Ada. 29p.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks to our friends and neighbors for their kindness, many flowers, donations in his memory and expressions of sympathy in our recent bereavement in the loss of our husband and father.

IMPACT OF CHEMICAL WEED CONTROL ON FARM PRACTICES

The outstanding progress that has been made in chemical weed control during the past 20 years is having, and will continue to have having, an ever-increasing effect on all phases of crop production. Losses caused by weeds still amount to an enormous drain on the agricultural economy of Western Canada and present a great challenge for greater efficiency in agricultural production.

Many Spectacular Effects

The use of new chemical methods of weed control is having a significant effect on many farm management practices such as rotation of crop and variety; seedbed preparation; seeding rates; fertilizer practices; cultivation, including summerfallow practices; soil erosion control; seed-cleaning operations; disease and insect control practices; pasture and range management; and maintenance of drain of drainage ditches, irrigation canals and roadsides. Chemical weed control can no longer be considered as a supplemental method of cultivating weeds, but as a sound farm practice which is replacing old, inefficient methods. It is already recognized that the use of chemicals is removing one of the most important obstacles to completely mechanized crop production.

What's Ahead

The wide adaptability of weed-killing chemicals offers almost unlimited possibilities for improving the efficiency of agriculture. Intensive field tests and farm experience have shown that herbicides are more effective when combined with other efficient methods of weed control. It is safe to predict therefore that the future progress of chemical weed control in Western Canada will be largely determined by two factors: (1) the ability of farmers to modify and combine chemical and cultural weed practices and (2) the discovery of more selective, more specific, more efficient, safer, and more economical herbicides. In the years ahead, chemical weed control practices will continue to increase in Western Canada. They will continue to provide an important practical way of improving farming efficiency & lowering crop production costs.

Memory Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

TURKEY DINNER

You will recall that I mentioned the fact of two or three bachelors and shacks dotting this vast, seemingly boundless Prairie land in Southern Alberta. One of our moves took us to within four miles of these sod shacks, inhabited by two bachelor brothers, newly from the Old Country.

Four miles might sound like quite a distance, but the distance had no meaning out there, where the Horizon met the Earth in all directions; where a neighbor could be on e who lived eight or ten miles from your place.

So, when we stood up our surroundings the morning after our arrival the night before, at this new location, we noticed what at first appeared to be a mound of earth sitting away set there by itself in the distance. But upon looking through the field glasses, we saw movement near this mound, so decided it must be one of the sod shacks of which we had heard so much about, but up to now, had not seen too closely.

We were scarcely settled in when two lads of about 26 or 28 years (twins) gave us a call. It was at supper time, so naturally we invited them to sit in and have a bite with us. They both were blest with extra hearty appetites, and I was kept busy replenishing the bread plate, filling bowls, and I remember having to fry more bacon and eggs, as the supply remaining while out there on the job.

They informed us they kept quite a flock of hens, as well as a number of hogs which they periodically butchered, curing the hams and bacon. This was good news to us, as we thought they could sell us the whole hams and sides of bacon at market price, as well as eggs and an occasional old hen. Now we addd, we won't have to worry about running out of meat, at least. (We wouldn't either if they had not become our steady boarders, after changing the full price for these articles).

At the thought of chicken 'n Dumplings my mouth began to water right away. So I asked them if they could bring me over a nice fat old hen soon. They both came over with it on Sunday forenoon. It was plucked, but not drawn or cleaned. I gave them other meat for dinner, as naturally the hen wasn't ready by then. But they stayed all afternoon and for supper, as well. Although we had paid them the extrabitant price of $.50 for that hen, those two lads ate easily half of that bird.

As time went on they were at our place just about every other day, always arriving in time for supper. I finally complained to my husband that those lads were costing us out of house and home. Not that I would normally begrudge anyone a meal at any time, but we were so handicapped for ways of getting to town for supplies. However my husband said being bachelors they did enjoy homecooked meals. They kept coming for about four weeks, even after we had pulled out and moved to another location, four miles the other side of their shanty.

Then one day they announced that we were going to their place for a Turkey Dinner the following Sunday. My dressed new dumplin' not myself with rpecial care, glad of the excuse to use some of our better clothes. Of course, I had no idea of what sort of place those bachelors lived in.

I shall never forget the beautiful sight of the middle of their shanty. They had used Prairie red wax paper, the common preprinted wild prairie roses grew straight out of the walls. It really looked fantastic with the yellow looks of the surrounding yard. There was the trusty kitchen stove pipe emerging from one side of this strange looking shack, sticking out at right angles over the lone, smoke was lazily curling from it. But there as the most horrible silence to surround the place.

Guess these lads must use precise chips for fuel" my husband said nonchantly. I was none the wiser then I knew nothing of what "Buffalo Chips" were used for. In fact buffalo chips were never used to me.

As we climbed from our log-sided shack, one of the lads emerged and tied old Satan to the wheel of an old buggy which was standing in the yard, not bothering to unhitch the horse nor give it a feed of hay or water.

What a hovel. There was just one small window in the one-room shack, the glass, if there was one, was coated with grease, smoke, flyspecks, so much so that very little light managed to seep through. But as our eyes became accustomed to the semi-darkness, well, the filth of the whole place was actually nauseating.

In one end of this low-ceilinged, dim, dirty hovel, was piled a goodly supply of buffalo chips, close to the stove, their fuel as my husband had said. Can you imagine anything so repulsive smelling, in the plane room where they ate and slept?

Besides this pile, stood a typical bachelors cook stove, on which was a huge black kettle, the sort I used in the the very early days to make lye soap in. One of the lads would periodically lift the lid and look in, but aside from that, there was no evidence of a dinner of any description.

At the other end of this small room, with packed dirt floor, stood their bed. Words fail me when I try to describe the filth of the bedding. It was actually shining smooth with grease and dirt. Pulled up to the side of this bed was a little rickety old table. The top of which was also shining with dried grease. They didn't even put a newspaper on it for the occasion. The two lads evidently planned to sit on the bed when dinner was served. There was one hack-less chair and a nail-keg. I had the honor of being assigned to the chair. My husband sat on the nail keg.

One of the lads cut a few slices of baker's bread, tossing it onto that dirty table-top. There was one chipped, porcelain plate, a fork, and a spoon at my place, a disreputable beat, another pie plate and a fork and knife at my husband's place, but nothing at their places.

Finally one of the lads brought that old black kettle over and set it in the middle of the table, saying "help handsome" "Help yourself" is folks, I guess she's done. I was lucky to salvage as much of that turkey as I did. She was sottin' on a nest of eggs out under the old binder in the field. Those eggs were due to hatch any day so I was hoping to get one or two. But yesterday morning when I went out to look at her, a coyote had been there ahead of me. I saw him slinking away when I got close, dragging this hen part along with him. But I yoited, he dropped it and ran off. He had already eaten half of it, but I managed to salvage enough for our dinner. Help yourselves folks, dig right in."

In all honesty, can anyone tell me how such folks live and survive and seemingly thrive, in such filth.

I developed a bilious headache right there, so at home I convinced my husband and hosts that I did, so ate nothing. I gave the baby some arrow-root biscuits which I had brought with me, so she wasn't hungry. And that folks was the turkey dinner to which I had looked forward to with so much anticipation.

CHAIN OF LAKES CONTRACT LET

OTTAWA — Agriculture Minister Harry Hays today announced that a $272,337 contract for construction of PFRA's Chain of Lakes water storage project in Southern Alberta has been awarded.

The project sites are on Willow and Rumsey creeks about 25 miles southwest Nantan, Alberta.

Two earthfill dams, a reinforced concrete spillway at the south dam, and gated outlets at both dams will be constructed.

The job was awarded to J. A. Mention Construction Ltd., 2001 Centre Ave. S.E., Calgary, Alberta, which submitted the lowest tender.

Fourteen companies bid on the contract with the highest tender being $356,007.

The project is expected to be completed by September 1965.

The multi-purpose project will ensure adequate water supplies for the large livestock population in the area, for domestic use, and for irrigation which will permit a substantial increase in the grazing capacity of ranchland along the Willow and Stimson creeks.

Equally important, the Chain of Lakes project will provide protection on agrimland flooding along both creeks, a serious problem during periods of heavy rainfall.

Towns benefitting from water reserves created by the project will be Nanton, Claresholm, Stavely, and Granum.

Hardisty Hi-Lites

Mrs. Grace Erickson of Drayton is visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Campbell.

Guests of Mrs. M. Vandervaeh on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Mike Elsey, Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Elsey and Debbie, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Vandervaeh and Mrs. Maggie Patterson.

First Winner Of Premiers Award For 4-H Work

Mr. C. L. Usher, Supervisor of 4-H Clubs for the Alberta Department of Agriculture has announced that Barry McDonald, of Mannville has been named the first winner of the Premier's Award for outstanding achievement in 4-H work in Alberta.

1964 is the first year for the award, personally offered by Premier E. C. Manning for the greatest achievement by an Alberta 4-H Club Member. Selection of the winner was made during the Provincial Conference of Alberta 4-H Clubs. Prizes, including a scholarship to the University of Alberta, were given on club work, projects, leadership, citizenship and participation in the local club and being entered in the provincial competition and all-important in the selection of the winner.

A 4-H member for seven years, 18-year-old Barry McDonald has an impressive record of activity in the club He has completed a total of 17 projects in beef, poultry and field crops; held all club offices, including president, vice-president, secretary and club reporter, and has entered many articles through his hard work and enthusiasm. Included in these are the trip to the National Club Conference at Ottawa and Toronto, the Showmanship Award, three Club Efficiency Winner titles, and finalist in the Northern Alberta Public Speaking Contest. As a Junior Leader in his own club, Barry contributed much to 4-H as well as having gained from it.

Outside the club, his other activities include students union, church young people, Farmer's Union, and hockey club.

Baptist Church

Following the regular Wednesday night prayer service a social time was held in the lower auditorium in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Leslie, who recently celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary. The evening consisted of singing, poems, speeches, and a male quartet. Mr. and Mrs. Leslie were presented with a corsage and bouquet of roses by Mrs. Gryshuk and presented them with a gift.

A number of ministers and laymen from our Alberta churches were present on Friday night at the Killam Baptist Church. Bernie Johnson, of Forestburg, along with members of the Alberta Baptist Conference executive presented the need of Alberta. The people were challenged with the possibility of reaching many of these unreached areas.

Congratulations and best wishes go to Dick and Jean White on the birth of a son.

The Pastor ministered at the Sunday services. Announcement was made that the Martin Luther film will be shown at the church next Sunday evening.

Food Consumption To Shift To High Protein

Dairy Cattle Production

Although Alberta's average milk production per cow is almost double what it was 20 years ago, it is still not high enough to be profitable under to-day's price conditions.

A comparison between the provincial average and that achieved under the Alberta Cow Testing Service type of production possible under improved feeding, breeding andmanagement. The figures are approximately, 6,000 lbs. per cow for the provincial average and 9,000 lbs. for the 14,456 cows tested by the Cow Testing Service.

Dairying, like many other agricultural industries, is experiencing a period of high costs and low income. The per capit consumption of some dairy products is decreasing and serious competition for major markets is growing. Under such economic conditions it is imperative to cut production costs of every 100 pounds of milk by increasing the rate of production per cow.

A booklet entitled "Dairy Cattle Production in Alberta" provides information on the most efficient ways of cutting costs and increasing production. Published by the University of Alberta's Department of Animal Science, it is designed to help dairy farmers improve their herds by using the most upto-date feeding, breeding, and management systems.

The most elaborate and best developed system of picture writing was that of the Egyptians. Known as hieroglyphics, it started several thousand years before Christ.

The pattern of Canadian food consumption will "continue to shift in the direction of higher protein foods and foods which satisfy an increasing demand for variety and convenience," according to the Bank of Montreal Business Review for October, just issued.

The bank reviews the changes that have taken place in food in the past decade and notes that with new methods of processing, distribution, the housewife buys a "packet of built-in service."

Many of the changes in the last decade reflect the tendency, as rising standards rise, to eat more food with a high carbohydrate content. With these changes, pass it is spending on restaurant meals, the bank says that some rise in food prices would be expected as this has taken place.

"The wonder is, however, not that food prices have gone up, but that they have gone up so little." The B of M points out that, on the average since 1951, food prices have actually risen less than the prices of other consumer goods and services and substantially less than the rise in income per capita.

FOOD FUTURE

For the future, the B of M says that there are two opposing influences at work in the market for food

"Real incomes in the population as a whole are rising and the distribution of income is changing in such a way that there are relatively more families in the higher income brackets," the bank reports. It adds that these changes dictate a continuing decline in the percentage of total consumer expenditure devoted to food.

On the other hand the population is increasing and the age distribution of income is changing in such a way that there will be relatively larger numbers of "heavy eaters" (teenagers and young people) in the years ahead than now, the case in the recent past.

Therefore, "total expenditure on food in Canada, which in 1962 reached $6.5 billion, will most certainly rise but the extent of the rise will depend on the strength of the various influences," the B of M review concludes.

FARM MANAGEMENT MEETING — FORESTBURG
A general "Farm Management" meeting will be held in Forestburg in the United Church Basement, starting at 1:30 in the afternoon on Wednesday, November 25th.

The theme of this meeting will be "Farm Management and What It Can Do For The Farmer". Mr. L. Bauer of the Farm Economics Branch of the Alberta Department of Agriculture will be the main speaker. Mr. Bauer has had wide experience in the field of Farm Economics analysis in the Red Deer and Lacombe Areas.

Mr. Bauer's talk will stress the place of accounts, analysis, alternatives and action in the general principles of management.

This should be a very interesting meeting. We would like to see a good turn out for this meeting.

A Tip For Horsemen

This is a good time of year to treat horses for stomach bot worms and blood worms.

Dr. H. M. Vanes, Animal Disease Section of the Alberta Veterinary Services Branch, says both parasites are very common in horses. The life cycle of the bot worm is similar to that of warble grubs in cattle. The flies lay eggs on the animal's hair during the summer and the larvae migrate to the stomach via the mouth. They spend the winter in the stomach where they can do a great deal of harm.

According to Dr. Vanes, carbon disulfide is still the recommended drug for this parasite. Treatment should be started now to kill the larvae before they have time to do much damage.

The adult blood worm (also called strongyles) lives in the large bowel. During its developmental stage, however, it may cause severe damage to the large arteries, particularly those supplying the bowel. It is important to treat horses during the winter to prevent infecting pastures when horses are turned out in the spring. Young foals are particularly susceptible to damage and are usually heavily infested with this worm from contaminated pastures.

Dr. Vanes recomends thiabendazol or a mixture of pentothiazine and piperazine for treating blood worms. Since all the above drugs have to be administered carefully, the advice of a veterinarian should be sought.

PREPARE FOR CHRISTMAS

Christmas is just around the corner. Avoid the rush of previous years and start planning and preparing now.

Whether your entertainment is planned or impromptu, retain your poise and be admired as a hostess. Parties, cakes, cookies, candy, chocolates, sandwiches, breads, desserts, ice cubes shortbread, mincemeat, plum pudding and cranberry sauce can be prepared now and frozen. Ask for our bulletin "Preserve by Freezing" to help you obtain perfect results.

Cookies For Freezing

"Do they keep? . . . Only if you hide them!"

Baked cookies can be packaged in cartons or plastic bags. Place moisture resistant paper between layers and crumple some of this paper to fill in any spaces. Thaw at room temperature in the unopened package. Baked cookies may be stored six months in your home freezer.

Christmas Almond Crescent cookies

1 cup butter
1 3 cup granulated sugar
1 2/3 cups flour
2/3 cup chopped almonds
Granulated sugar (coloured if possible)

Cream butter (or use half butter, half shortening), add sugar gradually and continue to cream. Add flour and chopped almonds. Mix until dough is of the consistency to handle. Roll the dough between the palms of the hands into a pencil. Chill and cut in 2 1/2 inch lengths. Shape into crescent form. Bake at 350 degrees for 12 minutes. While hot, roll in sugar. Pale pink sugar is lovely for the festive season. Yield, about six dozen cookies.

To ensure a perfect cookie

Roll only a small amount of dough at a time when making salad cookies. Leave the rest in the refrigerator. A stiff, well chilled dough is easier to roll out.

Lightly flour bake board or pastry cloth for rolled cookies. Use much flour on the breadboard making cookies hard.

After cooling (if not to be frozen) store crisp cookies in a separate container with a loose cover. Store soft drop or bar cookies in a tightly covered container.

Mr. Mel Ayrst of Edmonton spent a few days at the O. Klingen, also got in a little hunting. Mrs. Ayrst stayed in Stirone to visit with Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Graham.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherry Robson spent the week end at Red Deer with Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bathwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lewis and family spent the week end in Lethbridge.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Coleman and family of Edmonton were in town over the week end to look in the Smith-Hagen wedding.

Mr. Dodge Pulsher of Camrose visited at the J. Kinzer's on Sat evening.

Two car loads of Presbyterians motored to Calahad on Saturday to attend a bazaar and tea.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Gomme were in the city on Sunday to watch the hockey game.

Trinity Ladies To Send Gifts

Trinity LCW held their regular meeting on November 12 at the home of Mrs. W. Kingborn, with 16 members and 2 visitors present.

Mrs. J. Johnson and Mrs. W. Kingborn were hostesses.

Mrs. J. Johnson gave the devotion and Mrs. C. Ness conducted a very inspiring Bible Study based on Acts, Chapters 22-26.

Minutes of the last meeting were read by Secretary Mrs. N. Tweedy and adopted.

It was decided to send gifts of flowers, fruit and plegues to several shut-ins of the congregation. Ladies were to serve refreshments two evenings at the evangelical meetings at Trinity Church.

The warm used clothing for Lutheran World Relief is to be sent soon and another layette so to be gathered.

Mrs. Donna Southern reported on the collection of gifts to be sent for the mental health program.

Roll call was answered by each member naming a missionary worker.

Next meeting will be held at Trinity at 9 p.m. Dec. 11th and will be in the form of a Christmas party for members. Each lady is reminded to bring a small gift.

LOUGHEED W. I.

The November meeting of Lougheed Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Howard Pope with 9 members and one visitor present.

There was a total of $34.60 collected in pennies for UNICEF.

Our bake sale gave us a total profit of $25.55. It was reported that the Cemetery Fund is very low. Donations would be greatly appreciated to help pay a caretaker next year.

The W. I. and UCW combined to send a large box of lovely gifts to the Mental Health Association.

Mrs. A. Shoberg reported that several members visited Flagstaff Lodge with a box of food donations.

A nominating committee was appointed to bring in a slate of officers for the next meeting.

The President, Mrs. M. Shoberg, presented our charter members, Mrs. G. W. Probst and Mrs. A. Shoberg with A.W.I. spoons as a token of appreciation for their many years of faithful service.

The Citizenship Convener, Mrs. M. Shoberg gave an interesting paper on "What Our Indians Really Want and Need." The answer — an opportunity to pursue a good life in Canada.

The Roll Call was answered by giving a favorite Christmas recipe.

The next meeting is to be held at the school on December 8 at 2 p.m. There will be election of officers and exchange of Christmas gifts.

Lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. G. Marlen.

Regular Meeting Of School Division Board

The regular meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Killam School Division No. 22 was held as called as per motion 239 and in accordance with section 185(1)(a) and 185 (2) (b). Superintendent Bruce and trustees Grail, Cousins, Nielsen and Fuller were present.

The minutes of the last meeting were adopted as read.

Of the coal tenders received, the one from L. G. Gemmell at $2.60 per ton for hauling was accepted.

Since the Lorraine colony, located in the Lorraine School District No. 3746, has been established in a school district, the pupils of which are now provided for by the Board, and the Colony requests that it shall have its own school apart from the schools of the Division, the other taxpayers should not be asked to bear any of the cost of the school in the colony, therefore no agreement, or attached to the minutes of this meeting, and subject to the approval of the Minister of Education, be made with the Colony.

The following appoints to the staff of the Killam School Division were approved: Elsie Cleave, Grade 7, Sedgewick; and Leola Perster, CHS, Sedgewick.

Henry J. Bedry's application for position of janitor at Galahad School was accepted. Services to be for a probationary period of three months and permanent thereafter if services prove satisfactory. Salary to per schedule.

Payment of bills numbered se to 115 was confirmed, and approval was given for payment of bills numbered 166 to 201.

Mrs. Helen Stundman and Theresa Cloeten were official delegates to the A.S.T.A. Convention in Calgary.

Because the Consolidation of the districts was completed the Killam Consolidated School District No. 62 no longer serves any purpose since the districts now are included in the Killam School Division No. 22, a request be made to the Department of Education to have the said Consolidated District dissolved.

Trustees Grail and Cloeten were appointed a committee, as per Clause 411 of the 1964-65 agreement to arbitrate difference concerning interpretation of Second clause arising between the Board and its teachers.

Mrs. A. R. Stevens was granted a leave of absence from her teaching duties at Strome from Jan. 1, 1965 to June 30, 1966.

PEOPLE ARE FUNNY!

Those who have watched the Art Linkletter Show "People Are Funny" on TV are forced to conclude that they actually are funny. Of course, in this instance they are funny on a funny show with a man who makes them funny.

Yet people are funny in many ways, some of which border almost on pathetic.

For instance, take the recent fluoridation vote in our capital city .Requiring a 66 2 3 majority vote, it failed because only 65% voted for it. It would be interesting to know how many of the remaining 35 perecent have visited doctors or been hospitalized with the resultant intake of pills of various kinds. One would almost wonder at their absolute trust in a doctor who may prescribe pills containing poison (safe proportions of course) such as strychnine, morphine and any number of others unfamiliar to the layman while holding fast to a theory that fluoride is poisonous and refusing to have any truck with it.

The medical profession as well as the dental association has endorsed fluoridation as being beneficial to tooth health yet unharmful to the human body, when used properly. Here we find people completly trusting the medical profession on the one hand, while absolutely distrusting them on the other. Yes, people are funny alright.

LIVING IN THE PAST

It is a favorite phrase of some union leaders that, "Management has had to be dragged, kicking and screaming, into the twentieth century." On the basis of the elements in the recent near-strike situation against the Canadian National Railways, it is a judgement that could now be made of some unions. Nor did members of the parliamentary opposition who combined to coerce the government into a compromise with the unreasonable labor demands indicate much awareness of changing conditions or any concern for the public interest.

The position of CNR management is that improvements in motive power and railway operation make it quite practical to work trains in excess of the old schedules of 100 to 125 miles a day. Conductors and train men already are working runs of from 250 to over 400 miles a day. Some time ago the railway informed the particular employees concerned that it intended to eliminate crew-change points at Nakina, Ontario, and Wainwright, Alberta. Since Nakina, 200 miles north of Fort Arthur, is strictly a railway town, the company offered to purchase the homes of those employees who would have to move.

Relatively few employees were affected, no loss of jobs was involved, and to ease the burden on the employees and their families the changes were programmed over a three year period. Suggestions were invited from the unions. When none were received, the railway instituted the new operating procedures. At that point, however, enough firemen, engineers, conductors, brakemen and yardmen "booked sick" to effectively curtail transcontinental passenger service. The federal government then answered to the pressure, instructed the railway to withdraw the new rules, and appointed a one-man commission to investigate the problem.

As a publicly owned utility the CNR is particularly vulnerable to political interference. Over the last half dozen years the corporation's deficits have totalled $223,000,000, all of which has had to be charged back to the taxpayers.

Management wants to run an efficient operation that will pay its way and effectively contribute to the country's transportation needs. The railway running trades put self-interest first. Their make-work rules and featherbedding philosophy, supported by pusillanimous politicians, is a roadblock in the way of an economically rational, up-to-date transportation industry. Their "success" in living in the past, unfortunately will be an influential example to other segments of organized labor. —C. J. Harris in Clipsheet.

CONFEDERATION WILL STICK

Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec talked sensibly in a speech before a large audience outside his own province. It is her. Lesage's opinion that there will be no attempt to break up Confederation. This will be reassuring to all Canadians outside Quebec, many of whom have been fearing an extension of violence. It is possible also that some of the difficulties in the province have been engineered by imported agitators.

All Canadians will welcome all legitimate progress that is made in the province of Quebec by people of French origin, which in the past have not always been inclined to prepare themselves for professional and technical work de-

THE BIG LIE TECHNIQUE

"The cry against flouridation" was described as follows in Ohio's Health (July, 1964), the publication of the Ohio Department of Health.

"Adolph Hitler once stated that if you tell a lie often and convincingly enough you will be one most people believing it. A recent count of history will substantiate his effective use of the "big lie technique".

"Today we have the same technique being used by the 'anti-flouridationists' for they constantly decry the value of flouridation of water. Unfortunately, they have been able to sway and confuse many of the people primarily through the use of lies and half-truths directed toward provoking fear and doubt. Others, not as easily misled, have examined the scientific facts and have discovered for themselves the truth about flouridation of water.

"More than 30 years have passed since the leaders in the field of public health first discovered the decay-preventing value of flouride in the water . . . . . Water as the best vehicle to carry flouride was adopted and promoted only after repeated and thorough investigation into its safety and effectiveness. It is almost 20 years since the first controlled flouridation programs were established.

"How long will the responsible people in communities without flouridation be content with the status quo or continue to be misled by the nonsense spewed forth by the antiflouridationists."

Fifty-Sixth Year of Service

★ MACDUFF REPORT

Who will pay the piper?

OTTAWA — Twenty-four M. P.'s and a dozen Senators have begun to enjoy the free print of the mortgage Canadians are putting on their future incomes to pay for the Canada Pension Plan.

The joint Senate-Commons committee has begun hearings on the pension bill in the shadows of a sombre actuarial report which predicts that the "Contributions" will have to be raised in about 20 years or the plan will go billions of dollars in the red.

These "contributions", more bluntly called a "social security tax" in the similar U.S. scheme — will start at 3¼ per cent of all earnings between $600 and $5,600 a year. The self-employed will pay the full rate but employees will split with employers.

In the early years of the Pension Plan it will be more than enough to pay the generally rising cost of benefits. In fact, the plan could build up a fund of $18 billion which would be invested in provincial bonds.

But while the income of the plan will start high and rise steeply, the rest of the pension is being promised on what is a steeply rising curve which would leave present contribution rates far behind if nothing is done. Within 40 years of commencing the plan would be coop ins $13 billion deficit unless the size of the present Federal Budget.

The actuarial report does not predict what will be done but it does say that the tax rate could rise to nearly nine per cent of earnings in 40 years.

The Government professes to be unworried by this prospect. Finance Minister Walter Gordon assured the House of Commons that the Country could afford the Pension Plan which would become a huge source of needed investment capital, such as roads, schools, hospitals and urban developments.

Whether this is just whistling in the dark is something the ranking critics will be trying to answer. But opposition members were alarmed at the start by the implications that the Government hoped to hustle the plan through the committee and final passage in the Commons by Christmas.

This would enable the Government to prorogue the session, and close the door for a new one in 1965, without worrying about the Pension Plan which will have to be started all over again if it isn't approved before the session ends.

But it would make it difficult for the Committee to hear all view points — as the Government prefers — and would also mean even if the Committee followed a say - and - nay - sight attitude.

In addition to the fears of extensive hurry, there was also a fear that the committee was rushing but a lumsy rubber-stamp for the plan already ratified in the ample filled back rooms of Federal-Provincial Politics.

The current version of the Pension Plan was conceived in secret negotiations last April between Federal and Quebec officials. Then it was changed with private consent a process which took six months before Parliament was allowed to see it.

To make any substantial change would mean that the whole thing would have to be started again — which Quebec, then negotiations with the other provinces. The Government, in this situation, isn't likely to see much merit in any change of substance.

The first sessions promised some stirring times in the Committee which has two chairmen, Pat Canavan from the Commons and Senator Muriel Fergusson from the Upper House.

Mr. Cameron is a Manitoba - born Toronto lawyer who first sat in the Commons in 1949, was swept out by the Diefenbaker land slide in 1957 and 1958 but regained his seat in 1962. He's a shrewd and humorous man with a lot of House of Commons savvy although he makes few speeches.

Senator Fergusson has been in the Upper House since 1953. She is a lawyer and a former director of family allowances and old age security.

The outnumbered senators seem likely to make as great a contribution to the work of the committee as the commoners. They include such stalwarts as Senator David Croll of Toronto and Senator Wallace McCutcheon who went from Bay Street into the Diefenbaker Cabinet.

Other Editors Say

The so-called salvation of confederation for which the federal government is selling the credit raises a number of (as yet unanswered) questions. One of these questions is how much does salvation — in the political sense — cost the rest of the country?

Finance Minister Gordon gave a part of the answer the other day. The federal government he said, would have to replace the revenues which it has diverted to the provincial governments. That means either an increase in taxes or an increase in the deficit. Neither is satisfactory.

Mr. Gordon also said the federal government might cut back on its expenditures. Of course, it should. And it could start by ending the wasteful duplication of services which the provinces can provide much more rapidly.

POET'S CORNER

THE GUY IN THE GLASS

When you get what you want in your struggle for self,

And the world crowns you king for a day;

Then go to the mirror and look at yourself,

And see what that guy has to say.

For it isn't your father, or mother, or wife,

Who judgement upon you must pass —

The fellow whose verdict counts most in your life —

Is the guy staring back from the glass.

He's the fellow to please; never mind all the rest,

For he's with you right up to the end;

And you've passed your most dangerous, difficult test,

If the guy in the glass is your friend.

You may be the Jack Horner and "Chicst" a pleas,

And think you're a wonderful guy —

But the man in the glass says you are not if you can't look him straight in the eye.

You may fool the whole world down the pathway of years,

And get pats on the back as you pass —

But your final reward will be heartaches and tears,

If you've cheated the man in the glass.

Sirs: I read of demonstrators attacking chancier, breaking windows and shouting people in protest against security it makes my blood boil, and I sometimes wonder if the Western World would not be well advised to leave these people to try and work out their own destiny in any manner they see fit. Why should we be continually supporting the small band of people who seem unable to control their own affairs economic wise being? Why not leave them alone to work things out for themselves at least until such time as they smarten up and realize that honest hard, skillful labor is the way all common sense are essential to progress. To accept foreign aid without assuming responsibility is wasted effort for everyone concerned. —Doubtful.

Bennie Anderson and E. J. Shevik of Daysland shipped 4,800 lbs. of turkeys last Thursday for the P. Burns Co. The best turkeys were bought in by A. D. MacGregor.

The Daysland Dance held at Strome last Friday night was a big success, socially and financially. The Hudson Bay Blanket was won by Mr. J. D. Robertson.

Members of the royal family and two famous Canadian prime ministers are portrayed on the new paper currency to be issued by the Bank of Canada, details of which were just made public.

20 YEARS AGO
(From the Press of Dec. 7th, 1944)

Since last March there has been shipped overseas an average of 100,000 magazines a month the majority of which are less than 1 month old. More current magazines would be welcomed and can be left at any post office.

The Killam Hockey has been organized and thirty-five members are receiving instruction on all different hand instruments and are progressing very satisfactorily.

The Strome W.I. has for some time been sending a box to the British Fund and has now received a letter from Lady Wigbow (former Killamite) who is with the No. 12 Canadian General Hospital overseas saying how much she enjoyed the raspberry jam and what a surprise it was to see the Killam label.

10 YEARS AGO
(From the Press of Dec. 2nd, 1954)

The "Name The League" contest was won by Blaine Leach of Hardisty, with the name "Battle River Valley League" being adopted. Final organizational meeting was held at Killam at which time the constitution and by-laws were ratified and adopted.

Gary Bens of Hardisty has been trying to impress upon everyone that winter is not here yet. He went swimming a few days ago, but found the water a bit cold. Gary fail through a muskrat hole and strongly recommends that other kids watch out for the same danger.

Like most bachelors, I don't know what I'd do without my weekends. All right, I know. The hours are great, there are lots of holidays, and you're sure of your pay at the end of the month.

But believe it or not, it's an exhausting game. Baby-sitters have their moments of frenzy. Policemen sometimes get silvers. To them two jobs, add the task of stuffing information into about 150 kids, most of whom can take it or leave it, and you have a wonderful why Fred, the Voodoo. The fire is burning low. We have all, simultaneously, acquired a pipeful of tobacco. (That's right. We all sat around and smoked a pipe. What a lousy father!) But I can sleep in Sunday.

At 9:30 Kim is shaking me. "Dad don't forget you're teaching in the Bible Class this morning." I taught the Bible Class. At 4 p.m., we hand out said collect "pledge cards" for the church. Everybody is out for a drive, or hates the minister. Net result: I collect one pledge card out of seven — my own.

At 4:30 p.m., we all stand in the backyard, waving frantically to small airplane over head. Everyone in it, up with a friend. His mother, to [illegible] Dad's having big letters. "My baby! Up there! They'll crash!"

Prepare Sunday dinner. Wash dishes (aids have to do homework and practise). Rest to desk at 9 p.m. Pull socks off children. Wake up at midnight. Can't sleep until four a.m. Get up at 7:45. Scramble to school. And begin all over again.

The Bible Today

Many of the thousands of visitors to the Olympic Games have visited a Bible Exhibition arranged by the British and Foreign Bible Society at Tokyo, Osaka and Fukuoka.

Bibles in 200 different languages used in the 94 countries which sent athletes to the Olympic Games were displayed in a colorful display of national flags, dolls, carvings and works of art from every continent. Many items were contributed by the General Secretary of the Society, the Rev. T. Hyrskoda.

Eight complete sets of all the Bibles displayed were sold within the first few days.

A number of Japanese churches and missions joined in a campaign to distribute half a million special Olympic editions of the Gospels.

Linda Hager - Gordon Smith Married Nov. 21

On Saturday, November 21st in St. Joseph's in Killam at 11:30 a.m. a beautiful fall wedding took place when Linda Marie Hager of Killam became the bride of Gordon Peter Smith of Sedgewick. Linda is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Hager and Gordon is the son of the late Thornton Smith of Innisfail.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Father McCarthy.

Entering the church on the arm of her father the bride looked lovely in a sheath brocade with a long train overskirt. Her shoulder length veil was held in place with a tiara of pearls and rhinestones.

They were identical street length blue taffeta brocade, long white gloves, blue fur hales and white carnations.

A reception for 106 guests was held in the Parish Hall. The bride's table was centred by a beautifully decorated with a three-tier wedding cake. Groom's cake was held at the Hager home from 7 to 9 in the evening. A dance followed in the Sedgewick Community Hall.

For going away the bride wore a red blue Bluezy Knit with pink accessories.

After a short honeymoon the couple will reside in Wainwright.

As Manager of your local branch of the Bank of Montreal, I would like to report to you briefly about the use we made of the savings dollars which you placed in our keeping in 1964.

Let me say that our country's economy got 100 cents of effort from every savings dollar entrusted to us in the past year. A large portion went to assist people in financing things that meant an improved way of life for them . . . such things as cars, home improvements, household appliances of all kinds. Another very substantial proportion of your savings dollar was lent to small, medium and large business enterprises, encouraging them to expand and to employ more people.

The personal savings of all our customers this year amounted to very nearly one-half of the total deposits of $4,340,434,948 at the Bank's year-end on October 31st, 1964. This figure is the highest in all our 147 years of banking and allowed us to bring our loans to a record high of $2,728,967,030.

Another $874,466,286 was invested in high-grade government bonds which have a ready market, plus $260,181,390 in other securities—mainly short-term credits to industry.

What else did your hard working dollars do in 1964? Well, they breathed new vitality into virtually every community across our nation. They financed new industry and created new jobs . . . helped farmers improve both their farms and their way of living . . . constructed new schools and helped students get a better education . . . built new roads and highways . . . supported community projects, large and small, of many kinds.

Yes, your savings dollars worked hard in 1964 — and hardest of all for you. For, steadily accumulating at interest, they are a sound investment in a better future for yourself and your family.

On behalf of the Bank of Montreal, may I say "thank you" for your confidence in "My Bank" and for the opportunity you are giving us to work with you in building a more prosperous Canada.

Safe Driving Week Ends Dec. 7th - 50 Will Die

"We can compare some of Alberta's drivers to babies," said R. F. "Paul" Lawrance, General Manager of the Alberta Safety Council today while commenting on the statement of Hon. Arch Bryce, Executive Director of the Canadian Highway Safety Council, Ottawa, who stated yesterday, "Traffic safety is too heavy, too dense and too fast for any one motorist to drive at though there were no other drivers on the road or as though all other drivers had no right to be there."

In elaborating on his statement Mr. Lawrence added, "Babies are normally self-centered. They have not learned how to be unselfish; they have not learned how to share. They are good examples of the perfect egotist. When you see a driver who shows a complete disregard for others, one who is aggressive, commanding, impatient, and thoroughly selfish in his actions affecting other drivers, you are looking at the fugitive from the nursery, the kayder!"

Both Lawrence and Bryce, known across Canada as traffic safety experts, made their statements in connection with the coast-to-coast highway safety campaign, Safe-Driving Week, which started Nov. 30th and runs to Dec. 7th. The campaign is being sponsored jointly in Alberta by the Canadian Highway Safety Council and the Alberta Safety Council and branches.

At one time, December was the month of most road deaths in Canada. Today it ranks seventh. It is believed that much of the credit for the reduction can be attributed to the S-D Week Campaign.

The campaign illustration in Alberta features two praying children with the theme "They Care". A total of 8 television stations, 30 radio stations and 6 daily newspapers along with 62 weeklies will carry the Safe-Driving Week message to the general public.

Towns, villages, cities, trucking fleets, restaurants, oil companies, stores and other interested organizations will promote the S-D Week story in the form of place mats, paper cards, counter cards, posters & reminders to their employees.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council has predicted that at least 50 Canadians will die on the highway during the 7-day period commencing at midnight November 30 and ending at midnight December 7. It is believed that B. C. could have 4 fatalities, the prairie provinces 9, Ontario 16, Quebec 15 and the Atlantic provinces 6. Last year 58 persons were killed during S-D week and the all time high of 70 deaths occurred in 1955.

"The Egoist is a misfit in the traffic scene," states Mr. Lawrence, "he has not yet learned to share the highway with other people. He is self-centered, and he is detracted by other drivers, pedestrians and traffic officers. It is hoped that the habit of thinking of others can be kept you from being one of his kind". In a closing statement he added, "I hope that all drivers in the province will remember Safe-Driving Week and that others care in the way they drive."

Hockey Association Is Operating Again

SEDGEWICK — The Sedgewick Minor Hockey Association which operated last year for the first time, with real success, will continue again this year, with four age groups making up the league.

Coney, of the Juveniles will be Ernie Bouchard, with Ev Mayne as assistant; For the Midget group, Mel Krajcinski and E. Rosnitsh will be coaches; Peter Myrehaug and Lyle Reed will handle the Bantams, and Bert Whitehead and Pat Harris will look after the Pee Wee section.

It was distinctly specified that any youngster playing on any team in the Association must fill in and have signed a player's card.

It is hoped to get the various leagues under way by the 15th of December.

New Records Set By B of M's 1964 Operations

New records in almost every phase of the Bank of Montreal's local, national and international operations are reported in the bank's 147th annual statement. The figures were provided here by Clyde Clark, manager of the Sedgewick branch.

He said that at the October 31 year-end, B of M assets had risen by $383 million to a record $4,000 million. At the same time, loans to individuals, businesses and municipalities totalled $2,793 million.

Total deposits were at a new high of $3,360 million, including demand accounts' personal savings of $2,020 million. The savings figures showed an increase of $92.3 million in the year, passing the $2 billion mark for the first time.

The bank's net earnings, on operations of 905 offices at home and abroad also reached a new record at $17,854,863, the manager reported. The figure is $1,107,856 more than in 1963. Provision for taxes is $18,211,471.

The total loan figure of $2,729 million includes an increase of $217 million in the buy category "commercial and other loans". M.M.A. mortgage loans and call loans were $211 million and $267 million, respectively.

The bank's more than $2,000 shareholders are receiving dividends of $2.20 per share, a total of $13,868,000. This is five cents a share more than in 1963.

The manager said that "quick" assets amounted to $3,081 million.

Expense Of Liquid Fertilizer Compared

A liquid fertilizer (15-30-10) was offered for sale to central Alberta farmers during the summer of 1963.

Using the manufacturer's recommended rates and methods of application it gave about the same crop response as normal applications of ordinary 11-48-0. But according to Dr. D. K. McBeath, District Agriculturist at Lacombe Experimental Farm, the liquid fertilizer was the more expensive of the two.

The liquid fertilizer cost three dollars per gallon and the recommended application was five gallons to the acre — three gallons sprayed on during the seeding operation and another two gallons sprayed on when the crop was 6 to 10 inches high. Says Dr. McBeth, it costs fifteen dollars an acre for the liquid fertilizer for the same yield response that 50 pounds to the acre of 11-48-0 would provide for less than three dollars per acre. However, he says, if liquid fertilizer should become more competitive in price, it may find a place on Alberta farms.

Like all fertilizers it is registered by the Plant Products Division of the Federal Department of Agriculture and it has a guaranteed analysis. There is nothing wrong with the idea of feeding the plant through the leaves. Foliar feeding is an accepted method of fertilization particularly for the application of trace elements to orchards.

On the basis of the yield results he concludes that at the present the liquid fertilizer is not too expensive compared to the ordinary kind.

Central Wins Three And Loses One

Central's basketball teams have played four games and have won three. On Wednesday they played in Dayland. In the girls' game all the players really put out and Central won with a score of 43 to 13. The boys weren't so lucky, they tried their best but the game by a score of 34 to 53.

On Friday evening the teams played at Central and took on Alliance, and both boys and girls were defeated. The girls won with a score of 62 to 17. The boys had a real close game, but won with a score of 29 to 23.

Basic Craft Courses Offered By Department

(By Dolores Delany)

The Department of Cultural Development are offering basic craft courses to any district that is interested and is able to provide the proper facilities. Representatives from three districts are required.

The basic craft courses offered are bail, basketry, corrosion, copper tooling, design (course on home decorating), enameling (on jewelery), leather craft, weaving, photography and millinery.

These courses vary in the number of hours per course, anywhere from 12 to 36 hours.

If anyone is interested you may get in touch with Mr. N. Nickerson at Stroma, Mr. F. Schaal, Daysland and Mrs. K. Pointer, Daysland.

Those taking these courses should be represented by some club so that they may go back and teach it to other members. These courses are offered free, you pay only for the material you use.

The following were winners of $50.00 each on the Grey Cup Pool sponsored by the Daysland Curling Club. Mr. Jack Wallis, Camrose, Mr. Lief Larson, Mr. Jimmy Josephinon and Mr. John James Darth.

Three Lions from the Edmonton Club were visitors here on Friday. On Monday evening eight Lion members attended the Stroma meeting, where the District Governor Mart Pettit of Fort St. John was a guest. The same evening the Lions Ladies had a social gathering at the home of Mrs. L. Delaney.

Two Lions from the Stroma Club attended the meeting here in town on Wednesday evening.

Mr John Tomyluk has left on a hunting trip to Hinton for a week.

Mr. Gunner Carlson and family of Edmonton are visiting for the week end.

Mrs. Fred Schmidt has been gone this week visiting with her sister Mrs. D. H. Byers at Fort Saskatchewan. She also spent a few days visiting Mrs. E. Pryer in Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Boggs and Mrs. Fred Schmidt spent last Thursday at a family reunion in Leduc at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Orchino. Those present by family present were Arthur Boggs and Family of Vermilion, Tom Cottrell, Vermilion, Doug Thompson & family, and Judy Cottrell, Edmonton, Dr. J. D. Cottrell of Lethbridge, Mr. and Mrs. Don Boggs, Oliver, and Mrs. and Mrs. Glen Baldorf of North Edmonton.

The annual meeting and buffet supper for the Old Timers was held on Wednesday evening in the Elks Hall. Mr. Sam Wirth was the chairman for the evening. The following officers were elected for the coming year. President Tom Brisbee, vice president Victor Gabruch, 3 new directors were elected, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Twitchell and Uddo Johannson. The same two directors from last year are Mrs. Geo. Hetmer and Allen Peacock of Bawlf. Mrs. Geo. Candlish resigned her position as Secretary. Mrs. Tom Brisbee was appointed as the new secretary by the Executive. The Executive appointed then a Christmas party for the members would be held on December 16th.

A motion was made that not more than $1.50 be charged for the monthly dances. It was suggested one of the dances in the winter be held in Bawlf. The meeting was followed by dancing and lunch at midnight.

About 20 are taking the adult typing course which is being taught by Mrs. Terry, the industrial arts teacher at Daysland. These courses are being held every Monday evening in the school.

Marilyne Twitchell Married To Peter Nahajowicz At Polska

(Dolores Delany)

A lovely fall wedding took place in St. John Baptist Church in Polska on Saturday, November 14th, when Marilyne Ann Twitchell eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Twitchell became the bride of Peter Nahajewicz, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Nahajewicz, all of Daysland.

Rev. Father Adam of Holden performed the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a full length gown of nylon tulle over rustling taffeta, styled with a fitted bodice and lily point sleeves. A floral pattern of appliqued of lace and bows and a bustle bow at the back. Her veil of illusion tulle was held in place with a flower. She carried a cascading bouquet of red roses and white ribbons.

The bride's attendants were Janet Lessing of Daysland, as maid of honor, Jane Twitchell and Judy Eckhyster as bridesmaids, all are cousins of the bride. They were identical turquoise dresses of soft brushed cotton lace over rustling rayon. The wore turquoise headpieces and white accessories. They carried bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Attending the groom were Mr. Rudy Nahajewicz brother of the groom, Alvin Reguski and Allen Nahajewicz. Ushers were Darrel Anderson cousin of the bride, and Mike Biatt, uncle of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Twitchell chose a two piece suit of blue mohair Beagle with black accessories and yellow roses on corsage. Mrs. Nahajewicz, mother of the groom, chose a sheath green metallic brocade with matching hat yellow rose corsage.

A family dinner for 30 was at the home of the bride's parents. The reception was held in the Polska hall for 200 guests. The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake baked by the bride's mother and decorated by Mrs. Peter Nahajewicz. Toast of the bride was proposed by Rev. Father Adam and very ably responded to by the groom. Master of ceremonies was Peter Kashe.

As yet not mapped. He said the Rotary hopes to continue work on the site in following years until all the figures have been mapped.

Dr. Bayrock listed 62 of the outlines as teepee rings. There are a dozen medicine wheels, including 2 double wheels, ten cairns, four turtle outing snakes, two petagons and two "bones of the" figures. There are also 18 undressed or very disturbed rings.

The figure of a man was also mapped several miles from the main site.

Dr. Bayrock defined the medicine wheels as circles between 30 and 40 feet in diameter and teepee rings between 12 ato 20 feet. Double medicine wheels are stone circles composed of two rings, one inside the other.

Dr. Bayrock said the exact function of the circles is not known. The small ones are probably teepee rings but those close to 30 feet in diameter "must" would have been constructed for the sun dance or some unknown ceremonial rites.

The cairns are from three to six feet in diameter and represent piles of rocks put together by prehistoric man.

The pentagons are peculiar arrangements of stone having five sides and an s-ary leading to it.

The "bone shape" is an arrangement of stone, similar to a circle, except that it is open at one end and the bottom is broken by numerous boulders in a geometrical pattern. Two such "bone shapes" have been found close together and facing each other.

Stones arranged in forms of turtle outing snakes are unique to the area as no similar ones are on record anywhere. Four such effig ies have been mapped.

The buffalo effigy is very distorted, but the outlines of the animal are quite evident.

The Cohnert site represents a unique relatively undisturbed area of Indian boulder outline figures. It is not known whether the area was an ancient village of a ceremonious ground. Certainly, Dr. Bayrock said, the number of figures there points to the significance of the site to ancient man.

No excavating has been conducted at the site, but if such should be warrant in the future, a number of the area, it will be performed after all the mapping has been completed.

Mapping of the figure was performed by the rectangular method, that is using aluminum frames 20 by 20 feet of the length ratio which strings were so used every foot parallel to the sides. The boundary comprising the figures were then plotted directly onto sheets of the same grid by the use of grid inch to four feet.

During the 1964 field season 32 different boulder outline figures were mapped and during the 1964 season 74 additional figures were put on paper.

Similar sites in great abundance are in Neutral Hills and other areas of the province Persons who know of such sites are kindly requested to submit the information to the Archaeological Society of Alberta c/o Dr. J. D. Bayrock, Research Council of Alberta, Edmonton, in that they may be mapped and preserved for the future, at least on paper.

LAMB AT ITS BEST

When buying lamb, look for meat that is fine, close grained, firm and velvety. The color of the lean meat in lamb varies from a light to dark pink, and in mutton from light to dark red. Lamb fat is firm smooth, soft and creamy white or slightly pink in color. Mutton fat is more brittle and white in color.

With several reservations, lamb is cooked just as is beef. A few points to remember when cooking lamb:

Lamb may be cooked to the rare, medium or well done stage. However, it is usually cooked to the well done stage.

Lamb must be served either hot or cold, never lukewarm. Use hot plates and platters on which to serve it. For a special flavor, sprinkle over or rub into the cut surface of roasts any of the following seasonings: thyme, mint, marjoram, rosemary, basil, ginger, curry powder, chili powder or dry mustard.

Most cuts of lamb are tender enough to be cooked by dry heat methods. The meat end shank, being the exception, are cooked with moist heat. For a copy of "Taste Tempting Lamb Recipes" phone me at Camrose 672-2764.

Alberta Archaeological Find

The Archaeological Society of Alberta has found a buffalo effigy in the more than 100 Indian boulder outlines Society members have mapped near Consort Alberta.

During the past two summer seasons, the only members occupied 112 outlines made by Indians centuries ago. The Consort site contains the largest number of figures ever mapped in Canada.

Dr. L. A. Bayrock of the Research Council of Alberta said there remain at least a dozen number of boulder outline figures

Grain Drying With Unheated Air

Unheated air and an electric fan offer many possibilities for drying grain.

In their publication "Drying Grain with Unheated Air", the Saskatchewan Power Corporation says that a grain bin with a perforating a two-horse power motor and a fan can be installed in most farm grain bins for between $400 and $500. This type of unit will handle between 4,000 and 8,000 bushels of damp grain.

The pamphlet states that the time required to dry grain by the unheated air method depends upon air temperature, relative humidity and the amount of air forced through the grain. A two-horse-power fan would have to run for about 300 hours to remove 1.5 per cent moisture from 4,000 bushels of wheat with a moisture content of 16 per cent. This would amount to approximately 20 ten-hour days of fan operation during the fall.

At two cents per kilowatt-hour for electricity, the two horsepower motor would use 900 kilowatt-hours for a total operating cost of $18. This works out to just under a quarter of a cent a bushel. The number of hours of fan operation and the cost will naturally increase if the grain is harvested with more than 16 per cent moisture content.

It is true that unheated air cycles are slow compared to using a larger drier which burns propane or oil. The big difference is capital investment and the saving in operating costs, however, warrant careful study of this method by farmers faced with damp grain problems every few years.

Although there are a number of pamphlets describing heated grain dryers, "Drying Grain with Unheated Air" is one of the few good sources of information on natural air drying. Alberta farmers can obtain a copy of "Drying Grain with Unheated Air" from the Extension Engineer, Alberta Department of Agriculture, Legislative Building, Edmonton.

O.O.R.P. Meets

Twenty-two members of the O.O.R.P. answered the roll call at the meeting held on November 23rd. It was decided to buy Christmas gifts for the patients at the Auxiliary Hospital. The invitation committee took place a which Lady Ann Chandler from Killam and Lady Darlene Nygaard from Sedgewick were nominated into the order. We were pleased to have Lady Pannak from Fernie, B.C. present at our meeting. A Chief-mas party was planned to whom husbands will be invited.

Ladies McTavish and Morgan served lunch.

Lougheed 4-H Banquet

The annual 4-H mother and daughter banquet was held in the Lougheed Hall on November 27th with the W.I. as hostesses. O. Cannon was sung, followed by the 4H pledge and Rosanna Burdin said grace. After a delicious meal of roast made to the club, leaders, members, W.I. and a special tribute to two WI charter members who now have granddaughters in 4H, Mrs. Orville Trobel presented Verna Storbakken, last year's efficiency winner with an alarm clock, on behalf of the Red and White. Verna then gave an interesting account of her 4H sponsored trips. These were taken last summer to farm projects as well as the University of Alberta, Provincial eliminations at Olds, and a junior leadership week at Gold Eye.

Rats on the Move In Eastern Alberta

Constant vigilance is the price Albertans pay for a rat-free province

J. B. Gurba, Provincial Supervisor of Crop Protection and Pest Control, says that at no time is this vigilance more important than at this time of year. Any rats which may have come into Alberta during the summer are in the process of moving into their winter quarters. These quarters take the form of buildings and other shelters on farms, in cities, towns and villages. Here the rats can be rapidly exterminated if they are discovered and reported.

Many rats are caught and killed by dogs and cats during their migration from the land to winter accommodation. Those which reach their destinations can be detected by their burrows, droppings, gnawings or movements. Mr. Gurba says any suspicious signs should be reported immediately to local pest control officers, municipal centres or district agriculturists.

Rats first crossed our eastern border 14 years ago. Since then every new invasion has been successfully eliminated. Mr. Gurba says a large part of this success is due to the dedicated work of pest control officers and to the all-out support given by residents of the province.

At present there are 256 locally appointed pest control officers throughout Alberta and eight full-time workers in districts along the Saskatchewan border. These men check reports, supply information and approve control methods when necessary.

With the province of Saskatchewan expanding its control program, the number of invading rats should be considerably less. However, it will take the continued co-operation of everyone concerned to keep Alberta rat-free.

REPORTS FROM PARLIAMENT HILL

The House of Commons made some progress recently toward essential parliamentary reforms. In accepting on a trial basis some new rules proposed by the Special Committee on Procedure.

The most important of these was limiting to one day the debate on the resolution stage of a bill. Up to now, debate could go on indefinitely at this as well as later stages. The result has often been a lot of wasteful repetition.

But as Prime Minister Pearson declared during the debate on the committee's report, there is still room for more reform. In his and the Government's view, the most important reform to be made is the introduction of a procedure by which time could be allotted on all the proposals introduced in the Commons for discussion and decision.

Parliament has been under quite a lot of criticism for inefficiency in the last couple of years. There is a lot that is sound in this criticism, but I think it should be kept in perspective.

After all, parliamentary institutions from the very beginnings of Parliament have always been subjected to the criticism of those who are impatient to get things done, even at times at the expense of careful consideration and discussion.

You often hear MPs criticized as indifferent for not always being in the Commons. But those who raise this criticism don't always stand for all the other things have to do that use up a lot of their time outside the Commons. This, of course, has also been a fairly regular criticism of Parliament and parliamentarians from the beginning.

But as the Prime Minister pointed out, the criticism and examination being undergone by our parliamentary institutions at this time are more significant and more incredible today than ever before. This is because of the development of communication media that did not exist 50 years ago, which can bring Parliament's debate — even more than its virtues — to the attention of a very large audience within a few minutes. In fact, sometimes news reports of important parts of a speech are going out even before the speech is completed.

As Mr. Pearson said: "The day when we could secure immunity from the consequences of our own inefficiency, in the light of the importance of what we are doing, has gone."

The right of discussion is still very important. But of equal importance is the right to take a decision after a full and free discussion.

The abuse of the right of discussion — that is, to bring a debate finally to an end and let MPs vote on it — can be as damaging to parliamentary institutions as the abuse of the right of discussion.

As Mr. Pearson indicated, it is the hope of the Government that the Special Committee will eventually be able to resolve this problem in new rules on a unanimous basis. But I believe what he went on to say on this point is also well worth noting:

"This is the right way to proceed in reforming, reorganizing and strengthening our parliamentary procedures; that is, by a decision of all-party committee and by a decision which, whenever possible, is unanimous. However, I hope we will not lose sight of the fact it is important that progress be made and that the committee be not unduly handicapped or delayed by necessity, on every single occasion, of reaching a unanimous decision."

In other words, if the essential reforms are delayed too long, it may well become necessary to introduce them on the basis of majority, rather than unanimous, support.

Central Highlites

The Central High Jive Club met again last Thursday. The trouble with the meetings as everyone says is that there are no boys at them. The chorus group is planning to put on a programme of hit songs and dances through the year. They are now arranging for the programme.

Central published a paper on Friday and it was sold to the students at 10c a copy. The paper told all about the happenings in Central since the first of the year. The writer of the paper was Helen Jacobson.

SPORTS

Last Wednesday evening Central played basketball in Dayaland. The girls won their game 13-43, but the Central boys lost their game.

On Friday evening Alliance came to Central and were two time losers. In the girls game, Central won 47 to 17 and the boys won with a score of 29-28.

Blood Indian Creek Dam Started At Hanna

OTTAWA — Preliminary work on the Blood Indian Creek community water storage near Hanna, Alberta, can be commenced this fall, Agriculture Minister Harry Hays announced today.

He said treasury approval has been received for the project to the amount of $176,000 chargeable to water storage projects in the western provinces.

Mr. Hays said the dam will meet the pressing needs of livestock producers in the area for a more reliable water supply.

The project, to be constructed by the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration, will store water for one of the driest areas in Alberta and one in which economy depends on a stable livestock industry. The dam will impound 4,000 acre-feet of water which will serve some 80 farmers and ranchers with more than 3,500 head of cattle, and also 400 acres of irrigable land.

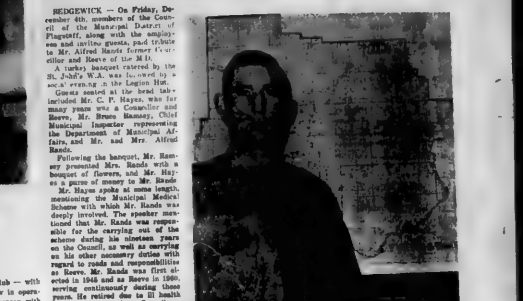
Former Reeve Rands Honored By Flagstaff



SEDGEWICK — On Friday, December 4th, members of the Council of the Municipal District of Flagstaff, along with the employees and visiting guests, paid tribute to Mr. Alfred Rands former Councillor and Reeve of the M.D.

A turkey banquet catered by the St. John's W.A. was followed by a social evening in the Legion Hall.

Guests seated at the head table included Mr. C. F. Hayes, who for many years was a Councillor and Reeve, Mr. Bruce Ramsay, Chief Municipal Inspector representing the Department of Municipal Affairs, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Rands.

Following the banquet, Mr. Ramsay presented Mrs. Rands with a bouquet of flowers, and Mr. Hayes a purse of money to Mr. Rands.

Mr. Hayes spoke at some length, mentioning the Municipal Medical Scheme with which Mr. Rands was deeply involved. The speaker mentioned that Mr. Rands was responsible for the carrying out of the scheme during his nineteen years on the Council, as well as carrying on his other secondary duties with regard to roads and responsibilities as Reeve. Mr. Rands was first elected in 1946 and as Reeve in 1960, serving continuously during those years. He retired due to ill health in 1964. He served as Council representative to the East Central Health Unit, Chairman of the Flagstaff Farm Purchase Board and Chairman of the Agricultural Service Board. Mr. Hayes paid high tribute to councillors who serve with a sense of responsibility to the ratepayers, often at financial expense and damage to health. In mentioning the Municipal Health Scheme, Mr. Hayes chided the Provincial Government Medical scheme stating that in the Flagstaff Municipality had a model well worth following.

The banquet was followed by films and a social evening.

Other guests attending were: Mr. and Mrs. L. Tasten, former councillor, and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Black, former councillor.

Ice Machine Turned On At Killam Rink

The Killam Curling Club — with its new artificial ice now in operation — has opened the season with a mixed spiel.

Installation of the new facilities began late in July with steel supports for the existing building, then came excavation to a depth of four feet, weeping tile, fill gravel, sand, wooden sleepers, three and one half miles of plastic pipe, sidewalls, dividers at centers. The contract for the 12' by 14' machine room and header trench went to Sorenson (Home) Construction Ltd., Killam. The Coffee Bar and observation deck was considerably brightened with new tile and paint, a refrigerator also added.

Many, many hours of volunteer labor were logged in this three-sheet project which is estimated to cost $18,500. This figure includes the $12,880 equipment contract with Canadian Ice Machine. The plant is somewhat unique in that it operates on propane or natural gas.

Canvassing for shareholders is still in progress; one share costs $100 and entitles the owner to a 5% rebate reduction in fees. Early in 1965 share certificates will be issued, and a list of shareholders published.

Regular draws will commence in January; thus we must have our official list of curlers complete. If you would like to curl but have not been contacted, please phone 18 in the day, or 243 in the evenings.

STROME HOME AND SCHOOL

Virginia Froehler Receives Award

The November meeting of Our Lady of Fatima Home and School Association was held in the school with President, Mr. Verner Niskasu in the chair. Following the opening prayer - teacher conferences, Mr. Niskasu expressed the parents appreciation of the excellent teaching staff and stated as the primary objective of the Home and School the continuing strengthening of the parent-teacher relations. On display were the library books purchased with last year's library fund. Sister St. Joseph reminded the parents of the necessity of continued support of this fund to insure our children the advantages of extensive library facilities. Copies of the Alberta Home and School Association's publication "Quest" were circulated and subscriptions taken for the same. Plans were made for the December meeting which will again be held as a parent-student festive social in the church hall Friday evening, December 18, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Stu ents will supply entertainment and the Holy Name Society will supply the children's treats.

Following the short business meeting Mr. Niskasu called on Rev. Father McCarthy for the presentation of Scholastic Awards for the winner of the highest standings in Grade Nine departmentals. Miss Virginia Froehler. Father congratulated Virginia for her fine efforts not only in her departmentals but throughout the school year, and called on Mrs. G. Sorgenson vice-president of the Killam CWL, who presented Virginia with a $25.00 scholarship. The Holy Name Society President Mr. George Spiller presented Virginia with the Society's $25.00 scholarship. Virginia capably thanked the respective organizations and then gave a very interesting account of her week at the Junior Red Cross leadership training center at Banff. There, with students from throughout the Province and North West Territories they were given lectures and demonstrations on the work done by the Red Cross and participated in workshops, all designed to equip the participants as leaders in Red Cross work and the community as a whole. Virginia then thanked the Home and School for sponsoring her at this center. Meeting was followed by lunch.

Hi-C Rally Held At Sedgewick

SEDGEWICK — The Sedgewick 18-C held sixes-day Rally Nov. 27th to 29th. The Rally opened on Friday evening with a get-acquainted party of games and dancing. Lots of old-time dances were being taught by Barbara Sax, and everyone had lots of fun. After the dance lunch was served and the members taken to their billets.

Everyone met at the church at 9.00 next morning, and the rest of the day up until 4.30 was spent in devotional and discussion sessions led by Stan Ervit of Edmonton. For supper everyone enjoyed a turkey meal with trimmings, following which dancing and talking was the order. Lunch was served, and the kids were again taken to their respective billets.

On Sunday morning everyone attended church, after which the Hi-Cers were taken on a tour of the Sedgewick Recreational Centre.

Dinner was served at the church and the Rally was officially closed.

The Hi-C theme: all the people who were willing to help and who provided billets.

Hockey Action Starts Monday

SEDGEWICK W. I.

SEDGEWICK — A group of 16 W. I. members and one visitor met together for a supper meeting on December 2nd at the Legion Hut. Following this, Christmas cards were sing lunioes, before adjourning to the home of Mrs. D. Cooper for the remainder of the evening.

Annual reports were read and then the nominating committee presented the list of officers for the new year as follows: Pres., Mrs. J. Hopkin; Sec., Mrs. Gollon; Treas., Mrs. D. Smith; 1st Vice, Mrs. G. Wellman; 2nd Vice, Mrs. Harvey Stieve; Directors, Mrs. Bert Whitten, Mrs. Adam Bapste, Mrs. H. Beniruto.

The program of Handicraft for the January meeting will be in charge of Mrs. Bert Whitter.

Regular league hockey games will start next week with Battle River League starting on Monday, December 14th with all teams in action.

With winter arriving earlier than it did last year, perhaps the season have been able to make ice much sooner th'n year. Word has it that all the teams are ready to go and the hockey should start on schedule.

Several of the rinks had ice now have been skating for 2 weeks and this early start should produce much better hockey than usual because the boys will have a greater chance to get in practice. Some winters when the leagues didn't get rolling until the last week in December the season was almost over before the players were rounding into shape.

Another benefit this year should be a better brand of hockey at the New Year's Day tourney. Interm meets by which time the players will have almost a month of skating behind them and two weeks of league action.

The schedule for both the senior and juvenile Battle River leagues appear in this week's paper and everyone is urged to study it and turn out to support the boys. Besides they'll put on a good show for you.

WHY A SAFE DRIVING WEEK!

Fight with the wife this morning? Snap at the kids? Argue with the landlord? Then watch your driving. A motorist with a "mad" on is a menace to himself and to every driver he meets. The tendency is, so often, to take it out on the car, and this can happen without the driver really meaning to do it. But whether it's intentional or not it can bring on a crash costly in damage, injury, pain and wasted time.

A lot of people ask, "Why does the Canadian Highway Safety Council hold a Safe-Driving Week? Why not a Safe-Driving Year? The Council replies, "A little as drivers and to be increasingly careful. "It is imperative." he said, "for all drivers to observe traffic laws more closely in order to avoid repeating the previous week-end's disaster."

Live summer holiday campaign being implemented across the nation by all safety bodies, provincial and municipal governments, law enforcement agencies, industry and commerce, this year's summer death toll is out to set an all-time record.

Alarmed at the horrifying number of deaths and injuries suffered on Quebec highways during the past week-end — Quebec registered 24 highway fatalities — Honorable Jean Lesage, Premier of the Province, sounded the alarm in the Legislative Assembly. He asked Quebec motorists to live up to their responsibilities

The Council has received telegrams of appeals for help from Premier Lesage, Transport and Communications minister Gerard Cournoyer, Education minister Gerin Lajoie , Highways minister Bernard Pinard, Family and Social Welfare minister Emilien Lafrance, Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson, Prudential president Dr. Armand Rioux and the president of l'Association des Chefs de Police et Pompiers de la Province de Quebec, M. Auguste Laforest.

"This terrifying toll is not limited to Quebec roads alone," charged CHSC Executive Director W. Arch Bryce," so the remainder of the nation's drivers has no cause to sit back and relax with the comforting thought that, once more, they are not concerned. This false sense of security has been responsible for keeping highway fatalities mounting over the past years."

Motorists have too long looked for 'scapegoats' to excuse their NEGLIGENCE, INATTENTION and flagrant disregard of the rules of the road and safe-driving. Better they wake up NOW, before it's too late!

ONE MORE STATUTORY HOLIDAY!

There is further evidence of the incipient failure of democracy. The House of Commons recently defeated Government members present ,and added Remembrance Day to an official list of holidays for government servants and for workers who come under the jurisdiction of the federal government.

For government servants this would make still another statutory holiday. In addition government servants get three weeks' holiday after a brief period in employment and enough sick leave for recuperation from all the ills known to man or woman.

This is not to say all government servants are lazy and refuse to do any more work than they must. There is a core of competent, efficient, conscientious government employees without whom the country could not function. But there are others, and it is feared they are in the majority, who are in the government service only for the sake of the pay cheque. To these the word "services" is something that is found in a dictionary. And too many of the people on the public payroll appear to think that service is something you perform for the public when it is convenient for it to be done. (Recently for, example, it took twelve days to get an answer to a routine question addressed to a government department in Ottawa.)

It is assumed that if all these holidays become a fact ,and it is highly probable that they will become a fact, more overtime will have to be paid those who serve the public at border points and perhaps in the post office. Or does it mean that the post offices across the land will be closed on still another statutory holiday?

There was a time when there was a postal delivery on Christmas Day.

There needs to be education of government employees to show them that they have their jobs because they are supposed to serve the public.

Why should there be a holiday as a remembrance of the fact that men and women died to preserve Canada and to enable those who lived and those who are yet to be born to help Canada progress? Can a country go ahead by being idle?

There used to be something called Armistice Day. If it as on a weekday there was a two-minute silence. Streetcars and buses stopped, work was suspended in offices, factory machines, where possible, were switched off. The two minutes of silence were the most impressive way to remember that John McCrae wrote: "To you from failing hands we thrown the torch."

The Opposition parties in Parliament were not on this occasion holding aloft the torch. — Printed Word.

The chiropractors who recently suffered food poisoning in Edmonton, likely ended their convention with a round of spinal thumps. It would be catastrophic if they found themselves beating a path to the M.D.'s offices to man the stomach pumps.

The "Bare to the Navel" Suit is california's answer to the "Topless Bathing Suit!!" Neither has far to go until they just go "bare".

Hardisty Farewell For Mr. & Mrs. Ed Stang

A party was held in the Legion Hall on Sunday evening to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stang, who have moved to Ft. Saskatchewan. Ed has been in charge of the Government Liquor Store for the past four years, and during that time the family has made many friends. As members of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, they were active members in CWL, KC and the choir. Active members also of the Legion and Auxiliary they will be greatly missed in these groups. Mrs. Strang was the popular leader of the Teen-Towns and Ed coached the Ladies Softball team. Mr. Ken Drever acted as MC and entertainment consisted of musical items by St. Joseph's choir and Len Anderson, as well as community singing with Mrs. Geo. Krosier at the piano and two reasons prepared by the Legion Auxiliary which crowned Walter Szuba, Bill Robinson, Roy Drever, Les Hendricks and Pat Brown.

The turkey bingo sponsored by the Stampeder Hockey Club on Thursday was very successful, with turkeys going to Edmonton, Wainwright, Sedgewick and other points. The door prize was won by Mrs. A. Redman while Mrs. Frank Heth of Rosalyn was the lucky winner of the black out.

CENTRAL HIGH VS. GALAHAD

Central played two hot basketball games in Galahad on Wednesday evening. Both the boys and girls tried hard to win their games.

The girls efforts were rewarded when they won by a score of 30 to 28. In the first quarter Central got 10 points to Galahad's 4; the score of the second quarter both teams were tied 16 all. Central led by two points at the end of the third quarter and after the fourth quarter lead by 4 points making a final score of 30 to 26. The star for Central girls was Sandra Paterson who made a total of 18 points.

The boys weren't so lucky that night but they still played a tremendous game. In the first quarter Galahad had 7 points and Central six. At half time Galahad had 16 points and Central had 15. In the final quarter Central held on and made the score 33 to 32 for Galahad. The score was 25 to 24 for Galahad in the fourth quarter with only 10 seconds in the game, Central got the ball and was for a basket. The ball rang. No one heard it and Central threw the ball and made a score, but, the basket was counted. Since no one heard the ball it was left up to the timers to say whether or not the basket counted Due to Central's honest time-keeper, Galahad won the game by one point 33 to 34.

The star player for the Central boys was Curtis Stuve who made 14 points.

The Week That Was

OTTAWA — There used to be a popular British TV program on the CBC known as "That Was the Week That Was".

When every Liberal member of parliament left the Commons chamber on Friday night, Nov. 27, members with very few exceptions felt that was the week that was," and added with evident concern that they wished the week had never transpired.

It began quietly enough with NDP Leader T. C. Douglas, on Monday enquiring if any persons in high positions in Ottawa had sought to bring influence to bear on a Montreal lawyer, who was acting for the United States Government. He said that two American cases being held in Bordeaux prison had sought release on bail. He also said he understood pressure had been brought on the lawyer not to oppose the application for bail.

Justice Minister Guy Favreau said he would be prepared to answer the question when his departmental estimates were discussed later that day. And later when making a statement on his estimates Mr. Favreau informed the House that as a result of information placed before the RCMP, the commissioner of that force appointed the matter to Mr. Favreau and he immediately ordered a full inquiry be made by the RCMP. It was learned that he had instructed the commissioner to have all persons involved interviewed simultaneously and as soon as possible. This was done.

Mr. Favreau added, "this is a case with which the Department of Justice, as such, through its legal branch, is concerned in holding a watching brief".

Up to that point no names had been placed on the record. In fact Mr. Douglas was very carefully avoiding placing names on the record. Mr. Favreau emphasized that after the RCMP inquiry was completed and it was felt there was not sufficient evidence to recommend prosecution.

Under questioning by Erik Nielsen, PC — Yukon, the Justice Minister said he had not referred the matter to the law officers of the Crown for an opinion. He said it was not the practice of the Justice Minister to do that unless (1) the matter was brought to the attention of the Minister for that purpose or, (2) he is satisfied there is room for opinion.

It was here that the Justice Minister left himself open to attack. In the opposition's mind he had erred in not turning the matter over to the law officers for their opinion in order to substantiate the opinion he and the RCMP had reached.

Mr. Favreau emphasized that he did not wish to make public, names of certain employees or former employees of the Government at this time in connection with this case. However, he quickly and readily accepted a suggestion by Mr. Douglas that a judicial inquiry be set up. He believed it should be held in camera in order to protect those who were not guilty of any wrong doing.

But Mr. Nielsen protested. He found the suggestion of an "in camera" inquiry "astonishing". He charged that the "offender" in the case had been employed in the Justice Minister's office and in the office of the Minister of Citizenship and Immigration. He named a former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Rene Tremblay and a former executive assistant to Mr. Favreau as involved.

Mr. Favreau took exception to the use of the word "offender". He branded as a "lie" the suggestion by Mr. Nielsen that anyone "implicated as an offender" by the Yukon member was a member of the Justice Department, or had ever been a member of the Justice Department. With the naming of revised terms of reference to the House Friday morning, Nov. 27th, the New Democratic Party announced it would vote with the Government against a Conservative Vest of Confidence Motion. Social Creditors said they would do the same. The Creditistes also indicated support.

Mr. Favreau called for a moratorium on discussion of the case pending the findings of the judicial inquiry. Meantime his Government announced that the following day the flag debate would be resumed, and it was.

Mr. Nielsen had more sensational questions. The Government's handling of the Lavigne case in the House by Mr. Nielsen was inept. Had the Cabinet quickly agreed to setting up a judicial inquiry with broad and sweeping terms of reference it would not provided the basis for many of the serious criticisms voiced in the Commons.

While Mr. Favreau was motivated by a desire to prevent innocent persons being smeared or dragged into the case he overlooked without the Conservative desire to get the matter into the open. Mr. Favreau as Justice Minister by not referring the case to his law officers for a finding was in fact giving advice to the Prime Minister of the men, was guilty of criminal terms in jail.

If people are being short-changed these days they really have no one to blame but themselves. We live in a day of shorts and short changes may be part of the fad.

People want everything in capsule form; as brief as possible. We want short days of work; short after dinner speeches; short sermons; short digested articles and books; short dresses and shorts — period. We shorten the roads to our destination by accelerating our speed. We shorten our life spans by premature deaths caused by accidents in speeding or over-tension. Actually we are shortening our lives in order to extend eternity which cannot be shortened. And now they want a short editorial.

XMAS NIGHT FROLIC, NEW YEARS EVE DANCE, AT LOUGHEED

CHRISTMAS NIGHT 12:01 IN COMMUNITY HALL NEW YEAR'S EVE 10:00 P.M.

Canada's population at June 1, 1964 was estimated at 19,297,000, of whom 6,660,000 were children under 15 years of age and 1,462,000 were persons of 65 years and over.

1964 Was A Good Year For Farmers

Canadian farmers have had "a generally good year" in 1964, although production did not match the record-breaking "banner year" of 1963, according to the Bank of Montreal in its Business Review for November, just issued.

The B of M notes that, while wheat producers needed a record 20 million acres, lack of rainfall in the growing season and rain at harvesting reduced average yields to estimated 600 million bushels. This is 17% less than last year... "but still well above average".

Unlike the situation in some earlier periods when a succession of good wheat harvests resulted in large surplus stocks of grain, the current wheat supply is not unduly large in relation to foreseeable demand. In 1963, "notwithstanding the record harvest, the carryover of wheat was down from a year earlier, in the current crop year, with a smaller harvest and some increase in the allowance for domestic requirements, stocks of wheat available for export and carryover will be about 150 million bushels lower", the B of M says.

While foreign demand is unlikely to match last year's record 594 million bushels, above average shipments of about 400 million bushels are being forecast. If realized, this export clearance would be a carryover of some 500 million bushels in August, 1965.

FARM INCOME RECORD

Although production of the other principal grains is also generally lower than last year, the B of M says that total farm income will reach a new record level.

"Farm cash income from farming operations during the first six months of this year was substantially higher than for the comparable period in 1963", the bank observes, adding that wages and salaries recorded the major gain.

"Farm income gains have had a significant impact not only on the economy of the prairie region but also on the general prosperity of the country as a whole", the B of M says.

However, imports of agricultural products also rose sharply, so that the surplus on trade in such commodities rose by only $32 million.

The B of M points out that sugar alone accounted for almost half the rise in agricultural imports. The volume or raw sugar imports was slightly less in 1964 than in 1963, but since average prices more than doubled the bill rose by almost $70 million.

As a result of higher incomes from the wheat sales, there was a sharp rise in imports of agricultural equipment.

"Another interesting aspect of the secondary balances of payments effects of last year's greatly increased agricultural exports is the influence they have in our balance with the United States", the bank says.

Since a high percentage of total imports come from the United States, higher incomes from wheat sales have tended to increase the current deficit with that country, the B of M review concludes.

Sedgewick Boy Married In Halifax Naval Chapel

The Protestant Chapel at HMCS Stadacona was the scene of a pretty wedding when Thelma Leores Ettinger became the bride of Brian David Galletly. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Ettinger of Lower Sackville and the groom is the son of Mrs. Olive Galletly of Sedgewick and Mr. R. Galletly of Edmonton.

Padre W. Dalton performed the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional floor-length gown in white with a square neckline outlined with sequins. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses. Her shoulder length veil was held in place by a sequin crown.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Ronald Barkhouse was matron of honor. She wore a street length dress of blue chiffon over taffeta, styled with elbow length sleeves and a bell-shaped skirt. She carried a bouquet of carnations.

Miss Wendy Thivierge was flower girl. She wore a full skirted dress with a hat in matching material and carried a basket of mixed flowers.

Ronald Barkhouse brother-in-law of the bride, was best man.

Following the ceremony a reception for family and close friends was held at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Langille, West Lake, Hants County.

Mr. and Mrs. Galletly will reside on Menzies Street in Halifax.

Battle River 4-H Club Meeting

The second meeting of the Battle River 4H Beef Club was held in the Hardisty Catholic Church basement, with all members present. Doug Best and Joyce Matthews ably handled the chair and secretary chores. The members are to be commended for the business like way in which the meeting was conducted, each one standing up and speaking out clearly when dealing with motions.

Miss Roberta Young commenced the study part of the meeting by giving a cookie walk prepared project on the selection of a club calf. Henry Hays spoke on the keeping of proper records. He stressed the importance of accuracy in feed measurement and computation of costs. The public speaking assignment was handled by Miss Pearl Renshaw her topic being My Pet Horse. Henry Rombough prepared some form of club entertainment, a hay ride was suggested, but no date was decided on.

The adult members reported as follows: Pete Gossard on a meeting place, Frank Alderdice on keeping of record books, and Homer Elms on the care of puppeties. During the lunch period the record books were checked by the adult committee.

The Women's Missionary Society met at the church on Monday afternoon with the ladies president, Mrs. Grymaleski presented a very challenging devotional with Mrs. Hamilton leading two quizzes. Mrs. Hamberg chaired the business portion of the meeting.

Plans were made for the ladies to prepare and serve the food for the Young Peoples' banquet to be held on December 20th. The motion was made that we give a $5.00 donation in the "Container Fund" which the Young People have undertaken. It was decided to place a large Christmas card on the church bulletin board and say family wishing to donate to the Vancouver Bible Institute rather than sending cards to friends in the church could sign and leave their donation. Good used clothing was brought for the Jewish work.

Members of the WMS were guest of the WMC at the Calvary Temple on Thursday night.

A good attendance comprising mostly young people, enjoyed the "Youth for Christ" meeting on Monday evening. The film "Three Wise Boys" was well chosen for this season of the year. A solo, letter quintette, and choir brought Christmas musical numbers.

The first Christmas program practice of entire Sunday School was held on Friday night, with a good number reported.

Rev. Don Brush, of Japan Evangelical Mission, was the guest speaker for the Sunday services. Donations were received for the British and Foreign Bible Society.

NATIONAL 4H CLUB CONFERENCE

We have been back now for a short time after attending National 4H Club Conference at Ottawa and Toronto. It was a wonderful trip and a grand experience and one we will always remember.

We can feel proud of our Alberta delegates. They took an active part in the program, mixed well and their conduct was always in good taste.

The conference program was well planned to take up every minute of time. It was educational and interesting. True to the 4H motto of "Learn to do by doing" the 4H members had opportunities to exchange ideas about our nation and the world and how we can learn to live and work together in harmony.

Many a rule of pictures were taken as we toured our nation's capital, Niagara Falls, the Toronto Royal Fair, the Museum of Science and the Art Gallery in Ottawa.

Attending the Hockey game in Maple Leaf Gardens and the Horse Show at the fair, were evening highlights that will not be forgotten. To many, the rides on the subway were a real experience.

The dances were popular. Many lasting friendships were nurtured throughout these conferences as the boys and girls got to know one another from all provinces of Canada. Two 4H 42 members were part of the conference and our delegates went out of their way to make them feel welcome.

There were many and young people when the morning came to say good bye and travel home again. But there will be the memories and these will follow them through their lifetime. Attending National Club Conferences was really and truly an award trip.

As Supervisor of the 4H delegates on their trip this year all I can say is that it was a tremendous experience. Both my wife Lenore and I have a better appreciation of 4H and the scope of its effect on our nations young people. We will never forget the trip nor the Alberta delegates — they were indeed a select group of 4H members.

Dayland C.W.L. Donates Clothing

[Editors Extra]

Present at the monthly CWL meeting held in the Parish Hall were Father Elkin, Sister Desmond and 27 members of the CWL. The meeting opened with the Rosary led by Father Elkin. The roll call was answered with the ladies each donating some used clothing which will be sent to the Good Shepherd Home in Edmonton. A letter was read from the Sisters of Service asking for a donation. It was moved and passed that we send them a donation. There were more dishes bought for the Parish Hall kitchen and a motion was made to buy a coffee urn. The date set for the Christmas party being held for the Parish children is Saturday, December 19th. The Mass intension for the month of December is for World Peace. The general cleaning of the church before Christmas will be on Monday, December 21st. All the parish ladies are asked to come and clean. Sister Desmond who was present at the meeting spoke on helping out the babies who are sick in the Missionary Countries of Latin America. Instead of exchanging Christmas gifts with each other the ladies each donated a dollar towards the fund that Sister Desmond has started. Father Elkin thanked the ladies for all the work they have done in the past year. Mrs. Schaut won the attendance prize. The lunch committee for the January meeting are Mrs. Jos Brauner, Mrs. Carol Brauner and Mrs. Tom Brisker.

Lunch was served by the hostesses Mrs. Anton Shitzaki, Mrs. A. Blatz and Mrs. J. McCarroll Jr.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Swoboda for the week end were their daughter Mrs. Wallis of Calgary and grandson Mr. Ronnie Wallis, wife and two children of Edmonton.

Mrs. Gunner Carlson and children of Edmonton were visitors at the F. Carlson home.

The Daysland 4H Beef Club held their second meeting on December 1 in the Dayseland School at 8 p.m. They have fourteen members this year and Eric Beddoes is the leader for the second year. It was moved that the adult committee select a date for a test before the next meeting. Mr. Cinotic Campbell spoke on a leadership conference in Edmonton which he attended for 3 days. The next meeting will be the first Tuesday in January at 8 p.m. in the Dayseland school.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Hidke and daughter have gone to Vancouver to visit Mr. Hidke's mother and sister.

The Royal Purple Ladies had their December meeting in the Dayseland Cafe on Monday evening. Lester Day went to the hall for practise and exchange gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Carigan and Mrs. Cornwall went to Edmonton on Friday.

Miss Arlene Stefanishion and Miss Janet Lanning both attending the Beauty School in Edmonton came home for the week end.

The door prize at the Ukranian Catholic Ladies bingo on Wednesday was won by Mrs. Geo. Caslish. The black-cat was won and split by Mrs. Barbara Bleaser of Breeze and Mrs. Clark of Sedgewick.

The Students Union of Dayland sponsored a box concert on Friday evening. The proceeds are going for the sick children in the Dominican Republic.

The UCW meeting was held in the Church Tuesday evening with 23 ladies present. Mrs. Schroeder conducted the business meeting then declared offices vacant and Rev. McNeil then took over for the election of officers. The following ladies were elected: President, Mrs. Robert Caudish; 1st Vice, Mrs. G. Spiller; 2nd Vice, Mrs. Gordon Graham; 3rd Vice, Mrs. Wm. Coward; Secretary, Miss Laura Graham; Treasurer, Mrs. Robert Hanrahan, who will be serving her tenth year as treasurer of the group.

The new president closed the meeting after which Mrs. A. Ginter and Mrs. H. Carroll took charge of the Christmas party which included games and a contest.

Gifts were exchanged in a novel way with everyone enjoying themselves.

Cooking Moose, Caribou, Venison

Lately in sunny Families the man of the house has been in the woods. Why not please this red-cap-ped stranger by cooking his Big Game just right?

Make It Tender

Cook tender cuts with dry heat. For example, sirloin, hash and ribs from young animals may be fried, broiled or roasted. Less tender cuts and meat from old animals may be braised or pot roasted in a covered kettle or pressure cooker with moisture added.

Wild game often lacks fat and needs to be larded. With no lean pork or skewer, insert slivers of salt pork into the lean meat, or grease well with oil or bacon fat.

To tenderize less tender meat, cook it or soak it in weak acid such as tomato juice, sour milk, diluted vinegar or lemon juice.

Use the long, least tender cuts, for stews and soups. A pressure-cooker cuts cooking time. Always use 10 pounds of pressure for meat and cook half as long as without pressure.

A Flavor To Please You

Wild game flavor increases with aging or ripening. Some permit meat to hang several weeks to ripen. Those who prefer less flavor can reduce or avoid it by the following methods.

Use, freeze, can or brine within a week or less days of kill.

Soak meat overnight in vinegar or baking soda solution, or a mixture of oil and vinegar.

Skim and remove the fat and "fell" which contain most of the "wild" flavor.

Game meats cooked with beef suet or bacon fat will take on the flavor of beef or bacon fat.

Use seasonings, spices, herbs and onions liberally.

Reindeer, caribou, moose, buffalo and deer have somewhat similar characteristics and require similar cooking methods. The cuts resemble beef or lamb cuts and may be substituted for beef or lamb in any recipe.

TRY THESE RECIPES

Roast Venison

5 lb. venison leg roast, boned and tied, plus salt, pepper, garlic salt, shortening, flour. Grease baking pan. Sprinkle meat with seasoning, rub top with shortening, sprinkle lightly all over with flour. Place in baking pan and sear at 500 F for 15 min. Reduce heat to 350F and roast 50 min. per lb. This will result in rare, juicy and tender meat. If you like it well done, roast a little longer. Increased heat to 350 F for the last hour.

Moose Pot Roast in Barbecue Sauce

4 lb. rump, round or chuck moosemeat, 1 cup tomato sauce, 1/2 cup vinegar, 2 tsp. salt, 1/4 tsp. pepper, 2 tsp. chili powder, 1/4 tsp. paprika. Brown meat thoroughly on all sides in a heavy kettle or Dutch oven. Mix together the tomato sauce, vinegar, salt and paprika. Pour over browned meat. Cover and simmer gently over low heat, until tender, about 3 hours. Turn meat several times during cooking and add a little water if necessary to keep from sticking. Makes 6 to 8 servings. If moose lacks fat, add 2 tbsp. salad oil to the tomato sauce mixture. For a thicker gravy, remove meat to a serving platter, mix 1 tbsp. of flour and 3 tbsp. of water to a smooth paste, and stir into the liquid in the kettle.

Steak Delicious

Take one package dry onion soup, pour half of package on a good sized piece of heavy foil, lay tenderized cube steak, venison or round steak on top, add rest of soup on top of steak, add 2 tsp. of water. Fold foil tightly around so juice can't leak out. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees) for 1 1/4 hours or until done. Test carefully by piercing top of foil with fork or top of sharp knife. (Diced carrot may be added inside package). Bake in 450 oven if done in a stew.

25th Anniversary For G. Riddocks

A very enjoyable evening was held in the Community Hall on November 28th with every seat filled. The hall was beautifully decorated for the 25th Wedding Anniversary of Roberta and George Riddock by Ernie Pedersen.

Roberta and George were married on November 27th, 1939 at Viking, Alberta, and have lived in Sedgewick ever since.

The evening started with a program. Mr. Tom Kenny was Master of Ceremonies. Taking part in the program was Ernie Peterson solo; Marion Coulthrie solo; Joan Petersen solo; Norma Denham duet; Myrtle Boggestead made up song about the bride and groom's life; Ruth Peacock solo; Mr. Butcher solo accompanied by Gerry Acres on his guitar; Geo. Hitz recitation; Wendy Cookson accordion and solo, Debbie Bennet solo; and Lorie Boggestead played for Community Sing just before presentations were made.

The bride and groom and their attendants Mr. and Mrs. Bill Marlow were seated at a beautifully decorated table laid with lace and a silver tea service, with lighted candles and three tier wedding cake in the center.

Miss Linda Bartley was in charge of the guest book.

The bride and groom of 25 years thanked all their relatives and friends for the many lovely gifts and also everyone present for the gift of money from the community.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. Hunter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Marlow, all of Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Stoutt, Camrose; Mr. and Mrs. L. Peacock, Mr. and Mrs. O. Huss, all of Alliance; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cox of Alliance; Mr. and Mrs. C. Acres, Amisk; Mr. and Mrs. L. Bethel, Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. Arvid Peterson, Bowden and a host of friends from Hardisty and Sedgewick.

The evening came to a pleasant end with O. Huss and band playing for a dance, which Orne and he band played for George and Roberta wedding dance 25 years ago. At the closing of the evening Mrs. Peacock and Mrs. Coulthrie each sang a solo.

Joanne Umrysh Honors Parents On Anniversary

On Saturday, November 28, Miss Joanne Umrysh entertained some 150 relatives and friends to a lovely supper and evening of dancing in the Elks Hall in honor of her parents' 25th Wedding Anniversary. The evening began with a buffet supper. Mr. Lauretta Lebsack was their in-law of the bride), acted as M.C. The table was centred by a three tiered wedding cake, decorated by Mrs. Mary-Hooch. After the toasts were proposed and replied to, moving pictures were taken of the wedding party. After the bridal dance rings were exchanged between the bride and groom which were brought in by Master Brian Hughes, nephew of the bride. For this occasion Mrs. Umrysh wore a blue two piece suit with silver trim and blue fur, topped with a blue pill box hat. Mr. and Mrs. J. Umrysh danced everyone for the lovely gifts and money. Miss Joanne Umrysh and My Best To Yes accompanied by Paul Tournangeau Orchestra, who also played for the dance. The out of town guests were from Wainwright, Vegreville, Bellevue, Blairmore, Daysland, Camrose and Hairy Hill.

KUDOS FOR THE CONFORMIST

There's a great hoo-haw these days about conformity, which has become a dirty word. Executionists and edicious social workers and such sisters warn us that one of the great threats to freedom in the modern world is conformity.

These Cassandras claim that we are turning into a nation, a world, of conformists. They threaten that the golden age of the free individual, sai, the rebel, the non-conformist, is nearing an end, and that very soon we shall all be slaves, eating what everybody else is eating, wearing what everybody else is wearing, doing what everybody else is doing, and thinking what everybody else is thinking.

I find myself resolutely calm in the face of these prophecies. In fact, I think they are pure poppycock.

In the first place, I see nothing wrong with conformity. It merely means, "compliance with established norms." In short the individual accepts the responsibilities and the restraints which society imposes on him.

The vast majority of people have always been conformists. If you happened to be a cannibal, and the piece de resistance was roast missionary, you sat down with the rest of the boys and enjoyed the preacher. You didn't say, "Gee, I don't know, fellas. Maybe we're making a mistake. Maybe we shouldn boiled him." No, sir. You conformed. You went along with crowd.

If you happened to be a Roman legionary, happily hacking up Gauls and ancient Britons, you did not step in the middle of the orgy and ask yourself, "Is this the real me, or am I just doing this because everybody else is?" If you did, you were a dead non-conformist.

Equally, if you happen to be a modern man, and your kids and wife are putting you over the jumps, you conform. You don't take a two-by-four and pound your kids into submission. You threaten to cut off their allowance.

In the second place, the deliberate, or conscious, non-conformist is a simple pain in the neck. He is the type who thinks he can't be a pedestrian unless he has a beard, who thinks he can't be a poet unless he needs a haircut badly.

Perhaps the greatest conformists in the world today are teenagers. In the desperate attempt to avoid conformity, they become the most rigid conformists in our society. They dress alike, do their hair alike, eat the same food, listen to the same music. All this, in an effort to revolt against society, to be nonconformists.

Not that there haven't been great non-conformists. Beethoven, Tolstoy, Gauguin come to mind. But they were great, not because they were non-conformists, but in spite of it. They had talent, Man. On the other hand Bach was a church organist, music teacher and had children. Shakespeare worked strictions hours, lived an exemplary life, and never missed getting his bale out regularly.

Alexander the Great, Napoleon, the Marquis de Sade, Hitler and Lee Oswald were non-conformists. You know what they contributed to the world.

Does this mean every non-conformist is a nut? Not necessarily, though probably. He is usually an unhappy chap who, for some deep-buried reason, must attract attention.

Trouble is, the people who constantly warn us of the dangers of conformity have confused the non-conformist and the individual. The former is to be pitied. He is seeking firm ground in a quagmire. The latter is to be envied. He has found a prune (himself), in the porridge of society, and he chews happily ever after.

Perhaps old Polonius put it best in Hamlet. His son is going away to college. The dad gives him a lot of advice about conformity. Then, in an unexpected and untypical flash, he adds, "This above all. To thine own self be true; thou can't not then be false to any man."

LOST IN A PRAIRIE BLIZZARD

Every winter since we left the homestead, when the snow starts piling up, and the thermometer drops several degrees below freezing, my mind turns to when the children were growing up, how they, at least, welcomed the snow.

Not so with the older folks. Right away we began to worry about some one getting lost in a blizzard, not an uncommon occurrence in the early days.

One incidence which often comes to my mind involved a "van" load of young folks, with myself as chaperone. On account of the number of teenagers in our community at that time, one outlet for entertainment was getting up concerts, bobsies, spelling bees, and a few dances, we even got up plays.

They appointed me as "Head" of these do's in holy trust these young folks for various parts. Therefore, when we heard of a play being put on by local talent in the district, not to mention the fact that I would like to see it, my chaperone capabilities along that line, compared to our very local talents.

Our 'van' was the largest one in the district, also the coziest and warmest built. So we planned to use it for the trip over to "Chesterfield School" where the play was to be held, four miles each way, cross country. My husband volunteered to drive them with our three youngest children, and gave his reasons for the two older lads to go drive our team, as these horses were used to them, and was apt to act up with strangers at the lines.

They chopped a huge arm load of wood short enough to be used in the wee heater which was at the one end of the van, cinched the harness, also the sleeps on the sleigh runners, swept and tidied up the van, in short, made everything shipshape for the trip. We were to pick up several young people on the way, so there were exactly 12 in the van when we were settled for th trip.

After an early supper we were on our way, the horses champing at their bits and prancing anxious to get started. When we started out there was no wind whatsoever, but on the prairies especially in the winter, that doesn't mean a thing, as so many of our readers can verify. Even by the time we arrived at the "Chesterville School" where the entertainment was to be held, although it was COLD, there still was no wind; the night was clear, the air cool, and it seemed one could almost reach up and pluck a handful of stars from over-head, they looked to be so close to the earth.

It was about eight o'clock when things got underway at the concert. It was a three-hour play so by the time it was over we decided it was too late to drive back to the traditional shack. One of the lads came back into the school house to announce that there was quite a blizzard raging and that we'd better get going before it got worse.

It didn't seem possible that such a drastic change in the weather could take place in so short a time. But we didn't stop to argue nor comment, and all of our load piled into the van, glad of the warmth and coolness the wee heater provided.

It wasn't very minutes, though, until we knew we had taken the advice of some of our friends, and had stayed until day-light. You old-timers who have lived on the Prairies in those early days and seen numerous blizzards raging across the plains, will know what I mean when I say the storm was so bad that the Lads could scarcely see the horses through the narrow window which was up front. All roads and trails, by this time, naturally were completely obliterated, just snow, snow, snow.

Although our horses were young and in splendid shape, plugging through drift after drift soon began to tell on them and they started to lag. The lads would step every few rods and give the horses their wind, start up, plunge through more drifts, then stop again. Some one asked the Lads if they had any idea just where we were. They had their doubts along that time for some time, but had kept their fears to themselves.

Finally, some of us suggested that, instead of opening the van door so often to get our bearings, why not one of the lads sit out on top and direct them, the same as we made our torturous way forward, just like the canoe paddles guide the canoe better that way. Even though there was a goodly supply of wood for the wee stove in the van when we started out, by this time it was getting alarmingly low. As long as we could keep warm, it was fine, but if we did run out of fuel and were still adrift out in the windy, snow-drifted prairies, well that could pose quite a serious problem.

Each time the lads would exchange places on top of the van, the one who crawled inside would be just almost frozen in fact, they both suffered from frost bite on the cheeks, fingers, and toes.

Well, we forged ahead, the poor horses, by this time, completely turned out, as much as that is, that at last the lads just gave them their heads and let them stop or plunge at will.

It was just breaking day, just light enough for one to discern the dim outlines of a building not too far distant, when the lad who was out on top, slid down, came into the van and announced "I'm sure I can see Clark's barn. Let's head for there."

Incidentally, the Chesterville school is just two miles across country from the Clark farm, but there is no doubt we travelled unnecessary miles, getting that far. There was just one stick of wood left by then, we were all merely perished with the cold, as we had been rationing the wood, the horses were practically dead on their feet and to top it all off, there were no lights in the barn, only cobwebs, cluches, fingers and toes.

At home there was naturally pacing the floor he told us afterwards, when the dog finally announced our belated arrival. Spring was at its pinnest then, as it was impossible to check on our progress. Mrs. Clark gave us a lovely hot breakfast, which fortified our strength and built up our spirits.

Knowing how worried my husband would be, we accepted the kind offer of Mr. Clark's fresh team to finish the trip home, two more miles. Thus our team could have a much needed rest, and we would be home much sooner.

Needless to say, our enthusiasm, especially in the matter of concert-country entertainment was considerably cooled off, after such a harrowing experience.

ARDA Conference

initative for introducing, carrying out and administering all ARDA projects vests with the provinces.

A further $40 million fund will be established under the new agreement, to be used for major programs where need appears greatest. The fund will be of special use in regions where low income is particularly serious, and where budgets do not permit the large inputs required for major rehabilitation and development programs for rural areas.

All governments had taken part in previous discussions which led up to the drafting of the new agreement, and the Ministers agreed that the federal-provincial conference represented a good approach to future provincial program development.

The provincial Ministers expressed satisfaction with Frank Exchamp of views under Forestry Minister Sauve's chairmanship. Mr. Sauve had said that such an exchange was the most important means of developing a workable federal-provincial program. The provincial ministers in attendance agreed that the conference discussions had led to mutual understanding which would be very beneficial

HOSPITAL AUX.

(By Mrs. Doug Kinnar)

The annual meeting of the Killam Hospital was held in the hospital Thursday, December 3rd with 11 members present.

The following slate of officers were returned: President Pre Tom, Mrs. H. Spiller; Sec., Mrs. Roy Manning; Treas., Mrs. C. Watkins; 1st Vice, Mrs. Wm. McMahon; 2nd Vice, Mrs. G. Brodie.

During the year funds were raised by a bazaar/tea and home bake auction and raffle; a stag at home banzar and catering to the Board of Trade annual dinner meeting.

We were able to assist the hospital in the erection of a TV and the purchase of a pioneer cart and garden cultivator, serving lunch at dinner day exercises, helping with patient trays, visiting the sick.

A new and popular venture this year was the canteen cart service. The ladies wish to thank all the merchants of Killam for their generous support which made possible the success of this venture.

Plans were made to assist the patients in addressing Christmas mail and to assist with the birthday party given by the sisters to each patient in the Auxiliary on the occasion of his or her birthday.

to the continuing development of the ARDA program.

A federal-provincial conference on ARDA, the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act, was held in Montreal on November 26 and 27, to negotiate the terms of an agreement which will govern the direction of the $178 million program from April 1965 to April 1975. The Ministers responsible for ARDA and their supporting staff totalled about 75.

The new ARDA agreement which was discussed is intended to replace the first ARDA General Agreement which came into effect in the autumn of 1962. Like the previous agreement, the new agreement includes provision for programs of alternate land use, soil and water conservation and rural development, all aimed at improving income levels in rural areas and improving resource development and use.

The new agreement differs from the previous one, mainly in that it makes more specific provision for the kinds of projects that can be undertaken. Sections of the new agreement also are intended to make federal-provincial ARDA programs more directly toward the many areas and regions of Canada where extremely serious problems of rural unemployment, under-employment, low income and poor opportunity exist.

During the five years of the new agreement, a maximum of $25 million will be available annually from the federal government to carry out diverse projects of rural improvement, and the provinces may provide approximately the same amount as their share of the joint federal-provincial program. The

ONE MAN WAS KILLED IN THIS TRUCK

One Man Killed In Two Truck Collision

The driver of an Alberta Plane Co. truck was killed in an accident at the junction of Highway 13 and the entrance to Edgerton last Thursday afternoon.

The accident occurred at about 1:30 p.m. between the Plane truck and a large semi-trailer which was hauling for the Alpha Milk Co. of Red Deer.

Apparently the plane truck was coming out of Sedgewick towards the highway and the semi-trailer was going west on highway 13, and they met at the corner.

In the large picture can be seen the plane truck just after it had been pulled back onto its wheels by the wrecker truck in the background. It was laying on the side towards the camera and this is the truck in which the driver was killed.

The smaller picture shows the semi-trailer in the position in which it came to a stop within about 25 feet of the restraint of Dick's Esso Service on the south side of the highway. The truck skidded through the south ditch and across the yard of the service station, barely missing the gas pumps and at the last minute swerved away from the restraint. The driver of this truck did not appear to be seriously injured although he was Driving one hand.

Natural Gas Discussed At Rosyth Meeting

A well attended meeting was held recently in the Rosyth Community Hall to explore the possibilities of getting natural gas service for both residents and town users. The following towns and districts were represented: Hughenden, Forrylth, Amisk, Lougheed, Dayniand, Czar, and rural areas south and north of Hardisty.

The meeting was chaired by Mrs. Mildred Seaman, who explained the fact-finding meeting was called to take notes. Mrs. Seaman explained the purpose of the meeting and outlined some of the spade work that she had done so far. She introduced the two main speakers, who are experts in their respective fields.

Mr. Webber, Alberta Government supervisor of Coops and Credit Unions only outlined the advantages and methods of forming natural gas Co-ops. In his opinion the cooperative system was the cheapest, and besides fifty per cent of the capital cost can be loaned from the Alberta Government at 6% per annum on the basis of a ten year mortgage.

Mr. L. Lawlor from Cross Forrault Co. of Leduc dealt with the mechanical and cost aspects of natural gas pipe lines. The cost of a gas distribution system depends on regional peculiarities, and the settlement pattern, which in turn determines pipe sizes and footage. No two sets of conditions are alike, so each case must be considered on its merits. The total number of potential customers and their locations must first be determined. In this connection all rural residents will be asked to fill out a form giving land location and the distance from furnished to adjacent roads.

To begin with every worth while endeavour must be supported by some dedicated person who is willing to give generously of their own time. In this case Jack Reade to Mrs. Mildred Eadman of Hardisty who abound the speaking services of Mr. Webber and Mr. Lawlor. While in Calgary some time ago she met with the manager of one of the large gas suppliers, who indicated that they could supply gas from the well head at ten cents per thousand cubic feet.

After a short question period, Francis Blue moved a vote of thanks to the speakers, who in turn thanked all who turned out.

Rash Of Robberies Hit Local Businesses

On Monday night a week ago at least six local business places were robbed during the night. Robbed were Muldrew Service and Sales, Service at Killam, Nass Bros. and J. & L. Service, Lougheed, and I. & R. Motors and Sedgewick Meat and Lockers, Sedgewick.

It was estimated that over $1200 was taken from Nass Bros. This was made up of cash, cheques and merchandise. The other service station did not know for sure how much was missing.

In the break-in at their slaughter house Sedgewick Meat and Lockers lost ten pigs and three beef that had been butchered that same day.

Knox Ladies Hold Annual Meeting

(By Mrs. Doug Kinnar)

The annual meeting followed a pot luck dinner in the church hall. During the worship period Rev. K. Morris gave readings from the Bible, from the books of Isaiah, Matthew, Christmas means that Jesus gave the world a soul and God a face and the word was made flesh.

The program led by Mrs. G. Morry was one of a Christmas theme. The roll call was answered by a Christmas verse and a carol in a stamped envelope.

A letter from Dr. Helen Huston told of how patients were brought to hospitals in Nepal and the need for both financial aid and prayer.

A sum of money was voted to help send boys from Hi C to Boys Parliament in Calgary during Christmas vacation.

The new church members or adherents will be contacted by each UCW member for British and Foreign Bible Society donations.

Hymnaries with music were bought for choir use.

All executive members for the present year were returned to office for 1965.

The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. F. Morris, and the roll call will be a stamped "get well" card

Daysland Students Sponsor Benefit Concert

(By Delores Deinz)

DAYSLAND — A Brad Concert was held on Friday, December 4th, 1964 sponsored by the Daysland High School students for the relief of the sick and dying children of Anua, Dominican Republic. The band was the Benny Doon Stage Elkhead Edmonton

The Benny Doon Stage Band, under the direction of Don Harvie, presented an excellent program. As an added attraction Miss Magdelen, Mr. Ken Dewar, performed several feats of magic to the delight of the audience, young and old. Miss Cheri Lamoureux was the vocalist and sang several numbers. Mr. Pettersen of the St. Paul's United Church, Edmonton, demonstrated his skill as a choir emcee and monologist with a real success.

All the entertainers were from Edmonton, and their transportation was taken care of by several members of the Surgical and Pharmaceutical Houses, free of charge. Mr. J. E. Strange, of Squibb, was in charge of arrangements in Edmonton, and also acted as Master of Ceremonies.

The Students of the Daysland High School, with the support and encouragement of their Principal, Mr. H. Carrol, did a wonderful job organizing the entertainment — making and selling the tickets, preparing the hall, providing the door prize and lunch for the entertainers, as well as paying all the expenses, so that all the money collected could be used for the relief of the sick children of the Dominican Republic.

Death On The Roads!

Last week another accidental death was added to the growing list of fatalities at what may well be termed "death corner" just south of the Village of Sedgewick. This latest fatality brings to seven the number of people who have been killed within a half mile of this corner, and to three the number who have met death at the entrance to the highway. In at least one instance the fault could possibly be at least partly attributed to icy conditions, but in all the others, human failures were presumed to be the basic cause. Governments, Municipalities, and Civic authorities are doing everything they can to cut down the death rates on our roads, yet the death rate continues to climb with the years. The increasing number of vehicles and the disregard for traffic signs and regulations are no doubt contributing factors to highway fatalities, and the motoring public cannot be urged too strongly to observe rigidly such things as traffic signs, road conditions and activities of other vehicles. It is far better to take another minute or two to get somewhere safely than to have an ambulance take you someplace you would rather not go. Better to be a live coward than a dead hero.

THIS WEEK HAS 365 DAYS

The Canada Pension Plan

There has been considerable discussion in recent months on the proposed Canada Pension Plan which has been modified three times and will soon come up for debate in the House of Commons. The following summary of the plan as it now stands is presented for your consideration.

For those who are already retired, the bill protects the real value of their old age pensions, by increasing benefits as the cost of living increases.

For people now working, it assures a new source of continuing income, stable in value, when they retire or if they become disabled and unable to work. If they die, their dependents — widows and children — are assured of a continuing income. There is also a death benefit — payable in a lump sum, whether or not the contributor has dependents — designed to meet expenses at the time of death.

The plan, which is scheduled to begin operations in January, 1966, covers almost every employee 18 and over who earns $600 or more a year. For self-employed people, contributions and benefits will be based on all self-employed earnings in excess of $600.

Federal civil servants will be covered and provincial governments will have the right to decide whether or not their employees will be covered. The largest groups not covered are the Armed Forces and the RCMP; both already have special plans providing for much earlier retirement.

A contributor's pension rights will not be reduced in any way if he - or she - changes jobs or moves to another town or province. It ensures that a pension once earned is never lost. For example, a women who stops earning when she marries, will be entitled at wage 65 to a pension calculated on exactly the same principles as the pension of a person who has had continuous earnings.

The bill establishes a permanent relationship between earnings and pension benefits — the pension will always be in step with increases in wage rates. All benefits will be adjusted annually in line with the cost of living.

The plan will apply initially to earnings up to a level of $5,000 a year. This ceiling will rise as average earnings increase.

The contributory portable pension will dovetail with the present universal old age pension and both will be available at age 65 — at reduced rates — after the plan has been in operation for five years. Higher benefits will go to persons who wait until age 70 to retire.

Benefits under the plan will amount to one-quarter of average earings, with adjustments for early retirement (between ages 65 and 70) and cost of living increases.

A man who has been earning the maximum $5,000 a year (or more) will, at age 70, receive a monthly pension of $104.17, in addition to his regular old age pension. The two together would total $179.00.

The contribution rate for an employee is 1.8% of average earnings, to be matched by the employer.

A man earning $800 a month — the present average level of earnings in Canada — would pay $4.50 a month towards the plan. A self-employed person would pay double the individual rate.

Benefits for survivors, and disabled persons, will include both a flat-rate amount and a pension based on the earnings on which contributions have been made.

Initially, the flat-rate will be $25 a month, but it will rise as the cost of living rises.

A widow will get a flat-rate of $25 a month, plus $25 for each dependent child to age 18 — or 25, if full-time education is continued — to an initial maximum of $104.17 a month.

In addition, a widow under 65 can be entitled to 37 1/2% of the retirement pension her husband would have received had he lived to the pensionable age. A widower who was dependent on his wife, because of a disability, will be entitled to the same benefits.

A disabled contributor will also get a $25 a month flat pension, plus 75% of the amount he would have received had he continued working to age 65. To be eligible after 1975, a disabled person must have worked in at least five of the last ten years before the benefit is claimed, and for a total of ten years or of one-third of the number of years since the plan started or the contributor was 18. Before 1975, a claimant must have worked for at least five years.

A widow aged 65 or over — and therefore entitled to old age security — will not receive the $25 flat-rate amount. Instead, she will receive whichever of the following is the larger: 37 1/2% of what her husband's retirement pension would have been plus all of the retirement pension which she is entitled to in her own right, or 60% of her husband's pension plus 60% of her own.

In a nutshell, the object of the bill is to provide for a nationwide system of social security for all Canadians whatever their individual circumstances, whatever moves they make, and whatever economic changes occur.

So Hal Banks contributed to political campaign funds. Canadians are collared every year to contribute to such funds. So what else is new?

★ MACDUFF REPORT

New Party Stirrings

OTTAWA— Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson is convinced that there is growing sentiment in Canada for a possible alignment of the Conservative minded political parties. He believes that such a new party would have strong appeal to the Federal voters and might sweep into power at the next general election.

A meeting was held privately recently between Mr. Thompson and at least three members of the Conservative party. It was an informal 'affair' purely for a discussion of the Canada and what the prospects were for a new party that would attract support of those who too much enamored of any party that might be made up of Liberals and the New Democratic Party.

The Conservatives at that meeting came away disillusioned. One said "It was a complete fizzle". Mr. Thompson was startled to read the next day newspaper reports that such a meeting had taken place and called on his initiative with "rankling" Conservative members of Parliament. He denied that he had initiated any such meeting.

However it became obvious that there had been a meeting. Just what the discussions were at the private conference was not disclosed. But there were suggestions that there was room in Canada for a new political organization to be called the Union Party or the Confederation Party dedicated to the preservation of Canada, the Confederation and the free enterprise system.

The membership and participation in the new party would not be restricted. It would be open to all those from various parties who were inclined to take a conservative view of things politics), that is conservative spelled with a small "c".

Mr. Thompson has made no secret that he is encouraged by the frank talk among Conservative (capital "c") members of Parliament who are fed up with their present leadership in the Commons. He stated he had not made any formal overtures to the discontent of followers of Mr. Diefenbaker. [illegible] but hinted there, seemed numbers from persons interested in a proposed new political party.

The Social Credit Leader has refused to set that Premier Ernest Manning of Alberta has openly advocated a new federal party made up of Conservative minded Canadians. Mr. Thompson agrees with Mr. Manning that there is a place for such a party. He recalls that he discussed the organization of a political party in a Winnipeg speech last August and that Premier Manning dealt with the question in a speech more recently at Red Deer. A suggestion that the new party would be the "Confederation Party".

Conservatives who went along with the suggestion that they meet with Mr. Thompson were unhappy after the meeting. They said they were not impressed with his ideas and believed they had made a mistake in meeting with the Social Credit Leader. Two of the Twins were Frank Carruthers and one was an Ontario Conservative.

Mr. Thompson was secretly pleased with all the talk and news paper reports that bloomered as a result of the meeting. He expressed the hope that it would cause Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker to take a long look at his position. He added "I hope that this will help move John Diefenbaker along so that we can get out of this impasse in the Commons".

Over the same weekend that the secret meeting took place with Mr. Thompson the Progressive Conservatives' national executive held its meeting. It decided to postpone the 1965 annual meeting until possibly October and to concentrate on party publicity. The annual meeting usually attracts about 2,000 delegates. It is generally held in January or February. But the Tories decided to postpone the meeting because they believed there would be a Spring election in 1965.

The question of the national leadership was also raised. There were reported to be some voices of concession with the existing leadership raised at the meetings behind closed doors. But this was kept under control by Dalton Camp of Toronto, National President. Certainly the organizers knew that now is not the time to fight the leadership question out in the open.

However, Mr. Camp was not able to keep under control a strong move from the party's national executive to call off the Conservative filibuster in the Commons against the adoption of a distinctive nation al flag. One report had it that Mr. Camp informed Mr. Diefenbaker that the Party Executive was two to one in favour of the Conservative M. P.'s discontinuing their fight against the single maple leaf designs proposed by the Commons all-party committee.

But Mr. Diefenbaker has voiced his determination to carry on the fight to preserve the Red Ensign. But signs were mounting in the Commons that the Conservatives might finally terminate their talk on the flag and that Prime Minister Pearson might, just might, have a new national flag by Christmas.

The question of leadership of the Conservative Party is one that keeps rising to the surface in the simmering stew of Conservative Party politicking. Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin is most frequently mentioned as a likely successor to Mr. Diefenbaker. But he has just as frequently declared that he has heard his call from Heaven, and he does not want to hear the call.

Another Westerner who is mentioned as a likely candidate for the Conservative leadership — if and when it becomes vacant — is Davie Fulton, former Justice Minister in Mr. Diefenbaker's Cabinet. But he has the disadvantage that he has no solid political base from which to aspire to the national leadership whereas Mr. Roblin is a successful provincial Conservative Premier.

But both Westerners are fully aware that it would be politically dangerous for either one to announce publicly that they were prepared to run against Mr. Diefenbaker in a leadership convention. There is still strong support in Western Canada for Mr. Diefenbaker and for any Westerner to seek to displace him as the national leader would mean that they immediately would alienate a solid core of Western Conservatives who would prefer to line up behind the present leader.

If either Mr. Roblin or Mr. Fulton can enter a race for the national Conservative leadership it would be only when Mr. Diefenbaker has announced that he was reluctantly stepping down. Those close to Mr. Diefenbaker do not see that day coming for many, many months.

The Homemaker

By Mary Lou Phillis
District Home Economist
Camrose, Alta.

With a number of parties to plan, special cookies and cakes to bake, family meals to make, December is really busy time.

At this time you are probably looking over the list shelves in your pantry, noting down all the most popular nuts for baking are peanuts, pecans, almonds, walnuts and filberts. These can be used interchangeably.

Nuts to be shelled at home will usually cost less than a cent or less per pound. Shelling nuts is a time consuming job but good, don't forget about your time. Chopped nuts or pieces are usually lower in price and are perefect for stirring into cookies or candies. The whole or halves are more expensive and are usually used for decorating.

In Shell	When Shelled
Walnuts, 1 lb.	2 cups
Almonds, 1 lb.	3 cups
Pecans, 1 lb.	2 1/4 cups
Peanuts, 1 lb.	3 cups
Filberts, 1 lb.	1 1/2 cups

Shelled Nuts	Measure
4 oz. Walnuts	1 cup
4 oz. Almonds	1 cup
3 oz. Peanuts	1 cup
7 oz. Pecans	1 1/2 cups
4 oz. Filberts	1 cup

"Dry roasted" or "dry toasted" on a package means that the nuts have been processed with no fat, oil or sugar added. A handful of ordinary peanuts (about 1lb) has 171 calories while the same amount of dry roasted or dry toasted has 84 calories. Quite a difference.

Nuts are easy to store. In the shell, they stay fresh in a cool dark place. Once ones or packages have been opened, they should be re-wrapped or recooled and stored in the refrigerator. If the nuts are put in a plastic bag, peeled and frozen, they should stay fresh and crisp for several months.

Group Gift Exchanges

At this time of year many women's organizations are planning names for gift exchanges. Generally there is a limit placed on the amount to be spent and for many it seems to be a task trying to find something worth-while within this limited amount. A new twist to this "often-used" custom might be to each bring a gift-wrapped item intend to distribute in short-ins, old or people, orphanasage, hospitals, etc.

Make a bumper of your Christmas baking to give to a needy family.

Turn cleaning-woman for a day for a community hall, church, or handicapped neighbor.

Nothing is nicer than for a group to get together one night close to Christmas to sing carols to different homes in the community.

Per your Christmas meeting.

Hospital Auxiliary Christmas Meeting

(By Dolores Dolenz)

There were 20 members and 3 guests present at our annual Hospital Auxiliary Christmas meeting.

After the minutes and treasure reports were read the President read parts of the Convention report on different fund raising ideas other hospitals have.

Mrs. Lansing the card convenor reported sending out one card. Each one of the members donated an article to go into the Hospital counter.

The same executive will be in office next year with the exception of the 1st Vice Mrs. G. Beggs who stepped out and was replaced by Mrs. F. Towsh.

Mrs. Wagner and Mrs. Karpovich are to buy gifts for my patients in the hospital over Christmas.

After our short meeting the ladies had a Christmas party with Miss Laura Graham entertaining the ladies with slides of her trip to Hawaii, New Zealand and Australia. After the slides Bingo was played followed by a delicious lunch served by the Sisters.

Wednesday evening the Sisters held a lovely Christmas dinner in the basement of the Parish Church. This was catered by the CWL. Present were Rev. Father Elkin, Rev. and Mrs. McNeil, Rev. Father Iaschi and Mrs. Lozuski of Holden, Mr. C. Hayne and the Board of Direc. Mr. and Mrs. Elliot, the Hospital Auxiliary members, the nurserators, Dr. and Mrs. Reist, Dr. Gilpin and the Holden Choir. The Holden choir led by Father Lozuski entertained everyone for the evening with their singing.

FLAG DEBATE ENDS TUESDAY

With the vote on the new Canadian Flag Tuesday, December 15th came the end of the longest debate in Canada's history. The flag will not be official for some time yet.

The name of the Bettle River MP Cliff Smallwood was not recorded in the flag vote.

GIANT RIG DRILLING IN MANITOBA

A giant oil field rig, capable of slashing a 12 1/4-in. hole thousands of feet into the earth, has moved into Canadian mining country in what is said to be one of the most unusual shaft-lining jobs ever attempted.

The rig, owned by Peter Bawden Drilling (1964), Ltd., Calgary, Alberta, is presently drilling on the property of Sherritt Gordon Mines Ltd., Lynn Lake, Manitoba. Sherritt is the third largest producer of nickel in North America and has been mining nickel and cobalt at the Lynn Lake mine since 1953.

According to Sherritt's Lynn Lake mine manager, Peter A. Cain, this experimental shaft-boring job is the first known attempt to sink a deep hole in Pre-Cambrian rock of the Canadian Shield using oil field equipment. He explained that oil does not occur in Pre-Cambrian rock, the so-called "basement complex" of rock which is thought to be at least four billion years old. Oil occurs in much younger Paleozoic rocks.

The attempt is being made, Mr. Cain said, because, if successful, the time for mine shaft-sinking will be cut substantially and the result will be a 6 ft. diameter shaft with absolutely smooth sides and not a single ounce of waste. This will improve mine ventilation considerably.

Near Wicket Orebody

The drill hole has been sited near the "N" orebody and is being drilled to a depth of 2026 feet. After completion , this will be intersected by reaming from the 1,500 and 2,000 ft. levels of the Farley shaft. It is intended to ream this drill hole to a 4 ft. diameter. The hole will serve as a ventilation shaft from the 2,000-ft. level to surface when mining of the "N" orebody commences. The bottom 1,000 of the hole will be further enlarged by conventional methods to provide a service shaft for the N orebody.

Limits of accuracy required of the hole that it is not to deviate by more than 10 feet from the vertical in the first 2,000 feet, and that in the remaining 1,600 feet it is not to deviate by more than 10 feet.

In preparation for drilling, a one-half mile road had to be cut and graded and a drilling site 80 yards by 100 yards was cleared and levelled with waste rock. Bed rock at the hole location was found 5 feet below ground level. This necessitated the excavation of an 8-ft. cut, into which the drill collar pipe was later cemented.

Drilling Progress

Drilling to date has been going well with penetration rates in the order of 10 feet per hour and hole surveys show it to be well within the required standard of accuracy.

At 8:00 a.m. October 6, the drill hole had reached a depth of 2,845 feet. At the present rate of drilling, it is estimated the hole will be completed by the middle of October. Following this, reaming operations will commence to enlarge the hole to its final 4-ft. dimension.

Central Highlites

The Chorus group met in Central on Wednesday noon and Friday noon. On Friday three boys came to the meeting. The boys are needed to take part in a Memory Lane program the chorus is sponsoring.

The Jivy Club met again on Thursday at noon, but there are still no boys in this group yet.

The King and Queen crowning at Central will be held on December 18th at the school party.

Sports

A girls hockey team is being arranged in Central and so far about 15 girls have entered the team.

Central played basketball in Central against Daysland on Wednesday evening and in Alliance on Friday evening. In the game against Daysland the Central girls won with a score of 53 to 12. The boys played a rough game but lost by a score of 21 to 56 for Daysland.

The girls played in Oralund on Saturday in the tournament but the boys didn't qualify.

BANK RATE RAISED. Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan (left) discusses the Bank of England discount rate being raised two per cent. SEEDTIME and HARVEST

Dr. F. J. Greaves, Lisa Gammon, Dan Mahoney, Ron Hamilton

SEED GERMINATION NEEDS ATTENTION

So far this fall our Seed Laboratory has completed germination tests on over 4,000 seed samples of wheat, oats, barley and flax. The samples were sent in by farmers in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Germination Results

It is quite evident from the results of our tests that early frost and poor harvesting conditions have substantially lowering the germinating capacity of many grain samples from the 1964 crop of 1964. This is particularly true of samples of seed conflax from the northern districts of Saskatchewan and Alberta. Many oat and flax samples from these districts have given a germination percentage of less than 50 per cent, and not a few samples have germinated as low as 3 per cent. On the basis of these results we strongly advise all farmers in Western Canada to have their seed grown this spring intend to use for seeding purposes in 19- a sample for germination.

Don't Guess

This year all seed testing laboratories in the Prairie Provinces are going to forced with a heavy work load. Consequently, in order to avoid delays and disappointments next spring, farmers should get their seed samples tested for germination now. Send in your seed samples early so that if you find that they are not satisfactory from the standpoint of germination you will have plenty of time to make arrangements for obtaining new seed. Grain samples containing more than 10 per cent moisture should not, however, be sent in for a germination test. Such samples are likely to contain a high percentage of dormant seeds. Furthermore, all samples sent in for a germination test should be cleaned to a "good seed" standard. Make sure that the sample you send in is truly representative of the seed lot you want tested. Remember, germination tests can be no better than the samples on which they are based.

Free Tests

Free germination tests are offered by local Agents of our member Line Elevator Companies. We cordially invite you to make full use of our seed testing services this year. Don't wait until spring. Get your seed tested now. Be ready to plant only clean, pure, high germinating seed in 1965.

Card of Thanks

Mr. and Mrs. Miles Eastly and April are happy to take this opportunity to thank all the good people who have been kind to us since April's accident last June. April is now showing good improvement, sees her cast at Christmas, and is quite good spirits. Her doctor is optimistic they will start to get her on her feet the latter part of January or early February. Again for all your prayers, acts of kindness and for your concern, we thank you.

I would like to express thanks to Dr. MacQuarrie, Sisters, nurses and entire staff of Killam hospital for their kindness and care during my recent stay in hospital. I would like to attend a special thank you tea and Mrs. Glen Hunt, Secretary at Driebergen, Holland, at the invitation of the President of the United Bible Societies, the Most Rev. F. D. Coggan, Archbishop of York, on the occasion of the 150th anniversary of the Netherlands Bible Society.

Churches and Bible Societies from all continents were represented, the 100 participants coming from 50 nations. Nationals from Asia, Africa and Latin America formed half of that number. Three were from Canada.

Many suggestions were put forward by these Church leaders to help in facing up to the immense challenge of a world in which rapidly increasing populations and rising levels of literacy dwarf even the great achievement of the Bible Societies in the past. It was recognized that the basic need for meeting the challenge is "a closer relationship between Churches and Bible Societies in the work of the Societies."

"As cheerwhen we confess that we have often failed to accept as we should the opportunity for the work of making the Bible available to all men in a language and form that they possess and understand" . . . "The time has come for all Christians to accept this responsibility with much more excitement than they have yet shown."

These are two of the key sentences of the Declaration issued by the Conference of World Church Leaders which met recently at Driebergen, Holland, at the invitation of the President of the United Bible Societies, the Most Rev. F. D. Coggan, Archbishop of York, on the occasion of the 150th anniversary of the Netherlands Bible Society.

WHEAT OUTLOOK

A return to large Canadian wheat surpluses with their attendant delivery and storage problems seems inevitable, according to O. G. Bratvold, Supervisor of Alberta's Crop Improvement Service.

Mr. Bratvold reports that world wheat supplies are up considerably from a year ago. This is due to record production in many of the main wheat producing countries.

In view of this situation Canada can expect a reduction in her wheat exports during the 1964-65 crop year. Record exports during 1963-64 were due to wheat sales to Russia and China which could be considered windfalls. In the face of an increased world supply they are unlikely to be repeated.

Mr. Bratvold says delivery problems are not a real factor in determining export movement. Rather the surplus has built up. Price on the other hand, if free of control tends to reflect an anticipated surplus. In Canada, however, the price of wheat to farmers is subject to considerable control.

The fact that the price of wheat remains high in relation to other crops makes it in a very favorable position. Under such circumstances wheat acreages are likely to remain high.

POST OFFICE TO GIVE WICKET SERVICE ON SUN.

Sunday, December 20th is expected to be the peak period for incoming mail and special truck service will arrive from Edmonton on that day. Extra wicket service will be given from 12 noon till 2 p.m. for the delivery of letters and parcels only. All patrons of the Sedgewick Post Office are urged to take advantage of this extra service. The box lobby will remain open until 6:00 p.m. on this day.

Starting Monday, December 21st, boxes will be placed in the Lobby clearly marked "LOCAL & CARDS" and "OUT OF TOWN &CARDS". Please use these boxes, and do not at any time drop cards in the regular letter drops.

Your return address, including box number should be placed on all mail.

Volunteers Control Fire At Johnsons Grocery

(Mrs. Marie Butler)

Fire broke out in the coal shed and warehouse of Mel Johnson's store Wednesday evening around 8:30. A volunteer fire brigade from Stroma with the help of Daysland carriers, who were in Stroma curling in the hospital, kept the fire under control and from spreading into the store. Damage was confined to the coal shed and warehouse. It was thought to be caused by a short circuit.

Mrs. A. McDougall spent last week end with her daughter and son-in-law, the Carl Abbiatenos, at Camrose. She also visited her grandson and his new bride, Mr. and Mrs. Hughie McDougall.

Mrs. Gertie Watkins and Rodney and Mrs. Marie Butler visited Mrs. Verne Beauchard and family at Killam last Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Rosebaugh and sons of Edmonton visited Mr. and Mrs. Lee. Dietrich last week end. Mr. Dietrich is now home after spending a few days in Killam hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Stark and sons of Sherwood Park spent the week end with the J. Beckers. Linda Robbins accompanied them and spent the week end at home.

Mrs. Jane Rewa visited Mrs. M. George at Killam last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ransom of Kinsley were visitors at the Dave Crampton home on Friday.

The Stroma CGIT postponed the ice Carnival which was to be held Saturday, Dec. 12th until after Christmas. This was due to the extreme cold weather. Anyone having tickets are asked to hold them until a later date is announced.

FARMER DIES

Mrs. Emma Nicholas beloved wife of Leonard Nicholas passed away on Tuesday, November 24 at the age of 53 years after a very short illness. WINTER WIND COULD BLOW SOME GOOD

Some time ago I sent the following article to the "Free Press Weekly" and was rather pleased that they thought it good enough to print.

After reading it over again I thought it really a timely subject therefore, I am sending it on to this paper hoping that if you have read it previously you may be interested to read it again.

I might add that it is strictly original as please pardon any literary mistakes which might occur through-out the piece.

Who of us has not heard that age-old, dog-eared, rugged-at-the edges saying "it's an ill wind that blows no one good"? When I first saw the ground white with snow this winter, I just wondered what GOOD anyone could see in that, especially we older folks.

However, unless we are crippled or blind, there are numerous diversion of activities close at hand which can fill in the days and long evenings of the winter shead. There is little excuse to be bored.

As I said, unless our hands or fingers are so crippled that we can not hold a needle or knitting needle, crochet hook or rug-punch, just think of the dozens of useful articles you can create, if not for yourself, then for friends.

Then, there are those letters which we kept putting off writing during the summer as the weather was too nice to stay indoors. Three long winter evenings are just the ideal time to write them.

So many times during the past summer you would look speculatively at those books, thinking you might start reading one, but decided it was too hot to read, so gave it up. NOW is the best time to get caught up. What sounds more alluring than a cosy chair, in a comfortably warm room, a bowl of apples, maybe, or a dish of popcorn to munch on, and an interesting book, even if the wind is howling and there is a blizzard raging.

On the sewer days, there are the 'shut-ins' who would welcome a visit from you. A friendly chat, perhaps a gift of a glass of homemade jelly, a book, or some magazines, and you have made some less fortunate person happy. So, my friend, maybe that "ill wind" could blow some good after all. Let's try it.

Daysland News

(Thelma Heinz)

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Ron Hanrahan on the arrival of a new baby boy.

A bit of Lions' news for this week. Mr. Bob Hanrahan on behalf of the North Star Hockey Club was present at the Lions meeting Wednesday evening. He was given a loan to be taken back to the Hockey Club for financial assistance.

The Lions Club has again paid the Arena $500 which is to pay for skating tickets for children 16 and under.

Those attending the Vermilion Charter night Friday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Rosenberg, Mr. and Mrs. J. Koski, Mr. and Mrs. S. Lee and Dr. Gibson.

The CWL had a Christmas party for the Parish children on Saturday, December 12th. Sister Desmond showed a film to the children which was interrupted by Santa Claus. The children sang a couple of songs for Santa and then each were given a bag of treats.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. L. Kostek on the arrival of their baby girl.

The basketball game at Killam on December 2 was a double win with the Daysland girls scoring 16 and Killam 8. The Daysland boys scored 40 and Killam 7.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Dalum went to Edmonton on Monday while there they delivered some used clothing to the Good Shepard Home which was donated by the OWL.

How Long Did It Take To Court Your Wife?

Did you just happen to see her, walk up to her, ask her to marry you and call in the minister . . . right on the spot—

PERHAPS NOT . . . it probably took a lot of calls, and trips, movies, flowers, candies, and a lot of putting-your-best-foot forward tactics. You had to "sell" yourself. She had to know all about you!

IT'S THE SAME WITH ADVERTISING of time . . . you've got to win their confidence . . . you can't "woo" customers with one Ad . . . you've got to "Call on Them" over a period and be convincing.

CONSISTANT ADVERTISING wins the customers if it's truthful, if it gives helpful information, if it saves shopping steps, if it is backed up with intelligent, courteous and honest values.

SOME MYTHS ABOUT CANADA

Do you know what he complained of? The fact that Europeans, who don't have any snow, to speak of, have no cuffs on their trousers, while Canadians, who wade through the stuff for five months, have cuffs.

He doesn't realize that we like it that way, that we like to walk in to somebody's house, stamp our boots off on their hallway, and bash about four pounds of snow out of our cuffs onto their fresh waxed hardwood floors. Keeps them from getting house-proud.

Do you know what he talked about? Not the impressive view from the Eiffel Tower, but the annual number of suicides who had leaped from it. Not the glories of the Louvre, but the horrors of Paris traffic.

He spoke with rapture about his meals in Paris, with scorn about Canadian cooking. And left never a memory of the latter, even though there wasn't a single meal or a single confined among it, on his plate.

He scoffed at Canadian's on amusement with money and status symbols. And raised interminably about how Revere, his new hi-fi, his camera, his tape recorder, and how much he saved on them.

As far as I'm concerned, I think I'll just let Mr Hutchison and the rest of Canada go on living in their dream world, while I go on being a dour, independent, cranky Canadian, without personality, color or culture. Who needs it."

PETITION OF PROTEST. Paul Emile Cardinal Leger of Montreal, centre, and Albert Gregoire Cardinal Meyer of Chicago, right, are received in audience by Pope Paul in Vatican City. They, with Joseph Elmer Cardinal Ritter of St. Louis, took a petition of protest to the Pope when conciliar council fathers blocked a vote on religious liberty. The religious liberty declaration has been shelved until at least 1966.

St. John's Anglican W. A. Report

The Annual meeting of the WA of St. John's Anglican Church was held in the Rectory on Tuesday, 1st at 8 p.m. for WA members and other lady members of the church. The officers' were read and approved, roll call taken, and the report of the treasurer presented.

A donation to the Flagstaff Lodge for Christmas treats for the Lodge was passed, also a large sum to be given on the vestry to help meet expenses as they see fit.

Two Christmas trees and decorations are to be purchased. The WA also authorized Capt. Bloom to get wood and nails so that the benches may be covered in time for Christmas and that the benches are to be cleaned.

Those attending over the choir to Capt. Bloom for the election of officers Mrs. Chapman thanked the members for their help and co-operation and she said she had enjoyed the work.

Appreciation of the faithful work of Mrs. Chapman was expressed by the members.

Capt. Bloom took the chair and also thanked the members for their co-operation. He said the summer was often worked on the back ground but they are coming to take a more and more prominent part in the life of the church. He quoted portions of a letter written by Mrs Cuming, Secretary of the Dominion WA which said in part that members of WA are questioning how we can better fulfil our purpose to unite women in fellowship for Christ's cause and service.

The letter went to all Anglican clergy in Canada as the outcome of the Bonn-in Annual meeting

One of those forms has been the movement of large numbers of people from the farms into the cities. Mr. Babey wishes to find out what he can about the effects all those forces are having on at least this one rural community.

Mr Babey hopes to be able to pass along to Lodges when the subject comes up for discussion at the Annual F.U.A. Convention being held in Edmonton Dec. 7 to 11. Out of this discussion will likely come at least an interim F.U.A. policy toward Hutterites.

For the past two weeks, and continuing through the first week of December, a series of F.U.A. meetings throughout the province have been discussing a new Alberta farm organization proposal.

These workshop meetings are to provide an opportunity for F.U.A. Convention delegates and farmers living in each of the rural municipalities or counties to get to know more about the new farm organization idea. It will be discussed at the F.U.A. Convention and delegates will be asked whether they favor taking further steps to put proposals into action.

The new farm organization idea came into being through a study carried out in 1962 by a Committee of the Alberta Federation of Agriculture. Aim of the study was to look at the present Farm organizations serving Alberta agriculture, to see if these are doing the job expected of them.

The committee recommendations stressed that more emphasis should be placed on the efforts of local people working in the rural community. The report called for the setting up of "County Organizations" which would send representatives to a provincial body. The new county organizations would then combine the efforts of the many farm cooperatives and municipal bodies in the area, plus at the community level. Each of those "county" organizations would be charged with carrying out farm organization policy as developed by an executive of county organization representatives.

If farmers in Alberta adopt this plan, it would mean setting up a new kind of agricultural representation. If successful, it could set a pattern for farmers across Canada.

FUA Newsletter

All the dust being kicked up in rural Alberta these days about Hutterite Colony expansion, and fact that two resolutions stemming from farmer fears of rural community life are being discussed at the setting up of new colonies, have convinced FUA President Paul Babey that he will have to take time off from his crowded schedule to get first hand information on the situation.

Mr. Babey intends to spend some time getting to know Hutterites, and to hear their side of the story. On Friday, November 27, he visited a colony near Modern Mr. Babey wants to see how the colony fits into the community where it is located. And he wants to see something of the life that the Hutterite brethern have on their Alberta commune. This will be his first visit to a Hutterite Colony.

It is also Mr. Babey's intention to meet with farmers living near the Colony, to get opinions from these farmers on just what effect the colony has had on the overall community.

The transition period which agriculture is going trough in Alberta today has meant that many rural communities have been disrupted by other forces than Hutterites.

THIS BUSINESS OF FARMING — 1965

Farm families in the 3 prairie provinces will be able to bring 25 provincial, federal and university agricultural specialists into their living rooms by tuning in to their regional television short course, "This Business of Farming".

The short course, produced by the CBC in co-operation with the Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba Departments of Agriculture, will be broadcast over television stations and their satellites on the CBC TV Network from 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., Monday to Friday, January 4 to 8.

"This Business of Farming" will feature the specialists and use of farm machinery, forage and silage production and family farm management. More farm operators will be interested to learn that this makes their television debut in this series than the previous "colocorns". The role of the 'farmer stars' will vary from week to week but there will be more lengthy comments on their specialties. Programme items have been filmed on farms so that viewers can have a better look at operations on farms in the area and by their colleagues across the west

While the farm management section of the programme is designed for Thursday and Friday, the assemblies of farming will be woven into all five series. According to Lionel Moore, host for "This Business of Farming", the farm management section will have broad appeal to all farmers as many of the topics are already applying these principles.

On Thursday, Manitoba Department of Agriculture economists will discuss the goals every farm family should consider, while economists from the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture and the University of Saskatoon will consider farm credit and ways of improving farm income.

The Friday session will feature Alberta's Farm Economics Director Dr. Glen Purnell, who will introduce the program and summarize the entire series. Use of farm management principles by farmers will be discussed by Farm Management Supervisor A. B. Jones. Monte Mastaguinet, Specialist Miss Pat Mac-Cleish will outlines how these principles can apply to managing the farm home.

In 1964 a total of 135,000 adults on farms in the three prairie provinces watched all or part of "This Business of Farming". Since last year's show was the first to be held east over the whole prairie region, the number of viewers for the 1965 series is expected to be considerably higher.

The Gestetner has arrived and is already in use. We are proud of the bulletins which are distributed each Sunday morning.

There has been a marked improvement in attendance at the regular Wednesday night prayer service. If it is impossible to attend, please pray at home. If you are too busy to pray, you are busier than you ought to be.

A number of ladies dropped in on Mrs. Grymaloski on Friday afternoon to help celebrate her birthday.

The Pastor ministered at the Sunday services. His topics were "The Word Became Flesh" and "Faith". Rejoicing the Sunday evening sermonette, Miss Edith Abbott dramatized a recitation which included the Christmas story.

C — stands for children.
O — stands for old people.
M — stands for middle-aged.
E — stands for everybody.
COME to our annual Christmas program next Sunday night.

A group from the church accompanied Mr. Grymaloski to the Auxiliary Hospital s adsunday afternoon. The special musical numbers were appreciated, with the Pastor presenting a most appropriate message.

Sedgewick UCW
Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Sedgewick UCW was held in the Church hall on Dec. 1st with 14 members present. Mrs. W. Hallum was in charge of the Devotional. Mrs. Lewis read a very interesting letter from the Winkaris, who are in India, working for the Student Christian movement. Mrs. Gascoyne read three letters from our Korean foster child, who appears to be doing well. The annual report of our organization was given, and showed that we have been busy throughout the past year. After the business portion of the meeting, Mrs. S. Gallatly took over the chair to receive nominations for officers for the coming year. Elected were: President Mrs. W. Hallum, 1st Vice Mrs. A. McCracken, 2nd Vice Mrs. E. Knehl, Treasurer Mrs. L. Kneeland, Secretary Mrs. D. McIlveen. At the close of the meeting lunch was served.

New A.G.T. Building Planned At Daysland

The regular monthly meeting of the Town Council was held in the town office on Dec. 7th at 7:30. Four councillors were present with Mayor Price presiding.

The minutes of previous meeting were read and adopted; also the financial statement for the month of November.

The secretary reported that a box of green markers which had been misplaced were found by Miss Violet Landers and brought to the town office, at the original intention when the markers were bought had been to sell a marker to everyone buying a plot in the cemetery. A motion was made that each cemetery lot be sold for $12.00 and a marker be given with each lot.

Correspondence

Alberta Gov't. Telephones submitted a plan of a new telephone office for Daysland to be constructed on Lots 16 and 16, Block 6, plan LV if approval given by council. A motion was made that Council agrees in general an option to purchase these lots to construct the office. The Secretary to forward option to purchase agreements and application of building permits to AGT for their signature and request payment of $400.00 for the lots and $5.00 for bldg. permit.

Bylaw 6184 dealing with the reduction of sewer service charges for the Daysland Hotel had been returned from the local authorities Board requesting that Council give the Bylaw third reading and return a copy to them. They had granted a $60 per month rate for the hotel. Bylaw was moved for third time by motion it was passed unanimously.

Whereas the Town had opportunity to lease property that had been advertised for tax sale but not sold at the sale They therefore resolved to pass a bylaw 6185, namely lot 18, block 25 plan 8235 ET for the purpose of leasing this property.

Central parking on Main Street was discussed at some length, with cars and trucks being longer to by town before centre parking is becoming a bigger hazard every year. because of the limited space left for a driving lane. Whereas according to traffic bylaw 640 no centre parking is allowed on main street, therefore we enforce the said bylaw disallowing centre parking on main street in Daysland because of safety reasons. This to become effective as of January 1st 1965. Notice to this effect to be advertised both in the Community Press and the Camrose Canadian.

Battle River League First Game Reports

The Battle River Hockey League started their schedule last week but due to the extreme weather several games were called off.

Of the games played only two reports have been sent into the Press and both these are games involving the Killam Indians.

On Monday, Dec. 14 the Indians were at Walsright for their opener of the new season and came home the winners by a close score of 3-2. This first game of the season was fast and clean, and featured a very good brand of officiating. The old boys were shown up in this game as all of Killams scoring was done by the younger players. Grant, Bowron and Penke each got a goal, while assists went to Gair, and McLeroen. Refereeing was handled by Dutchy Van Deuland and Carly Berlant of Edmonton.

Also on this first night of the schedule we understand that Irma were hosts to Daysland and won by a score of 3-2.

At Daysland on Saturday night, December 19th, the Daysland team played host to the Killam Indians in what proved to be a very close checking game. The Indians won this one 6-2 but an especially strong Daysland attack was only stopped by extremely good goal tending by Killam goalie Ev. Mayne.

Scorers in this game were Enners and Evans, one each for Daysland, Christensen, Gair, Roenbaugh and Berth for Killam.

Hardisty UCW Xmas Party

A short business meeting preceded a Christmas Social when the UCW of St. Paul's, Hardisty, met on December 8, in the Church with Mrs. Mildred Redman presiding. 35 ladies were in attendance. The Devotional Period was led by Mrs. Barbara Hays, assisted by Mrs. E. Edwards. It was reported that the committee to choose carpet for the sanctuary met and selected the material. Plans are now underway to purchase and install the carpet.

The Christmas Tea and Bazaar had been very successful this year and the group has a healthy bank balance on hand it was decided to donate to the "Over and Above Gift" Fund of the UCW with the request that our gift be used for a project outside our own country.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, a social hour of singing, contests and an exchange of gifts took place, with a boisterous lunch bringing proceedings to a close.

ANOTHER YEAR DRAWS TO A CLOSE

THIS has been a busy year, it seems, for everyone, and the fact that it has is indicated in the economy of the nation. Production is at the highest level ever, and the gross national product is up over six percent from 1963. Local business has maintained a fairly even keel, and in spite of a reduction in farm grain yields, the income of farmers has remained stable. All in all it has been a good year.

This issue of the Community Press will be the final one for 1964. We have been busy all year ,and feel we need a few days to catch up on odds and ends, to get away in the new year refreshed and eager.

We take this opportunity to express our appreciation to our many advertisers and readers; to our reporters and to all those who have made the year an entertaining and interesting one. We wish you all a very joyous festive season, with the added hope that 1965 may be a purposeful one for each one of you.

NOW BRING OUR CONSTITUTION HOME

At long last, after several months of sometimes senseless bickering in the Commons, Canada has a flag she can call her own. Whether we all agree with the final selection is rather beside the point, now that the decision has been made, and all Canadians worthy of the name will rally around the new flag. It is our opinion that no more suitable symbol than the Maple Leaf could have been devised to represent this great land of ours, and those who say they will not recognize this Canadian Flag, are letting their resentment take the place of their better judgement. In so failing to acknowledge Canada's flag they are contributing to the disunity which we are endeavoring to eliminate from our national life. The Maple Leaf design is one which no one can really take exception to in itself; but as some may have lost something they may have held dear is not a good reason to condemn something new. We have heard many rumors, some perhaps not based on fact, that certain M.P.'s have declared they will not recognize the Maple Leaf flag. If true of any M.P.'s, in the slightest degree, then that member is not worthy to remain in office. Now that the issue has been finally settled, the same rule applies to any Canadian citizen. For a long time this writer has wanted a distinctive Canadian Flag. The one we have is not the one I would have chosen, but now that we have it, and by golly we have, it becomes my flag as a Canadian citizen. In fact I have my order in for one, and it will be flown with pride, and with gratitude to the country that has done so much for me.

The only thing that now remains to be done is to bring home the Canadian Constitution, then we may all celebrate Canada's coming of age. It will be nice to travel in foreign lands and proudly proclaim, "I am a Canadian"

WHO'S GOT THE BUTTON

BUTTON WHO'S GOT THE BUTTON

Time means nothing, apparently, to the various departments of Government. It seems to take forever to get anything processed by governmental officials, and it matters little how big a rush the applicant is in or how important it may be to get things completed. Civil servants are increasing in numbers at an alarming rate and yet it takes longer than ever to get through to the proper authorities. However we may take heart in the knowledge that this is common throughout most of the world, and that we in Canada are not suffering to any greater degree than in other areas. A recent news release from England relates the alarm of a Member of Parliament at the time consumed. In designing a pair of pants for the Army, a committee must be formed to also design a button for said trousers. The committee debates a design, accepts or rejects and finally accepts. In all it takes seven years to get the button sewn on the pants. We should not be too alarmed at this. Married men have been trying for centuries to get the same thing done, with little results as yet.

ANOTHER RASH OF ROBBERIES

Periodically, it seems, there is a rash of robberies in the local area involving the breaking and entering of business firms. It would also appear to be a fact that at this time of year visits from these nocturnal invaders is more frequent than at any other time of the year. The reason of course is quite obvious. Stocks of merchandise are at the peak level and the volume of business at its highest; a good time for thieves. There is little that can be done to put merchandise out of reach of these people, but there is no real need to leave large sums of money easily available. It would be the better part of wisdom to conceal the day's receipts or take it home with you at night, and leave cash registers open. Thieves are after goods and money. They are not likely to smash a cash register if it's open, unless they are just plain angry at failure. A good burglar alarm system or a good dog have staved off many robberies, and the day may not be too far distant when such safety precautions may become an absolute necessity, or an obligation by law.

ALL HAVE EQUAL OPPORTUNITY!

Easy to believe is the statement of Mr. Justice Ouiment before the Canadian Club of Hamilton. He said that recent uprising in Quebec, and especially in the Montreal area were counselled, procured or incited by French-speaking aliens. It is very possible that professional agitators could put to use in Quebec the "agonizing phenomenon of brutality and violence prevalent among modern youth."

Justice Ouimet said that business must provide equal opportunity for young French-speaking Canadians as well as for all others. He remarked that all should support Mr. Lesage's bid to make the status of the French-speaking Canadian equal in all respects to that of the English-speaking Canadian. This strange statement is at variance with fact. All Canadians have equal opportunities and there is no evidence that there is any discrimination against French-speaking Canadians. In business the bilingual Canadian has a greater opportunity than the one who has only one language. The Canadian who speaks only French obviously will not be of much use in contact with customers who speak only English, and vice versa.

SUGAR AND SPICE
by Bill Smiley

SOCIAL, BUT NOT SOCIABLE!

There is little use in complaining about the rigors of putting up my tree, the horrors of trying to find a present for my wife, the abyss of debt into which I am plunging. I know how much sympathy I'd get. We've all in is same boat.

But, with the holiday season coming up, accompanied by its usual parties, I thought it might be a good time for your friendly old uncle Bill to pause and examine that phenomenon of the second half of the 20th century — social drinking.

Social Drinking is one of these beautifully vague terms we're so fond of these days. They cover a multitude of sins, and yet, somehow, they sound respectable.

It's like 'Neurotic'. The lady who is nutty as a fruitcake will inform you with some pride, "I'm terribly neurotic, you know." Fifty years ago, she wouldn't have announced so freely that she was batty.

Social Drinking is similar. The fellow who is so hung-over the blood is running out his eyes, will tell you, "I'm strictly a Social Drinker."

Everytime I hear the term Social Drinking, I utter a couple of short, barking laughs. Social Drinking is just an excuse for getting plastered in public, instead of quietly and decently at home, or out behind the barn.

Social Drinking and the Cocktail Party go hand in hand. A Cocktail Party is any gathering of Social Drinkers, sloshing free liquor into empty stomachs at a rate which suggests prohibition is about to become law within the hour. They make a gesture toward the well-rounded end of it by eating a cracker, with a dead sardine on it, with every fifth drink.

Don't confuse sociable drinking with Social Drinking. Sociable drinking is a quiet glass with an old friend, by the fire; a couple of bottles of cold beer, out fishing; a hot noggin, in company, after a winter's day outside.

But Social Drinking is a horse of a different hue. Ask the housewife who comes down in the morning after a Cocktail Party, head thumping like a bongo, and is confronted by the following: a eight-cube burn on her new coffee-table; a puree of winkey and ashes on her white linen tablecloth; a purple splotch on her bedroom carpet; 24 dirty glasses; a lady's handbag; a man's hat; 14 empty cigarette packages; and her husband snoring on the chesterfield.

Ask the chap who drops in for a drink - just one - before facing the traffic and spars, after work. He gets talking with the boys, arrives home an hour late. He's a little high-spirited, but scarcely a roaring drunk. Know what he gets for dinner?

Cold shoulder and hot tongue. Yet all he was doing was a little Social Drinking.

Actually, Social Drinking was the, as were so many other things, before women got into the act.

But then woman started boozing and things have gone from bad to hopeless. Mixed drinking developed. And the only thing worse than mixed drinking is mixing your drinks.

Social Drinking has all the potential destructive power of The Bomb. It leads to broken promises, broken dishes, broken noses, and broken homes.

The only good thing about it, and the only reason it is so popular, is that it enables one to put up with all the bores and bosses, the knuckleheads and knotheads, the dopes and dullards, with which society seems to be infested nowdays (except for the sparkling people like you and me).

Now, I hope I haven't thrown a wet blanket on your plans for a wet holiday season. But just to end while little homily, may I remind you of the lines written in eleventeen seventy-seven by that great Welsh poet, Hugh Dunnit:

If you get stinking
From drinking,
It isn't Social;
It's sinocial.

THE VACANCY

Oh-Bungalow of red, so often I've said,
You do look lonesome to-day;
With tears your eyes shine, or are they in mine,
For our dear friends who have moved far away.
The windows they stare, with a sad sort of stare,
There's no curtains to toss them down;
And no tracks any more, leading to the back door,
And you in the heart of a town.
I never knock at the door, as I did once before,
For there's no one to say "Come in";
With a how do you do, I've been looking for you,
Good Gosh, How lonesome I've been.
I often look for a car on the drive-way so far,
But never a one comes in sight;
Well I'm sure if one did, and there was just one kid,
Then we'd have new neighbors alright.
Oh-Vacant house, as meek as a mouse,
Why do you have to be that way;
We don't like such style, no not by a mile,
Yes we really need new neighbors to-day.
Oh Bungalow of red, so often I've said,
I wish you were peopled again,
Now I have a hunch, we need the same jolly bunch,
Your loneliness fills me with pain.

MORE HOLIDAY HELPS

Oh! Half the fun of Christmas Is to just anticipate That luscious Christmas dinner. And mind you . . . don't be late!

The very mention of Christmas thoughts of warm country kitchens and good things to eat. Christmas is a family time. The guests you desire in your home on this special day may be part of the family, yet they deserve all the etiquette of entertaining that you would extend to the honest well.

One word to the hostess — plan ahead. Plan a delicious meal that is simple to serve and yet different enough to boost your hostess rating. Try to choose foods that can be prepared ahead of time — a week ahead with use of your freezer, the day before, the morning of, or at least an hour before the party. Even the gravy should be made half an hour ahead and kept warm. It is important that you remain calm, cool, and collected when your guests arrive. So ready to greet them at the door, with no last minute dashing around in the kitchen. Take into account your guests' food likes and dislikes in menu planning. Then make sure every plate will have contrast in texture, color and flavor. Combine but with cold foods too at your meal (but not on the same plate).

Fehl in whipped cream. Chill for 24 hours.

Don't overe it on the dessert — keep it light and simple. It is most discouraging for those counting their calories to be confronted with a huge variety of irresistible sweets.

BUYING & COOKING TURKEY

Turkey is the traditional Christmas dish in our country. When purchasing fresh turkeys allow a young full fleshed bird with straight breast and short body. The skin should be clean and waxy with no discolorations. There should be streaks of fat under the skin on breast, legs, thighs and back.

Frozen turkeys should be frozen hard when purchased. The giblet bird should be refrigerated and then cooked within 24 hours. Allow five hours per pound if thawing poultry in the refrigerator or 3-4 hours if thawing in plastic cooler. For speedier thawing, cover bird in the unopened freezer bag with cold water. In this case, allow 1 hour per pound to thaw. Once thawed puncture a few holes in the bottom of the bag so moisture will drain off.

Don't purchase a huge turkey that will last forever. Allow 1/2 to 3/4 pound of turkey with bones per serving. If you have any left overs, serve them only one day in a pie, the rest (cut off the bones) to be casserole, salad or a la king. Freeze eaten at a time when it will be more appreciated. The stuffing should be packaged and frozen separately.

Here are a few hints on how to cook your turkey just right. Correct roasting is slow cooking to assure less shrinkage and less loss of juice and flavor. A whole drawn turkey weighing 12 - 16 pounds will take approximately 5-6 hours at 325F; 16-20 pounds, 6½ 7 1/2 hours; and 24 pounds, 7 1/2 to 9 hours. The drumstick should move freely in its socket when turkey is done.

To prevent drying, cover with a test of aluminum foil (dull side out). Remove the foil the last 2-4 of an hour of cooking, so your

Sixth Basketball Title For Daysland Dynamos Team

The Dayaland Dynamos won the Battle River Basketball League championship for the sixth consecutive year by defeating the Sedgewick boys 91 to 52 on Wednesday, Dec. 9th. The Daysland boys have won this trophy ever since the league was formed in 1958. Daysland ended the 1964-65 season with a record of five wins and one loss for a total of ten points. Their offensive total equalled 343 points, the highest in the league, while the total points scored against them amounted to 209 points, the lowest in the league.

On Saturday, Dec. 12 Daysland shooted the bench strength, rebounding and shooting that was the league by also winning the tournament championship. Daysland qualified for the tournament by defeating Forestburg on Friday night and on Saturday they out-played Alliance 36 to 20 and Galahad 66 to 33, to win the trophy. The trophy has only been in circulation for four years but during these four years it has resided in Daysland's trophy case.

We can look forward, in February to seeing the Daysland boys representing the BRBL in the Provincial playoffs and we are assured of a good showing.

Daysland Oldtimers Hold Xmas Party

(By Delores Dubina)

The Daysland Oldtimers and their families held their Christmas party in the Legion Hall Friday, December 18th. A social evening of games, songs, skits and dancing was enjoyed. During the evening Santa arrived with a Christmas bag of treats for the children. A delicious lunch was served at midnight.

Wednesday, December 9th the Daysland teams went to Sedgwick for their second last game of the season. The Daysland Dynamos defeated the Central High Boys by a score of 91-52. Larry Blain, captain of the Dynamos, scored the most points in this game which was 31. The Dynamo's second best scorer was Dennis Van who scored 26 points, and Allen VanSlyke was 3rd with 22 points.

The Daysland Darls were beaten by the Central High girls by a score of 53-15.

The Daysland Dynamos and the Daysland Darls played the final game of the basketball season on Friday, December 18th in Daysland. The visiting team came from Provost. This game was an important one because it meant that the winning teams would play in the semi-finals on Saturday, December 19th. Due to the Dynamo's winning score of 61-42 they played in the semi-finals. The Forestburg Girls also played in the semi-finals after defeating the Darls by a score of 29-10.

Larry Blain, captain of the Daysland Dynamos, is the top scorer in the Battle River Basketball League. Larry has made a total of 151 points in the basketball games of the season.

The next best scorer in the BRBL was Harold Rands of Alliance. His total was 97. Another Dynamo, Van, stood in third place with a total number of 84 points.

Mr. Yockey, one of the Daysland teachers left on Friday for Denver, Colorado for the Christmas holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerhart attended a Christmas banquet in Camrose Friday evening.

Merry Christmas to all my readers.

Hospital Staff Entertained

KILLAM — Some 175 staff members of the Killam Hospital Complex and their invited guests were royally entertained by the Sisters and Doctors of the General Hospital on Thursday night of last week, at the annual Christmas party.

To commence the evening the guests, served by the Sisters with the assistance of a smorgasbord table, sat down to a meal designed to delight the stomach of a gourmet.

Almost before the gourmands had laid aside knife and fork, a "home-brew" program was under way, with carol singing. Following this the Gala in Green gave a heartrending rendition of their daily activities in the rooms and corridors. A piano solo by Vivian Grantick was followed by the official adoption of the "New Flag For Killam," with every design on it but the old village pump. This was ably put on by staff members, aided and abbetted by a lady technician. Nurse Orpha Smith favored with a vocal solo "Home This Home", which was followed by the "Best St. Nicks". Santa Claus rounded out the program with distribution of exchange gifts. Before the floor was cleared for dancing, Dr. Jones conducted a unique guessing game.

A feature of the program was a farce comedy of what takes place in an operating room (sometimes) with the result being a most successful Cobserean birth.

FARM MANAGEMENT MEETING AT FORESTBURG

About 22 farmers attended the Farm Management meeting in Forestburg on Wednesday, December 9. Mr. Len Bauer of the Agricultural Economics Branch with the Alberta Dept. of Agriculture was the guest speaker.

Mr. Bauer defined Farm Management as the orderly procedure of making the best use of resources at hand — Land, Labor and Capital. The records or farm records are a method of sorting what has been done on a farm with our resources over a period of time — usually a 12 month period.

Most accounts will give us a net income statement, but for Farm Management purposes we need a little statement at our records. We should be able to prepare a Net Worth statement and Expenditure statment from good records.

Mr. Bauer went on to say that with good records we can complete Farm Analysis sheets and measure the variance of farm income from the norm. From this information we are able to determine the true value of differing practices in the same field of production. Mr. Bauer stressed that the use of records and farm analysis were methods of being able to take some of the uncertainties out of farm management.

Considerable interest was indicated in proceeding with Farm Management Groups this coming winter. Anyone interested in Farm Management is invited to contact your District Agriculturist, Art Edwards in Sedgewick.

SWINE PRODUCTION SCHOOLS

Three schools are planned for this winter to cover the field of Swine Production. You should keep the following dates in mind.

January 6th — The week of the TV Short Course from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. the TV progress is on Swine production. Programs for this course are available from this office.

January 14 & 15 — A school on "The Economics of Hog Production" will be held in Donalda.

January 21 & 22 — "Hog Buildings and Production" at Stettler.

March 25 & 26 — "Live Hog to Cversas" demonstration at either Hardisty or Forestburg.

Mark these dates on your calendar now. Watch for more information and details about these schools in future Green Acres columns.

How Long Did It Take To Court Your Wife?

Did you just happen to see her, walk up to her, ask her to marry you and call in the minister . . . right on the spot —

PERHAPS NOT . . . It probably took a lot of calls, and trips, movies, flowers, candies, and a lot of putting-your-best-foot forward tactics. You had to "sell" yourself. She had to know all about you!

IT'S THE SAME WITH ADVERTISING of time . . . you've got to win their confidence . . . you can't "woo" customers with one Ad . . . you've got to "Call on Them" over a period and be convincing.

CONSISTANT ADVERTISING wins the customers if it's truthful, if it gives helpful information, if it saves shopping steps, if it is backed up with intelligent, courteous and honest values.

tv Talk

DEC. 26 to JAN 1

The National Football League play-off game, the College Bowl Game and a number of New Year's specials spice this week's TV menu.

In the NFL showdown the Baltimore Colts (12-2) Western Division Champions, face the Cleveland Browns (10-3-1) Eastern Division Champions, in Cleveland's Municipal Stadium The Colts have had a great season, losing only to Minnesota and Detroit. Their peerless passer Johnny Unitas was selected the league's Most Valuable Player. Lenny Moore broke the NFL's all-time record for touchdowns with 20, and coach Don Shula was voted the coach of the year. The Browns, who'll be the underdogs, count on the great running of Jimmy Brown and Ernie Green plus the passing of Frank Ryan and receiving of swift rookie Paul Warfield.

Game time is 11.30 in Alberta.

In the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena, California on New Year's Day the University of Michigan meets Oregon State. The telecast begins at 2:45 p.m. in Alberta.

Other sporting attractions during the week include CFRN Championship Golf, Saturday, Dec. 26 at 2; Cross Canada Curling the afternoon at 3; and NHL Hockey in the evening at 6:30.

The comedy golfers will be Stan Leonard of Vancouver; Jean Guy Periard of Beauchenville, Que. and Harry McFree of Whitby, Ont. The curling match pits Bruce Hudson of Manitoba against Bob Mann of Ontario and hockey fans will be the Toronto Maple Leafs and the Detroit Red Wings.

Wayne and Shuster do a take-off on airline economy flights and their own version of the classic Cyrano de Bergerac on Show of the Week, Monday, December 28th at 8 p.m.

"The 700 Million", an exclusive 90 minute CBC film report on Communist China, will be repeated Wednesday, December 30th at 9:30 p.m. It is the first North American film to be made about mainland China since the revolution. It examines the economic, social and cultural status of the huge and enigmatic nation, observing the Chinese at work and at play. The program tries to find out what the Chinese think about their own world and about ours. Included are interviews with Chinese foreign minister Chen-Yi, U. S. doctor Gordon Bethune and correspondent Jacques Hebert.

Strome C.G.I.T. Take Pot Luck, Get Chicken Supper

(Marie Butler)

The Strome CGIT held their Christmas party in the Church Hall on Friday evening. It took in the form of a pot luck supper, which resulted in a most delicious chicken dinner. All twelve girls were in attendance along with their leader, Mrs. Butler and Mrs. Anne Johnson who is the assistant with the Mission and Bible Studies. After the dishes were washed a most enjoyable hour of games followed. Then going upstairs the girls from under the tree were handed out by Gale Johnson acting as Santa Claus. The girls were given a gift wrapped box which only contained a clue which led them to a number of other clues which when solved, they found a surprise gift of treats hidden in a cupboard in the church hall. Janet Brown on behalf of the girls thanked Mrs. Butler and Mrs. Johnson for the treats and games and the girls sang for They are jolly Good Fellows.

The Junior High Basketball playoffs were held at Killam December 12, 1964. The following are the games played and scores made.

GIRLS

Strome (8) vs. Hardisty (6)
Strome (4) vs. Alliance (4)

BOYS

Strome (37) vs. Hardisty (14)
Strome (53) vs. Galahad (16)

Strome girls and boys came home with both basketball trophies for 1964-65. Trophies were accepted for the girls by Terry Mitchell and for the boys by Dale Krause.

I would like to take this opportunity to wish everyone a very Merry Christmas, and a Very Happy New Year, and also express my sincere thanks to all those who have been so helpful with my news gathering the past year. Your kindness is greatly appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rawe and family visited Mrs. Rawe's parents Mr. and Mrs. Shaw in Edmonton on Sunday.

The Strome Explorers and Mrs. Curtis their leader, held their Christmas party in the Church hall on Thursday evening.

Mr. Gale Seward spent a couple of days in Daysland hospital.

Word has been received that Mr. John Kroetch of Edmonton has fallen and broken his hip.

Miss Linda Robbins who is attending Alberta College came home on Friday evening for the Christmas holidays.

Mrs. Nail McDougall, Mr. and Mrs. Kari McDougall attended a staff party of C. J. Duggan and Co. Livestock Buyers in Camrose last Friday night. The McDougalls have operated a livestock buying station for Duggans for over fifty years.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Mel Orr on the birth of a son.

The Strome Elks entertained their wives at a Christmas party in Memorial Hall on Friday evening. Dancing was enjoyed until midnight when a turkey supper was served.

Miss Maureen Johnson spent the week end with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Big Johnson. She was accompanied home by two girl friends, Miss Linda McArthur of Hinton and Miss Pat Woldaik of Edmonton. Other guests at the Johnson home for Sunday dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Dan Johnson and family of Edmonton, Mrs. Orland Johnson and family of Edmonton, and Mr. and Mrs. Ken Johnson and son of Camrose. This was a early Christmas celebration as Mr. and Mrs. Reg Johnson left on Tuesday morning for Sherwood, Washington to visit Christmas and New Years. They expect to be away three weeks and will also visit relatives at Seattle.

Central Highlites

School was cut short this week for most kids in Central. On Tuesday only 5 people were present, and on Wednesday about 15 students were eager to go to work when they showed up at school.

On Friday the class 'Foods and Nutrition 30' organized a Candy Sale during noon hour.

Friday night as the scene of a school party he 1 in the gyms. Don Forester and Sandra Lair were crowned King and Queen of Central at the dance because their house sold the most tickets. A draw was made from these tickets and a prize of 25 dollars went to Mrs. Grant of Killam.

On the 23rd the students of Central got out at noon for the Christmas holidays. School opens again on January 5th.

SPORTS

We congratulate the girls basketball team of Central for the great job they did during the last season. The girls got first place in the league and have a trophy to be proud of.

The boys didn't do very well this season but they put up a good fight. We hope that they will do better next year. Daysland High Boys won the boys basketball (cont).

Carol Burkard Married At Spring Lake Church

(Dolores Dolens)

The St. Boniface Roman Catholic Church at Spring Lake was the scene of a lovely fall wedding on Saturday, November 14th at 11:00 a.m. when Carol Burkard, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Burkard of Spring Lake became the bride of Vernon Guy Leonard, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Leonard of Calgary.

Rev. Dean Schmeltzer officiated at the Nuptial Mass during which marriage vows were exchanged in a double ring ceremony.

The organist was Mrs. John McRae and vocalists were Joe Kahrer and Carmen Kahrer.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was very lovely in a full length tiered style white brocaded satin gown. She wore a finger tip veil of nylon net with a wide lace border. It fell from a double crown of crystal and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of red roses and baby sheep with a white missal prayer book and pearl rosary, a gift of her aunt, Sister M. Bonifacer.

The maid of honor Janet Seymour, bridesmaid Wanda Rawe and junior bridesmaid Linda Burkard wore identical floor length dresses of forest green Delhi velvet. The bride and bridesmaid wore cultured pearl necklaces with gold chain, gifts of the bride and groom. Janet Wren a and Linda carried white fur muffs that bore corsages of yellow mums.

The groom was attended by Dick Klepper and Don Wirth. Ushers were Pat Loeb and Charles Leonard.

The reception was held at Spring Lake parish hall. Gordon Sommer as Master of Ceremonies, Rev. Dean Schmeltzer spoke briefly but impressively on marriage.

The wedding cake was very beautifully decorated by Mrs. Normita Zienzel. For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Burkard wore a three-piece double knit suit with black accessories and a corsage of yellow mums.

Mother of the groom chose a green of gold silk dress and a corsage of white roses.

After a short honeymoon in Banff the happy couple will reside in North Red Deer.

Killam Hospital Holds Annual Christmas Party

(By Mrs. Doug Kinzer)

The staff and guests of the Killam Hospital held their annual Christmas party on Thursday in the hospital. Everyone reports a very enjoyable evening and a most tasty lunch was served.

Those home from the city for the Christmas holidays are Mary York, Bonnie Jonson, Doug Poe, Doug Swanson, Freddie Kosher.

The public school staff were entertained to a Christmas Party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chandler last Monday.

Mr. Bob Peterson who has been away for some time is home for a few months.

Miss Janet Boese from Lacombe BC is at home for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Garry Pedersen and wife have left on a two week vacation.

Mrs. Rose Schulte and children have moved into the Kelly house.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Dumbiw and Patsy left last Sunday for Vancouver where they plan to spend Christmas with relatives.

We would like to extend sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Denis Pouin in the loss of their infant son.

Mr. Fred Cristensen and Mr. Gilbert Rudolph are in Edmonton hall Clyde over the week er

Jack and Margaret Simmons of Edmonton were week end guests at home.

Baptist Church

The church committee's are busy with preparations for 1965. The nominating committee will be meeting this week to draw up a proposed list of officers to be presented at the annual meeting bich is to be held in January.

The first Youth for Christ meeting of the New Year will be held in our district on January 10th. Our director for North Eastern Alberta informs us that the Kennedy Manning team will be visiting at that time. Preston Manning is the son of Premier E. C. Manning who also directs Canada's National Back to the Bible Hour.

The Pastor was in charge of the Sunday morning service. A number of our Young People who have been attending University and Bible School have arrived home and were at the service. The Junior Sunday School choir sang at the closing exercises of the Sunday School session. Shirley Heartberg was accompanist.

The Sunday School concert was presented on Sunday evening. A large crowd was in attendance. The directors, superintendent, teachers, pianist, organist, and all who assisted, were to be commended for their efforts in making our concert a success. A purse of money was presented to Rev. and Mrs. Grymalouki from the members and friends of the Church. Gifts were also presented to Mrs. Grymalouki and Mrs. Heartberg from the WMS An offering of $36.76 was received which will be sent to the Bethany Home for children at Wetaskiwin.

Couples Club Meet Despite Cold

Despite severe weather conditions, close to thirty attended the Interdenominational Young Couples Club held at Sedgewick on Monday evening, December 14.

Following a time of recreation at the Gymnasium, the Young couples were guests of Captain Bloom. After a hearty time of carol singing, Rev. Peterson of Sedgewick, a regular visitor, addressed the gathering. An offering was received which will help support a worthy mission. Last year's offerings were designated for the Bethany Home at Grande Prairie and Rev. and Mrs. Neil Larsen, who are missionaries to the Indians in Northern Manitoba.

Following the business session, lunch was served.

The next meeting will be held on January 11th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Olson, North of Strome.

Downie-Pederson Vows Pledged At Killam

On Friday, November 27 in St. Joseph's Church, Killam, Rev. Father Elkin of Daysland said mass in a double ring ceremony for the marriages of Dorothy Helfrid, second oldest daughter of Mrs. Arnold Pederson and the late Mr. Arnold Pederson to Mr. Ernest George Downie, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Downie of Hardisty.

The bride given to marriage by a friend, Mr. Reynold Mikkelson of Wetaskiwin, wore a floor length gown with fitted bodice and pointed skirt of chiffon over taffeta. It featured a scooped neckline and lily point sleeves. Her finger tip veil was held in place by a pearl crown. Her only jewelry was a silver cross, gift of the groom.

She was attended by her two sisters, Carol as maid of honor and Bessie as bridesmaid. They were identical sheath dresses of turquoise blue chiffon over taffeta with chiffon overskirts, matching turquoise wedding ring hats and matching shoes completed their outfits. Both wore sweetheart corsages and carried white roses. Flower girl was Patricia Derraugh, friend of the bride. She also wore a turquoise blue dress of chiffon over taffeta and her headpiece matched the bridesmaids. She carried a basket of baby mums. The groom was attended by two of his friends, Bill Cooper and Roy Brown. Ushers were Buster Pedersen brother of bride and Patrick Downie brother of groom.

During the signing of the register Mrs. Adrene Downie sang, "On This Day On Beautiful Mother" accompanied by Mrs. Helen Kinzer at the organ.

The brides mother chose a cranberry red dress of double knit wool with white accessories. Her corsage was of white roses. The groom's mother wore an aqua blue dress of lace with gold accessories. She also wore re roses.

A reception was held in the Legion Hut at Sedgewick for 65 guests. The bride's table was laid with a lace tablecloth and centred with a three tiered wedding cake adorned with candles on each side. The cake was baked by Mrs. Herb Gascoyne and decorated by Mrs. Myrsburg.

M.C. was Mr. Brian Lee who also proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom ably responded. Toasts were given to the bride's mother by Mr. Grant Chernam, and by the bridesmaids by Mr. Ray Drever. Barbara Bergum was in charge of the guest book.

Open house was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Bergum, aunt and uncle of the bride. A dance followed in the Sedgewick Community Hall from 10 to 1. For going away the bride wore a red double knit two piece suit. A white fur hat and glorve completed her ensemble. White roses in corsage. The happy couple will make their home in Edmonton were they are employed.

Out of town guests were from Lac Laliche, St. Paul, Edmonton, Olds, Wetaskiwin, Camrose, Daysland, Czar, Hardisty and Lougheed.

Cash income of Canadian farmers reached a record $1.6 billion in the first six months of 1964, greater by 13 per cent than 1963's preceding record half-year high.

Indians & Stamps Both Win At Their Own Tournaments

New Year's Day saw hockey tournaments held at both Killam and Hardisty with four teams playing in each. In each case the home team came out the victor in the final game.

At Killam the first game was played between Killam and Daysland with the Indians winning by a score of 5 to 0. The second game saw Forestburg defeat Viking Gas Kings to tune of 8 to 3. In the final the Killam Indians had an easy time of it as they defeated Forestburg sound 10 to 3. Good clean hockey was a feature of the tournament and can be partly attributed to the fine refereeing by the officials from the Edmonton Referees' Association.

In the Hardisty tournament the Stampeders easily defeated the Community All Stars in the first game by a score of 10 to 0. Wainwright played Consort in the second game and won 10 to 2. In the finals the Stampeders again came out on top on the scoreboard but this game was a real fast one and a good crowd pleaser, featuring fast, clean hockey all the way. Stampeders won 3 to 2 over the Wainwright Commandos. During the final game two draws were made with $50 cash going to Ian Dreyer and the Heifer being won by Mrs. Lorne Hendriks.

TWO BINGO JACKPOT WINNERS

SEDGEWICK — Two jackpot winners were declared at Saturday night's bingo. A proxy card paid to Carol Farquharson $62.50. The other half ckpot went to Mrs. June Thompson. Coffee and donuts served by the hall committee were much appreciated on a very cold night. Words of thanks were tendered by the Hall Committee to the faithful workers in the persons of Bob Campbell, Eddie Watkins, Ivy Parsons, Chris Peets, Mrs. Markware and other volunteers.

The Hall Committee have noticed a modest profit from bingo operations and bingos will be continued on Saturday nights. Next week's jackpot starts at $50.00.

Temperature Stays In Sub-Zero Range

The thermometer dipped to 30 degrees below again this week after rising to a warm 10 above on New Year's Day and according to the weather men there is no sign of a warming trend.

Sub zero temperatures first arrived late in November and have persisted ever since with the exception of New Year's Day and a few days in early December when the temperature got up to around 10 above.

Most people will remember 'Black Tuesday', Dec. 15 (or should we say White Tuesday) when the temperature went to around 30 below, the wind soared to 30 and 40 miles per hour and the snow blew in every direction. This storm blocked the roads and forced school buses to stop running for several days. The storm also brought to light a large number of furnace troubles that kept repair men on the run.

All in all it has been the coldest winter in several years and the end isn't in sight yet.

Livestock are having a rough time from the cold weather just as the farmers who must go out to feed them are. We haven't heard any reports of cattle freezing to death in this area as has been the case farther south but of the weather continues there is bound to be a feed shortage before the winter is over. One farmer from the south country told us that he was paying $50 a ton for the same feed he sold for $15 last summer.

BRIDAL SHOWER

On Wednesday evening, December 30th the United Church Hall was the scene of a Bridal Shower in honor of Mrs. Dennis Zharenchuk (nee Connie Sefton). Mrs. Dave Taylor as MC conducted a number of games which all guests joined in and had a fun, time. Mrs. Judy Peters gave a reading. In opening her many gifts Connie was assisted by two former girl friends Mrs. Nick Senoloki of Killam and Mrs. Jerry Peters of Darlingford while her sister Mrs. Wm. Anderson listed the gifts assisted by Mrs. Olive Galletly and Mrs. Vera Hopkin. Connie graciously thanked all and extended a sincere invitation to visit she and Dennis in their new home in Saskatoon. Lunch was enjoyed.

Killam - Viking Split Two BRHL Games

In two recent Battle River League games the Killam Indians visited Viking on December 28 and played Hosts to Viking on December 30.

In both games the visiting club was the victor and the home town team went down to defeat.

The first game which was played at Viking as the Indians jump into the lead at the eight minute mark of the first period on a goal by Ed Peake. The period ended with the score one for Killam.

In the second period the Gas Kings tied it up at 5:43 but the Indians came right back when Peake again scored, this time at the 6:31 mark. Each club scored once more to make the score 3 to 2 for the Indians.

The third frame saw the Indians blink the red light once more as they held the Viking crew scoreless to end the game in favor of the Indians 4 to 2.

Two days later on December 30 the Gas Kings returned to Killam Arena and took revenge on the Indians by defeating them on their own ice by a score of 6 to 4.

The first period of this game ended in a 2-2 tie but in the second frame the Gas Kings blanked the Indians while scoring three unanswered goals.

In the third period the Indians tried to make a come back scoring two goals but the Gas Kings held them off and added one of their own to end the game with the score 6 to 4 in favor of Viking.

Referee were Jim McCallum and Tom Kalis.

Open House Held At Flagstaff Lodge

Open house was held at Flagstaff Lodge in Monday, December 28th with fifty-seven registered guests. A great deal of interest was shown by the visitors as they toured the lodge when they expressed their surprise in the many advantages. We hope in the future to again hold open-house for the benefit of those interested in making their home here. We believe this Lodge could and needs to be recognized in its true value to meet the needs of the people in this district. The old-fashioned idea of poor houses needs to be abolished and a new thought needs to be planted in the minds of our senior citizens that they are "paying guests" here. Lunch was served. A special thanks is extended to all who assisted and contributed with lunch or helped in any way and to all visitors showing their interest making open-house a success.

A Review Of Events In 1964

What About The New Year?

Every time an old year draws to a close and the dawning of a new year approaches, financiers, economists and business people endeavour to calculate what the next twelve months holds in store economically. Some prognosticators are experts in this field, and base their theories on careful attention to what has been and is happening nationally and internationally. One of the widely accepted authorities in such matters is the "watch dog" group of the Bank of Montreal, who while acknowledging a slight let-down in economic expansion, indicate continued buoyancy during 1965.

Continued expansion of the Canadian economy in 1965 seems indicated, although at a somewhat slower rate than in 1964, according to the Bank of Montreal in its Business Review for December.

Examining the business outlook for 1965, based on results expected in 1964, the B of M review notes that total output for 1964 is expected to show a rise of almost 8 per cent over 1963. This is "a very good rate of advance in view of the length of the current expansion."

"Weighing up all the factors involved insofar as they can be assessed at the present time the balance appears to be on the side of optimism," the bank states.

"It seems clear that one of the principal sources of strength, capital investment, will remain a major expansionary influence in the months ahead," the B of M observes.

"The government incentives for winter-building, which were so successful last year and are being repeated this winter should help maintain residential construction activity."

In addition, plant expansion projects have received strong impetus from the rise in foreign and domestic demand during the past four years. Many of these projects are underway and others will soon be started.

"The prospects for maintaining a high level of exports are also good. While wheat shipments in '65 seem likely to be lower than in the current year and the recently imposed surcharges may dampen sales of other goods to the United Kingdom, generally buoyant conditions prevail in most of our major export markets," the B of M states.

Commenting on the outlook for consumer spending, the bank states, "While higher spending on non-durable goods and services is virtually assured in view of rising population, employment and income, prospects for durable goods are less certain.

"On the one hand, gains in automobile sales, which have led the advance in consumer spending in the past four years, may be somewhat harder to achieve in 1965.

"On the other hand, increasing outlays for appliances, furniture and other household durables might be expected in the wake of recent high levels of housebuilding," the B of M states.

Delinquents - Juvenile or Adult?

The old saying that there are no juvenile delinquents, only delinquent adults, seems to be born out to some degree by John McMurtry, who has accumulated quite an array of evidence on the subject, gathered through a career where his dealings were mainly with teenagers. While some parents practice discipline with the iron rule of a dictator, there are a vast majority who let their children shuffle through their early years doing what comes naturally without accentuating the positive. McMurtry has found that poorer homes and broken homes do not necessarily produce the best crop of "wrong way" juveniles. Following is what he has to say on the subject:

In a unique new approach to the problem of juvenile delinquency in Canada, John McMurtry, a former football player with Calgary Stampeders and now a school teacher in Toronto, writing in the December 14 issue of Maclean's magazine, explodes the generally held belief that delinquency is a product of lower-class poverty and can be successfully solved by middle-class morals and middle-class living standards.

On the contrary, McMurty writes, juvenile delinquency is not primarily caused by broken homes, working mothers, lack of recreational and all other elements associated with lower-class living conditions. McMurty cites statistics in his article that show, for instance, that the percentage of serious juvenile offenders from broken homes is less than the number from intact homes and that where elaborate recreational facilities have been set up for youngsters (in New York City, for instance) delinquency has often increased, instead of declined.

The real root cause of juvenile delinquency, according to McMurty, is the feeling of uselessness and non-responsibility that all of the factors like broken homes, working mothers and low incomes can produce in young people. "Statistics indicate that young offenders from all classes," McMurty writes, "come predominantly from over-permissive or over-authoritarian homes . . . . homes in which authentic responsibility is never given to the offspring."

This kind of home conveys to the children the idea that they have no stake in the system that controls them and leads eventually to anti-social acts. Only when parents, school and the law permit young people to participate in responsible decisions, McMurty explains, will we be able to cut down on the disastrous crime rate among teenagers.

Fearless Predictions For 1965

Others, who place no value on their reputation, are doing it so why shouldn't this corner join in? We predict for 1965:

That the winter of 1964-65 will last until spring.

That if not other towns on the line, Killam and Sedgewick will be served by natural gas.

That both Lester B. Pearson & John Diefenbaker, while on vacation, will do some serious soul-searching.

That many old-timers will still poo poo the present winter as a tough one.

That the proposed New Party for Canada will fail on its face, and that Ernest Manning will not be the leader.

That Snickrno will regret withdrawal from the U. N. and will seek re-entry.

That the 1964 record of liquor and tobacco sales will be broken.

That there will not be a federal election.

That John Diefenbaker will be finished as Conservative Leader, possibly by voluntary retirement.

That we will be wrong on at least 50 percent of our predictions.

"BANNED IN OTTAWA..."

★ MACDUFF REPORT

Closure and the Flag

OTTAWA — The flags of many nations around the world have been described in battle or revelries.

The new maple leaf flag which will soon be flying over Canada and other Canadian posts abroad has been blooded in the House of Commons.

It's a new flag, a strong, simple emblem which, as many members of Parliament have said, cannot be mistaken for the flag of any other country.

There can be no denying however that this flag's slow and erratic excitement up the nation's flagpole has inflicted some deep and abiding wounds.

The flag was not chosen unanimously by the House of Commons. Some members from every party voted for it. But 78 Conservatives, three Socreds, one New Democrat, and one Liberal, voted against it.

The vote itself was forced by the Parliamentary rule of closure, a rule used only a few years ago, all parties agreed should be abolished. It has not been abolished. Remember however, did not abolish the rule.

It remains on the books, and when the Liberal Government believed it necessary to end the flag debate on December 14, Members of Parliament voted almost ten to one in favour of the use of closure.

The flag debate itself was dominating Parliament to an institution. It was long, altogether, for 33 days. There had been 278 speeches in which many things were said that should not have been said.

The new flag was described as a step to Quebec separatists who told those who supported the new flag were tearing down the traditions of the past, were denying the symbols of Christ's nativity, were defiling the sacrifices of Canada's war dead.

No one can deny the sincerity and effectiveness of the Conservative fight against the new flag. But finally the fight became obstruction of a kind that cannot be tolerated.

There is no questioning of the right of an opposition to delay, to criticize, to debate. Equally there can be no questioning of the right of the majority, after everyone has had a full hearing, to make a decision.

That, finally, became the issue in the prolonged flag debate. It was the determined Tory decision to prevent a majority decision which removed quite suddenly from the closure rule the stigma it has carried since the pipeline debate of 1956.

Many people across Canada had come to the conclusion that whatever the flag debate must be brought to an end. It had reached the point where the Government could anticipate more criticism for not invoking closure than it might ever expect from invoking it.

Liberals chosen to believe now that the debate has been long enough to end all civil associations because it has been used in exactly the type of situation it was designed for. Certainly the flag debate proved the need for some Parliamentary rule for limiting debate. Otherwise any small group in the House of Commons could thwart the will of the majority indefinitely.

It is unfortunate that the new national flag had to be brought to a decision by the use of closure.

Use of the rule heightened the animosities in the Chamber, and the final moments before the final vote, as Prime Minister Pearson tried to speak, were filled with bitterness, anger, shouted insults and jeers.

It was then that Mr. Pearson, shouting above the din, made his last mistake of all. Opposite as Leader Diefenbaker to "forget the divisions and differences of this debate and to rally behind this red maple leaf Canadian flag".

Mr. Diefenbaker might have salvaged something out of this. After all, the new flag was to be Canada's flag, and many Conservatives had said during the debate that they would honor it once Parliament had approved it.

But the Conservative leader and many of his supporters were in no mood for soft words or gentle accommodations.

Mr. Diefenbaker had failed in his attempt to preserve the Red Ensign and he turned out to be no better a loser than might be expected.

The angry bitterness of the end of the flag debate permits some concern about the future. One has to look hard to find evidence that the pieces might be put back together again, that the wounds will heal.

Much of this will depend on Mr. Pearson. Most of the blame for making the flag debate the forum Prime Minister was the authentic spokesman for a large body of Canadians who wanted to retain some vestige of the Union Jack on the flag.

At other times he spoke as a voice out of the past, disembodied from contemporary thought. He went back into history, 30, 40 years, drawing points from experience in a British Empire that no longer exists as such, from an early Canada that no longer exists.

Mr. Diefenbaker must prove himself a contemporary person in the next few years. Otherwise in 10 or 15 years, when the maple leaf flag is accepted by all Canadians, he will be remembered only for attempting to block that flag.

After the final vote was taken, the Liberals rose and sang O Canada. All other members in the House, or most of them, stood to join in. Then the members sang God Save the Queen.

Both anthems seemed out with full-throated sincerity. It was a touching end for the many a painful moment. But it was one of the few moments during the long time of the flag debate that there was any kind of unity.

We will need more moments like that in the next few years.

Other Editors Say

Las Vegas is generally known as America's biggest gambling joint and the amount of money that changes hands there every year is probably not known. But collectively our farmers may even 'buy more on the table' than do the gamblers who visit the gambling capital.

For a farmer it's a gamble from the time he puts the seed in the ground until it's harvested. It may rain too much or too little; it may hail, or under adverse conditions weeds may choke out his crop. Rabbits and bugs of all kinds threaten the plants and early frosts are a hazard.

And finally, when the hazards of nature have been overcome, there remains the gamble in prices. There is always the chance that when the crop is good, prices will drop. A man with a beef herd feeds his market animal for two years, buying feed at prices which may not be favorable to him, yet he never knows what the end price of his product will be when he sells it.

. . . . Because of its own hazards and conditions, farming must still be considered as a way of life rather than just another industry, as so many people, not knowing the conditions, think it . . . .

NEWLY WEDS WILL RESIDE IN STROME DISTRICT

On November 7th, at the Killam Baptist Church, Sybil Dorothy, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Heffel of Alliance, and George Emiel Williams, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Williams, Strome, exchanged vows of holy matrimony, Rev. Anton Grymulouki officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a gown of rich white taffeta, styled with bouffant skirt caught up at back with white roses. Pearls adorned the fitted bodice and flip-point sleeves. Her shoulder-length veil was held in place by a crown of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of cascading red roses, centered with a white Bible.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Joyce Dietrich, wore a turquoise dress of sheer organza over taffeta and the two bridesmaids, Mrs. Gaynor Wyld and Sandra Wylie were identical dresses. The flower girl, Patti Ann Pore, was also dressed in turquoise. They all wore matching headpieces and carried colonial bouquets of pink carnations and lilies of the valley.

The groom was attended by his brothers, Jack and Joseph Williams and Paul Vanderwoude, brother-in-law of the bride. Ushers were Glen Heffel and Dwight Smith-Gander.

The bride's mother chose a blue peau silk dress with white accessories and white rose corsage, while mother of the groom wore a red and black sheer dress with rose accessories and a white rose corsage.

The bride's table was centered with a beautiful three-tiered wedding cake lace by the bride's mother and decorated by Mrs. Rose Marie Boucher of Hardisty.

The master of ceremonies was Gaynor Bestrenk and the bride's uncle Stewart Heffel, proposed the toast to the bride.

For going away the bride chose a two piece dress with white accessories and a white rose corsage. Following the honeymoon trip, the happy couple will reside in the Strome district.

LOUGHEED

(Mrs. Marion Casturier)

Lougheed town and district was saddened and shocked by the death of a long time resident, Mrs. Fenie (Phoebe) Johnson on New Year's Day. Sympathy is extended to the bereaved.

A large crowd attended the Christmas Trade and New Year's Dance in the Community Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kile and family spent Christmas at the Keith Shank home.

Those home during the Yuletide season were: Pat Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Walsh and baby, Dwayne and Darlyne Freeman, Carol Chidsey, Mr. and Mrs. John Grove and family, Peter Grove, Sheila Frost, Ronnie and Lloyd Tanton, Kenny and Linda Stoberg, Mort Odegard. (Anyone missed, please accept my apologies).

Mr. and Mrs. Merle Reed and family of Calgary were Christmas visitors at the E. Reed home.

a message from the people at Calgary Power

TROUBLE OVER!

THANK YOU FOR YOUR HELP

Calgary Power have completed repairs on their main Wabamun generator and power output has been restored to normal. Full use of your electric service can now be enjoyed.

DUE TO YOUR CO-OPERATION in voluntarily easing up on power consumption during the daily peak-load period, all essential electric services were fully maintained while the generator was being repaired.

Calgary Power appreciates the assistance of Canadian Utilities' the cities of Edmonton, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat for supplying them with reserve power, and the sympathetic response of the City of Calgary Electric System in permitting the appeal to their customers.

We take this opportunity to wish all our customers

A HAPPY NEW YEAR

... and to say once again

THANK YOU FOR YOUR HELP

A HOLIDAY BUFFET SUPPER

Now TV tables came on the market buffet suppers seem to have become a popular way of entertaining.

It is often awkward trying to seat large numbers around the dining table and much more comfortable to have a buffet table attractively arranged, with TV or small tables scattered throughout the room, eliminating the often awkward task of balancing plates on your lap.

Starting at the right end of your table place the main dish and plates. Then follow with accompaniments, vegetables, salad, rolls, etc., arranged in logical order. Place cutlery and napkins at the end so they will not have to be held while getting food.

If possible, leave a space at the front of the table so plates can be slid along to be set down on the table while serving.

Choose foods that can be eaten with only one piece of cutlery. Inbiding hot casseroles, cream dishes, etc., "build-yourself-sandwiches".

Avoid sauces and runny foods. Do not use dishes that tip easily, such as parfait glasses.

Butter rolls and bread before placing on the table.

Pass beverages around separately on a tray.

Bastable desserts for a buffet supper are cakes, pies, cheese and scalded desserts. These, too, may be served on a tray.

DID YOU RECEIVE A LEATHER JACKET FOR CHRISTMAS?

Do not send your goods or leather garments to a regular dry cleaner. If special equipment and skills are not used when treating leather the characteristic oils will be lost.

OBITUARY

Ernest Roy Pedersen was born in Wetaskiwin, Alberta, on June 10 1904, where he resided until marriage with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Hans Pedersen to the Lougheed district in 1907.

There he resided until moving his parents into Lougheed where he resided until his death.

His sister Olga predeceased him in 1954, his mother in 1957, his father in 1958, his sister Agnes Holben in 1961 and his brother Clar in 1963 in California.

Ernest was a prominent citizen, always taking his part in all organizations pertaining to the welfare of the whole community. He was always able and willing to lend a helping hand where needed. He will be sadly missed by the whole community and many acquaintances.

He leaves to mourn his passing three brothers and one sister, Harry of Lougheed and Arthur of Vallacets, Oregon, Eddie of Edmonton, and Clara Pauline Pedersen, Calgary Alberta, also his brother-in-law, G. Holben of Oakland and a host of friends.

Interment was in the Lougheed Cemetery Monday, Dec. 28th. Funeral arrangements by Rickman Funeral Home, Lougheed.

Special song was rendered by Mrs Vern Hellem of Castor, "The Old Rugged Cross".

"Abide with Me" was rendered by the congregation.

OLD-FASHIONED WINTERS

Who, besides myself, have been rolling around, "Where's our old-fashioned winters?". Some folks came up with the idea that possibly the explosion of test-bombs affected the atmospheric conditions as to change the weather.

Well Friends bombs are still being tested but after the last month of cold weather along with record-breaking blizzards, we will have to admit these old-fashioned winters must have just been around the corner, waiting for seven years to catch us unexclusively unprepared for the on-slaught which the weather man handed out recently.

When we lived on the old homestead in the early 20's we always looked for and expected, and, I might add, prepared for bitter-cold, blizzardy weather, some years from about the middle of October through February; March bringing the un-predictable thaws one day, freezing the next, followed almost invariably, by one of those treacherous late winter blizzards.

Still we yearn! Did we complain? Did we literally "freeze in our boots?" Far from it. With the first signs of winter we prepared, inside and out, for the worst, which always came in those years.

Money was scarce. No one, these days, especially our young, realize how scarce it was then. Therefore we substituted in every way possible, when ever we could.

For example. Instead of buying weather-stripping to tack around the doors and windows in the winter time, we tore strips of rags, folded those strips over two or three times for the right thickness, tacked it along the edges of all doors and windows, and it would be a strong wind indeed which managed to seep in past those improvised weather strippings.

For storm doors, every farmer brought home a huge cardboard box from town, opened it out flat, and nailed it over the screen door, ingenuity plus. Sure. But when the thermometer would plunge, sometimes to 50 or 60 below, coupled with a cold north-west wind sifting the snow across those flat prairies, did we suffer? Absolutely not. Just the opposite.

We would stoke up the old "Quebec Heater", pile more wood on the fire in the kitchen range, put an extra sweater or two on the youngsters, also, see that the men had extra heavy woolen sox and mitts, cook an extra pot of the mentioned stew, or an equally filling hot supper and "Let The Rest Of The World Go By".

In the evenings after the men had re-checked things in the barn to make sure the animals were all comfortable, and the supper work was done up, the older children would sit around the kitchen table, doing home-work, playing checkers, the younger ones equally occupied around the dining room table, and we oldsters either reading or mending.

Cozy? Absolute comfort. Complain? Never. Comment on the weather? Sure. That was just about the only topic of conversation those days. There were no TV's, no even radios, until about the year [illegible] there, anyway. Like most of the folks in our district then, we had no phone, and, with exception of papers and magazines which we brought from town every week, depending on the weather, of course, we had no contact with the outside world whatever.

Ironically, though, we were happy people. We had our usual diversions such as sewing bees, bee-keeping days, quilting bees, get to-gether the numerous parties held from time to time all winter, also the church services, which were held in our home twice weekly to which folks would back some pretty fierce storms to attend.

So, our children grew up in that environment. The dictionary says 'environment' is 'the surroundings of one's life'.

That being the case, one can hardly wonder that the young people of yesteryear do value and appreciate the comforts which modern and enjoy today, compared to what they had in their younger years.

So, no there is nothing we can do to change this weather, let us snuggle in with all our modern conveniences.

However, we wonder if all those modern conveniences tend to make us soft, and is that why we are feeling this cold spell so much, and making so much of it? And are we happier than our forefathers? Is is worth pondering. Right?

The dailies of teen-age girls to be slim often leads to dietary errors resulting in ill-health. This should be watched. At this age soft drinks and candy become a problem when they take the place of foods required to meet bodily needs.

If fire breaks out in your home and you are in a closed room, don't open the door into a hall or other room until you have tested the door panel for heat. If the door feels hot, do not open it or it may admit a burst of flame. Try to get help at the window.

Rent bots have been adopted by large industrial organizations and utilities including police departments, for the safety of their employees. The family car should be equipped with these safety devices.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Joe Konpacks who passed away January 1, 1965.

"He bade no one farewell,
Or even said goodbye
He was gone before we knew,
And only God knows why.
The one we loved and could not save,
Unseen, unheard, he's always near.
Sweet are the memories silently kept.
Of the one we loved, shall never forget.

Ever remembered and sadly missed

STRETCH LETTER OUT THERE

Mr. E. Heymann, Animal Nutritionist of the Lethbridge Research Station has the following to say about starting cattle on feed.

A critical operation in a feedlot enterprise is to get the cattle started on feed. It is estimated that losses at this time are greater than from any other condition.

The main rule to follow is: Cattle Must Be On Feed Gradually.

Cattle being brought into the feedlot usually are changed from a high roughage ration to a high grain ration and this change must be made carefully. Sudden changes in the ration or the amount of feed will cause digestive disturbances that may result in death. In any severe case a veterinarian should be consulted regarding treatment.

Cattle being placed in a feedlot require either special attention. They are under considerable stress from shipment, confinement in close quarters, unfamiliar surroundings, and change in feed and water. Calves are under added stress because they probably have just been weaned.

There are several ways a feedlot operator can minimize stress. When cattle arrive at the feedlot they should not be handled unnecessarily. Dry bedding and plenty of clean water should be provided immediately. Operations, such as vaccinating and dehorning, should be delayed until the cattle have become accustomed to their new surroundings. The previous diet of these cattle has often been deficient in vitamin A and minerals and consequently supplementation is required to correct this deficiency.

Although changes in feed should be made gradually, it is still desirable to get cattle into full feed as quickly as possible. Lethbridge Research Station cattle starter No. 1 was designed to be mixed with a regular fattening ration and have cattle safely in full feed in 28 days. An experienced feeder can reduce this time considerably. The starter contains antibiotics, vitamin A, and minerals to assist the cattle in overcoming the stress of environmental change.

Starter ration No. 1 is as follows:

Alfalfa meal	400
Dried molasses beet pulp	200
Oats	500
Barley	200
Molasses	80
Phosphate supplement	20
Mineral supplement	10
Antibiotic supplement	7
Vitamin A-30	3

A safe feeding schedule is: Free choice hay for 3 days, free choice starter ration for next 2 days, 75% starter ration; fattening ration for 4 days, 50-50 starter ration; fattening for 5 days, 25-75 starter ration; fattening ration for 5 days. Now you may continue safely with a full feed fattening ration.

FEED MEETING

Income Tax filing time is here again. The value or worth of our bookkeeping system is put to the test.

The Department of Agriculture highly recommends the use of a good Account Book. Two recommended books are available at the D. A. offices, namely the "Western Producer Account Book" and the new "Prairie Provinces Farm Account Book." The latter is designed to do a more detailed job if keeping decrees of the owner so wishes. These books sell for 75c & $1.00 respectively.

Pick up or order your book early.

CONVENTION

Quite last few weeks we have advertised farm meetings on Hog production at Donalda and Stettler. At first we thought they were going to be on different subjects and encouraged Hog Producers to attend both. They are both the same kind of meeting.

The Donalda Swine Production days are on January 14 and 15 and the Stettler meetings on January 21st and 28th. They start at 9:30 a.m. and run through to 4:30 each day. Watch the Wednesday T.V. Show on Hog Production Jan. 6th at 10:30 a.m. and attend the school for further information.

GREETINGS

We wish to take this opportunity to wish you a Happy New Year on behalf of the Department of Agriculture.

A lovely wedding was held at Killam on Saturday, November 21 when Linda Hager daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hager of Sedgewick was united in holy matrimony to Gordon Smith, son of Mrs. Davis Smith of Sedgewick. Rev. Mr. Carthy conducted the nuptial mass. Mr. and Mrs. Smith will reside in Wainwright. —Lenghoff Studio.

THANK YOU

Production of General Motors cars and trucks has resumed. Daily output will rise speedily and our plants will soon reach maximum capacity. We wish to express our sincere thanks to everyone who has waited so patiently for this good news.

Our appreciation embraces many people across Canada . . . our customers . . . our suppliers . . . and our dealers.

To the customers who have cars or trucks on order and are awaiting delivery, we are particularly grateful for your faith in our products, for your forbearance and for your understanding. Now that our production has started again, rest assured we will fill your orders as quickly as possible.

To our suppliers, we extend our sincere appreciation and offer the encouragement that soon all our operations will be back to their normal level. Already, you are providing the many quality products and services that will enable us to reach peak production with minimum delay.

We thank our dealers and their employees—the men whose important job it is to sell and service General Motors cars and trucks. We know they will welcome this renewed opportunity to fulfil the transportation needs of every customer.

Those of you who have not yet ordered your new vehicle can now buy your choice, confident that delivery will be made within a reasonable time. Every effort will be put forth by our dealers, our suppliers and ourselves to meet your requirements.

It is our belief that our 1965 cars and trucks are the finest ever produced. This is confirmed by the enthusiastic reports of the thousands of customers already driving them. Try them out soon at your General Motors dealer's.

Again we thank you, and, along with all our employees, we extend warmest seasonal greetings and good wishes for 1965.

Baptist Church

On a cold December 23rd, 1964, a small group of young people from the church went caroling in the hospital and at many of the homes in Killam. After this they journeyed to the J. Rancier home where approximately 25 enjoyed refreshments and a time of devotion.

The CYF annual Christmas banquet was held in the church auditorium on December 29th with 55 in attendance. The WMS served a lovely dinner with tables and hall well decorated for the occasion. Rev. Archer Principal of Vanscover Bible Institute, and Donald Johnson, pastor of Forestburg Baptist Church, were the guest speakers and brough challenging addresses on the theme "Which Way Are You Looking?" A number of toasts were proposed, many special musical numbers and skits were enjoyed. The Pastors wife presented appropriate challenges for the New Year as the individual candles were lit.

The annual Watch Night Service was well attended with a good time of fellowship reported.

The Pastor was in charge of the services during the holiday season.

Our church will be observing the Week of Prayer the week along with churches throughout the world.

School Division To Take Part In 1965 Youth Travel Program

The Centennial Commission of the Federal Government, in co-operation with the Provincial Departments of Education, is planning to move ten units of 24 students each, from Alberta to other provinces of Canada during July and August of 1965. Alberta would receive ten units of students from other provinces in exchange.

The Killam Inspectorate has already made application to participate in this Youth Travel Program, and is currently awaiting confirmation of the acceptance of its application.

Per the Killam inspectorate this would mean that twenty-four high school students, aged fifteen to seventeen years would be selected to travel by train to another Canadian province. Major transportation costs and meals would be borne by the Centennial Commission. Additionally, the group would be accompanied by a pair of chaperones. The unit would be hosted by an organization in the host province for a period of seven days, with the bulk of the costs being paid by the Centennial Commission.

Ideally, if a group from the Killam Inspectorate is selected, a unit of 24 students from another province would be hosted by the Killam Inspectorate for a week. Suitable organizations are being contacted to host the 24 students during their visit to the Killam Inspectorate.

The purpose of the Youth Travel Program 1965, is to enable young learn to gain experience for 1967 when it is anticipated that vast numbers of students will be exchanged between provinces. The overall objective, besides celebrating Canada's 100th birthday in 1967 is to increase understanding and to promote good-will between the peoples and provinces of Canada.

For this project it is assumed the host organization will undertake to billet the young travellers on a voluntary basis, preferably in private homes. The chaperones would probably perform better if placed in public accommodation. The host organization will also be responsible for arranging for local events & entertainment for the unit. This should be kept simple and relatively inexpensive.

Mr. & Mrs. Ray Davis Celebrate Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary

SEDGEWICK — On Tuesday, January 12th, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Davis of Sedgewick celebrated their 50th anniversary of their marriage at their home in town. On January 12th, 1915 Raymond G. Davis and Christine Jacobsen were united in marriage at Wetaskiwin Alberta.

Mr. Ray Davis came to the Sedgewick district in April of 1906 with his parents Mr. and Mrs. G. Davis and family, from Polk City, Iowa. The family settled on a farm ten miles north-east of Sedgewick. Christine Jacobsen was born at Enga i Salen, Norway and came to Canada in 1905, settling on a farm eight miles north-east of Sedgewick. Following their wedding the couple returned to the farm in the Sedgewick district, where they resided until retiring to town a few years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis have five sons and one daughter, Roy of Los Angeles, Esther (Mrs. L. Scheidner) of Gem, Alberta; Dr. Ray of Edmonton, Ernie of Calgary, Grant of Wainwright and Neville of Ottawa. There are eleven grand children.

On New Year's Day the family, with the exception of Roy, gathered at the town home to celebrate the occasion, with a three-tier cake and a setting of gold & white roses and baby pomom A turkey dinner was enjoyed, after which son Grant proposed a toast to his parents to which the groom of 50 years responded. Certificates of congratulation were read from L.t.-Gov. J. Percy Page and Premier E. C. Manning. Gifts and greetings were received from family and friends.

On Tuesday evening friends and neighbors dropped in to extend greetings.

Sedgewick 4-H Beef Club Meets

The Sedgewick 4-H Beef Club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bergul on Dec. 28th. Judy Bergul led the pledge. The roll call was taken by each member reading a Scripture "Why I Joined 4-H". The secretary read the minutes of the last meeting. Members were invited to Flrvalberg to attend a social night. The Christmas party was held by handing out gifts and playing games.

OBITUARY

Carl Anderson was born in Sweden on February 11th, 1895. He came to Canada in 1905 and homesteaded around the Lougheed district where he resided until his death.

He leaves to mourn his passing two brothers, Albin Anderson of Lougheed and Ernest Wahman of Flagstaff Lodge.

Interment was in the Lougheed Cemetery, Monday January 4th. Funeral arrangements by Kirkman Funeral Home, Lougheed.

Sabin Polio Clinics To Be Held Again

Beginning in January, 1965 and continuing through until April 1, 1965, local Health Units and City Health Departments throughout Alberta will be offering Sabin poliomyelitis vaccine, free of charge, to persons of any age who have completed an initial series of Salk vaccine inoculations.

Two doses will be offered, at an interval of not less than six weeks, and persons who have received one dose previously may receive the second dose at this time. No reinforcing doses will be offered to persons who have received two doses.

While the incidence of poliomyelitis has greatly lessened since the development of Salk and Sabin vaccines, officials of the Health Department point out that the only way to keep the disease in check is to maintain a continuing immunization program in order to combat wild polio viruses from circulating in a community.

Although Salk vaccine itself offers good protection against the paralytic disease, Sabin vaccine prevents an immune individual from becoming a carrier of the virus. Hence, a population which is well immunized with Sabin vaccine will probably have very little polio virus circulating, even during the so-called 'polio-season', the summer and early fall months.

The 1965 immunization program has been modified to include areas not covered by the Health Units or Sabin vaccine has not previously been administered. In some of these areas, feeding will be organized by local Medical Officers of Health, but only persons who have completed an initial series of Salk vaccine inoculations will be eligible. Each feeding period will be limited to two weeks; the first will begin February 1, 1965 and the second will begin March 29, 1965.

Notifications concerning exact times and places of immunization clinics will be carried by local newspapers.

Battle River 4-H'rs Meet Despite Cold

The Battle River 4H Beef Club met at the Gerald McElmoe residence on the evening of this past Jan. 5 .Due to the extreme weather six of th members were unable to attend. Art Edwards D.A. was present to advise and guide the members in parliamentary procedure and the art of calf feeding.

The Secretary Joyce Matthews read a notice from Art Edwards regarding a social evening to be held at 8 p.m. January 22 at the Provost high school auditorium. This evening is sponsored by the Hasting Cedve 4H Club, and all 4H Clubs in the district are invited. All members who plan to attend please notify your club leader several days in advance.

Roger Johnson began the study portion of the meeting by giving a report on Fattening The Club Calf. Richard Milroy's report dealt with the merits of various kinds of roughages, and the feeding of same. In both cases Art Edwards commented on the reports as to facts stated and manner of delivery. The public speaking assignment was given by Marilyn Chave, her topic being "Raising a Pwwa".

After adjournment a lunch was served, during which the record books were checked by Frank Aldcroft and others of the adult committee.

Homemakers Club

The January 6th meeting of the Lougheed Homemakers opened with O Canada and the 4-H Pledge. The roll call was for a cooking or sewing hint. The minutes and treasurer's report were read. The club decided to hire a bus to go to the Ice Capades January 16. To raise money the girls are serving at the Junior High Hospital January 9th. After the demonstrations and talks the meeting was adjourned with God Save the Queen.

NEW HIGHWAY SAFETY TRIANGLE
A new type of highway safety warning device is beginning to appear on Canadian highways, announced the Canadian Highway Safety Council. The new safety red triangle is clearly visible day and night, at a distance of 1500 feet. When a vehicle, for any reason, is stalled on the side of a highway, the safety device is placed 100 feet behind the stalled car or truck. Constructed of aluminum, surfaced with red reflective material, it is always visible, day or night, in any weather condition, and there is no danger of failure from a power source.
The Royal Canadian Mounted Police have equipped their patrol cars with this new safety red triangle. It has been accepted in many countries around the world as the standard highway warning emblem.
The Canadian Highway Safety Council recommends every vehicle on Canadian highways should be equipped with such warning equipment.

Representatives of both the Alberta Government and various provincial organizations from the Public Expenditure and Revenue Committee, now conducting a factual study of public expenditures in Alberta and the manner in which they can be established and financed in the best interests of the people of the province.

A detailed Interim Report of the studies completed by the Public Expenditure and Revenue Committee will be submitted to the government for tabling at the 1965 session of the Legislature. A final report will be submitted prior to the session in 1966.

Restlessness In Peacetime!

To those of us who are getting on in years, the ending of another twelve months without a major war, or some domestic disaster, seems hardly credible. Those who lived their early years in the shadow of World War 1, if they did not participate, certainly endured the depression of the 1930's, and were engulfed in World War 2, and in so living acquired a sense of life's adversity and frugality.

To a growiwng number of younger people, the average person now 15, 20, or even 25 years of age, the affluence of peace seems the natural thing. This group has no actual experience with war or depression, and when told of them, find it hard to regard them as real for his generation. This circumstance is one for which we should all be grateful, and yet like other kinds of good fortune it exacts its penalties from both youth and

One of the penalties is the uneasy feeling among those with memories of misfortune, that it can't last. And if past history is any kind of a guide, an extended period of peace cannot be realistically assumed. For the kind of prosperity Canadians have now become accustomed to, and take for granted, is without precedent in human records.

For that reason, no father, it matters not how well he has done, can look at his son without grieving a bit that he may one day have to die in battle, perhaps on some foreign shore. Or that his son or daughter may some day be reduced to poverty, as he as, by some excess of inflation, or other economic folly.

Time of good fortune imposes an uncomfortable feeling that our values are somehow changing without our willing it. Perhaps not because of peace and prosperity alone, but in becoming too accustomed to these conditions. Many values may endure in essence, but they can be altered by circumstances.

Before World War Two young people were pacifistic while older people were apathetic about traditional values. The war changed that. Today we are in the same old position except that it is an affluent one, with indifference to codes of conduct, the non-material beliefs and the purpose of existence. Few go along any more with the opinion that young people are no worse than they used to be, in spite of increasing delinquency among both rich and poor. This may only reflect a sense of restlessness with material abundance and a feeling of something missing. Nonetheless we feel that the majority of youngsters are neither idealists or delinquents, but simply normal people who will one day grow into perfectly decent adults.

Apathy, The Destroyer

It seems the case, generally, that people work up great enthusiasm for new projects, and will commit themselves to physical and financial obligations to get the thing completed. But once the idea has become a reality, enthusiasm, interest and assistance fade away like the evening sun. A good illustration in point is the Sedgwick Recreational Centre. It operated in fine style last year, showing a profit. There was lots of volunteer help. This year nobody wants to do anything, and unless this situation changes the annual report will be a dismal one. Perhaps the weather isn't helping any, but enthusiasm must be revived; assistance must be forthcoming or the community may wake up some morning to find the place permanently closed. Think it over!

What Else About 1965?

"All the world is a stage and the people in it merely actors". These words from the gifted pen of William Shakespeare were written in an age of which we know little and in which we had no personal contact. Whether he intended them to fit into a era of dramatics is debatable, but one thing is certain — the words are so apt for today, that William could have lived next door. If his words were being penned today they would surely have to relate to the farce-comedy that is taking place both nationally and internationally in this mid-twentieth century. "Never in the history of mankind has intrigue and intoierence been so manifest, with plot laid upon plot in the vain attempt to jockey for position; never before has man mistrusted man to such an extent; never has moral decay reached the extent that is evident today." These are gloomy and foreboding pronouncements, but nevertheless there are things that are being said by men who keep a close watch on affairs.

What these people are saying about present conditions are no doubt true to the situation, but in their summaries of conditions they have not gone far enough to explain the reasons for them, except to leave us with the thought that this is the way people are today. They have neglected to inform us that there are more countries in these times to become involved in world affairs. New nations have been created and each is struggling with the older established nations for recognition. They are seeking equal status and are using any handy method to obtain it. International intrigue is not something new, but has been practiced for centuries. Newly-formed nations are not entirely responsible for conditions, for they were given their independence in many instances with reluctance. Greed has always been one of the major factors in human relations, and will remain thus until the day dawns when humanity to man becomes a fact.

There is little doubt that moral decay is greater today than ever, but the true picture is that per capita it is probably no worse than a century ago. Mankind has been corrupt ever since the day that Eve persuaded Adam to confiscate the forbidden: and he will continue to be so until he "acquires the fig leaf" of his shameful actions.

A SIGN OF SOMETHING?

Union membership in the U. S. dropped by almost one million in seven years, although the labor force increased by more than four million. The attitude of the public towards unionism is much less favorable than it was only a few years ago. It would be interesting to know, but fruitless to guess, what proportion of union dues payers are merely people who must pay dues in order to hold their jobs or come through the battle of life with a whole skin.

★ MACDUFF REPORT

Tory Troubles . . .

OTTAWA — The Progressive Conservative Party as the long weary session of Parliament ground to close in mid-December, appeared to have scored tremendous inroads against the Liberal minority Government. The changes made by the Conservatives in the Commons that led to the Dorion inquiry and the follow-up of which paved the way to resignations, purchases, subsequently and vigorously denied by members of the administration, had the Government in clearway and its prestige smeared.

But as the Party were congratulating themselves, the Tory group in the Commons itself began to fly apart. Leon Balcer the Quebec Conservative Leader, gave a clear indication that he had had enough of John Diefenbaker.

It came as no surprise that the stresses and strains of the session led to a final break between Mr. Balcer and Mr. Diefenbaker. They had shared a front row bench in the official opposition, but in the last few weeks of the sitting Mr. Diefenbaker and his Quebec lieutenant were not speaking to one another.

The sitting of Parliament finished on a Friday night. Before departing from the capital Mr. Balcer talked to newspaper friends. He disclosed that he never felt so at ease about ready to walk out of the Party.

Saturday morning Mr. Balcer's friends had written speculative stories for their papers about his intentions. He was rallied for comment in his constituency of Three Rivers in Quebec. He indicated that he had about made up his mind.

On Sunday Mr. Balcer was back in Ottawa and newspapermen rushed for interviews. He decided to hold a press conference in the lounge of the Parliamentary Press Gallery. There he arrived he was accompanied by Paul Martineau, Quebec Conservative MP from the riding of Pontiac Temiscamingue.

Mr. Martineau declared he was there just as an "interested observer". He explained that his future as a Quebec Conservative would depend upon the final decision made by Mr. Balcer and the Quebec leader in Quebec. Mr. Balcer said that he and Mr. Martineau would meet with the Conservative Quebec caucus in mid-January and that they would then announce their intentions at that time. He indicated that he was ready to set up a Conservative Party if that there were other Quebec Conservatives prepared to follow him into the ranks of an independent Conservative Party.

Since the press conference it has appeared that about one-half of the Quebec Conservative group might sit as independents in the next session. Of the 10 Quebec Conservatives, eight voted for the Red maple leaf flag. The two others were absent. Three Quebec Conservatives, including ex-prime Minister Martineau failed Mr. Balcer's lead in the flag debate.

Just before Mr. Balcer's announced press conference Opposition Leader Diefenbaker held an impromptu press conference in his office. In reply to questions he emphasized that Mr. Balcer was not the "Deputy Leader" of the Party. Later he was to say his door was still open to the Quebec leader. "There is no, nor has there ever been a Deputy Leader. It would take a vote-type in the constitution of the Party for such a position," said Mr. Diefenbaker. Asked to comment on what consequences might flow from the departure of Mr. Balcer he declined. But he pointed out that both Mackenzie King after conscription crisis and Sir Robert Borden at the time of the Navy bill were stripped of much of their Quebec support.

Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Balcer have never been very close. He opposed Mr. Diefenbaker's bid for the leadership in 1956. However, Mr. Diefenbaker entertained, and Mr. Balcer into his cabinet and the Quebec Tory made a good name for himself.

But when the cabinet began to disintegrate in February 1963 Mr. Balcer was one who sought to oust Mr. Diefenbaker and restore the Conservatives' strength by putting in Hon. George Nowlan as a caretaker Prime Minister. But the rebellion was aborted and relations between Mr. Balcer and his national leader worsened.

However, last February a brave attempt was made to patch things up. The Quebec Conservatives put pressure on John Diefenbaker to accept Mr. Balcer as his Quebec lieutenant and deputy leader. They manoeuvered Mr. Diefenbaker into the position that he had no choice but to take Mr. Balcer as his Quebec leader.

Mr. Diefenbaker was prepared to go along with the idea if he could persuade that it worked. But there the Conservative party some support from Quebec. But as the session of Parliament got well under-way it became increasingly apparent that Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Balcer were not finding much common ground on which to stand.

Finally as Mr. Diefenbaker prepared in an all-out filibuster against the new flag. Mr. Balcer reacter strongly. He urged his Conservative colleagues to call off the filibuster. The result was that Parliament was treated to the amazing spectacle of the Quebec leader of the Conservative opposition voting for the Liberal Government to invoke closure in order to end the Conservative fight.

That was about the last straw. Coldly and calculatedly Mr. Diefenbaker sat with his back turned towards his desk mate Mr. Balcer. It was clear that a split was coming. Now Mr. Balcer has made it official. He has been criticized by Conservatives for his manner of breaking with Mr. Diefenbaker. They accuse him of trying another power play to unseat Mr. Diefenbaker.

But it was noticeable at the press conference Mr. Balcer declined each and every opportunity afforded him by questions to comment on Mr. Diefenbaker. He could have raked the Tory leader up and down and sideways, but he avoided the temptation and turned aside all questions regarding his relations with Mr. Diefenbaker and his opinions of Mr. Diefenbaker's actions with the two words: "No comment".

Douglas Harkness, the Conservative Member for Calgary North who is certainly no enthusiastic supporter of Mr. Diefenbaker, was not so reticent when asked to comment on the defection. Mr. Harkness is Agricultural Minister. He expressed the hope that Mr. Balcer and any other Quebec MP who left the Conservative group in the House to sit as Independents would consider to be Conservatives. Clearly he hopes that the time is not far off when Mr. Balcer and Mr. Diefenbaker will be dumped and a new Conservative Leader will attract to the Party all who have strayed because they could not abide Mr. Diefenbaker or his policies.

Memory Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantieo, Hardisty, Alberta)

THE AFTER MATH OF CHRISTMAS

WHEW. Dare we try to "Come up for air", after all the usual holiday festivities and feasts? Perhaps it would be more to the point if I said, "Are we able?"

The mad rushing around generally in the middle of December, sales announcements in store windows, Christmas sale adverts in every paper, special sales catalogues coming through the mails, sales, sales, sales.

We scan most, if not all, of them very faithfully, trying to figure out where to buy, where our money will do the best for us. Then after the gifts problem is solved, we start in on the grocery lists. Can we get a better bargain at the "Corner Grocers" than at the chain store. I am sure there are very few of our readers who do not have these problems every year.

And, added to these headaches is the question of whether we are giving as good as we get in the line of gift exchanges with friends and relatives.

Also will we invite the same crowd as we did last year? There are almost inevitably some of our young folks getting married during the year, so there will be at least one or two extra.

As unknown poet once wrote the following which is an true. "How do I know it's Christmas time? Oh am I ever in a daze? I have so many things to do, I'm absolutely dizzy".

But listen friend. Isn't there a isn't there a grim danger of us forgetting the real meaning of Christmas amid all this rush and scramble? How many parents, or grandparents of today, take time to gather our little ones around us at this time, and tell them that beautiful age-old yet ever new, story of the babe born in a manger so far would gather the little children around his knee and bless them.

After all it is His Birthday we are celebrating. So let us not forget the fact that there would be no Christmas, with its joys and happiness of loved ones gathering around the festive board, if there had not been that miracle of the Babe born in a manger nearly 2,000 years ago.

AMISK NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Homan, Deana and Daryl were in Wetaskiwin New Years eve to meet Richard in route home from Calgary where he had attended the 48th annual session of the Taxis Older Boys Parliament of Alberta held from December 26 to 30. On Jan. 3rd Richard gave a most interesting & enlightening report on the Parliament at Church. He was grateful to the Amisk U.C.W. and the Sunday School for sponsoring him.

Richard was so enthused with his experience that he hopes when the next session meets in Red Deer in December, he can attend again. There were 77 boys in attendance. Don Penman of Czar was also a delegate from Dardisty United Church Pastoral Charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Millet Shantey & Maxine, Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Shirley and Sandra visited the girls parents at Unity, Sask. during the Yule holidays.

News has come from Saskatoon that a daughter was born Dec. 23 to Mr. and Mrs. Phil Griffen - Wadeyne (nee Rosetta Heagler).

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Peddicord visited with their son-in-law Douglas Shirley and family in Edmonton. They were accompanied to the city by Mrs. McDevitt who spent Xmas with relatives.

Mrs. Rita Kiely visited over New Years in Edmonton with daughter Maxine and family.

Berdette Lohse is employed at the pumping station near Hardisty.

Mr. and Mrs. Don McIntyre and three children of Edmonton were visiting with Mrs. Eva McIntyre the Sunday before Christmas.

The O. W. Fredericks were Xmas day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Don Webb and sons at Hay Lakes.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Rud, Shirley and Joanne spent Christmas holidays with their daughter Ann & Mr. at Summerland, B.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stephens arrived from B.C. on New Years day. Ralph has been carpenter on a new home construction for their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Dixon.

Mrs. Charlie Chapman returned Monday from a visit with her parents at Courtenay, B.C. Bruce was plenty of snow and blanket ready on her travel by bus.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom McColm have had their daughter Carol's two young sons visiting, as a son was born Dec. 27 to Bill and Carol Scammell of Wainwright.

REPORTS FROM PARLIAMENT HILL

One of the most important government departments, as far as the future economic growth and development of Canada are concerned, is the New Department of Industry, headed by my friend Red Drury.

In a recent speech at Montreal, he outlined the intended purposes of this new department and in my next three columns, I thought it would be useful if I presented extracts from this speech, so that readers may understand what their government is trying to do through the Industry Department. The first excerpt follows:

"It has now come to be accepted in the Free World that the aims of national economic policy should be directed to the attainment of certain goals: full or nearly full employment; a high and reasonably stable rate of economic growth; rising standards of living; an equitable sharing of national income and relative price stability in the avoidance of inflation.

"For Canada, these goals were first articulated in the White Paper published in 1945 and adopted without reservation by successive governments to this date. It is of course, easier to set objectives than to achieve them, as all of us are readily aware.

"Nonetheless these are the things we have been trying to achieve; and few people would quarrel seriously with their validity, at least in general terms. In any event I take it as given that in our modern free-enterprise economies this is what we should "shoot" for. What is more important is how to go about hitting the target.

"In a 'mixed' economy such as ours, the task of government is to help create the environment which will allow the various sectors of the economy to work together towards these common goals. The government should not, and, believe, cannot accomplish more than this.

"In the final analysis it is up to you, the entrepreneurs of our economic organization, in co-operation with labor, to carry forward the myriad complex decisions and actions which together bring about the level and quality of the economic activity required.

"What then are the things that governments can and should do?

"Clearly there are essentials in our economic environment which governments and governments alone can and do. This is not to say that there are not vital externally determined factors which are neither in your power nor the governments power to determine — availability of natural resources, climate, geography, economic conditions in foreign markets and technological innovation.

"These forces, taken together, have massive influence on whether we will succeed or fail in reaching our objectives. In most of these, we in Canada are at least reasonably fortunate. For the moment we are concerned with those aspects of our economic environment which can be influenced in a significant way by the actions of the federal government.

"In the vernacular familiar more to the economist than to the businessman or politician, the principal economic task of government is to ensure that effective demand for the output of the national economy is adequate to absorb the productive capacity of our economic machine operating at full or near full employment. This must be accomplished and without inflation or intolerable pressures on the balance of payments.

"The main instruments available to achieve this happy state of affairs are of course familiar to you: monetary andexchange policy; fiscal policy, both revenue and expenditure; and commercial policy.

"There are of course, a vast array of other, more specific policies that governments may draw upon to reinforce these broad economic policy tools. Among the principal instruments available to shape the broad economic framework within which the more specific measures are applied, and must more important, the activities of the private sector of the economy can best operate.

"It is here that you the entrepreneurs and managers of industry can contribution to the attainment of our national economic goals."

ANNOUNCING

Two great new ones from Vauxhall bringing new excitement to economy as only General Motors can!

VIVA SEDAN

the 1965 Viva

New beauty! New style! Completely redesigned Deluxe Series interior. Bright new colors. New luxury! Deep carpeting and quality trim. Armrests front and rear. New quietness! Extra soundproofing. New riding comfort! Improved, deeper, bucket-type seats in front. Full-width, "Wraparound" rear seat. Plus many proven Viva features. Genuine ignition! A full 51 inches in the front. High power-to-weight ratio! British 30 hp engine. 10.7 cu. ft. trunk. Rock-bottom economy! Up to 45 mpg. And last, but most certainly not least, there's Viva's low, low price!

As low as $1,863

Suggested minimum retail price of a Viva Sedan (de luxe) delivered at factory, HARDISTY. This model includes delivery and handling charges, one Deluxe Group, whitewall tires and front fender and license are not included.

VICTOR 101 SUPER

the 1965 Victor

It's gracefully wider and elegantly longer. That's how the 1965 Victor 101 gets its brilliant new styling. And lots more is new besides. A new roominess that comes from the new curved glass side windows . . . an extra 4 inches of shoulder room that takes the squeeze out of three-abreast seating. There's new luggage space in the bigger trunk. New year 'round driving comfort in Victor's new heating and ventilation system. New efficiency in self-adjusting brakes. New durability in extra reinforcing and weatherproofing. New extra power too. On the other hand, some things haven't changed. Like Victor's pocket-saving gas economy and delightfully easy handling. They're permanent Vauxhall features. But only first-hand experience could ever tell you all the new Victor 101 has to offer. So don't delay! See and test drive the 1965 Victor 101.

In Memoriam

In memory of a dear husband Louis Johnsgaard who passed away on January 14th, 1963.

Looking back with tenderness,
Along the path you trod;
We bless the years we had with you,
And leave the rest to God.
When evening shadows are falling,
And we sit alone at home;
There always comes a longing,
We wish you could come home.
Friends may think we've forgotten,
When at times they see us smile;
But their little thoughts are heartache,
Which the smile hides all the while.
For hearts that always loved him,
Are the hearts that won't forget.
Lovingly remembered by your wife, Clara Johnsgaard. 35-1c.

OBITUARY

One of Lougheed's loved and respected residents Mrs. Rosalind (Phoebe) Johnson passed away on January 1, 1965 in Lougheed.

Born Phoebe Pearl Hudson August 8, 1888 in Montreal Mt., Montreal, U.S.A. she resided most of her life in the Hardisty and Lougheed districts. In 1938 she graduated from the Royal Alex School of Nursing, Edmonton and received her RN. In that same year she was united in marriage to Ewald Johnson of Oslo, Norway.

Phoebe was a valued and active member of the United Church and Lougheed Rebekah Lodge No. 55 and will be greatly missed by the area where willing to do her part even though failing health restricted her a great deal.

She loves to weave her passing with her husband Ewald, two sons Arne and Kenny of Edmonton, 2 daughters, Mrs. Harry (Hazel) Seville, Mrs. Glen (Beenie) Welting and Linda all of Edmonton, and 10 grandchildren. She was also survived by 2 sisters, Ruth of Sedgewick, Miss of Edmonton and 1 brother in B.C.

Mrs. Johnson was predeceased by her parents, one brother Vera Hill Lenox and brothers Allen, Bill, Edwin and Ralph, and two granddaughters.

Funeral services were held in Hardisty United Church Tuesday, January 5th at 2 p.m. Reverend Lewis of the service, and the choir was in attendance. The Lougheed Rebekah Lodge was present, and conducted the Rebekah Funeral ceremony.

Interment was held in Hardisty cemetery. Kirkman Funeral Home of Lougheed in charge of arrangements.

The beautiful floral tributes and many memorial donations testified to the esteem in which Mrs. Johnson was held.

Many children die in home fires through panic. When a youngster finds himself in darkness and thick smoke, he may crawl away under a bed. The whole family, including the small ones, should be trained to make their way to exits and to the fresh air of safety. Practice will help the plan to become routine in case of emergency.

Strome News

(Mrs. Marie Bester)

My news items this week will be very brief owing to the extreme cold weather; all activities have been cancelled.

Mrs. H. V. Phipps had her daughter-in-law Mrs. Dorothy Phipps, and her two sons Rod and Graeme of Calgary visiting for Christmas. They all went to the McCarvel's at Daysland for Christmas dinner.

Dwight Smith-Gander left last Monday for Vermilion to finish his course at the School of Agriculture. He expects to be away two months.

Mrs. Bellard is a patient in Daysland hospital. Mrs. James Thorburn is also a patient in Daysland hospital; Mrs. Earl McDougall is in charge of her store while she is away.

J. W. Watkins was taken back to Killam Hospital last Saturday. Mr. Art Sloan who spent several days in the Edmonton hospital, returned home on Friday.

Basil Smith-Gander who is working in Edmonton was home for a few days over the New Years week end.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bee and family of Wetaskiwin visited her parents Mr. and Mrs. Paul Williams last Sunday.

Mrs. Brady of Calgary and Judy McCarvel of Daysland visited their Grandmother, Mrs. H. V. Phipps for three days during the holidays.

Mrs. Belle Cramine has taken a leave of absence from the Strome teaching staff. Mrs. Wanda Gold is the substitute teacher.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Mel Ayres (nee Laurel Graham) on the birth of a son.

Dale Mikkelson was home for Christmas and New Year's. Mel Johnson drove him to Viking last Tuesday to catch the train for Camp Borden where he is stationed.

Mr. and Mrs. Einar Johnson and family spent Boxing Day with Mr. and Mrs. Mel Johnson and family.

This is the time of year when the average honest citizen, however bravely he tries to conceal it, is about as warm, lively and full of vitality as the discarded Christmas tree leaning drunkenly against the back stoop, a few morsels of tinsel flattering from its prematurely-yellowed limbs.

Prematurely aged. That's the way I feel in January. Like a woman of 35 who has had twelve children in fifteen years. As though I can't face it again.

By the middle of February, of course, I'll be all cheered up, and will be going around like all the other idiots, blithely agreeing that "the days are stretching out, aren't they?" But right now I look upon life with the wild enthusiasm of a man-eating tiger confronting a bowl of carrots.

First, and worst, part of the January miseries is that hideous struggle to get out of bed each morning. The warm dreamlessness into the grey horror of the day is so desperate a business as only I know. There are days when I'm sure I'll never make it, were it not for the voice demanding help with clothing and breakfast, and the total silence from the other side of the bed.

Finally, having survived the first hour of the day, there's the dash for the car. The final scuttle, in my mind, with Misery's dank fur the South Pole. My difference is that Sir Edmund didn't leave his galoshes at the other end.

There's nothing I enjoy more in the summer, than reading about the simple pleasures of children with tents. Sleighbells, the crunching of snow underfoot, the tempting of trees in the frost, the smiling mid-winter sun on the snow, jolly gatherings of reciprocal seeds about an open fireplace.

Follow who writes these stories never lived where I have found my-self stuck there, past few winters.

The sleighbells are more likely to be fire stones as some poor devil eats the pipes on fire, trying to stay alive. The crunching underfoot is more likely to be your toes breaking off by the numbers, from the right. The easopping is more likely to be the roof of the back porch caving in under the snow. No self-respecting fairy would be caught dead under the January sun, which smiles at you with all the cordiality of a cold fried egg. The gatherings are more likely to be melancholy buddies of taxpayers exchanging cold remedies and talking about their furnaces.

Winter is fun, up until New Year's. After that, you can give it to the Russians. In fact, if they ever invade us, they should do it in January! Half the population is in Florida. The other half is down with the 'flu.

I wouldn't even give this country back to the Indians, in mid-winter. In the first place, they wouldn't take it. In the second, we've handed them enough bum deals in the past.

It's enough to excite your blood when you hear people duck into cuffless sleeves, face you with cold, mean running and wheezing: 'Isn't that a grand winter's day," as they blow on their chaffless fingers, before wiping the steam from their eyes.

Seems to me that we all suffer from an advanced case of self-deception. Just because our ancestors couldn't imagine anything worse than their Irish shanties, Italian slums or Polish villages and came to Canada, we think we're automatically rugged and physically fitted to endure the chilblains and frostbite as we everywhere but in the South.

This country, in January, is fit for Eskimos, alcoholics, and people under the age of twelve. The sooner we recitize it, and demand from the government return tickets to Florida, good for three months, the better.

New Years Baby Born to Dr. & Mrs. DeAbreau

(By Mrs. Doug Kinnee)

Congratulations to Dr. and Mrs. Mike DeAbreau on the New Year's baby girl born January 5th.

Mrs. Martha Young and Donald of Alliance spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Terry Eatmon and Dean.

Mrs. E. McDougal entertained a few friends Saturday evening in honor of Elnor's birthday. They had 3 tables of Euchre.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Kinnee and family, Beverly and Keith James of Edmonton were week end guests at the N. Kinnee home.

We would like to extend sympathy to the family and relatives of the late Julius Thomas and also to the family and relatives of the late Mrs. G. Berger.

The Killam Trowbers were hosts to the Sedgewick 10 & under boys on Sunday and added in a 7-7 tie. They metered to Daysland on Friday and came out on top by a score of 6 to 3.

Mr. Dale Gamme was one of the fortunate ones to be with the Lacombe Rockets who are now on a month's tour of Europe. They plan to be back in Canada January 19th. We wish Dale every success in his hockey career.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Costen and family of Lougheed were in town Saturday to attend the Seehm-Kuipster wedding.

Mr. Nick Schweitzer and Lyn Pillenger have been in Camrose for treatments.

Mr. Steve Umryck and Don Spiller have been working in Vegreville and report they have a lot more snow there.

Did you ever get a phone call from town and they ask you if you've had your breakfast yet? Same chirt, wrong number, wrong neighbor.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. N. Mercer motored to Edmonton to take daughter Beonie who spent the holidays at home, back to the city to resume her studies at the PCY centrust.

Mrs. James Young is now a patient in Flagstaff-Beaver Auxiliary Hospital, Killam.

On Saturday Jody Kobzeter of Strome and Mr. Moe Sorken of Killam were united in marriage. We wish the newly weds much happiness.

Mrs. Andrew Sorenson is holidaying at Vancouver and Victoria. She reports seeing a great deal of snow.

Winter driving entails quite a few extra precautions, such as keeping windshields, windows and headlights free from snow and ice. Snow tires are an aid to safety. A bag of sand and salt will help you over a slippery place where you cannot otherwise gain traction.

Baptist Church

The Women's Missionary Society met on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Pridmore, a good meeting was reported, in spite of the severely cold weather. The devotional consisted of a personal testimony from each member. The main business of the evening was the annual election of officers. The following were elected: Secretary Mrs. Henrik Hantzberg, Vice-President Mrs. O. Dinneleon, Secretary Mrs. J. Krill, Assistant Secretary Mrs. G. Sartmed, Treasurer Mrs. B. Cotton, Miss Enid Treasurer Mrs. Reed, Courtesy Convenor Mrs. S. Coyne, Spiritual Life Director Mrs. B. Frederick, Sunday Chairman Mr. M. Cyr, Pianist Mrs. Richard Secretary, Asst. Pianist Mrs. R. White.

Group No. Two will serve at the annual Fellowship supper at the church next Friday. Reports from all departments of the church will be given at that time.

Young Peoples Group 2 was in charge of the regular Friday night YP service.

Dr. and Mrs. Copeland and family, missionaries on furlough from Ethiopia, were our guests at the Sunday morning service. Dr. Copeland spoke on his experiences there and presented many prayer requests.

Rev. Grymalouki spoke at the Sunday evening service. Special music for the day was supplied by the four Copeland children, Gail and Miss Richard Sorensen. The milder weather on Sunday had a favorable effect on the attendance of both the Sunday morning and evening services.

Mr. George Anderson is a patient in Camrose Hospital, we wish him a speedy recovery.

Mrs. R. Candlish Conducts Dayland U. C. W. Meeting

The first meeting of the new year of the United Church Women was held in the church Thursday night with fourteen ladies present. The new President Mrs. Robert Candlish conducted the meeting. The Devotional was given by Mrs. Gordon Spiller. Annual reports were given by the various committee convenors. Each committee showed good work had been done during the year.

An executive meeting was held Wednesday afternoon to pick the committee leaders for the year 1965 which are as follows: Program Mrs. Arthur Ginter; Finance Mrs. Robert Hanrahan; Membership and Visitation Miss Laura Graham; Manse Mrs. H. E. Carroll; Social Functions Mrs. Gordon Spiller; Stewardship and Recruiting Mrs. G. Boggs; Official Board Mrs. R. Candlish; Board of Stewarts Mrs. G. Spiller; Supply and Social Assistance Mrs. Paul Schnell; Christian Education and Missionary Education Mrs. Cliff Driedger and Mrs. Wm. Hill; Card Convener Mrs. Wm. Coward; Flowers Mrs. John Gerhart and Mrs. Elgin Brown; Press Mrs. George Boggs; Nominations Mrs. R. Candlish and Miss Laura Graham.

The card convener reported sending 9 get well cards in December. Annual supply and social assistance report showed 600 lbs. of mixed clothing had been sent to Korea the past year. A motion was made to cater to the ladies hospital on the 4 S and 6 of March. The President announced that Presbytery will hold their annual meeting in Camrose on February 6th and he would like as many as possible to attend. If you would like to go leave your name with the Secretary. The last Sunday in January the installation services will be held and all officers are asked to attend to be installed in their offices.

A motion was made to start 3 travelling baskets as soon as possible so they can be ready to turn in at our February meeting.

Tea basket is not to be kept longer than three days and articles put in are to be the value of one dollar.

The program was given by Mrs. McNeil on the songs in the hymnary and was very interesting as there will be a new hymnary coming out soon.

Lunch was served by the hostess Mrs. R. Hagerman and her helpers Mrs. Coward and Miss Laura Graham. Lunch committee for February will be Mrs. Schneider and helpers Mrs. Boggs and Mrs. Berry. The ladies are asked to bring add ng'ins and sweet sinnge to the February meeting.

tv Talk

Two of the regular Sunday afternoon features this week promise programs of more than usual interest.

On the religious series, Heritage, at 3:00 p.m. January 17th it's the "Buddhist Way", a program which seeks to give the viewer an introduction to the beliefs and practices of an ordinary Buddhist family.

Then at 4:30 p.m. TIME OF YOUR LIFE departs from its usual format to screen a film entitled The Young Americans. The attitudes and ideals of young Americans between the ages of 15 and 24 will be revealed in their own words. Included are Florida beach bums and New Englandaleaders, Peace Corps volunteers and San Francisco beatniks.

The Ed Sullivan Show will be pre-empted on January 17th in order that the CBC television network may show another documentary in the CANADA 96 series. This one, entitled "The Ironmasters" is a pictorial history of the iron and steel industry in Canada. It makes use of recent historic and still photos and new film of modern mining and processing operations across Canada. The overgrown J. Frank Willis, who first came to national prominence with his on-the-spot coverage of the Moose River Mine Disaster, will be the program host. This's "The Ironmasters" on January 17th at 8:00 p.m.

THE SHOW OF THE WEEK's 2-part big business drama "Who Needs An Enemy", concludes Monday, January 18th at 8:00 p.m. On vacation in Italy, Charlie Bates is called home to face charges of price fixing and is right for his career in the jungle warfare of office politics. John Vernonstars as Charlie with Alexis Willis as Wilted Deeitz, Anna Cameron as Polly, Ed McNamara as McEvoy, and Jack Creley as Cantrell.

Killam CWL

(Mrs. Doug Kinzer)

KILLAM — The January meeting of the CWL was held at the home of Mrs. Nancy Berubuk with 19 members present.

The usual reports were given by Mrs. A. Schaffer and Mrs. A. Schnettler. There were no circle reports. 105 calendars were handed out to Catholic homes by the CWL.

Mrs. E. Cherrens gave a short but a very interesting talk on the Vocational School in Tennessee which she and her husband had visited while on their trip. They also took some slides which the members have asked her to show at the next meeting that is in the Parish Hall.

Mrs. Slavik asked the ladies to help with the singing of the hymns at the mass on Sundays.

The meeting closed with the rosary and lunch was served by Mrs. Jim Slavik and Mrs. Millie Sorken assisted by the hostess.

Search For Talent Coming To Killam

The Killam Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion will present Search for Talent in the Killam Public School Auditorium on Sat., January 23rd. Sid Jones, Legion Secretary, and co-ordinator of the show for the Legion, has advised that there still are several openings for entries in the various talent competitions, and urges prospective contestants to register immediately. Mr. Jones is in charge of registrations at his Real Estate office in Killam.

The Killam Show will declare a winner in each of four competions and the four first place winners will represent Killam and district in one of the regional semi-finals. Mr. Jones points out that; 5 percent of the proceeds from Search for Talent remains with the Legion because of their interest and cooperation in sponsoring the show. Legion members are currently conducting an advance sale of tickets on a seating-for-right chest of Onside Stainless Steel Flatware valued at $50.00. Winner of this valuable prize will be declared at the show. Show time is 7:30 p.m. at the Public School Auditorium this Saturday, January 23.

Supplementing the entertainment provided by local contestents at the ACT (CFRN Search for Talent Show are the Johnny Forest Group consisting of Jim Blader, stage and equipment manager, Joy Martin, Johnny Forest, Frank Hardaway, ventriloquist and Jackie Wallace, [illegible]

Beef Cattle Feeding Lougheed W.I. Regular Meet

LOUGHEED — The regular meeting of Lougheed Women's Institute was held on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. George Riddoch.

The President Mrs. Mervin Sheberg was in the chair. There were 13 members and 1 visitor present.

The WI is to be responsible for the Tuberculin Test to be held in April. A meeting to organize will be held in February when Mr. C. B. Pugh, Director of X-Ray Surveys will be in attendance. It is expected that representatives from other organizations in the district will also attend this meeting.

The Treasurer reported that memorial donations just covered expenses at the cemetery in 1964. There were also donations from non-residents who have family plots that amounted to $55.00.

The report of the Directors meeting which was held at the home of Mrs. G. W. Probst showed that all officers and committee members will carry on for another year. Programs and projects were outlined.

A donation was sent to the Herat Fund in memory of a faithful member, Mrs. Evald Johnson who passed away on January 1st.

The program for this meeting was the Radio Farm Forum. Their topic was "The Farmer's Image". The discussion showed that urban dwellers regarded farmers as being more ethical, more public minded and more friendly than themselves.

The roll call was answered by New Year's Resolutions.

The hostess assisted by Mrs. O. Probst served a lovely lunch.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Harold Probst.

Average Federal Loan To Farmers Is $16,500

In 1964 over twenty-five hundred Alberta farmers voted confidence in the future of Canadian Agriculture by borrowing in excess of 41 million dollars on long term farm mortgage loans from the Farm Credit Corporation. This is an increase of 14% over the amount loaned to farmers in 1963.

The Farm Credit Office in Wainwright under the supervision of the resident Credit Advisor Mr. T. L. Arnold processed more than 240 loans totalling $3764,680 an increase of 130% over 1963. Average loan: $16,806.

The principle purposes for which farmers borrowed money were to develop their farms into economic units by purchase of additional land, land development, improvement and construction of houses and service buildings.

The rapid increase in the number of loans each year reflects the growing awareness of farm operators of the advantages of using long term credit facilities to expand and improve their farming operations.

The Farm Credit Corporation now have an added responsibility of administering the Farm Machinery Syndicates Credit Act. This new Federal Act provides for intermediate term credit to a Syndicate of three or more farmers who wish to reduce machinery overhead by buying and using essential equipment in partnership.

Farmers can obtain information and application forms for Farm Credit and Machinery Syndicate loans from the local Farm Credit Corporation office. Corporation representatives will be glad to assist farmers in planning the best use of their present assets and credit resources. This can best be done during the winter months when more time is available to plan extensive programs.

TAKE CARE, IT'S YOUR LIFE!

The Hon. Gordon Taylor was on the air last week with a government sponsored talk on road safety and the causes of our mounting traffic fatality list. In his address he intimated, as does the Safety League of Canada, that unless Canadians, shake off their apathy and realize their responsibility, somewhere in the neighborhood of 4500 Canadians will die in accidents other than on the roads in 1965. Add to this the hundreds that will die in road accidents, and you have a death toll we simply cannot be very proud of. It could possibly total 10,000. This is a loss the nation can ill afford. Included will be people of all classes and stations in life. Sadly it will include many in the specialized field.

The above estimates do not include industrial accidents an area that is being closely watched, with everything possible being done to cut the rate. What is the big surprise to many is that next to road accidents, the home is the most dangerous location for accidents. Many people think home is the haven where all are safe, but the exact opposite is true. The fact is that we must become concerned with and pay more attention to the area of home, recreation, sports, especially where children are concerned. Too many accidents occur that are avoidable. They should never happen.

NOT BAD FOR ALL THAT

You could probably get odds on any bet that old timers are not even scratching their heads to recall years when the present prolonged cold spell would look like a pleasant chinook in comparison. Yet we have a feeling that they would have to exagerate just a bit, for this has been one of the longest and most persistent cold snaps that many can recall. In spite of this though, we have much to be thankful for. You may distinctly and complain that if you have to live why not do so where you can at least be comfortable. This feeling gets a grip on you, after due consideration you look the world map over. Florida seems like a good place until it is recalled that Hurricane 'Mable' is due next week. California is pretty good until the floods and tear-jerking smog is mentioned. The South Sea Islands have tropical diseases and their neighbors have tornados, England has exposed plumbing and France has De Gaule. Germany has the Wall and Russia appalls. So where can you go to better your life? Stay right here with cold without strife. Don your flannels and old fur hat and conclude you live good for all that. You can lick the cold.

SKUNKS HAVE MORE THAN ODOR!

Those who live in rural areas and have come in contact with the western skunk, have accused it of many things. Poultry farmers know that he can create havoc with the flock, and mothers know what he can do to curious children. The wise person has long since learned to give the little animal plenty of room.

No comes word that the Provincial Government has approved a plan to eradicate the Skunk, as nearly as possible from the Alberta scene. The reason for the all-out effort is that it is believed the animal is a carrier of rabbies. In fact that is thought that the skunk is the main carrier of the disease.

The program will be carried out along the Alberta-Saskatchewan border from Montana north to Wainwright, much the same area where the Rat Control Program has been so successful.

According to Government sources, the rate that Rabbies has spread in Saskatchewan, Manitoba and North Dakota, it could quite possibly make its appearance in Alberta this year or at least in 1966. Pest Control officers who have been so successful with the Rat Control program, will spearhead the Skunk Control. The last known Rabbies case in Alberta was detected in 1956, and it is to be hoped that it will not again make its appearance. We have a certain amount of affection for the lowly skunk, and a lot of respect, but if he is guilty of this latest heinous crime, he must go. The guilty must pay for their crimes.

NOT SO DUMB AS THEY THINK!

In this age of prosperity, say the critics, people are easily induced to overspend in vain attempts to keep up with the Joneses, and to over-borrow in order to do it. To protect us against our own follies, various reformers have suggested control of advertising and various groups have sponsored controls on borrowing and credit buying. But a news story out of Chicago says that a 20-year research study of the public's spending habits indicates, as the report puts it, that "the consumer is not so dumb."

Published as the "Mass Consumption Society," the report is based on the findings of the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan, where George Katona directs the economic behaviour program. It is a book that paints an unorthodox picture of the consumer and his role in the affluent society. The majority of families, the report says, now have discretionary purchasing power, and constantly replace and enlarge their supply of consumer goods — but they are sensible buyers, and not easily swayed by high pressure selling. Most people are not looking for the easy existence, but are motivated by concrete rewards to work hard to improve their life. They are very concerned with security, but mainly expect to get it on their own, and conscientiously save for retirement.

They are increasingly attracted to common stocks as an investment and are careful users of instalment credit. They are resentful of inflation, often refraining from buying when prices advance or are expected to—which is in contrast to the widely held theory that they step up purchases at such times,thus reinforcing inflation.

There have always been those who undervaluing the public's taste and intelligence, have wished to be overly-protective of its welfare. "It is a general popular error," said Edmund Burke, some two centuries ago, "to suppose the loudest complainers for the public to be the most anxious for its welfare."

☆ MACDUFF REPORT

Tax Cuts Hinted

OTTAWA — If finance Minister Walter Gordon fails to come up with some pretty healthy tax cuts in the coming budget Canadians will not only be disappointed but quite reasonably annoyed.

No Finance Minister has ever had such a groundwork completely ready for tax reductions.

It is becoming a yearly event for Finance Minister Gordon to address the Canadian Club in Toronto early in the New Year and give a forecast of what is in store. Mr. Gordon this year was more forthcoming than usual. He announced that his budget deficit, forecast last March at $435 million would be between $160 million and $300 million. Then he added the opinion that a deficit of this size should not be covered by taxation unless it was felt that the state of the economy could withstand and justify the deflationary effects of such action.

After pointing out that if his budget were calculated on a national accounts basis to show the impact of taxing and spending on the economy, there would be a surplus, he continued:

"The facts (facts and figures) show that we have achieved our objective of moving in the direction of a balanced budget under conditions of high levels of employment. They demonstrate that the Government and Parliament — despite our manifold difficulties — have brought the budget under control".

This was the first public disclosure of Mr. Gordon's thinking which he has expressed privately that continuation of a moderate deficit rather than a balanced budget should be the Government's policy for the next few years.

There are three very cogent reasons for this:

1: The population explosion of postwar babies is now creating an upsurge in the labor force of job seekers. It was felt in 1964, will be more forcibly felt this year and will continue at least until 1970.

Merely to keep pace by providing new job opportunities for the new labor force entries will require an increase in national production this year of something the same order (eight per cent) that we experienced in 1964. This would not allow any improvement during the coming year in the unemployment picture.

2. While the prosperity of 1964 is expected to carry on for the 1st half of 1965 both here and in the United States no one has been specific enough yet to suggest that there will be no flattening out in the last half.

3: The final quarter of Mr. Gordon's fiscal year will coincide with the launching of the Canada Pension plan. Since no pensions will be paid for another year the full amount of contributions from workers and employers (approximately $164 million) will be drained from the spending and investment stream. It is true that the Provincial Governments will be borrowing the money but the lag between that borrowing and its expenditure on capital projects could produce a serious deflationary effect on an economy that is being bolstered largely by high consumer spending. The quickest and simplest method of returning this money to the spending stream is for the Federal Government to reduce personal income taxes on a healthy scale at the expense of balancing next year's budget.

This at least, is one logical interpretation of Mr. Gordon's Toronto forecast that the year ahead would call for a continuation and enlargement of present expansionary policies "and the introduction of some new ones".

Mr. Gordon in 1965-66 could reasonably forecast a balanced budget at present tax rates, assuming any normal increase in GNP, Or, as an alternative, he could reduce taxes, budget for a deficit of $250 million to $300 million and borrow this amount in the open market, replacing the demand for loanable funds usually made on the market by private. He cannot expect to cut taxes and balance his budget.

Ottawa's spending budget for the coming year will probably see an increase of about $500 million or so in the neighborhood of $7.7 billion. The Finance Department alone will need an additional $300 million to meet new payments to the provinces as a result of last year's concessions.

The Defence Department, launching its new $1.4 billion five year spending program on equipment will probably spend at least $266 million in the coming year, eliminating any saving achieved in the current year through a cutback in personnel and steps toward intergration of the forces.

In addition to this there will be the usual uncontrollable increases in welfare payments and civil service salaries, the one dictated by population, the other by the Government's policy of annual increments.

Poet's Corner

THE PESSIMIST

There are Optimists you've thought about,
That are only in your mind,
They like to brag about big things,
As they're down in many a dime,
So every time you lend a dime,
To some one you think's your friend,
He's playing you for a Sucker,
And he'll sting you in the end.
Now I know that I'm a pessimist,
That's why I am a cynic,
From this day on I'm going to freeze,
Every nensley nickel I can grab,
You can call me a tight-wad if you wish,
It's coin that talks not gab,
A dollar's a mighty good friend to him who'll stick to a grub,
So spend your dough while you're young
Then they'll say you are a Jay,
If you earn it you're a Miser,
You're to tight to even be gay,
If you're polite you'll be called a Greasy,
If you're honest they'll call you wise,
If you ask for money you have lent,
Then you're one of those mean guys,
You cringe any time you're a borrower,
But that's a poor way to think,
For I'm going to live in honest toil,
And never land in the Klink;
So always live a truthful life,
As God wishes you to do;
Be a real crab and faithful,
And He'll see you thru and thru.
So that's why I'm a Pessimist,
Perhaps a little dirty crab,
I'm not going to be an untruthful Guy,
I'll be honest but grab and grab,
It'll be so dog-gone wonderful,
By the time I come to die;
That the Devil cannot find me;
Until he's used his coal supply.

Yesteryear

30 YEARS AGO
(From the Press of Jan. 17, 1935)

At a regular meeting of the Dayaland Council the secretary reported that there are now 152 names on the property and business tax roll.

With 85 members having signed, the Sedgewick Northern Mutual Telephone Co. Ltd. was formed, taking in all the rural phone lines north of Sedgewick and all together comprising 5 lines.

Messrmes T. A. Barrigan, J. Hamilton, G. Smith, and K. Cairns formed a rink that went to Edmonton on Tuesday morning to enter the Ladies Bonspiel. Mrs. Barrigan is skipping the Stirone rink.

Lougheed and Hardisty played hockey against each other on both occasions the Lougheed boys went home the winners by a score of 5-3.

The Sedgewick Pirates are still unbeaten in the Highway 13 League and have an undisputed hold on first place. Morrison of Hardisty is the top scorer with 16 goals and O. Williams of Stirone is close behind with 13 goals.

20 YEARS AGO
(From the Press of Jan. 18, 1945)

The Lougheed district is very proud of P. O. Steward David Johnstone who was listed in the awards list issued by naval headquarters recently. Dave enlisted in 1940 and was posted to HMCS Restigouche on which ship he served longer than any other man.

The Stirone skating rink was officially opened with skating to music furnished by the Dayaland microphone.

The Sedgewick Young People's Society held a meeting on Monday night at which the new officers were elected. Pres. Carrol Tennis, Sec. Helen McCracken, and Treas. Joan Vickerman.

The Lougheed Mixed Bonspiel got started last week but mild weather has held up the games for several days.

10 YEARS AGO
(From the Press of Jan. 20, 1955)

The Agricultural Committee of the Alliten Board of Trade is planning a coyote hunt in the near future.

The Dayaland hockey team has edged Hardisty out of first place in the Battle River League and the difference is a fellow named Hanrahan. The way Bobby stickhandles lays down passes and sets up plays, he is making the rest of the los gus look sick.

Well, they are at it again. Last Friday Geo. Riddoch had all his carpenter tools stolen from his truck, but as they were seen around it, they will probably learn the hard way that crime does not pay.

Don McMillan has almost got things ready at his new service station at Stirone. The Esso sign is now up.

HARDISTY HI-LITES

Mrs. Alec Redman has left to spend the winter in Florida. Mr. Redman is staying in Calgary with their daughter Mrs. Bob Morgan.

Busy Bees held their first gathering since before Christmas at the home of Norma Zwicker on Wednesday with three tables of bridge in play. Winner for the evening were Barbe Matthews and Vicki Antonia.

Word was received recently of the death of Mrs. O. S. Martin, an old-time resident of Hardisty. Mr. Martin operated a garage in the early 30's and both he and Mrs. Martin were active members of the Oddfellows and Rebekah Lodge. Mrs. Martin was a Past President of the Rebekah Assembly of Alberta.

Proud new grandparents are Rev. and Mrs. Swisher having received news of the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Barry Twibner in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Redman are holidaying in Mexico.

St. Mark's W. A. met at the home of Mrs. Bob Wells on Wednesday afternoon. Though the attendance was small, considerable business was completed, including arrangements for supper for the annual Parish meeting on Jan. 22, and a supper to be served at the Parish Council meeting for St. Edmond's Mission on February 5, and purchase of a new table for the hall.

Mrs. Bill Drager spent a few days in Edmonton visiting her mother and also a brother whom she had not seen for several years.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fagin, a daughter. Congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Elm have moved into town having bought the former Cramer home.

BUSINESS ARRANGEMENTS

As mentioned last week a meeting on "Farm Business Organization and Estate Planning" will be held in Sedgewick in the Anglican Church Hall on January 27th starting at 1:30 p.m. Dr. Glen Furnell, Director of the Farm Economics Branch of the Alberta Department of Agriculture will be speaker.

This meeting is sponsored by the Alberta Department of Agriculture and the Sedgewick FCA.

Mark your calenders now and plan to attend this meeting. Coffee will be served.

FEED AND GRAIN SUPPLIES

Feed supplies are low on many farms already — and its only mid-January. Because this situation exists throughout the province and there is no available feed to be bought anywhere, many farmers are selling their cattle already.

Why the shortage of feed so early? Can we blame it all on the dry year last year or have some of us been getting a little lax because of the mild winters we've had? No doubt a dry summer followed by a herd winter is partially to blame.

The amount of feed an animal will consume on winter feeding can be calculated, and likewise the feed needed for wintering your herd. Why then are we running out of feed by mid-January. I suggest that there is some mis-management in some instances.

Some elevators have supplies of Oats on hand now. Orders for export are coming in now. If any farmer will need oats before spring — now is the time to be acting. A little grain now (even at 72c) may stretch the hay so you can keep your cow herd at home.

FARMSTEAD MECHANIZATION DAYS

Will be held at the Olds Agricultural College, Olds on February 11, 1965 for this district. It will consist of a display of Farmstead Mechanization equipment for Beef, Swine, Dairy and Poultry Production and Farmstead Beautification. The exhibits will be supplied by the various commercial and industry companies who have been most co-operative. Their enthusiastic response and assistance makes "Farmstead Mechanization Days" possible.

The program is scheduled for February 9, 10, and 12th as the 11 — but to prevent crowding Feb. 11 has been set aside for visits by farmers in this area. The program is the same each day and runs from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. daily.

Please let Art Edwards your District Agriculturist, know if you are planning to attend any of the meetings, so arrangements for bus transportation to Olds and return.

Amisk Socials

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Sandahe have gone to Lo gnests at the Flagstaff Lodge at Killam where they are going up after the Yuletide holidays.

The January meeting of the Amisk FUA Local was held on the home of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Mensing with a good attendance despite the cold weather. Mrs. Mensinstead gave an interesting report on the PUA convention held in December at Edmonton. Next meeting is February 3rd at 8 p.m. at the home of Bob Johnson. Ladies are asked to bring lunch.

Ray Lundberg from St. Paul, Minn. was here for several days to attend the funeral of his mother Mrs. E. Anderson on January 11. While here he was a guest of Mrs. Helen Stranks and Mervin. He also renewed acquainiances in town and district.

Among other relatives who came for Mrs. Alexander's funeral Jan. 11th were Mr. and Mrs. Arvid Gustafson, Faye and Adrian; Rev. and Mrs. Henry Hiller; Mr. and Mrs. Elden Gustafson; all from Edmonton; Mrs. Helen Hendrickson; Mrs. Ruby Lysang from Armenia; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sargent and son of Rumsey; Mrs. Paul Lundberg and 2 children and the former Opal Lundberg and 3 children all from Drumheller. After the funeral all the relatives and a number of friends met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Straite for lunch.

Ed Perchaff is a patient in the Wainwright hospital where he is recovering nicely after surgery.

Mrs. Kovsky has returned from Hay River, NWT where she was a guest of her son-in-law and daughter Mr. and Mrs. Eric Shuis and Carol for over two months. Johnny Kovsky motored to Edmonton to meet his mother at the plane.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence MacIntyre of Rossyth visited Christmas day with Mrs. Eva MacIntyre.

Sunshine Club

HARDISTY — The first meeting of the new year for the South Sunshine Club was held Jan. 6 at the home of Mrs. Betty Kelln. Due to the very cold weather there were only 6 members and 1 guest present. Mrs. Grace Kelln acted as President in the absence of Pres. Mrs. Daisy Metz and Vice-President Mrs. Ethel Elm. Roll call was answered by a New Year's resolution. Thanks were received for Christmas fruit, donations and chocolates. Members are to bring quilt block patterns to the next meeting. The hostess prize was won by Mrs. Kathy VanBeneroth. Next meeting to be February 3 at Mrs. M. Patterson. At the close of the meeting a lovely lunch was enjoyed by the

Dayland Council To Assist Arena

(Debree Dalan)

DAYLAND — The regular monthly meeting of the Town of Dayland was held on Monday, Jan. 4th in the town office.

Five Councillors were present with Mayor Fryer presiding.

The financial statement for the month of December was read and adopted.

Mr. M. D. Wold, local co-ordinator for EMO gave a report of the last EMO meeting in Sedgewick. The approximate cost of EMO for Dayland would be about 6c per capita. Local measures would be conducted at Dayland and Sedgewick in radiology and welfare.

Mr. Joe Langhe the main maintenance man was in to complain that kernels used for garbage were too large. Many people used 45 gallon drums. It was decided that Constable Schatz should contact everyone on the list and ask them to obtain smaller kernels. No barrel to exceed 75 pounds in weight when filled.

It was resolved that a $100 per month for the months of Dec. 1964, and Jan., Feb., Mar. 1965 be given to the Dayland Arena Association towards operation costs of the arena.

A letter was received from the Alberta School Division enquiring the selling price of lots 23 to 28 in Dayland. Council instructed the secretary to advise them that the Town is not prepared to give them a price at present.

A letter from Calgary Power Ltd. asked the Town to sign an easement for power lines crossing over lot 20, block 2, Plan LV and in return they would transfer this lot to the town. The Mayor reported to Council that had been done and they were awaiting the title.

It was resolved that a Court of Revision to hear appeals on property assessment be held on February 10 at 2 p.m. in the Town Office in Dayland. The Mayor to pick five councillors to attend court.

Capital Hill Capsules

With no further additions, the hasgover of Government legislation at the end of the second session of Parliament will be more than sufficient to keep a third session busy until Christmas, allowing for only a short summer recess. The new labor code, the Pension Plan and the Legislation to allow Quebec to opt out of shared programs will be completed before this session, to be reconvened on February 16, closes. But this leaves 17 important government bills including the railway bill, the Bank Act revision, the new companies act and insurance legislation. They will all do with the session and will have to be re-introduced.

The Department of National Revenue is taking a firm view of motorists who use their cars for both business and pleasure and claim deduction from taxable income for a flat percentage of the total upkeep. In future they will be required to produce a detailed list of expenses for gas and oil, tires and repairs as well as insurance that can be attributed to business use of the car.

SUGAR AND SPICE
by Bill Smiley

AND WHERE DID IT GET YOU?

Well, here it is mid-January, and another year has slipped down the chute.

It's rather depressing to look back over the 12 months and realize that neither civilization nor yourself has improved one iota, despite the frantic scrambling of the pair of you throughout the year.

Not that I'm admitting for a moment that 1964 was a complete failure. There were some things from which I derived a good deal of satisfaction. For one thing, I remained alive. With the traffic the way it is, and the careless cutting swaths through the ranks of cheap pop ups, just staying alive these days is quite a feat.

In the second place, I hung onto my job. This may not be a material boast. But what with computers, it's like staying alive. Ask the fellow who hasn't managed to do either. Or both. What it meant was that I was able to continue keeping in high style a woman I never met until I was 35, and two kids who think money grows on fathers.

Keeping my job also meant that I was able to keep up my golf score, no mean accomplishment in this age. In fact, I would be confident of my eptitude could "He was a good man. He kept up his payments."

As a matter of fact, I did a little better. Not only did I keep all my interest payments, but I reduced the mortgage on my house by $28.54, leaving a mere balance due of $12,971.36. This was somewhat offset by the borrowing of a couple of U's from my friendly banker, in order to replace the family transportation, which was rusting in the vine, but you can't win them all.

I'm not trying to brag. There were a lot of things I like that I'd do differently another time. That is, if I'd ever got around to doing them. But I didn't, they probably weren't worth doing in the first place. Figure that one out, if you can find an Irishman to help you.

I have already drawn up a program for 1965 that is perhaps the most positive plan, in a negative sort of way, that I've ever come up with. It's composed of all the things I'm not going to do this year.

For one thing, I'm not going to worry so much. My reckoning shows that I spend 30 to 50 minutes worrying last year about trifles. Going like my son running away from home, my daughter going out on her first date, and my wife reporting cancer in a new location weekly. That's enough to put a fellow in the hospital. I am too cut that down to a maximum of ten minutes this year. And it'll be worrying about something worthwhile, like my golf slice and what that's got away.

Another thing I'm not going to do this year is lose so many arguments with the Old Butcher. Last year, I must have lost about four per cent of them. I don't know just how I'll go about it, but I'm determined to cut that figure to one per cent — maybe right back to 95 per cent.

Once again, I'm not going to buy any more gadgets. I'm not going to build that patio that I did not build last summer. Neither going to start putting to bed early nor getting up early; I'm not going to stop smoking cigars. But I might fall me, nor drinking dilite; I'm not going to quit my business just with anything milder than rage; I am not going to pay attention to all the silly people in the world who tell me what I'm not supposed to do.

In short, the next year will be much like every other year. And we could all join heartily in repeating a little slogan for the coming year. It goes,

"Let's stay alive
In '65."

Dayland To Try For Basic Craft Course

Mrs. Pointer received word back on the Basic Craft Courses which are being offered. The schedule for the spring of 1965 has already been drawn up with no openings available at the moment, but there is a possibility there might be some cancellations in leather, basketry, and copper tooling. If so they may be able to schedule a course for Dayland later on in the season.

(Unknown Dissector)

The monthly meeting of the Hospital Auxiliary was held Thursday evening at the hospital with 14 ladies present.

The meeting was opened with the Ukrainian prayer followed by the annual Secretary and Treasurer reports.

A letter was read from the T.B. Clinic asking the Auxiliary ladies to sponsor a picnic. It was decided that we would.

A motion was made that we give another scholarship this year to the girl with the highest marks to go for nurse's training.

A subscription to 4 different magazines for 2 years will be given to the hospital for the patients to read.

It was decided to donate another article to the hospital counter in February.

The meeting closed with a delicious lunch served by the Sisters.

The next club held their annual party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dave McCarroll. The prizes for the Christmas event to Mrs. F. Krocker, and Mrs. E. Twitchell. The low prize was given to Mrs. Breemeister and Mr. J. May who was subbing for Mr. Tom Hilliker.

Miss Lillian McHugh of Bowif started work at the Drug Store on Monday. She's replacing Miss Patricia Candlish who is employed at the Dayland Medical Centre.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. W. Blatz on the arrival of a baby boy.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Makarowski of Calgary had a baby girl, Karen Marie on January 1st in Calgary.

The Knights of Columbus are planning an Oyster and Sturgeon supper on January 31st for the Knights and their ladies in the Parish Church basement.

Miss Jean Stotik is home after working in Hanna for 5 years.

If the course shouldn't be available this spring anyone who would like to take the course in the fall of 65 please notify Mrs. Pointer and let her know so that she may make arrangements for the fall.

Gerry Makarowski who is with the Air Force in Germany was sent to Cold Lake for a 5 week course, after which he had a two week leave over Christmas. He left the International airport at Misku on January 10th. He was to report back in Germany on the 11th. He will be there for 3 years.

To Prepare Atlas Of Alberta For '67

A Joint Canadian Centennial project of the Provincial Government and the University of Alberta is the preparation of an Atlas of Alberta. The Executive Committee of this project has produced a tentative table of contents, copies of which are now available for distribution among interested groups, organizations and citizens of Alberta. The Committee will entertain any comments which may be received following distribution.

The dimensions of the Atlas will be approximately 12"x17", it will contain 125 pages. A variety of map sizes will be used throughout the Atlas, the largest of which will occupy two facing pages.

The Atlas content will cover a variety of subjects including in part, geology and land forms, climate, water, vegetation, soil, fish and wildlife, agriculture, mining, manufacturing and services. Detailed work in compiling data is in progress on subjects for which information is readily available.

Copies of the table of contents may be obtained by writing to the Secretary, Atlas of Alberta, 11320-87th Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta. All pertinent correspondence should also be addressed to the secretary.

The Bible Today

A new translation of the Gospel of Mark has been announced by the American Bible Society in New York, called "The Right Time," it is the first of a series to be issued in the years ahead. Its purpose is to present the message of Jesus and the early Church in clear, direct and vivid modern English.

The translation of the Scriptures is a continuous process and no translation is final," stated translation secretary of the American Bible Society, Dr. Eugene A. Nida. "Our goal is to give every man a copy of the Bible in the language and in the form he best understands."

"The Right Time" is a completely new translation; it reaches out to new readers of the Bible. Obscure and misleading terms are avoided. Published in booklet form, this new story of Jesus will sell for twelve cents.

The title "The Right Time" is derived from the 15th verse of the first chapter of Mark: "The right time has come," he said. "and the Kingdom of God is near!" The King Mr and Mrs Ernest Falla; Mr and Mrs dom of God is at hand."

Lougheed 4-H'ers Visit City Ice Capades Show

(Mrs. Marion Costerior)

A busload of 4H children accompanied by several teachers motored to Edmonton Saturday to see the Ice Capades.

The Groton Goodwill Club met at Mrs. A. H. Armstrongs on Wednesday, January 13th. Due to sickness and poor driving conditions there were only 4 members and 1 visitor there. Mrs. M. Bamburgh was the lucky tea cup winner and the next meeting will be at Mrs. Edith Brandigan's on February 10th.

Mrs. Glen Wehling returned to Edmonton Saturday after spending the past two weeks with her father, Mr. Ewald Johnson.

Mrs. Sverre Nees is a patient in Killam Hospital. Best wishes for a speedy recovery.

Mr. Ewald Johnson left Monday for Edmonton, where he will make his home for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barton accompanied by Mrs. Sandra Hambeogh and Donna of Sedgewick spent the weekend in Edmonton.

Mr. Clarence Barton and boys of Edmonton spent a weekend recently at the home of Clarence's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barton.

A whist drive was held at Goose Lake Creek on January 15th with 12 tables. Prize winners were: 1st Mrs. John Adamson and Harvey Hayward; Lovey Mrs. C. Hepworth and George Hepworth; Mystery Mrs. R. A. Davidson and Stuart Cameron; Traveling Mrs. John Adamson and George Hepworth; Consolation Mrs. John Brummer and Walter Moto.

Next drive at Bella Hill on January 22nd.

ST. JOHN'S WA HOLD MEETING

The regular meeting of the WA was held at the home of Mrs. Clyde Clark on Tuesday, Jan. 12th. Mrs. Chapman was in the chair and there was a good number of members present. A chapter "I Never Asked To Be Born" was read from the book we are studying "Is God At Home ?".

Mrs. Chapman introduced the new study book and a portion was read. The book "This Is My Calling" is a symposium by five Anglican on the whole business of being a Christian in the world and the part the church plays in their lives.

The minutes were read, roll call and Financial Statement presented.

The annual secretary's report and treasurer's report were received.

Thanks were read from the people to whom Christmas gifts had been sent.

Arrangements were made for the Board of Trade dinner on January 20th and it was also agreed to enter for a banquet on February 22rd.

Matters to be brought up at the annual meeting on February 18th were discussed.

Mrs. Zwack will clean the church in January.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. F. W. Weber on February 2nd.

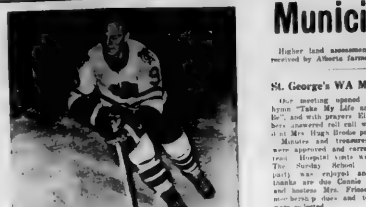
LEGION LADIES MEET

The January meeting of the Sedgewick Legion Auxiliary was held on Wednesday with 14 members answering roll call with a tax level for the kitchen. The Treasurer's annual report was read showing a good financial statement for 1964.

Mr. Sparrow advised that playground equipment is ready.

Mr. Elmer Johnson, Reno Commander installed the 1965 officers. It was decided to cancel a banquet for the afternoon Ladies Bowling League the latter part of May.

The Polio Drive is to be conducted on February 10th. Have your porch lights on. Different ways of raising money were discussed. A social hour brought the evening to a close. A bake sale was planned for Jan. 23 in Abbott's Store.



AIMING AT A RECORD. Chicago Black Hawk left-winger Bobby Hull is out to smash the 50-goal record he now shares with Rocket Richard and Bossy Boom-Boom Geoffrion. So far this season, Hull has been averaging a goal a game, and if he keeps it up, he could have a spectacular 70-goal season.

Treated Grain Violations Reported

J. B. Gurba, Supervisor of Crop Protection and Pest Control with the Alberta Department of Agriculture, stresses that left-over treated grain must not be sold to elevators.

Mr. Gurba says that farmers and grain handlers should thoroughly clean out grain bins, truck boxes and augers to ensure that treated seed does not contaminate grain destined for human or animal consumption. Meat from animals which have eaten treated grain can contain harmful chemical residues

Many Alberta farmers are benefited that the odd load of treated grain is still being delivered to elevators despite repeated warnings. The Board of Grain Commissioners report that over 200 grain cars, all loaded at terminal positions during the 1963-64 crop year, were found to contain some chemical residues from treated grain. Farmers themselves are advocating stiff penalties for anyone selling contaminated grain. Alberta Wheat Pool delegates passed a resolution at their annual meeting recommending a minimum fine of $200 for this of fence.

Last fall several thousand bushels of grain were condemned by Board of Grain Commissioners' inspectors because one load of treated wheat was delivered to a grain elevator. Investigations revealed the culprit and a charge was laid. The elevator agent lost his job for failing to detect the treated grain and the farmer was convicted of carelessness and fined accordingly. If civil action had been taken, he could have been liable for damages equal to the amount of grain condemned.

Cases like this should be a warning to farmers and elevator agents that treated grain must not be used or sold for human or animal consumption. Mr. Gurba says left-over treated seed should be properly stored and used the following season.

Municipal Taxes

Higher land assessment notices received by Alberta farmers in several municipalities do not necessarily mean that their taxes will increase proportionately

Henry Gerlach of the Assessment Branch of the Department of Municipal Affairs, says that if the municipal budget does not call for increased expenditures, the mill rate can be proportionately lowered to leave the average tax bill un hang ed.

The main reason ratepayers have received higher assessment notices is that the base value for farm land has increased by one-third From 1948-57 it was $25 an acre, in 1958 it was raised to $30 an acre and now it is $40 per acre This base value is based upon the most productive land in the province .Poorer land is given a proportionately lower rating.

Land assessments, says Mr. Gerlach, are based upon the productivity of the soil. This information is obtained by examining the soil profile. Each component of this profile is given a percentage rating in relation to 100 per cent for the best land. Black soil in the Edmonton-Olds-Vegreville triangle is given a 100 per cent rating for the soil zone component. Other soil zones are rated according to their relative productivity in relation to the black soil. Factors considered in determining the soil profile include depth of top soil, texture of the soil, nature of the subsoil, topography, degree of stoniness and miscellaneous factors which affect the root of production.

The percentage of each of these factors determines the productivity of the soil in relation to other soils in the province. The final percentage rating is converted into dollars for assessment purposes by using the standard value of $40 per acre for the most productive land

Mr. Gerlach says that legislation was passed permitting municipalities to be reassessed every seven years. The present assessment program is being carried out for two main reasons. Many municipalities, which were enlarged in 1951-52 to re-incide with school boundaries, are taking on parts of other municipalities with different assessment levels, which will be reassessed within their new boundary lines. The program was also initiated to coincide with the implementation of a new manual of rates for improvements in urban municipalities.

Mr. Gerlach points out that the assessment notices are open for inspection by any farmer for 30 days after assessment notices have been received in the area. Any ratepayer who is dissatisfied with his assessment should compare his rating with those for similar lands. Most municipalities keep the assessor in attendance for this period to explain assessment methods and to help ratepayers verify the accuracy of their assessments

St. George's WA Meets

Our meeting opened with the hymn "Take My Life and Let It Be", and with prayers Eight members answered roll call with prayers of Mrs Hugh Brodie presiding.

Minutes and treasurer's report were approved and correspondence read Hospital visits were made The Sunday School Christmas party was enjoyed and special thanks are due Connie Matthews, and hostess Mrs. Friesen. W. A membership dues and tea monies were collected.

Our study book 'This Is My Calling' was introduced for study by Connie Matthews.

Next meeting will be at Basse Brodies' Meeting closed with The Lord's Prayer and lunch was served

TRUCKER'S CLINICS

"Since 85% of our traffic deficiencies involve human failures and less than 15% involve the vehicle, the highway, the weather and other contingencies, it's clear where the emphasis must be placed", said J. R. Arden, Chairman of the Commercial Vehicle Safety Committee of the Alberta Safety Council, today.

Mr. Arden, a Vice-President and Western Manager of one of Alberta's largest trucking fleets, H. M. Tymko and Sons, was commenting on the safety council's Fifth Motor Fleet Supervisors Course which will be held March 15th to 20th at the Banff School of Fine Arts.

Ralph L. Thomas, M.Ed., of Penn State University, who has conducted three of the council's previous four courses, will again be in charge of instruction. He will be joined by a team of outstanding fleet men from Alberta to form a highly qualified cadre of instructors

Mr. Arden pointed out that work, management control of driver performance, accident cost of accidents and what they mean to the fleet, terminal operations, are but a few of the topics which will be discussed at the week-long course.

Arden added, "Substantial benefits from increased efficiency should be possible for any fleet, whose members are trained in the basics of driver and vehicle control".

The cost of the five and one-half day course is one hundred dollars which includes room and meals.

According to Manuel Service, Inc. "There isn't any question about the fact that training and testing are the proper method of accident prevention"

A motion was made to pay $8.35 for book of Sermons, addresses and collection, by Monsignor MacLellen and draw numbers in book (pay what you draw). A thank you card will be sent to Miss Anne Krahn for Christmas flowers for the Alter. A repeat mass was offered for Mrs. Bengel. It was decided to hold a strawberry tea and bake sale Febrotry 19th also a food hamper will be raffled.

Mass intentions for the month of Jaunary will be for protection of families in honor of the Holy Family.

Eleven rosaries for peace were reported and 105 sick calls. Mrs. W. Kissel won the attendance prize. Lunch was served by hostess and assistant. Mrs. W. Kissel and Mrs. E. Kreutch.

RESOURCEFUL FARM WOMEN IN THE HARD YEARS

After reading a very interesting article on "ingenuity" of the Prairie farm women in the early years, I, too, began to look back to those Thirties.

We who lived at that time, really resorted to some pretty ingenious substitution, such as using rags or brown paper for curlers for our hair, and as I remember with quite satisfactory results too.

In these a women who, after washing several pairs of her man's overalls which have been patched, especially on the front of the legs, until one can scarcely see the original cloth, then cut the backs of the legs of the overalls and by piecing them together, it often took several pairs, and make a pair of jeans for the little fellow. Ironically enough too, we seemed to derive quite an amount of satisfaction in doing this, as it savored of saving.

There were five boys in our family and I am sure the linen in all their leather pullover mits were made from the tops of old, worn-out woolen suits.

Now, even the little girls' stockings are of nylon. Of course nylon was not heard of in those days although the very best-to-do women had possibly one pair at least one or two pairs of silk hose. But we farm women were quite contented with cotton stockings for best as well as for every day. They cost 80c a pair and even then some of us had to patch them up to make them do a few more wearings.

For scours at school, the young story would cut off a piece of the worn-out sole of those white-soled rubbers the men used to have. And they declared it worked just fine.

Yes, we too, with hundreds of other farm women then, used flour sugar, and even salt bags for towels, pillow cases, underwear, pajamas etc. and thought nothing of it. It was all a matter of making do with what we had on hand at the time, wasting nothing that could possibly be made useful. It was really no credit to us, we just had to or go without.

Then there was the floor wax. Though we were poor, we did like to keep what we had looking nice and that included shining our floors. Most used bees-wax to mix with coal oil to put on the floors we were missing. Using a cloth over the top of the waxed polish. This wax was never wasted. It would be lifted off the top of the pickles, and after being rinsed off, as carefully put away to be roasted and used later with a bit of bees-wax (or oil) as floor wax. Believe me, it really gave the floors a good shine, too.

Our family loved home made grape-nuts, made by placing two cups of wheat on a big tea-towel, two people taking a hold of the corners, and gently tossing it about outside in the wind. The chaff would thus be blown out, then the wheat was placed in a shallow pan in moderate oven with bit of brown a moderate oven with a bit of brown sugar, cream, and a shake of salt, and stirred occasionally. Good? It was delicious. Of course, before eating it, it had to soak for about five minutes in cream to soften a bit, same as one does with the commercial product.

We did our own shoe repairing too, with nine pair to keep up, and patched our rubbers with the patches. We did these things because there was no alternative.

We very likely would have enjoyed having some of the present-day luxuries but what you never had, you never missed. We had no luxuries, but with ingenuity we were able to come up with the necessities.

KILLAM NEWS

(Mrs. Doug Kinser)

Mr. and Mrs. Jens Lindseth spent part of the week end in Saskatchewan.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Borgel have moved into their new home on the west end of town.

Mrs. G. L. Palmer was in Edmonton over the week end.

Mrs. Ellen Rosso and her girl friend Miss Sandra Clark from Edmonton S. C. were holiday guests at the J. Rosso home.

Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Calvert (nee Dorothy Bennett) and family of Spirit River were recent sellers at the Georgia Bennett home.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester McMahan held their farm equipment last Saturday at the Auction Market and plan to live in Edmonton.

Baptist Church

Young Couples Club was held at the home of the Jack Dienes with a goodly number of local as well as outside couples present. The February meeting will be held in Alliance with a panel dealing with the subject "Making Christianity Relevant To Contemporary Needs".

Our annual fellowship supper was held Friday and the reports from the various departments of the Church showing an overall increase. The S.S. registered an average increase per Sunday of thirteen. Missionary giving was up by nearly $1,000. Our three suggested projects for 1965 are: A new manse; improved heating for the church; and paint for the exterior of the church.

The fine weather manifested its corresponding affect on the attendance at both Sunday Services. Miss Dorothy Davidson, missionary to Haiti on furlough, was guest speaker and showed slides on her work, depicting poverty, ignorance, and real need. She is engaged in Medical Work with the handicapped.

Mrs. George Smolnik is a patient at the Killam Hospital and Art Bergeson in the Camrose Hospital. We wish them both a speedy recovery.

Jaunary white sales are at hand but before you take advantage of them be aware of these points:

Your linen requirements.

Size. Remember that labelled dimensions for sheets and pillowcases as a rule refer to torn not finished size. Most sheets have a total hem of 4" to 5". Pillowcases have to 2" or 4" hem. In addition, allow for shrinkage when considering size. The label should tell you the percentage of shrinkage you can expect. Any article that has no expected shrinkage of more than 3% is of inferior quality.

Weave. Hold the sheet up to the light to check evenness of weave and stretch, a portion of the sheet with your fingers to test for slippage. The greater the number of threads per inch the better. 200 count Percale, 180 count and and 140 count muslin offer maximum durability.

There also should be a balance of warp and filling threads in one square inch. For example, a sheet labelled 180x100 is of better quality than one labelled 200x97.

Weight. Feel the sheet to get the weight you want. Heavier sheets usually have a longer life. However check the amount of sizing or dressing. Rub a corner of the sheet between your fingers or over some lining cloth. The sizing will come out in the form of white powder. Poor quality sheets may have quite a lot of sizing to give them body and conceal their uneven weave.

Finish. Hem should be straight with the edge of hem on the thread of the material. The stitches should be 12 or 14 per inch and backstitched. The selvedge should be reinforced or taped.

Flaws. When buying seconds never accept a sheet with a "front" (a bridge of unwoven yarn), a "thin bar" (a band of insufficient yarn) a torn selvedge a "wrong dress" (improperly drawn lengthwise yarn) or a knotted yarn. Other flaws are less serious and may only affect appearance.

If inspection of linens is not possible in the store due to sealed wrappings enquire about merchants return policy before purchasing.

Color. Check label for colorfastness. Colored linens cannot be bleached or dried in the sunshine. Colored and white linens should never be laundered together because colored lint is shed.

Fit. Fitted sheets must be reinforced. Elasticized corners, especially wedges, are preferable, as are flat corner seams, rather than those in which the edge is taped over.

Price. Sheets in price within type of sheet (for example, linen versus muslin) rather than by brand. The lowest prices are usually found under private label brands.

Remember — Before you invest — Investigate! Often there are goodness bargains to be had, but sometimes lower prices denote inferior quality linens.

New Museum in Calgary

The Glenbow Foundation, Alberta Government Museum, the first project of this type to be developed under a joint government-private foundation program, was opened recently in Calgary.

Under the terms of an agreement between the Glenbow Foundation and the Government of Alberta, the province was to provide the premises and some financial assistance, while the Foundation would be responsible for the exhibits and administration of the museum.

The building chosen to house the new museum was the old resort house in Calgary. The Alberta Department of Public Works refurbished the premises to accommodate the displays to the best advantage, and provided cases to house the various exhibits.

The Provincial Secretary's Department, through its Historian, Dr. Brown, is providing financial assistance in the form of an annual grant of $35,000.

The Glenbow Foundation began work on the museum in May and had all the displays ready for exhibition by early night recently. The exhibits are complete and extensive, ranging from selections from the collection of Field Marshall Viscount Wolseley to primitive arts of many countries. Other displays include the story of firearms; collections of butterflies and moths, military equipment, coins and bank passes, ivory, porcelain and argillite work from Queen Charlotte Islands and America; the story of the Plains Indians; pioneer days in the Canadian West Coast Indians and the Eskimos; and relics of the pioneer era. Mineralogy, mineral history, and the story of how man came to the New World are also features of the museum.

The first experiment in government-private enterprise co-operation in the cultural field, the Glenbow Foundation - Alberta Government Museum has proved to be an outstanding success.

Mrs. Ernest Hall and daughter Mary Renahan have moved into the former Dave Walmsley residence.

Mr. L. Theore returned home Saturday from Killam Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Christenson left for Camrose on Saturday for a few days visit.

Miss Marilyn and Carolle Taylor were home last week end and to celebrate their father's birthday.

Knox UCW Holds Meeting

(Mrs. Doug Kisner)

KILLAM — At the January meeting Mrs. R. Wagnaut led the worship period and Mrs. John Procter gave the study. It dealt with life in Brazil revealing that the seventy million people of mixed races have become thoroughly integrated. Religion too has become so integrated that in many cases it is a mixture of paganism and Christianity. Only twenty percent of the total population have some Christianity.

Annual reports were given. There were seventeen members in 1964 and the average attendance was 13.4. The group catered for weddings, showers and meetings. Members canvassed for the Red Cross, the British and Foreign Bible Society and helped in the annual fall church canvass. Donations were made to the cemetery fund, to the 'Heifer for Japan', towards 3 months salts to rehabilitate for deported church members and to the United Church A. A. They helped sponsor two girls for the Easter short courses and one boy for the Boys' Parliament. Used clothing was shipped twice during the year to Korea and twice to All People's Mission. The UCW assisted in the World Day of Prayer. They aided the CGIT, sent out cards to the hospitalized, gave flowering bulbs for the shut-ins in the winter and made many calls at the hospital and homes, made presentation of Bibles to newly weds, provided for part of the expense of repainting the interior of the manse and met a portion of repairing and tuning the piano.

Committee members were named for 1965. It was voted to hold a St. Patrick's Tea. The January meeting will be held in the Church with the roll call being a stamped 'Get Well' Card.

NEW METHOD; MAIL OUT FORMS

The massive mailing of six-and-one half million income tax forms direct to taxpayers is scheduled to begin on January 8th. This is a new method of distributing tax forms according to an announcement from the Department of National Revenue.

In addition, farmers and fishermen, for whom a special "Farmer's and Fisherman's Guide" is printed, will be receiving these about one week before they get their tax forms.

Every taxpayer who filed last year will receive a personalized tax form with his own name, address and identification number, together with an extra copy to keep for his own records. Included will be a tax guide, a brochure explaining the new procedure and a return envelope.

Taxpayers should begin receiving their forms in Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick beginning January 12; in Newfoundland January 16; in P. C. Alberta, the Yukon, Sask., and Man. beginning January 18; in Quebec beginning January 19; and in Ontario January 19.

In the past, employee taxpayers get their forms from their employers. Self-employed people, including farmers and fishermen, picked up their forms at post offices.

New taxpayers, taxpayers who spoil their personalized returns or who do not receive them because they may have moved during the year, may get extra forms at their local post office or district taxation offices.

Mr. Furry Hamilton who has been visiting his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cooper left on Tuesday to return home to Victoria, B.C.

Mr. Fred Sparrow left on Saturday for Red Deer to visit son Donald and family and also be there when his son Dick and family arrive, who have been transferred from Stony Plain to Red Deer.

Mr. Tom Blackman of Sedgewick and Mrs. Mary Blackman and two daughters of Edmonton were all Sunday visitors with Mrs. Henry Blackman and family in Killam.

Mr. Grant Davis of Wainwright visited his parents on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward of Calgary spent the week end with their daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Edwards and family.

On Saturday evening January 16 Mrs. Olive Galletly entertained at open house wedding reception in honor of her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Galletly. Many relatives and friends called to extend their congratulations and best wishes to the newly weds. Following the reception a wedding dance was held in the Sedgewick Community Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Bilicz were Sunday callers in Wetaskiwin at the homes of their daughters and families.

Central Highlites

The cheese group in Central has to be given credit for getting boys into the group. Three boys attended each of the meetings held on Wednesday and Friday last week.

The Jive Club still hasn't succeeded in getting some to their noon hour dances. A few boys have bought tickets but none of them have the guts to go and dance in a room full of girls.

SPORTS

The Central girls are still busy playing basketball after they won the trophy at Killam. They played in during the last few months. On Friday evening the girls played Camrose Composite Girls at Central. The game was Exhibition game but the girls still played with the usual enthusiasm. The final score of the game was 22 to 68 for Central. The girls have made their way into the Provincials but right now are playing exhibition games and keeping fit for the Provincials.

There is also a girls' hockey team at Central. They played last Wednesday evening in Sedgewick against Sedgewick girls and lost with a score of 3 to 1.

Hold Statutory Meeting -

M.D. Flagstaff To Buy Three Motor Graders

SEDGEWICK — Since the turn of the new year the Council of the Municipality of Flagstaff has been busily engaged in institutional and business meetings. It is now possible to get things lined up for another big year ahead.

On January 6th the Statutory meeting was held at which time the various committees of individual council members were laid out and agency appointments made in all the various committees. Councillor Geo. Matthews was re-elected as Reeve for 1965, with Mr. Ed Keehl as Deputy Reeve for the ensuing 6 months. Members of the various committees are as follows: Ernest Steadman (Div. 2) Elzear Ed-man Fenton (Div. 3) Galahad; Geo. Matthews (Div. 3) Headley; Andrew Sorenson (Div. 4) Killam; Allen Morgan (Div. 5) Heisler; Ernest Keehl (Div. 6) Sedgewick and Alex Blatz (Div. 7) Dayland.

Appointments to represent Council on the various boards for 1965 are: Stroma Seed Plant, A. Blatz and A. Sorenson; Lamphard Ed-mann, George Matthews and E. Keehl; Alliance Seed Plant, E. Fenton and E. Steadman; Health Unit No. 10, A. E. Morgan; Agricultural Society, (Each with-man), E. Steadman, B. P. Clbart and N. Nickerson.

Mr. Brian Lee is the Supervisor hired by the Board and E. Beuchert is Secretary. Regional Foundation Lodge representative is E. Keehl, Court of Revision members are G. Matthews, A. Blatz, E. Steadman, E. Keehl and A. Morgan; Welfare Council, Coun. Geo. Vanderwoude; Assessor H. Harries and Assessor; Civil Defence Director, Mr. Lee.

Regular meetings of the Council were set for the second Wednesday of each month, and the annual reappraisers meeting was fixed for March 4th at 1:00 p.m. in the Community Hall at Sedgewick.

Mr. Lee was hired to check rate-payers who have purchased a modular/concrete for $52.50 must present itemized statements and not receipts showing date of each service, name of the service, description of service and amount of each service. These statements will be retained by the office for audit purposes.

The October 13th a further meeting was held to consider requested tax sale by three landowners. From this came the acceptance of the bid submitted by Ferguson Motors Ltd. three Champion D800 Motor Graders with snow plows and wings. This was the best bid and met the fastest delivery schedule. The bid was $64,285, with trade-in of four old motor graders as $37,462. These graders will go to Divisions 7, 6 and 1.

The Recreational Facilities Grant on behalf of the Killam Girls' Club in the amount of $600 was received from the Provincial Government.

Council also learned that the Government is considering putting in some underground telephone lines throughout the Sedgewick district.

Flagstaff M.D., through the Council, has applied for the Government Grant for restauration of the road north of Dayland, under the Natural Resources Roads Grant. It is possible that this enterprise may get under way sometime during 1966.

Of some social interest to members was the announcement from the County of Lodge that the annual Central Alberta M. D. Banquet will be held at Lodge on February 18th, and some of the Councillors are busy out getting in shape for this competitive event.

Ways and means are being sought for housing motor graders in the Divisions where they will be located. At present these valuable machines are of necessity left open to the whims of the weather.

Constable Paul Vanderwoude interviewed the Council to discuss the fact that some stop signs in the M.D. are not presently covered by by-law. Also discussed were several aspects of policing in towns and villages. He stated his opinion also that rural beats should be applied in gradual stages.

It is the intention of the Community Press to carry regular monthly releases of activities of the Council of Flagstaff M.D. in the interest of area ratepayers.

School Board Meets

The regular meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Killam Protestant Division was held with Trustees Grant, Nichaus, Clemston, Polyhapko and Beuchert, along with Supt. Bruce in attendance.

Payment of accounts numbered 146 Nov. to Dec. 96 were approved and authorization given for payment of bills Dec. 99 to Dec. 144.

Accident reports on Robert Emmer of Dayland and Judy Danielson 'of Sedgewick were filed as no negligence was evident.

Outside service plugs are to be installed at the schools at Stroma and Heisler. Approval was also given for the purchase of a duplicating machine for the Lougheed School.

It was approved that a maintenance allowance of $36.00 a month be allowed George Crumlen of Dayland while his son Ronnie is attending Pre-Employment classes in Sedgewick.

Miss Carol Meyer was granted a leave of absence without pay from teaching duties at Heisler to April 30th.

Extensive remodelling will be undertaken in the Dayland and Heisler Industrial Arts room to meet standards of the new program outlined by the Provincial Supervisor.

The South Bend Colony has been informed of the recommendation of the Buildings Branch requesting crawl space ventilation and proper screening of the south window of their new school.

The Town of Dayland has been requested for a selling price on Lots 23 to 30 inclusive in Subdivision of Dayland.

The salary of the Janitor at Alliance has been increased by five percent to bring it in line with rate established a year ago.

Bids have been requested from plumbers at Sedgewick, Killam and Dayland for installation of Westco or equivalent equipment.

Correspondence was reviewed from: Dept. of Education re dissolution of Oakland Consolidated School District; Barbara Nielsen for $15.00 Scholarship; Town of Dayland re Amusement Notice; South Bend Colony re opening of school; Motor Vehicle Branch re Examinations; Dept. of Education re Isolation Bonus Pro teacher of South Bend Colony.

Y S Cediters Plan "Thompson Night"

The Sedgewick - Coronation Young Social Crediters met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Barry Gascoyne on Tuesday, January 19, Mrs. Daniel Lewis delivered a very interesting report on the Young Social Credit convention held at the Capri Hotel in Red Deer in November. A letter was read from Dr. Bob Thompson asking us to write again at a later date, when he would be able to advise us when he would be available to be our guest speaker for a "Thompson night". The motion was made that we write to him again to see if he would be available for one evening before the first week in April. Program, advertising, and decorating committees were nominated to begin making plans for the "Thompson night" program.

A valley ball practice was called for Saturday night, since we are planning to challenge Rai Deer for

LOUGHEED 4H HOMEMAKERS MEET

LOUGHEED — On January 20, the Lougheed Homemakers began their meeting with O Canada and the 4H Pledge. The roll call was a sewn finish or a recipe to exchange. After the secretary's minutes, a skating party to be held at the next meeting was discussed. A thank you note was to be sent to Mr. H. Probst for his efforts in making arrangements for the ski tow and the Ice Capades. It was decided to destroy some books and a roaster to the Lougheed Curling Club. After some short talks and demonstrations the meeting was adjourned with God Save the Queen.

Kinsmen Zone Play-offs Here This Week End

SEDGEWICK — This weekend the Kinsmen Club of Sedgewick will host teams from seven clubs who will be here to compete in the zone curling playoffs.

The final draw will get under way at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday afternoon and the curling will continue into the evening and commence again at 9 a.m. on Sunday morning. The winner and zone representative will be decided late Sunday afternoon and will go on to represent this zone in the provincial playdowns.

A banquet for all curlers and visiting dignitaries will be held at 6 p.m. Saturday evening and a special Kinsmen breakfast is planned for Sunday morning.

Rinks are expected from Provost, Wainwright, Vegreville, Vermilion, Bonnyville, and Grand Centre as well as the local club.

Tom Sparrow, Gord Paterson and Al Smith are the committee in charge of the Bonspiel and have made arrangements for the many activities. Kinsmen John Brandigan is official trainer for the Sedgewick rink made up of L. Bamhaugh, G. McPherson, G. Neville, and M. Lewan and has been arranging some stiff competition to get the boys in shape for the playdowns.

Marvin Bruce Talks To B. of T.

SEDGEWICK — The first meeting of the Sedgewick District Board of Trade was held on January 20th in the form of a regular supper meeting, in the Anglican Church hall, with the WA catering. There were some 23 members and visitors present.

A report was given on the seniors' gas situation, and it was stated that the wells are completed with the production capacity and gas quality above expectations. It seems that not only the cold weather of the past few weeks has held up further progress, but the fact that the two wells are owned by separate companies and they are finding it difficult to come to an agreement.

The Board passed the payment of the annual dues for membership in the Provincial Chamber, as well as other outstanding accounts.

The President, Mr. C. Bolduc, was requested to appoint a Nominating Committee to bring in a slate of officers for the ensuing year, to be elected at the annual meeting in February.

Mr. R. Bruce introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mr. Marvin Bruce, Supt. of Schools for the area.

Mr. Bruce spoke on the new Pre-Employment program which has been introduced in the Division, more specifically at Sedgewick. "For the first time in their lives", said Mr. Bruce, "the boys and girls in these classes are achieving success and enjoying school." This modified junior high school program is specifically designed for these students who cannot compete in the regular junior high school academic program, and who need a pilot program here, for Alberta.

adopted programs in such subjects as mathematics, social studies, science, remedial reading, and in home economics and industrial arts. Along with this broad program, social behavior and good citizenship are stressed. Only those with good attendance records, and who are not disciplinary problems are accepted, and there is no compulsion to attend. Students must be nominated by their principal and application approved by parents.

At various times businessmen are invited to speak to the students on possible employment, and students are taken on field trips to introduce them to employment possibilities.

Mr. Bruce was sincerely thanked for his informative address in bringing to the attention of Sedgewick Board members the introduction of a pilot program here, for Alberta.

The Pre-Employment class visited the Community Press last week and our camera caught part of the group watching linotype operator Dick Zecker running the machine. Dr. Hamley Speaks At Curling Banquet

KILLAM — The annual Massey-Ferguson sponsored Curl-O-Rama got away to a flying start on Thursday of last week with 13 rinks entered from the local bonspiel area. One or two draws were run off during the morning, following which all curlers and lovelyd guests along with personal from the sponsoring company enjoyed the annual banquet. Curling was resumed in the afternoon and it is expected the affair will wind up with a winner being declared by Saturday night.

The winner of the local dealership classic will go on to Stettler for the District Dealership playdowns and from there to St. Paul for the Northern Alberta finals. The North winners will meet the Champions from the south of the Province and from there the winner goes to Toronto for the Dominion finals.

During the opening banquet Mr. Marvin Bruce M.C'd the program on behalf of Hub Farm Equipment and introduced the head table: Ed Kerylak, Dist. Mgr. and Blackman; Cam Dopes, Mgr. of the Killam Branch; Les Larson, Sales Dept.; John Nagel, Cliff Rudd and Garnet guest speaker; Mr. Wallace, Mgr. of Blackman; Del Peters, Parts Mgr.; Mr. A. W. and A. C. Hamley of the Community Press.

Dr. A. Hamley

Dr. Hamley outlined briefly the progress of the M. P. Dealerships at Camrose and Killam. He informed those present that today there are 9000 curlers across Canada taking part in the Massey-Ferguson Curl-O-Rama. This is the way M-F takes of becoming acquainted with the farmers across the country, and to thank them for their patronage over the years.

THE PIED PIPER!

A few weeks ago by accident, a petition fell into my hands, quite by accident mind you. This little manuscript circulated by women, was meant for women only. That's why I am pleading the Fifth Amendment and will only say it fell into my hands by accident. That's my story and I'm sticking to it. Now that we have that matter firmly in hand it can be said that the petition became more interesting the longer it was studied and its intent investigated. It probably is no secret by this time so it can be told. It was a petition circulating among the women of Canada to beseech the Federal Government to put a check-rein on television programs. Some 700,000 strong they are demanding that TV be cleaned up. The petition was interesting and that's why it is hard to understand why the male sex was excluded.

Lee Dirks, father of three children, has made a business of studying television programs and their impact on children, and he states that children spend one-sixth of their time watching TV., more time than they spend in school. Children are supposed to be taught to speak proper English and yet they listen constantly to such goings on as "Doggone Redskin in mah store, bad for mah business." (Wells Fargo episode). All the time it was assumed we were past such stage in life. "Doggone Nigger in mah store; Doggone Bohunk in mah store. The hero socks the offender, and all in all about 25 punches constitute the average program. No wonder the women circulated a petition.

Mr. Dirks also learned that 91 percent of the homes have television (U.S., and comparable for Canada) and that some 40 percent of the nation's children under 12 years of age are viewing between 5 & 6 p.m. This is the hour. An even higher percentage are viewing from 8 to 9 p.m. This is the hour. Sixth graders to the tune of 80 percent watch adult programs almost exclusively. Such features as the Lucy Show, Beverly Hillbillies, Combat, filled with fighting techniques, illiteracy, excessive drinking, immorality, methods of robbery, snobbery, vanity, selfishness. Don't think for a minute these things do not take their toll on society. Doctors and hospital authorities maintain that some children who are brought to them are 'overwrought' because of viewing certain programs. Now and again a policeman makes an arrest and discovers the reason for it resulted from techniques learned on television.

We allow this to continue and when things get out of hand we demand that the schools and the churches straighten these young people out. The onus is in the home; with the mothers and fathers, who, nation-wide strong have the power to make changes. Think it over.

I'D BE DEAD EXCEPT FOR MY BELT!

Of course the person who has made the above statement has no real way of knowing whether or not his safety belt really and actually was the reason his life was prolonged, but the very fact that he thinks so is enough to compel him to fasten the belt in proper position each time he drives the car. And that alone is a step in the right direction. It is unfortunate though that it takes an accident and fatality to convince people that safety precautions are a must today.

Certainly no automobile seat belt can prevent an accident, but statistics prove that it can protect its wearer in an accident, if it is being worn. A seat belt certainly is not infallible as a source of protection, because even wearers can be injured and even killed, but the wearing of one can greatly reduce the risk. In fact today the worn seat belt has become one of the most important items in automobile safety equipment.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council declares, based on reports of research, that one - third of the traffic fatalities in Canada could be prevented if seat belts were worn. That bears repeating; IF seat belts were worn. Most cars are equipped with belts, but on the average less than forty percent take the precaution to fasten them. Only a belt can save a life or even cut down on the injuries if it lies useless on the seat. The first step to take is to install seat belts and the second step is to use them. Don't be caught dead with the safety belt lying on the seat.

EDUCATION IS IMPORTANT!

Notwithstanding the fact that more and better education is more essential today for successful competition in almost all fields of endeavor, success stories are being recounted of young people, particularly farm boys, who with nothing more than a public school education, have still worked their way to the top. Barring the unexpected, there is little doubt that reaching this success requirement a lot of courage and determination along with a constant application of hard work and astuteness. However such cases are for the most part few and far between for today the achievement of a high degree of success has become highly improbable without some form of higher education. It has become today a strong factor in the success story, a most important factor in employment and in public relations. Surveys show that today people who have four years or less of school have a jobless rate of 9.7 per cent, while their friends who have a high school education have a jobless rate of 5.1 per cent. Going a bit further it is shown that those who have completed a college education have a jobless rate of only 1.4. There is only one lesson to be learned from these authentic figures and that is that it is more difficult to secure certain kinds of acceptable employment without sufficient, or advanced education.

Noticeable at this area at present is in the field of agriculture, a vocation where once it was widely accepted that education was not very necessary. But the big need today in agriculture is for trained people, for the scientific advances as applied to farming require a much higher level of education than in the past decade. Producing grain is not the simple method of planting and reaping, but has become complex and technical, and careful planning and adoption of latest methods are needed if the best possible yields of quality grain is going to be produced at the lowest cost, an item that has become increasingly apparent.

The wise young man who intends to pursue a life in the agricultural field must fit and equip himself for the scientific methods which will continue to predominate the field. The demand for degree graduates in the field is becoming more apparent not only in farming but in the allied industries as well. There are unlimited potentials for these young people if they are prepared to accept the responsibility of obtaining higher training. There is little doubt that today's graduates and students in agriculture will be tomorrow's leaders in the farming communities.

* MACDUFF REPORT

Best Bet 1966 Election

OTTAWA — Parliament Hill was in the doldrums during the Christmas and New Year's season. This resulted in a rush of speculative stories over the possibility of a spring election in 1965.

Any justification of note who appeared in the parliament buildings was stalked by newsmen and interviewed. They gave their opinions.

Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker returning after several weeks in the sun of Tobago said it appeared to him that Prime Minister Pearson would be persuaded by his Liberal colleagues to call an early election this year.

Gordon Churchill, the Conservative's house leader in the Commons, however said there would not be an election in 1965 unless the Government "continues on its course of irresponsibility." He pointed out that in fact the Government is "morally obligated" not to call an election until redistribution was completed in mid-1966.

Persons who are politically conscious and who have travelled across the country, returned to Ottawa with a conviction that the stock of the two old line parties — the Conservatives and Liberals — had suffered during the last session of Parliament. They found a tendency among the electorate to adopt the attitude " a plague on both your houses." Some of this attitude would react to the benefit of the New Democratic Party.

T. C. Douglas, national leader of the NDP has obviously learnt much reports. He senses that as the stock of the Grits and the Tories declines the stock of the splinter groups, and the NDP in particular, will tend to go. Aware of this Mr. Douglas was becoming increasingly cocky and making noises that sometimes as if his group was determined to try and defeat the Liberal minority government early in the resumed session of the New Year.

Mr. Douglas indicated his dissatisfaction with explanation given the House on immigration cases, the furniture purchases made by two cabinet ministers and other matters. He suggested that he was not pleased with the Liberal minority government performance and might be forced to vote against it in the next vote-of-confidence vote in the House of Commons, unless more satisfactory explanations are forthcoming.

The Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson in interviews declared he too was not satisfied with the situation in Ottawa. He contained 4 federal cabinet ministers were under suspicion (he did not name them). He said that if the Prime Minister did not "clean house" then continued support of the Liberal minority government by the Social Creditors would mean that the Social Credit Party would come under a cloud of suspicion.

Mr. Thompson was clearly calling on Prime Minister Pearson to reshuffle the Federal Cabinet and get rid of the cabinet ministers that the Social Credit leader believed had downgraded the prestige of the administration. He also left the clear impression that if Mr. Pearson did not "clean house" that the Social Credit leader might find it difficult to support the Liberal minority group in any want of confidence test vote.

Mr. Thompson went further. He expressed the belief that a realignment of political thought was coming in Canada. He contended that if the Liberal minority government was defeated in the House and an election called it would see a new centre-right political force formed. He said political philosophies are confused and badly in need of realignment. The Social Credit leader said that some front bench Liberals are really conservative in viewpoint while some of the Progressive Conservatives held liberal attitudes. In addition there were Liberals who were further left than the NDP party.

The Social Credit leader warned that another election without realignment of political thought would result in parties winning support on a regional rather than a philosophical basis. The NDP party, he forecast, would get strong urban support; the Social Party would get support in the west; the Liberals would have strong support in Quebec and the Conservatives in eastern and in some western rural areas. Mr. Thompson would obviously like to see a new conservative party formed (small "p") with himself as leader.

Prime Minister Pearson received strength at his first press conference of the old year when questioned as to whether he would "clean house" as proposed by Thompson and Douglas. He said the members of his cabinet were "honest and honorable men." He also made it clear that he does not propose to govern Canada on the basis of opposition party pressures. Opposition party leaders thus they will withdraw their support of his minority administration.

Mr. Pearson said firmly and emphatically that he is not going to get involved in a "show of house cleaning to satisfy those self-styled inquisitors". However he did not rule out any cabinet changes. But he specifically leveled a new charge specialists report that seven cabinet ministers would be involved in a coming cabinet shuffle.

The Liberal national organization has been making plans in preparation for the 1965 general election. But this does not mean necessarily that there will be such an election in the next 12 months. The Party has to be prepared in the event of the defeat of the Liberal minority government in the House of Commons.

The Prime Minister is known to feel that a general election at this time is unnecessary and would only serve to split the country at a time when he is making every effort to solidify Confederation. In addition Gordon Churchill put his finger on a very important factor when he said the Government was "morally obligated" not to call an election until redistribution is completed in 1966.

Now that redistribution has been passed by Parliament and the province's commission has been set up the structural re-drawing of the electoral maps can get underway. The Conservative government, like the New Democratic Party, is committed to bringing about redistribution before another general election. This would appear to rule out the Liberal government deliberately dissolving Parliament and going to the country until after the summer of 1966 at the earliest.

The NDP group in the House has strongly supported the principle of redistribution by non-political commissions. It fought for this and if it was to now turn around and oppose an early election it would be forcing an election on the basis of the existing distribution of electoral districts. Even those in the Party however who scent the sweet air of political power and are becoming coolly confident that a general election in the spring of 1965 might see the NDP returned with as many as 50 or 60 or even 70 members. They could be tempted to forget all about their arguments that redistribution should be carried out before the next general election.

The Letter Box

Dear Sir:

After reading about a recent curling game in which most of twelve rinks across town took sick leave, I began to wonder whether curling today is the scientific game it used to be. Where is the old-time clip in the stone, the draw shot, etc. When you can blank seven out of twelve, the science is gone and the strict hands-off is all that remains. That is what I think. What do you think?

YOU'VE KEPT ME BUSY!

I have many enquiries as to what the Home Economist does besides write this weekly newspaper column. My work is most enjoyable. There is never a dull moment!

In 1964 I gave 82 demonstrations and lectures and attended just as many other functions that I did not address. You may have heard me on the radio as well.

If few of the topics discussed were: wardrobe planning, buying tops for tots, saving food dollars, the art of home upholstering, handicraft design.

I wrote 1,207 letters and interviewed 607 people in my office and 743 by telephone, dealing with many problems, including slum removal, freezing, etiquette and purchasing furniture and major household equipment.

This past year I visited 169 homes in the Camrose and Flagstaff district, where I gave information mainly on home economics, home building and remodelling, and 4-H.

Thousands of publications were distributed from this office. I wrote five newsletters to 540 homemakers and four newsletters to 140 farmers. These newsletters contain up-to-date information on every aspect of homemaking. If you would like to be on our mailing list write to: P.O. Box 520, Camrose, or phone 672-5744.

Lodge rug is also part of my work. This year I judged at seven fairs and conducted one Achievement Day. For the young people last year we held two 4H Clothing Clubs and Camp in the Buffalo Park.

The roll call for February is a donation of a terry face cloth.

After the meeting was adjourned lunch was served and supplied by the hostess Mrs. Ken Hays and Mrs. Bevyle Chapman and hostess Mrs. Stratte.

Next meeting is February 10th at 2:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. A. J. Terry.

STRONG FUA ANNUAL MEETING

HARDISTY — The annual meeting of the Strong FUA Local No. 855 was held at Battalli School on January 20th with thirty-two members in attendance. The delight of the meeting was the report of the annual convention by the delegates, Mrs. Lynne Elm, Eugene Elm, Mrs. Gladys Stoner and Albert Fossum Mrs. Stoner dealt mainly with the FWUA portion of the convention. Matters of health, welfare and education being their main concern.

The results of the election of officers was as follows. President Eugene Elm, Secretary-Treasurer Gus Johnson, Vice - President Keith Armstrong, Correspondent Virginia Johnson. Directors are Mrs. Stoner, Ben Cluett, Eric Holmberg, Paul Vanlieden, Arne Hunt, Art Wollahe, Mary Allbrecht, Hugo Tilmsen, Porter O'Reilly, Alvin Miller and Albert Fossum.

Art Wollahe commented on the power development as proposed by Edmonton, Red Deer and Calgary. In his opinion if the electrical power companies were developed of their power revenue from these cities, the rural rates would have to go up.

Congratulations go out to Dick Lowther who has won a trip to the West Indies and out into Wrigley no. Dick has won and earned this trip by a good job done on canvassing for FUA membership last fall.

After the completion of the FUA business the meeting was adjourned and called to order again as the annual meeting of the Strong UFA Co-op Local with Art Wollack as President and Dan Prysliski as agent and secretary. A successful year was reported, no overdue accounts and all dividends distributed as per resolution. Art Wollahe and Dan Prysliski were unanimously re-elected as President and Agent-Secretary. UFA Co-op members are reminded that in order to be sure of getting their dividends, all purchases should be made in their own names, and not on the purchaser. A good policy is to have all purchase orders signed by your agent.

Eleventh Annual Scandinavian Night

The 11th Annual Scandinavian Night will be held in the Northern Alberta Jubilee Auditorium, Edmonton on January 30th, 1965.

The Scandinavian Centre Co-operative Association Limited welcomes everyone to Annual Scandinavian Night. The show ,Scandapeel on '65, takes place in the main auditorium commencing at 8:00 p.m. Dancing through until 9:30 p.m. This is a fast-moving variety show of Scandinavian talent featuring traditional music, songs, folk-dances, etc., from the cultural and background of the five Scandinavian countries . . . Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland and Iceland. Among the performers will be Crystal McDonald Floyd, well-known soprano, and Harold Nelson, well-known baritone. In addition to traditional Scandinavian selections, the show this year will carry out the theme "Leading Ahead With The Scandinavian Centre" by presenting some modernistic numbers with a Scandinavian touch.

The Concert Orchestra, under the direction of Mrs. Lily Taylor, Mrs. Lydia Pals and Mr. Victor Lille, will perform an overture of Scandinavian music leading to the commencement of Scandapeel '65. The special evening will follow the Scandapeades production, with two dance orchestras in attendance, one playing "rock ad roll", and another playing Scandinavian & contemporary dance music. Come and enjoy yourself.

Tickets to Scandapeades are $1.00 each and are available from the Edmonton Allied Arts Council in the Hudson's Bay department store or by telephoning Mr. Knud Holmr-Pedersen, Director of Annual Scandinavian Night at 433-7334.

Services Held For Mrs. John Anderson

SEDGEWICK — Funeral services were held December 24th in the Sedgewick United Church for Mrs. John Anderson, with Rev. Don Lewis officiating.

Mrs. John (Elizabeth) Anderson was an old-timer of the Goose Creek, Lougheed and Sedgewick districts, and was long and favorably known by many group of friends and acquaintances. She was born December 30, 1878 in Wyoming, Scotland and was married to John Anderson in 1905. They came to Canada in 1912 and settled in the Goose Creek district where they lived for 30 years before moving to Sedgewick in 1956. The couple celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1957. Mr. Anderson, along with her husband did much in the settlement of the district and deep areas of the social welfare of the area, during which time Mrs. Anderson was an untiring community worker.

Pallbearers for the services were Artie Adamson, Tom Wilson, Hiram Galletly, George Riddell, Hunter White and Norman McKenzie. She leaves to mourn her loss, one son Mervin of Sedgewick; two daughters, Jean (Mrs. Elden Ferguson) of Sedgewick and Betty (Mrs. Harry Purves) of Edmonton.

Interment in the family plot in the Sedgewick Cemetery. Fee and Sons Funeral Directors.

In Memoriam

In memory of Mrs. Ethel Callahan who passed away January 26, 1964.

Just ten years ago today,
Since one we loved so well,
Was taken from our midst on earth,
With God in heaven to dwell.
They say time heals all sorrow
But not in this case,
But time, so far, has only proved
How much we miss her yet.
Ever remembered and sadly missed by her loving husband, Bill and children. 37p

LeFarge, chairman of the Adult section of the Alberta Council for Crippled Children and Adults, made the presentation.

Identity Stickers for all handicapped or crippled persons have been devised to assist firemen in times of an emergency. They are to be supplied to the front and rear doors of residences, apartments or office blocks to indicate the working or residential location of a crippled person. The project has the co-operative support of all municipal fire departments throughout Alberta. Stickers may be obtained simply by writing Box 980, Edmonton, Alberta.

T.V. TALK

JAN. 30 — FEB. 6

With Canadian baritone Louis Quilico in the title role of the hunchback count Jester, CBC TV's FESTIVAL series will present a 2 1/4 hour production of the opera "Rigoletto", by Giuseppe Verdi, on Wednesday, February 3rd at 8:30 p.m.

Quilico, now of the Paris Opera, will share top billing with Metropolitan Opera tenor Giuseppe Campora, Italian soprano Jolanda Meraguardo, American mezzo soprano June Genovese and Canadian Opera Company bass Jan Rubes.

Rigoletto is the mis-shapen, embittered jester at the court of the Duke of Mantua. A man of cruel wit, he is nevertheless a devoted father of the beautiful Gilda, whom he shields from the gay life of the court.

The orchestra will be under the direction of Ernesto Barbini.

Albert Hall is an earnest little man with an unusual preoccupation . . . cucumbers. On the SHOW OF THE WEEK, Monday February 1st entitled "Rasputin Was a Nice Old Man", Eric Hume plays Mr. Sinn, the strange little man who lives a quiet life in a London rooming house, but covers his walls with newspaper clippings of infamous murders and murderers. Starring with Eric House are Bernard Behrens, Tony van Bridger and Betty Leighton. The opening curtain on "Rasputin Was a Nice Old Man" will go up at 8:00 p.m.

Full Singer Miriam Makeba, popular vocalist Leslie Gore and "reflex, ten or milk?" comic Shelly Berman combine the variety of acts on ED SULLIVAN's really big show, Sunday, January 31st at 8:00 p.m.

SPRING THAWS

It IS a bit early in the year to talk about "Thaws", I know. Although this last few days, one's mind does wander around that subject.

It was some time later in the season, one year on the old Homestead, when one thaw took place, which stands out in my memory more than some.

The days had been more than the usual fall of snow that winter, along with exceptional windy winds which drifted the snow, in some places as high as the eves of the houses. This had it's advantages, too, in that, with high snow banks so close to the buildings, especially if the banks were North of the barns and houses, the winds could not hit with such force. Thus "There is no great loss without some compensation".

Our barn was built when horse stealing was especially bad in those parts, so was quite close to the house. (Being a WOMAN, I really do not know just how close).

During the year of which I am writing, a snow bank had built so high between the house and barn, the barn being COMPLETELY covered over, so it was impossible to see it from the house.

For "Days on end", the men had to shovel a ton or more of snow away from the barn doors to enable them to get in to do the chores. But every morning, without fail, after an all night blow, the same job faced them of shovelling snow.

Finally, one morning, after an extra heavy blow, accompanied by more snow, the men felt they had had enough of that back-breaking job so decided to tunnel in from one side of this long bank, right to the barn doors.

This worked fine. The stack kept exceptionally warm in their improvised "igloo". There was plenty of chic and hay in the loft, The men carried green oat-sheaves on pitch-forks from stacks behind the barn, to supplement the hay, which, naturally, the stock all relished. The well, with pump-jack and waterer through, was no in the barn. So although the chores had to be done by inniers-light, (Even in the daytime), this system was preferable to that every-day back-breaking job of shovelling so much snow. So everyone, including the stock, were happy and contented.

But there came the time when the weather started to warm up. The men now faced the "Herculean Task" of not only breaking down the tunnel, and shovelling the snow to the sides to make a path, but also had to dig the barn out from under that weight of snow so it wouldn't cave in the roof.

So, one morning at the breakfast table, the "Man of the house" said "Well, Lads, what do you say to us breaking down our tunnel before it comes down on someone's head?" THAT was all those three lads needed. Without even finishing their breakfast, they grabbed their mitts, and, "With a "hoot" and a howl", they were out of the door before one could say "Kitch-er-ee".

To break down the tunnel, the lads would go back quite a piece, take a run to where they knew the tunnel to be, then come up to the air and JUMP, and DOWN they went, into the tunnel. They kept this up until the full length of the tunnel was caved in, really enjoying this new game.

Now came the HARD part, that of shovelling all this snow to one side to make a path to the barn. However, it was soon done, and I had a ravenous bunch of "Man-Eating Pixies" to prepare a big dinner for.

I think it was that same year when some of the smaller pigs were built in a lower part of our village were completely, almost, BURIED underneath drifts of snow, with just the chimney sticking up out through the top of the drifts.

One such cottage was owned by people who sold milk locally, to the town Folks, (No Dairy Cows in this man, not only tunnelled from his back door to the barn, but also from the front street to their kitchen door. (Incidentally, in looking at snow and snaps recently at a Friend's home, I came across a picture of a six-year old girl standing on top of that drift, with her hand resting on top of the house chimney).

When it seemed the Spring thaws were really upon us, and that there was no danger of Old Jack Frost, who was even lower down in a hollow than most of the others) being persuaded, flooded, uboat ten or twelve of the lown men, armed with shovels, cleared the snow away from the house (From off the top, too), and dug drains so the water would not run back to the house and flood it out.

Although these folks, (Like us) had to keep their coal-oil lights burning day after day, 'til day, for weeks, they said they never burned so little fuel to keep the house comfortably warm, and were, as they remarked several times, "AS SNUG AS A BUG IN A RUG".

That was the year, too, when all the sloughs were "Brim full", and heyings, (That is the "WILD HAY", had to be postponed until after harvest, until the sloughs were dried up.

The Bible Today

An officially revised version of Martin Luther's translation of the Bible is the first book to be published jointly in both East and West Germany since the erection of the Berlin Wall, reports the Lutheran Witness.

The Old Testament revision, begun in 1956, replaces one issued more than 60 years ago. Only minor changes have been made since then. A revised version of Luther's New Testament, launched about 30 years ago, was completed in 1957.

Both versions were prepared by a special commission of the Evangelical Church in Germany.

The commission has stressed that while it was taking "special care to see that the translation of Luther's translation and his typical language are preserved as much as possible, proper account must be taken of the developments of modern language as well as recent findings of theological research."

PERMANENT SNOW FENCES

The Alberta Department of Agriculture says that while it may be an odd time of year to be talking about tree planting, this is the right time to see where a permanent snow fence should be. Supervisor of Horticulture, P. D. McCalla, says properly located wind-breaks will keep roads, driveways and yards free of drifting snow during most severe weather. Lists of trees, available from government nurseries, and application forms can be obtained from your District Agriculturist, Mr. A. E. Edwards at Sedgewick.

PARK WHEAT

Park Wheat, the new variety licensed in 1963 and recommended for the parkland and central areas of Alberta, is living up to the expectation of plant breeders. At the Lacombe Experimental Farm, Dr. M. L. Kandiewa reported that Park yielded almost as well as Thatcher. Park is at least 10 days earlier and about four days earlier than Thatcher. It is easier to thresh than Thatcher and does not blonch as readily. In about equal to Thatcher in disease resistance, straw length and strength and resistance to lodging.

According to Dr. Kandiewa, Thatcher has surrendered Park an average of 37.6 to 86.4 bushels per acre over a five-year period, at several test sites. With its other advantages, however, Dr. Kandiewa thinks Park will replace Thatcher and Rescuer to some extent.

About 8,000 bushels of pedigreed Park seed were available in the spring of 1964. Dr. Kandiewa says there should be sufficient seed available to meet norman '65 planting needs.

FARM MECHANIZATION DAYS

Farm Mechanization Days, sponsored by the Alberta Department of Agriculture, commercial firms and utility companies, will be held at the Olds Agricultural and Vocational College. The suggested date for farmers attending from this area to avoid over crowding is Thursday, February 11th.

This year emphasis will be placed on new automatic equipment which can be used around the farmstead such as: Automatic water or dairy feeding setups, equipment for handling feed and manure in beef and poultry, automatic water systems and equipment for handling liquid manure for fertilizer. There will also be ventilating and special heating equipment for beef, swine, dairy and poultry.

Displays, talks and films will be used to illustrate the above.

Central Highlites

There are ten teachers in Central High who have the job of trying to teach 210 students. Some of these students were asked this week just what they hope to get from classes in general, and here's what they had to say: I like them all — ugh. Well enough — ha! — not bad considering what they have to look after.

If you have a grade 12 education, over a year and a half of nursing, you will make $20,000 more than if you never received your diploma. That's the opinion of Miss Lorraine Rasmussen, Director of Nursing Education for the province of Alberta, in bringing to the new nursing education program which will be offered at Lakeland College, Vermilion, beginning in September, 1965.

Killam Hi-C MEETS

A bimonthly meeting was held on January 19th in which future progresms were discussed, which will be held on the 26th of Jan. and on February 9th in the KILLAM School gym, during the KTATIL, a visit to a Hutterite colony and an address on the Salvation Army.

The program for the evening consisted of a report by Don Forstner; who attended Parliament in Calgary during the Christmas holidays. He felt that it was an enriching experience which should not be missed by any young man as Boys Parliament is an interdenominational orgnisation striving for better representation from denominations outside the United Church. During the formal settings of the house resolutions were debated such as: The standardization of our school system, religious beliefs, retention of capital punishment, religious education in schools; Hutterites, and others. One important resolution was passed changing the name from Tonic and Older Boy's Parliament to Christian Boys' Parliament of Alberta as the name Tonic is no longer applicable and the new name important to any one denomination. The calibre of debate, participation in all activities, leadership and Christian fellowship displayed combined to form the best Parliament session in the past 45 years.

New members are welcome to the next meeting on January 26th.

Baptist Church

A large number attended the Youth for Christ service on Monday night. The ministry of Preston Manning and Ed Kennedy was most challenging.

The annual business meeting was held on Wednesday night following the regular prayer service. The list of officers for 1965 processed by the nominating committee, was accepted. Much business was discussed, which included the acceptance of the budget drawn up by the Finance Committee, and the nominating of a new committee in charge of making plans for the building of a new parsonage.

A good Young People's meeting was held on Friday night. The doctrines of several religions and cults were expounded by three of the members, with George Williams presenting a final challenge on the christian faith.

The Sunday morning service was well attended with the newly elected officers active in their new positions. Rev. Grymulouki ministered at both services. A special announcement was made that the Provelbury Baptist Church would be conducting a baptismal services in our church on Thursday evening. On Sunday evening a hymnus presented the sermonette from the "Hymn stand". Choir practice followed the Sunday evening service.

SUGAR AND SPICE
By Bill Smiley

If I had it to do over again, I'd raise my family differently. I'd let the kids grow up in happy ignorance of the finer things of life.

That's exactly what most of my present family would have preferred anyway, but the Old Girl wasn't having any of it. And I, like all docile North American fathers, swallowed all that jazz about "personality development" and "developing natural talent" and "creative interests."

I've spent enough on music lessons for, example, for those kinds to buy myself a brand new Cadillac, or pay off half the mortgage on my house.

This month, my son Hugh is giving two piano recitals before trying his music exams, the culmination of ten years of lessons.

It's just about the culmination of the old man's credit in these parts, too. All it involves is the rental of two halls, the printing of two sets of invitations, and the purchase of two suits and dresses for the whole family.

Even at that, I could fight my way out of the morass of bills and face the future, shaken but game, if this were the end of the affair.

But I learned, in a short but devastating exchange with my wife, that it's only the beginning. "Will", I beseech, "at least it'll be nice not to have to pay for lessons next year, what with all the expense of sending him to college."

Don't be silly!" she snapped. "Of course he's going to go on with his music next year. He's nearly begun grade 4 and I worked out of the room, speechless. I could see the future: old aged parsnips me tramping for the next ten years in a welter of music lessons at $12 a rattle and university fees at $1500 a year. You see, just as Hugh gets out of highway, his sister, who also takes piano lessons at the same tariff, will be ready to begin.

It isn't fair, somehow. In ten years I'll be a broken, beaten old man, ready for the boneyard, just when I should be entering those golden years you see in the insurance ads: fishing, camping, golf, fishing

And what will I get out of it all? Likely nothing but a gaggle of grandchildren, who will be dumped off with me every time their parents want to go to Mexico.

In despair, I sought out an old friend who has been through it all with three sons and a daughter.

Surely he'd have some words of comfort. He did.

"Smiley, old boy," he chortled, there's nothing to it. But you've forgotten a few items. First of all, your son gets married in third year college and you subsidize them and the baby, until he graduation. Then there's your daughter's wedding. Knowing your wife, I figure that will cost you one cool grand. Then your son, and your son-in-law, will take turns hitting you up for a couple of thousand for down payment on a house or furniture or a second car, or something.

It's not that they're grasping", he went on, chuckling. "It's just that in the way the system works nowadays. They'll be making good incomes, but they won't have any credit, and you have. So they'll use yours."

"But when do I start paying off my mortgage on the house and putting by for my own old age?" I wheedled.

"That's worry about that", he twinkled. "You can always refinance your mortgage at 12 per cent. Remember, I did. I worried about old age. By the time you've got all your grandchildren's teeth straightened" (and here he positively cackled) " paid for their first ten years of dancing and skating and music lessons, you won't have any old age to worry about.

All I could do was quote from Hamlet, "For this relief much thanks." And I quietly set to check my insurance policies, and look for my wife's bottle of sleeping pills.

Indians Scalp Irma 10 to 1

KILLAM — On Saturday night at Killam the Indians played host to the Irma Seniors in what turned out to be a rout.

The Indians started scoring at 2.37 of the first period and added four more before it was over. In the second they netted four more and added one in the third period. While all this was going in the Irma team was held scoreless until the 16:10 point of the third period when they got their only score.

For the Red Men G. Smith got three goals and Sorenson for two. Singles went to Miller, Bomhough, Gair, Grant, and Serken. Irma's lone marker was scored by Fischer.

Final score, Killam 10 — Irma 1.

SENIOR BRIER WINNERS

The Cooper Rink shown above was the local club and zone playoffs in the Senior Brier competition and are down at Stettler this week defending the Northern Alberta Title that they won last year. The winners at Stettler will go to Dawson Creek, B.C. to play next. This year's rink had K. Cooper as skip, C. Clarke, C. Seniuta, and J. Hesketh (1 to r). All but Mr. Seniuta were on last year's Northern Alberta winners.

CGIT Ice Carnival Held At Strome

The Strome CGIT Ice Carnival was held at the open rink last Saturday night. Mr. Bill Pyrch acting as M.C. in spite of the cold weather a very good crowd was in attendance.

Prizes for costumes were awarded as follows. Best dressed, first Pat Gaudreault; second Mary Godaitis Stromo. Most Original, first Judy Camilish of Daysland; second The Misses children of Daysland. Comic, first Clifford Hill of Strome; second Wayne Warner of Strome. Judges for costumes were Mrs. Bower, Mr. Clough and Mr. Carrigan. The three queen candidates were June Larson, Killam, Sandra Cockburn, Daysland and Janet Pooler, Strome. Janet Pooler receiving the most votes Major donated by Charlie Campbell. Grant Heizner received $5.00 donated by Elgin Brown for the best Aberdeen Angus calf in the club. David Bellier received $2.00 donated by Eddie Blake for the 2nd best Angus Calf. Dennis Spiller received $2.00 donated by Eddie Blake for the 3rd best Angus calf. David Twitchell received $5.00 for the best Shorthorn calf donated by Eric Beddoes. Stevens Clothing presented each member with a cheque for $2.00 for participating in the club.

After the presentations the President Gordon Gandet thanked the Lions Club. The next 4H meeting will be held on February 9th in the Daysland High School.

Farm Loans Hit A Record High

KILLAM OORP NEWS

Fourteen members were present at the OORP meeting held in the Elks Hall on Jan. 25th. Visitors present were District Deputy Reeve Bennett Royal Lady Edworthy and Lady Powell, both of Hardisty. Also present was Lady M. Pope of Sedgewick formerly of Coronation. Plans were discussed for the District meeting which will be held in Killam on April 12. Four ladies volunteered to organize the Red Cross canvass. The OORP will sponsor the Arts and Crafts show, formerly held by the Home and School. This will be held in March. The ladies also agreed to cater to the 4H Calf Club sale in June. A travelling basket has been started. The attendance prize was won by Lady R. Schulte. A delicious lunch was served by ladies M. Stefanik and R. Schulte.

THE WEATHER

This area, in fact most of Alberta, was visited over the week-end by snow, wind and cold. Last Saturday saw winds of 40 mph, with rapidly dropping temperatures and some five inches of fresh snow. Up to press time this week, morning temperatures have been in the vicinity of 30 below, with no relief in sight immediately. Many of the rural roads are snow-blocked.

DAYSLAND 4Hers RECEIVE AWARDS

(Dolores Dolenz)

The Daysland 4H Beef Club and Directors were guests of the Daysland Lions Club at a banquet on January 26th in the Daysland Cafe. Following the banquet awards were presented to some of the members for their work last year. Grant Blaser received a silver engraved tray for winning first in judging. Donated by the Bank of Montreal. Billy Broomling received $5.00 for the best Hereford calf in the club, this was donated by Wavy Lake Farms. Billy Broomling also received $5.00 for the best record keeping donated by Gordon Crewsnad her Queen of the Carnival. Patty Robbins presented the Queen and the two other candidates with gifts of jewellery.

Due to the extreme cold evening races and contests which had been planned were cancelled.

Janice Gordon on behalf of the Strome CGIT thanked the Killam and Daysland CGIT groups, the judges, Mr. Pyrch, and all those who had helped in anyway with the carnival. The support given to this project was greatly appreciated.

The refreshments booth was run by Mrs. Curtis and Mrs. Gotham, leaders of the Explorers Group.

OTTAWA — Increased demand by Canadian farmers for long-term credit to expand their farm businesses is reflected in the latest announcement from Farm Credit Corporation.

Figures released by FCC Chairman George Owen show that 3,647 loans amounting to $146 million were approved in the first nine months of the current fiscal year.

This compares with 3,324 loans totalling $102 million in the same period in 1963, an increase of over 16 per cent in the number of loans and a record increase of 43 per cent in the amount lent.

Three main reasons are given for the upsurge in lending.

Increased awareness by farmers of the credit and services provided by the Corporation.

Recognition by farmers of the value of credit in developing sound farm businesses.

Increase in loan ceilings effective June 1964. Since establishment, over 1,000 loans have been made in excess of previous loan limits.

There is every indication, says Mr. Owen that there will continue to be strong demand for loans under the Farm Credit Act in 1965.

The fact that the Corporation may now make loans under the Farm Machinery Syndication Credit Act adds an intermediate-term type of credit to the already established long term credit service it can bring to farmers.

Daysland Board Of Trade Sees Gas System Proposal

(Dolores Dolenz)

DAYSLAND — The Daysland Board of Trade elected a new slate of officers at its meeting Friday, January 29th. Cliff Driedger was elected president, John Koehli as vice-president, Leslie Dutton as secretary-treasurer. The installation of Mr. Dolenz in this capacity relieves John Pylypchuk who has served as secretary-treasurer for ten consecutive years.

Directors appointed were Reg. Weller, Martin Mandrusiak and Dr. J. Hedlika.

The membership committee representatives elected were William Stevens, John Polehopko and Bruce Lee. Other committee members were not elected at this meeting in order that the new executive could give more consideration to requirements in these various committees. The special committee appointed for investigating the possibilities for natural gas for Daysland, Alan Pryor, John Polehopko and Dr. Reist, were asked to continue in this capacity.

The membership fees for the Board of Trade were set at five dollars. Business will have the option of purchasing a ten dollar membership which will provide a membership for all employees.

The third Monday in each month was set as the regular meeting night.

Allan Pryor reported on progress on the tent wells for municipal water supply. A well has been drilled and cased with 4" casing to a depth of 180'. The driller reports that there is evidence of water bearing sand from 117 ft. depth to 180 ft. Engineers are expected from Calgary within a week to run capacity tests.

Two guests, Mr. Burly, representing Commonwealth Research Engineering Corporation, and Mr. Peter Boyko represented the Battle River Enterprises Ltd., were in attendance and presented an engineering survey for a natural gas supply and distribution system for the town. They proposed reasonable natural gas prices but this estimate was dependant on a four town construct. Daysland, Strome, Lougheed and Hardisty. These towns were to be presented similar survey costs and if accepted preliminary work would commence.

The new executive was scheduled an executive meeting for Monday, February 8, 1965 in an effort to organize the membership and lay plans for the year ahead.

Indians Win One; Lose Two On Road

During the past week the Killam Indians played three games all from away from home.

In two trips to Irma to play the Irma Aces the Indians won one and lost one. The first game was won by Irma by a score of 6 to 5. D Rombough scored twice for Killam with singles going to Miller, Gaume and Gair.

On the second trip to Irma the Indians won 7 to 5 even though they were down 4 to 2 after the 1st period and it was tied at the end of the 2nd. Christensen netted a Hat Trick for the Indians with singles scored by Gaume, Miller and Gair.

The trip to Viking in the one that the Red Men would like to forget as they came home the losers by a score of 6 to 1 as the Cow Kings had control of the game all the way. Killam's only point came in the first period when Christensen scored at 6.13. The score was 3 to 1 for Viking after the first period and 6-1 at the end of the second. Viking scored two more in the third to end the game 6 to 1.

Regular league games will end next Monday night with the finish of the schedule. There are a few postponed games to catch up on and then the playoffs will get underway.

Accepts Honourary Position

It was announced today by Dr. H. D. McIntyre of Edmonton, Alberta, president of the Alberta Council for Crippled Children and Adults, that R. Lange of Sedgewick, 9239 Avenue, has been appointed Chairman of the Edmonton Easter Seal Campaign for 1965.

Mr. Lange presided as Provincial President of the Edmonton for several years in 1962 was appointed a City Police Commissioner Magistrate, the position he holds at the present time

His Honourary appointment to the Easter Seal Fund Campaign brings about a new administrative change for Edmonton and was accomplished by the tremendous growth in the Edmonton Area of Easter Seal Services over the past few years.

Appointments of an Edmonton Penal Raising Board under the direction of Magistrate Lange will be announced shortly.

Man Charged In Stolen Meat Case

STOREKEEPER COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

EDMONTON — Storekeeper Clifford Chern, charged with possession of stolen meat, was committed for trial after a preliminary hearing in RCMP court Friday.

Chew, owner and operator of Cliff's RIA Store, 12147 82nd St., will be tried in Supreme Court.

He has been charged with knowingly being in possession of 1,100 pounds of meat stolen from the Sedgewick Slaughter House.

"Independent, But Not Necessarily Neutral, In The Public Service"

Established on July 16th, Nineteen Hundred and Eight

There Is A Feed Shortage

In many areas of Alberta there is a feed shortage at the present time, and it depends on how severe the rest of the winter is, how acute the situation will become before spring brings relief. December was one of the severest months for some years and stock feeding began much earlier than usual. Many farmers who sold hay or other feeds last fall now find themselves in short supply and are either attempting to buy back or feel forced to cut down their herds to equalize the situation. Reports have been creeping in that hundreds of cattle have died or had to be destroyed due to inability to cope with the severe cold and feed lack. Many others having been forced to sell will find it will be some time before herds can be again built up.

Since there is certain to be further feed shortages, not only in roughage, but in feed grains, it might be the better part of wisdom to put a stop on local sales of feed oats and other varieties of feed grains to take care of the impending demand. Whatever supplies there are in the local areas will undoubtedly be needed by spring.

Publishers Need To Be Honest Also

There is a tide in the affairs of men when taken at the flood leads on to fortune. We don't have to know who made this remark in the first instance to realize that it has a modicum of truth to it. The recent legislation enacted by the Provincial Government with respect to liquor advertising in Alberta has brought on a flood of protest from the weekly press of Alberta. The publishers being a fairly intelligent bunch of fellows are attacking the legislation on the grounds that it is discriminatory. It allows publications produced outside the province to circulate with advertising forbidden to locally produced media. This is in fact the only grounds that Alberta publications can attack the legislation without giving away the real purpose of their anger. It probably would be a safe bet to say that not one publisher in ten is really concerned with the discrimination angle. What really concerns them is the possible loss they are suffering from advertising revenue. It is true that many publications today are finding it difficult to remain solvent in view of increasing expenditures and need every advertising dollar available to them. This being the case, the whole idea of liquor advertising should be honestly attacked on that basis, for that is primarily what the publisher is interested in whether he admits it or not.

However there is another angle to the situation that escapes the unknowing person, and that is the fact that the Social Credit Government has always been hostile to the press. Since 1935 when almost the entire membership was opposed to Social Credit theories, and said so the present government has given them short shrift. This is not to say that the press has not asked for some of this, and we in total like a be ever true to Prime Minister.

The present crisis in the Conservative leadership therefore is important not only to the party, but to all Canadians.

The opposition in our democratic system, is supposed to offer a viable Parliamentary alternative to the party in power.

The plain fact is that the Conservatives under Mr. Diefenbaker no longer present that alternative. In the key area of Confederation i.e. Federal-Provincial relations, in Quebec-English relations, Mr. Diefenbaker and his Party no longer present any alternative which is satisfactory to the nation as a whole.

It is this feeling that is behind the demand of the ten Quebec Conservatives, led by Leon Balcer, for a leadership convention. It is the same feeling that has led a number of Conservative members in other parts of Canada to call for a change in leadership.

This raises the strict party question of whether or not Mr. Diefenbaker should step down, and in what manner. But it also raises many other questions which transcend party lines.

For example, will a Conservative Party survive which is able to command support in all regions of this sadly-divided country? Will the Conservative leadership struggle spill over into Parliament and perhaps force the country to a general election which few people want at the moment?

These are important questions to every Canadian But they are questions that will be answered, almost willy-nilly, as John Diefenbaker moves to fight the rebels in his own Party who are determined to oust him.

At the moment it seems that the Conservative Party is getting ready to tear itself apart. This will be a sad spectacle, as sad perhaps, as the spectacle of a former Prime Minister being lured out, crowned with failure, and relegated to the dark back rooms of his Party structure.

Mr. Diefenbaker has successfully faced challenges before, of course, and he may be able to handle this one. But that looks more doubtful every day.

A large segment of the Conservative Party is intent on getting rid of him. Personal prejudice, policy questions, and a fide reason of what is politically necessary are behind this movement.

The movement is partly in the open, and partly behind the scenes. Some of the more serious and courageous Conservatives such as Gerald Baldwin, Douglas Harkness, Gordon Aiken and Gordon Fairweather, have been quick to voice their public support of Mr. Balcer's stand.

Understandably enough, older and more experienced members prefer to work behind the scenes for the same ends. On would not expect George Nowlan, Alvin Hamilton, George Hees, Davie Fulton or Senator Wallace McCutcheon to express public reservations about the present leadership, though they might work privately to get a new one.

The concern of those men for the leadership is understandable, as they are to maintain party unity, and that is understandable. But their silence must not be mistaken for support of Mr. Diefenbaker.

The truth is that Mr. Diefenbaker stands in great personal peril. The forces against him are growing. The active elements in his own Party are convinced the Party needs new leadership, and they are exercising others.

The national executive of the Party — a 140-member group — is said to be in the majority against Mr. Diefenbaker.

The fact remains however, as Gordon Churchill says, that John Diefenbaker still has a lot of friends in Canada. But even so it's difficult to escape the conclusion that the question is not so much whether Mr. Diefenbaker will go, but when and how he will go.

He himself has indicated that he has no intention of stepping down. He feels there is no constitutional basis for a leadership convention when the leadership is not vacant.

It is richts to this position, a messy, bloody, internal fight is assured. The forces against him are impatient. Their motives are philosophical and political, but the political motivation is urgent.

The Government is in disarray. It has a well-deserved reputation for fumbling and incompetence, and for political morality is in question. The rebels believe that if there were a satisfactory alternative to th Government, the Pearson administration could be thrown out by the voters in an early election.

They also believe that under the Diefenbaker leadership, the Conservative Party can expect no gains in an election, and quite possibly could suffer heavy losses.

Their strategy is based almost wholly on the premise that an election will not be held for several months, but that they must change ready for that election. If they do not get a new leader, they feel the Liberals would win a majority, and that would mean another four years in opposition before the next election.

Mr. Diefenbaker's career is spotted with great battles and great challenges. He has never shrunk from them. He will probably not shrink from this one. But it could be his last one.

Other Fish To Fry

For a while there, Canada was the fair-haired boy of the International Set.

Too weak to be dangerous and too strong to need help, our stability and common sense approach was sought in the World's councils. Canada became an impartial arbitrar of foreign disputes, and won acclaim as a champion of the downtrodden. We poured our treasure into economies of less fortunate lands and despatched our clean-cut young men to police alien soils. We had a proud record in both peace and war.

This is pretty heady stuff for a young country, and somewhere along the line we lost our perspective. It seems to have gone to our head for we started to throw our weight around with our good neighbors, disclosing the motives of our allies, chip away at Commonwealth members and generally alienate some of our oldest friends.

Meantime at home, we ran ourselves into serious debt, became embroiled in regional disputes, squabbled over a national flag and otherwise washed dirty laundry in public.

In fact, about the only area where we didn't start going to pot was in the business community. Despite deplorable politics, government interference, and the generally changing times, Canadian business men stayed on the job to maintain a steady progress. Our farms produced the wheat for the Orient's millions and our factories provided jobs and goods for citizens. They kept their noses to the grindstone.

The politicians could muster almost a full turn-out for the inanities of the flag debate, but when pressing business reached the floor, they had other fish to fry. Few members of parliament seemed to consider it important that this nation is still pouring millions into emerging countries and sending soldiers overseas to active duty. When External Affairs Minister Paul Martin rose in the House to outline Canada's stake in foreign affairs, little more than a quorum of 20 stayed to hear. The other 240-odd were elsewhere.

This is not the way to run a business nor, apparently, to run a country. It's no wonder our image is tarnished.

Room At The Top

OTTAWA — The curious fact about the political situation in Canada today is that John Diefenbaker, as leader of the Opposition, remains almost as important a figure in national life as he ever was as Prime Minister.

The present crisis in the Conservative leadership therefore is important not only to the party, but to all Canadians.

The opposition in our democratic system, is supposed to offer a viable Parliamentary alternative to the party in power.

The plain fact is that the Conservatives under Mr. Diefenbaker no longer present that alternative. Home Sir:

Another Christmas season has come and, from a postal standpoint, we feel it was a success. The additional mail, both of the record volumes of mail, well within the periods prescribed, bears this out.

One factor which I feel contributed greatly to this success and deserves special recognition was the excellent co-operation and coverage extended by a number of news media during the peak mailing period. Granted, mail volumes of such magnitude may be a newsworthy item in themselves, but for organizations such as ours, to provide a service beyond what normally would be expected, is certainly commendable and appreciated. By spreading the word of sixty mailing and by encouraging correct addressing and bundling of mail, you have rendered a service of inestimable value to our postal operation.

Accordingly, the public may not fully understand or even appreciate the value to them of your public service announcements, but I can assure you that we in the Department are fully aware of the benefits derived and take this means of conveying our appreciation and thanks.

Yours sincerely,
W. H. Wilson
Deputy Postmaster General

Memory Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

After receiving numerous letters recently, commenting on the enjoyment they received from reading articles which I send to the papers from time to time as memories of "Yester-year", and asking for more of that type, my mind went drifting back to the thrills which I enjoyed listening to the different sounds heard only in the country.

I am referring mostly, to the sounds of birds and animals. I am sure most of you whose younger years were spent on a Prairie farm, can bring back to mind the sound, in the Spring, (And Fall, too) of the geese, as they winged their way either to or from the Southern climes their mural "Honk-Honk" echoing through the stillness of the evening air, as we noticed the perfect "V" shaped formation as they sped over-head.

Remember, in the early hours of a clear, Spring morning hearing the clamorous "Cronk, Cronk of the gold ducks as they were busily engaged in their mate for their future families at the side of the numerous sloughs which dotted so many fields in the Spring of the year?

Many, many times I have stood in awe and amazement, and listened to the wild geese honking, making from the tiny threats of hundreds of them, maybe in the trees on our lawn. It seemed to me that there MUST have been a "Head Honker" amongst them, as they would all start singing at once, and suddenly, all stop at the same time, only to start up together again, after a moment's interval. To say it was heart-taking and most beautiful, is not doing it half justice.

Then there was the "Chirp-Chirp" of the robin heard at break of dawn and the last thing at evening time. The robin's "Chirp" may not be musical, but I LOVED IT.

Remember the "Drum-m-m-ing" of the now almost extinct "Ruffled grouse", as they lighted on an open patch of their little world, with a-h-i-r-ring with such force they almost split the air around us.

How many of our readers have had the indescribable, breathtaking pleasure of watching a hen-turkey chickens at their annual "Courtship Dance" early in the spring mornings for several weeks there lost 7-4.

Best wishes for a speedy recovery to Mrs. Johnny Thompson who is a patient in Killam hospital.

Get well soon wishes to Mr. Art Kruger who is also a patient in Killam hospital.

Lougheed 10 and under Hockey Team lost to Bawlf on Sunday, January 24.

Lougheed 14 and under Hockey Team played Hughenden in Lougheed Thursday, played to a 6-6 tie.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Larsen and family have moved into the house recently vacated by Mr. Ewald Kusber.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Rock (nee Mina Tweedy) of Peneka, a daughter (Kimberley Ann) on Jan. 17th. Congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Cookson were Peneka visitors recently and visited niece Mrs. Mina Rock.

TV Talk

Canada, believe it or not, experiences some of the heaviest earthquakes recorded. They take place in the St. Lawrence River Valley, but because they are deep in the earth and usually occur in unpopulated areas most Canadians are unaware of them. On the NATURE OF THINGS on Sunday, Feb. 7th at 5:00 p.m. Percy Saltzman considers "Earthquakes and Volcanoes" in discussion with two experts on these phenomena, Dr. W. Tyrell of the Royal Ontario Museum, and Dr. John Hodgson, seismologist and newly appointed director of the Dominion Observatories.

Whatever happened to Sylvia Murphy? The blonde songstress returns to the TV screen for a guest role on the Wayne and Shuster Hour, this Monday's SHOW OF THE WEEK. "Swinging Shepherd Blues" Moe Koffman and dancers Carlo Cartier and Don Gillies fill out the all-Canadian all-star variety bill. That's Monday, Feb. 8th at 8 pm.

On the EYE OPENER show on Tuesday night at 10:30 p.m. Helen Burns as 4-1 Len Birman catch play five roles, one in each of 5 dramas by Harold Pinter and N. F. Simpson, leading exponents of the Theatre of the Absurd. On the surface these vaudville type sketches are light, breezy and wackily funny but they have a dark underside.

Lloyd Bochner, once a regular & very popular CBC actor, plays the title role in "The Famous Phillip Metz, Ph. D." one of two short plays on ENTRIAL, Wed., Feb. 10, at 9:30 p.m. The doctor's fury is caused by the fact that his wife, played by Patricia Collins, has resigned on her pension to devote time to him.

TELESCOPE on Friday, Feb. 12 will present "From Here To Antique St" — Part 1. a visit with painter and photographer Roloff Beny.

Central Highlites

(By "Chuck" Rendly)

The Youth For Christ Club at Central had a film for their program on Monday, February 1st, at 12:15 p.m. The film was entitled, "Tom Bennett Story".

The Film Club met on Thursday during the noon hour, and the Charm Group met on Wednesday and again on Friday.

Nominations are now open for a new committee for the Students' Union at Central. This new committee will take over the affairs of the Students' Council for the last half of the school year.

Sports

The Centralettes, Central girls' basketball team went to Camrose on Friday night to watch a basketball game being played there.

R. C. Kinzer Delegate

L. L. Lloyd, Saskatoon, president of Federated Co-ops Ltd., says he is "fed up" with anti-co-op propaganda disseminated by certain segments of profit enterprises, and promises to have "plenty to say" about it when Federated's 36th annual meeting opens in Saskatoon on February 2nd.

Federated is a wholesaling and manufacturing co-operative, owned by over 500 consumer owned retail co-operatives of Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and NW Ontario. Its 1964 sales reached a record $111 millions on which an operating surplus of $5 millions was realized and allocated to patronage refunds to the retail co-operatives

Among the 186 delegates to represent retail co-operatives at the 3-day meeting will be Mr. R. C. Kinzer of Killam.

Mr. Lloyd promises substantial evidence that taxation is not the real issue behind attacks on co-operatives "by the Retail Merchants' Assn. and the IMA-supported Equitable Income Tax Foundation." He says he will smoke his disclosures in an address during opening sessions of FCL's annual meeting.

Social Insurance Number

The Unemployment Insurance Commission has said today that more than 6 million Canadians have registered for Social Insurance Numbers, the number that provides identity for unemployment insurance and that will become even more important to the individual when the Canada Pension Plan comes into effect. Edmonton UIC officials report that applications for Social Insurance Number are still being received at a rate of about 300 per day. Many of these are from people who already have Social Insurance Number.

The UIC emphasizes that, for their own good, Canadians must not have more than one Social Insurance Number. Multiple registration can become a serious problem for the insured person, and could even lead to his being considered, at least temporarily, ineligible for unemployment insurance benefits. Each Social Insurance Number ensures that unemployment insurance contributions are correctly credited to the individual having that number, but having 2 or more numbers means that contributions may be split into two or more accounts, all for the same person. Then, when the insured makes a claim for benefits, only those contributions entered under one of the Social Insurance Numbers may be considered.

The Commission says that, while cleared up, time lost in extensive checking of Commission records will result in delay in handling claims for the insured.

The most common cause of multiple registration appears to be the frequent moving of persons from one job to another. Should an insured individual change employment several times in one year and neglect to produce his Social Insurance Number card each time, he could become the owner of more than one Social Insurance Number. The result could be a serious delay in service if he makes a claim for unemployment insurance benefits.

The UIC also points out that there is a heavy penalty for persons knowingly registered for a Social Insurance more than once.

The numbering system was instituted following recommendations of the Glasco Commission report on government organization to ensure speed and accuracy in handling present and planned social benefits and to replace the old UIC number which had become obsolete.

What should you do if you find yourself with more than one Social Insurance Number.

At the moment, the UIC is concerned with how the possession of multiple registration can become case-number owners again.

The first thing an individual must do is report the problem to the nearest local office of the Commission, bringing with him, or sending all the Social Insurance Number cards in his possession. The Commission will simply cancel the extra number or numbers and supply the employee with a new registration card if the first has been misplaced.

The Commission stresses that it is most important that any individual who only one Social Insurance Number, so that his unemployment insurance contributions will be correctly credited to his account. Then, should the occasion arise that he must make claim for benefits, all of his contributions will be considered.

FIRE DANGERS GREATER IN COLD

The shock of the cold weather will cause many difficulties not the least of which is unexpected fires, warns Austin E. Bridges, Alberta Fire Commissioner. In Calgary, there has been a large loss from fire originating in the bake shop rerroading throughout the entire Condon Block. In Edmonton recently a fire damaged the Alberta Research Council Building.

Reports are coming in also about fires in dwellings, farms and schools and other business buildings. A word of special precaution is now necessary. Parents must be very cautious not leave young children unattended at home. No excuse for this momentary lack of supervision can ever be justified, when there are so many chances for a loss of life by fire where small children are unattended, or Mr. Bridges.

Winter works construction is promoted as a means of supporting a continued work program but there are hazards associated with winter construction and extra supervision by foremen is needed where heating producing devices are brought into use because of winter weather. It would be unwise if workmen are reminded each and every day that their conduct on the job requires constant vigilance against a fire by reason of the tools and devices they use. Welding is a particularly dangerous operation carried out without every precaution to protect against sparks encountering flammable liquids or combustible materials. It may be that more specific provincial controls are required to force safety precautions wherever welding is undertaken in construction of, or renovation to buildings.

The best gift a fireman could have would be a holiday season without the need to leave the winter storms to fight fires. Fires can be prevented by careful supervision in businesses, offices, public assembly places and homes. If you have no automatic fire detection or extinguishing equipment you cannot risk leaving premises unguarded when there are so many fire producing possibilities. So on the watch for material too close to heating equipment, tapping electric appliances where not in use, take care that wrappings do not accumulate, carry out to where you smoke and how you dispose of your cigarette will avoid many fires. Look around after that holiday party and don't have that community hall, other public gathering place without a guard or watchman for that critical two hour period after the lions.

The loss of life from fire in 1964 to date is the highest ever and these are critical days when we must be very alert and on guard against fire.

REBEL OR REVOLUIONARY

Our system of education puts great emphasis on getting the child to "conform" to his environment. Robert Oliver, writing in the current issue of Quest — Spotlight on Education", asks whether this pressure to achieve "group adjustment" really smothers the entry of the young into society. Or does it drive them to frustration, and nonsolous acts of violence and vandalism?

The disease of group frustration is widespread — and increasing (Frighteningly throughout the affluent societies of the world. Here in North America, Labor Day weekends, folk singing festivals often degenerate into juvenile mob scene.

Strangely enough, this senseless and curiously destructive hitting back at society occurs against a background of intensified educational interest in adjustment. From kindergarten to college, educators worry about the child who would be work alone. We want the child to be happy and to grow up to be a happy adult — and to be that or become that, we assume he must be one of the crowd.

In family, school, business multiple and ever-increasing pressures, subtle and not so subtle, are applied which push the individual into conformity.

In the conformity pot the temperature rises as the pressure increases. Finally, the blow-off comes! restless, violent, senseless. And then all is quiet again while the process starts over once more.

The solution according to the article in QUEST is to find the activity values which will make meaningful — and keep tolerable — the individual throughout the school conformity that must exist in society. Very safety valves in life, particularly effective in education.

The child should be led to explore and discover as well as to remember. He should be permitted to find his own approaches to old problems. In school, the class should be tight to respect individuality, and the young individualist should be led to being tolerant of others.

Adjustment to one's self should be no less important adjustment to the group. The young should not be pressed from rebelling against their narrow environment lest they submerge in (for) narrower environments order to rebel against the world.

HARRY FERRIER PASSES AWAY

Harry Ferrier was born in Calgary, Alberta, on August 10, 1910. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Ferrier moved to the Sedgewick district in 1912. He resided in Sedgewick until the time of his death, except for the 5 years from 1940 to 1945 when he was overseas with the Loyal Edmonton Regiment.

His mother, father and brother Ray all predeceased him.

He is survived by his wife Ann, two daughters, Isobel and Lorraine and two sons Ray and Ian, three brothers, Elden of Sedgewick, Art of Edmonton, and Ralph of Prince George.

Interment was in the Sedgewick Cemetery on December 28th. Funeral arrangements by Berger Funeral Home.

Additional memorial — United Church from Dot and Eric Beddoes.

GEO. VAGT DIES

GRAND PRAIRIE — Funeral services were held here recently for a long-time Grande Prairie businessman, George Vagt, 66.

Mr. Vagt moved to Killam from Minnesota in 1910 to join his brothers in business.

Ten years later he joined the Peace River Meat Co. and in 1924 was transferred to Grande Prairie. He bought the Frank MacDonald Meat Market two years later.

In 1948 he built the Grande Prairie Meat and Locker plant, operating it until his retirement in 1956.

He is survived by his widow, Emily, two sons, Oliver and Carlton; two daughters, Jean and Lorraine; three brothers and two sisters.

The Bible Today

A tour of Bible Van in Northern Algeria recently proved a occasion when "your dreams" of seeing Gospels sell by the dozen really came true, reports Mr. W. A. Morgan, Secretary of the North African Agency of the Bible Society. The van visited an area wrested by war and semi-desert, which had been without the Word of God for some ten years.

"Such eagerness to receive the Gospel could not have been believed. Th afternoon was well advanced when we drew up in the square, and perhaps it was well that the town was not quite wide-awake so that we had a chance to get the van organize our stall before the crowd descended on us in full cry.

"Word of our presence soon passed round and swarms of old and young poured round our stall.

"We were repeatedly having to bring fresh stocks from the van, and so we watched certain fast disappearing items we grew anxious about our stocks. Most striking was the pathetic insistence of one or two elderly customers who pushed their way through the crowd a second or a third time, reaching out their hands with 20 centimes and begging us to pass them another Gospel. None of them went away disappointed.

"Within an hour of our arrival we must have sold 250 Gospels and over 500 Testament Portions, as well as a few Bibles and Testaments. Each book is a missionary in a place where, in all probability these days, none other is known.

PERFORMANCE TESTING AND A. I. MEETING!

On Monday, Feb. 8th at 1:30 p.m. Mr. Sid Lore, Livestock Supervisor with the Alberta Department of Agriculture, will be talking about the "Introduction of Performance Testing of Beef Cattle," including the economic advantages of using Performance Tested Sires.

At this same meeting in the Legion Hut in Sedgewick at 8:45 p.m. Mr. Bruce Jeffery, Livestock Supervisor with the Department of Agriculture in charge of Artificial Insemination will be discussing the "Factors Affecting Reproduction Efficiency". Slides will be shown. This program should be very interesting to farmers employing either A. I. or natural breeding practices.

This meeting is being sponsored by the Alberta Dept. of Ag., the Clam river A. I. Assn. and the Sedgewick and District Board of Trade. We have had inquiries from time to time regarding the method of conducting Performance Testing of Beef Cattle & its real value. This should be the chance to discuss the pros and cons of this subject. Cattle producers are especially invited to attend.

The A.I. program is often accused of being hit-and-miss and the cause of poor conception rate. Many factors annually affect the conception rate and may discrepancies oftimes factors come to light quickly in an A. I. program. PERFORMANCE TESTING BEEF CALVES!!

The Lethbridge Research Station's Weekly Letter says performance testings is an important tool for the breeder who is trying to increase the production of his livestock by selection.

At the Canada Dept. of Ag's. Research Station at Manyberries, the ability to gain in the feedlot is receiving major emphasis in a study of performance traits because of its economic importance, high heritability & high correlation with efficiency of feed utilization.

J. E. Lawson, Animal Husbandman, says research with Hereford & Angus cattle is underway to determine whether the level of nutrition during performance test has any important effect on beef cattle performance in later generations.

THE HIGH COST OF BEEF!

Pity the poor housewife who walks down the meat counter in today's chain store. She pounces at the porterhouse steaks long enough to note that the price this week is "only" about $1.00 per pound, and she sighs before proceeding to the cheaper cuts, the wieners, the sausage, the fish and the poultry. Here's a problem of making the food allowance cover the needs of her family. She knows that while the children probably will settle for wieners or hamburger, her hard-working husband wants variety, including steak once in awhile. And on the average she can afford to feed it to him.

The Council of Canadian Beef Producers will join her in a good cry over her problem. The Council suggests however that a tear be shed also for the men who produced the beef. Notwithstanding and surgestion that they must be doing right well at $1.00 per pound, the truth is that their share of that dollar is about 25c. Since 1949, 15 years, the price of cattle has increased by about 8½while the cost of producing them has risen by nearly 47%. The net result to the cattleman is that the beef that brought him $1.80 in 1949, now only yields him 80c. By comparison, the average hourly factory earner receives nearly $2.60 now for every dollar $1.80 in 1949. After paying the increased cost of living, he net take is about $1.47 which compares with the 80c of the cattleman. Thus the wage earner is abut 47% better off and the cattleman about 20% worse off than in 1949. During the 15 years, the wage earner averaged 54% higher net take and the cattleman about 13% lower net take than in 1949.

So it would appear that she can still afford to buy beef. — From the Council of Canadian Beef Producers.

HO HUM, WAR IS HELL

Is there anything sillier than an old soldier? Wait a minute, Jack, I don't mean bemsel veterans like you and me, who fought our war, then forgave and forgot. No, I mean the professionals, and especially the generals.

My friend Bradley toward the top brass were rekindled recently when General Omar Bradley threw a swing out in left field at General Montgomery, claiming Monty had been too slow and too secred to close the Falaise Gap when he should have. Twenty years after the event, the old boys are still bickering.

I didn't blame Bradley much. Montgomery has been blaming every other general, even Ike himself, for ended, for everything that went wrong. Apparently he was the only big shot who was always right.

And that reminds me of the silliest thing Montgomery ever said. It was a few years ago, during an interview. It was to the effect that he likes to see soldiers soaking wet, hungry, filthy and exhausted. But he knows they have been soldiering. That sort of poppycock is fairly typical of the intelligence of a general.

This may have been true during the Kaiser's war. Old sweats of that era knew all about dirt, lice, slim rations and exhaustion. But their troubles were all physical ones; being blown up, or mined, or caught on the barbed wire, or gassed, or eaten alive by rats. They didn't face the psychological horrors of war.

It was sheer hell, at times, for us pilots, especially if we were officers. Even today, after two decades trying to bend the senes, memory of certain events sends a cold shudder through me.

Sometimes, for example, the bad men would have to get over in the morning ten he brought when he wakened you. But you never complained. Even drank it down stoically, without a whimper.

Another experience that left its mark on many of us was the time they took the batment off altogether and substituted WAAFs for them. Some of the cimer were totally unnerved to be wakened in the morning by a chubby little air-woman, cooing "ev'y your tea, luv. Drink it up while it's 'ot".

Some of the other hardships we endured can scarcely be recounted in a family journal. One seredome is which I had the incredible bad luck to be stationed in England was eight miles from the nearest pub, and the only way to get there was by bicycle. Match that for inhuman conditions.

But that's the kind of thing we went through, and those of us who survived were prematurely aged by the pitiless circumstances under which we strove to ensure there'd always be an England. Seared in my brain forever is one horrible day we were drafted by a brutal group captain to play rugger the morning after a farewell party in the sergeant's mess. Rugger is a popular British game in which you never stomp a man in the face until he is down, and only then if you can't stomp him in the stomach.

Another painful memory is that of fat senior officers standing with their backsides to the fireplace, while we junior officers, shut off from the only heat in the place shivered miserably around the bar.

Old swanis talk about marching 300 miles in ten days. They don't realize what we went through on those trains in England. Sometimes we officers, even though we had first-class tickets, had to ride in the third-class coaches with all those rude, nasty soldiers and sailors and things.

Looking back, I can't help but marvel at the way we faced up to the hardships of those grim days, without a murmur. But it was war, and we were true-blue. Except in the mornings, when we were a little green around the gills. That's when they'd give you a zipper for breakfast. Hardships? I could write a book.

Baptist Church

Rev. Oryminiski ministered at both Sunday services, his topics being "What is Man?" and "The Just Shall Live by Faith".

Many families from the church were represented at the baptismal service on Thursday night. Rev. Matteon, of Wetaskiwin, and Deacon Johnson, Pastor of the Forestburg Baptist Church, were in charge of the service at which time several from Forestburg gave their personal testimonies and were baptized. Lunch was served later in the lower auditorium by the Killam W.M.S. The monthly W.M.S. meeting followed with sixteen ladies in attendance. Dorothy Heartberg presided, with Carolyn Kvil commencing duties as Secretary. It was decided to hold a meeting on Monday night at the home of Grandma Heartberg, at which time the meetings and booking for 1965 would be planned. Our group will be purchasing clothing for Dr. and Mrs. Copeland to take with them when they return to the mission field. The Forestburg Bapist ladies will be invited to attend our next regular meeting.

Group No. 1 was in charge of the Sunday night C.F.C. meeting. The group leaders are to be commended for their planning of programs. Two young people and two speakers spoke on the subject "What do parents owe their children?" and "What do children owe their parents?".

We wish to encourage all young people to reserve Saturday afternoon and evening, February 13th, for Youth for Christ. Young people from many YFC clubs in North Alberta will meet at Killam for a time of recreation and fellowship.

REPORTS FROM PARLIAMENT HILL

This is the second and last of a series of articles taken from a recent review of Canada's economic problems and prospects by Finance Minister Walter Gordon.

Economic growth and expansion requires adequate expenditure by the provinces and municipalities as well as by the federal government.

The provinces in recent years have been facing serious financial problems as a result particularly of increased requirements for education, for roads and for health and welfare services. These problems have been recognized and their financial pressures have been eased by action taken by Parliament.

In part this has been done by specialized grants such as those for vocational schools. In large part it has been done by the new general means of improving tax sharing and equalization arrangements with provincial governments.

The economic growth and the financial stability of our country has been promoted in those and other ways. That the various measures taken have been effective is now clear.

When the books are closed and all the figures are assembled, I think we will see that for 1964 the Gross National Product should reach $44.5 billion, about 8 per cent higher than the year before, or about 6 per cent after allowing for price increases.

Employment is at an all-time high. Unemployment in mid-November was 4.3 per cent of the labour force (seasonally adjusted), the lowest it has been since May, 1957.

Average wages in Industry in November 1964 were up 4.7 per cent over the previous year.

The 16 per cent increase in investment forecast in mid-64 looks as if it has been substantially underfilled.

In the first ten months of 1964, manufacturers' exports were 21 per cent higher than a year earlier — and apart from wheat sales which were heavily affected by the special sales to Russia, the increase was 17 per cent.

Personal expenditures were some 7 per cent above the 1963 level, with this area of demand contributing one of the major factors behind the growth of the economy. Corporation profits for 1964 were at an all-time high.

Despite this expansion, the price level remained reasonably stable. 1964 was the best year in Canada's history in terms of production, jobs, exports, living standards and business profits. But there is no room for complacency.

1964 was not a fully satisfactory year in some important aspects. Our balance of payments on current account still shows a substantial deficit for 1964, despite our efforts to increase exports.

Unemployment in many parts of the country — broadly speaking in the regions east of Three Rivers — was too high.

Nevertheless, we have made considerable progress. We must do better in the years to come.

I make no claim, of course, that the achievements of the economy in 1964 were entirely the result of government measures. To say that would be foolish.

We are predominantly a private enterprise country. Canada people prefer the term "mixed enterprise economy"), and our economic expansion has been the result mainly of non-government investment, spending, building, exporting and so on.

We are also an internationally oriented economy which responds to what happens in the economies of our trading partners.

Fortunately most of our principal trading partners, including the United States, have been showing considerable economic expansion in recent years.

We must also recognize that the failure of grain harvests in eastern Europe in 1962 and 1963, which gave rise to such massive purchases of wheat from Canada, also has been a great stimulus — albeit a temporary one — to the economy as a whole.

The government's role - through its financial and economic policies has been to set the scene so that private individuals and businesses can direct their efforts with the best chance of success.

I believe we can draw encouragement from the fact that the overall performance of the Canadian economy during the last year, especially the expansion from the first quarter of 1963 to the third quarter in 1964, has been appreciably better than that of the United States.

For example, over this period the Gross National Product in the United States rose by 7.0 per cent; in Canada it rose by 9.5 per cent. Non-farm employment in the United States in November was 2.6 per cent higher than it had been a year earlier; in Canada 3.2 per cent.

I would not want to promise that economic expansion in Canada will continue to run ahead of the United States, but the record is encouraging.

Because of the improvement in economic conditions and the resulting buoyancy of government revenues, it is clear that the budget deficit for the current fiscal year which ends next March 31 will be much less than the $455 million originally forecast.

It will probably turn out to be somewhere between $150 and $200 million.

This would be the best showing since the year ending March 31, 1958.

The facts and figures which I have cited, applicable to a year in which we still have more unemployment than we should have and in which an excessive margin of economic potential over our economic performance, show convincingly that our system now is strong enough to balance our budget and indeed to produce a surplus under conditions of full employment.

They show that we have achieved our objective of moving in the direction of a balanced budget under conditions of high levels of employment.

They demonstrate that the government and Parliament — despite our manifold difficulties — have brought the budget under control.

BUYING A DRYER?

Many models of 1964 appliances are on sale now and more than the usual quantities have been manufactured. Some people are pondering over purchasing a dryer.

One of the first questions asked is: "which would you purchase — a gas or electric dryer?"

Initially, gas dryers are sometimes more expensive to purchase, but there is the added installation cost for 220 volt wiring required for an electric dryer.

CHECK OPERATING COSTS

Operating costs for a gas dryer vary depending on rates in a particular area. However, results of many tests have shown that a gas dryer is cheaper to operate than an electric one in this area.

Another point to consider when comparing both types is the ease which would be involved if it was necessary to replace an element in the electric dryer.

MINIMIZE REPAIRS

On whichever type you decide, the reputation of the dealer and guarantees are extremely important. The availability of service and repairs in some rural areas is anything but convenient. Often unnecessary repairs few repairs the first few years but as they become older more money will probably have to be spent on servicing them.

The long repairs to a minimum remember that the more complicated an appliance or the more "gadgets" it has, the more likely something can go wrong. Money can be saved on repairs by simply taking a few minutes off to sit down and read the instruction book as well as by learning as much as you can through your dealer on how to operate and care for your dryer.

CLOTHES WITH THE TWO WRINKLES

Fewer wrinkles will remain if the dryer is not overloaded. Over-drying causes clothes to yellow. In many cases this can be avoided by: First, following the laundering instruction given with garments; Second, by making sure the thermostat on the dryer is not too high and the clothes dried to ensure; and Third, by making sure that no detergent is left in the clothes after rinsing.

The experiences of others using these appliances can often be used in your decision, so check with friends and neighbors.

CHECK LIST

Not only on dryers but when purchasing any appliance all these points are well worth considering:

Price. Operating costs. Repair costs. Guarantee or Warranty. Reputation of the dealer. Availability of servicing. Ease of operating.

FUA Newsletter

Paul Bahry, President of the F. U.A., has announced the appointment of Mr. Douglas Galbraith to the newly established position of Executive Assistant.

Mr. Galbraith is a graduate of the University of Alberta. He obtained a degree in Commerce in 1942. Since then, he has had experience as an office manager, and in collecting statistical information. Mr. Galbraith also has considerable practical experience as a farmer. He owns and operates a grain and beef enterprise in the Vulcan district South-east of Calgary.

Commenting on his new duties, Mr. Galbraith said that the work of the FUA is increasing. The amount of influence and persuasion required from the people in agriculture to get their point of view taken into consideration in this increasingly organized society, is likewise increasing, he said. My reason for accepting this position is that it is a great opportunity to serve agriculture.

Mr. Galbraith is presently moving his family, wife Violet and a boy and two girls, into a home in Edmonton. Previous to this, Mr. Galbraith has been active in the FA organization since its inception.

He has served as Alternate Director of FUA, district 12 for the past eight years. He intends to continue operating his farm by "remote control."

LEGION EXEC. INSTALLED

SEDGEWICK — Last Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the Sedgewick Legion the new executive was installed by three life members of the branch.

Mr. J. L. Muirhead is shown handing the gavel to new president C. B. Robertson while Cliff Harris and Ernest Leah look on.

Mr. Leah and Mr. Muirhead are both charter members of the Sedgewick branch and all three are past presidents.

The three long time legionaire were all members of the organization which preceded the forming of the Canadian Legion in 1926 and have always been active in legion activities.

SABERS WIN FIRST PLAYOFF GAME

SEDGEWICK — The Sedgewick Sabers Juvenile Hockey team are entered in the Provincial Playoffs and won their first game on Saturday.

On Saturday the team travelled to Rocky Mountain House to play the first of a two game total point series with the juvenile team there.

The Sabers won this game by a score of seven to two. Three goals were scored by Don Rombough, two by Dave Rosenbaugh, and single by Del Nelson & Greg Schatz.

Next Sunday, Feb. 14th, at 2:00 p.m. the Rocky Mountain House team will be at Sedgewick for the return game and judging by last Saturday's action it should be a dandy.

If the Sabers can hang on to their point lead they will go on to play in still stiffer competition.

STROME 4H DAIRY CLUB MEETING

The regular meeting of the Strome Dairy Club was held on January 23.

Kevin Schuster, Myron Cramien, and Harold Peddoma gave reports.

We decided to get 4H crests.

We received an invitation to hold our meeting with the Holster Dairy Club.

It was also decided that the members would have a tour of calves.

Free X-Ray Clinic Coming To Killam
Sponsored locally by the Killam Hospital Auxiliary the Mobile TB Chest X-ray Unit will visit Killam in the near future.
This service, sponsored jointly by the Department of Public Health and the Alberta Tuberculosis Association Christmas Seal Fund, is a source of early discovery not only of unsuspected Tuberculosis but many other chest abnormalities, including: tumors, complications, heart irregularities, pleurisy, etc. — and is especially valuable in the discovery of lung cancer while the Chest X-Ray will reveal coincidentally in advance of symptoms becoming obvious.
Mr. C. B. Pugh, Director of X-Ray Surveys, Alberta Tuberculosis Association, is in the district making arrangements for the Tuberculin Testing and Chest X-Ray Survey. A home-to-house canvass will be conducted to register every family in Killam and community. All persons not attending school will be invited to this registration.
School children are being screened by means of a Tuberculin Test at school through the services provided by your local Health Unit, and will not be required to attend this clinic.
In charge of the program are: Mrs. Marion Gibb General Chairman; Mrs. Fred Morris Advance Registration Chairman; Mrs. Everette Cherveau Clinic Appointments Chairman; Mrs. William Cotter Publicity Chairman; Mrs. Gordon Per Volunteer Help Chairman.
YOU' WILL BENEFIT
Safeguard yourself and your family by attending the clinic when it is in your community.

MD Councillors Visit US Plant

Mr. Ed Fardoe and Mr. Andrew Sorensen, councillors from the MD of Flagstaff No. 62 were among 62 councillors from Alberta who recently enjoyed a five day trip to Peoria, Illinois.

The trip was sponsored by Street Robbins and Marrow Ltd., distributors of Caterpillar machinery.

In the buildings which cover over 200 acres, the councillors were able to view the complete manufacturing of the Caterpillar products.

B.R.L. Semi-Finals Start On Monday

KILLAM — Last Wednesday night the Indians were hosts to the Wainwright Commandos and defeated them by a score of 7 to 2 thereby eliminating the Wainwright team from the playoffs.

It was a close game with each team scoring once in each of the first two periods to start the third with the score tied 2-2.

In the third period the Indians took on the warpath and scored 5 unanswered goals. Scorers for Killam were: Game and Gair 2 each; Miller, Rombough and Both single.

On Monday evening last week the Indians travelled to Hardisty to play the Stampeders and were headed a 5 to 2 defeat by the Hardisty boys. We have no further information on this game.

The semi-finals will be starting next Monday night, Feb. 15th. The final standings of the teams is not yet decided as yet will have to check to find out what teams are playing and where at.

L. Kapler Buys Daysland Store
DAYSLAND — Elsewhere in this issue will be found an advertisement announcing the sale of the Marshall Wells Hardware Store at Daysland. Mr. Paul Schnell, owner informed the Community Press of the sale, and stated that the new owner would take over the business on February 15th, immediately following stock-taking.
Mr. Kapler is well known in the Daysland area, where he was raised, in recent years he has been the local agent for the Alberta Wheat Pool. Mr. Schnell, who has been the owner of the business for some years, has not completed his plans for the future, but says he will be staying in Daysland at least until school is out in June. Mrs. Schnell is on the teaching staff. Lorne has resigned his position with the Wheat Pool and is presently "learning the ropes" in the store, meeting customers and generally familiarizing himself with the undertaking. The Community Press joins in wishing him every success.

KILLAM CO-OP ASSN. TO HOST CO-OP SPIEL

KILLAM — The Killam District Co-operative will be the host on March 14th at a bonspiel of rinks representing retail Co-operatives across Central Alberta, it was announced here.

In all 12 teams will take part in the one-day event with each team playing three 8-end games. Bob Canavari, Killam Co-op Mgr. said today. He stated that a supper for the visiting curlers will be held in the Coop Mall at the conclusion of the bonspiel.

Further details on the bonspiel will be announced later when all Co-ops contacted have replied to their invitations.

Central Students Hear Centennial Official Talk

SEDGEWICK — Mr. Gordon S. Robertson, Public Relations Officer for the Federal Centennial Committee, was a welcome and entertaining speaker at Central High School last Thursday. Since his appointment to this position in June of last year, Mr. Robertson has travelled across Canada to acquaint students and citizens with Canada's Centennial program. Since January 7th this year Mr. Robertson has spoken at 97 schools

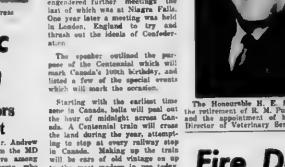
Unusually mixing wit and humor with fact and reality, Mr. Robertson went along with his audience back to 1864, when three men by the names of MacDonald, Cartier and Brown crashed a Confederation meeting in Eastern Canada, Charlottetown to be exact, which engendered further meetings the last of which was at Niagra Falls. One year later a meeting was held in London, England to try and thrash out the ideals of Confederation.

The speaker outlined the purpose of the Centennial which will mark Canada's 100th birthday, and hinted a few of the Centennial events which will mark the occasion.

Starting with the earliest time zone in Canada, bells will peal on the hour of midnight across Canada. A Centennial train will cross the land during the year, attempting to stop at every railway stop in Canada. Making up the train will be cars of old vintage on up to the modern cars in use today. Depicting times of old, the train will also show what Canada will be like in the future. Caravans will also be put into use, assisting in bringing the Centennial message to more remote areas. There will be one big day in each Province when the reinspired manufacturing of the Caterpillar products

Robertson, indicated that the local School Division's application to send an exchange group had been approved, and went on to inform the students, whichever ones of them were chosen, would not only have to be age pupils, but have a good knowledge of their province, in order to be good ambassadors while in the land of the entire idea. He urged everyone to get in the Centennial program and make it a real success.

Representatives of local business firms, groups and societies were also present to hear Mr. Robertson.



The Honourable H. E. Strom, Minister of Agriculture, has announced the retirement of R. M. Putman, Deputy Minister January 31st, and the appointment of his successor, Dr. E. E. Ballantyne, formerly Director of Veterinary Services, Alberta Department of Agriculture.

Fire Destroys Farm Buildings

SEDGEWICK — Fire believed to have started from an overheated stove destroyed a large house and dairy on the Lancaster farm Monday morning, February 3rd, at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Lancaster, 12 1/2 miles north of Sedgewick. Last besides the two buildings was an uncalculated number of articles making up the contents of the two buildings. Mr. Lancaster, returning from hauling in a load of feed, was able to salvage very little of the contents, including most of the articles from the dairy building.

The fire is believed to have got started around eleven o'clock in the morning, and a call was immediately put in to the Sedgewick Fire Department, who rushed a fire truck to the scene.

Neighbors responded quickly, and forming a bucket-brigade managed to contain the fire to the two buildings.

South Sunshine Club Meeting

HARDISTY — A meeting of the South Sunshine Club was held February 3rd at the home of Mrs. M. Patterson. Ten members and two guests were present. The vice president Mrs. E. Elm was in charge of the meeting in the absence of the president Mrs. D. Metz. After the opening procedures the Christmas cards were received for Christmas fruit. A discussion was held and a quilt pattern was decided upon by the club to make. The club will buy the material to be distributed next meeting. Mrs. Cross Kells won the hostess prize. Next meeting will be March 3rd at Mrs. Hilda Fisher's home. At the close of the meeting a tasty lunch was enjoyed by all.

Strome-Killam U.C. Annual Meeting

KILLAM — The Sessions of the churches started the 1965 year were received into the membership of the Church during the past year. Elders continued to visit members before Communion services, and to assist the minister in taking communion to the patients in the Auxiliary Hospital

The Missionary and Maintenance Committee announced an increase a contribution to this fund of 33 per cent and noted that over $3600 was given for the out reach of the church beyond the local Pastoral Charge

The Christian Education Committee stated that the New Curriculum has been successfully integrating into the Church School sessions and that both teachers and pupils are enjoying the new material. The teachers continue to meet monthly for study, worship and to plan lessons for the next month. The mid-week groups reported a successful year with about 95 young people participating.

A new member elected to the Session in Killam was Mr. Berni. Chandler. New members to the Committee of Stewards were Mr. Wm. McMahon, Mr. Wm. Clark, and Mr. Wm. Wallace. Representatives appointed to Presbytery were Mr. Harold Cotton and Mr. Art Ham.

PRE-EMPLOYMENT CLASS — During the recent visit of the Pre-Employment class to the Community Press to watch production of the paper the class spent considerable time around the big newspaper press seeing the printed sheets being stacked up in the delivery end of the press. Prospect Of A Tax Cut!

PROSPECT OF A TA CUT

At least from present indications there is a prospect that there will be an early presentation of a budget when Parliament resumes its activities on the 16th instant. Not only this, there is talk that there will be some tax relief in sight for citizens. The deficit in national accounts has been brought under reasonable control, and this fact coupled with Mr. Gordon's statement that the reason there was no cut in taxes last year was this very large deficit, seems to indicate that this time around there will be. This is the most welcome indication that has come before the overburdened taxpayer in many a moon. Mr. Gordon indicates that the main reason for seeking tax cuts is to stimulate the economy and put Canada in a better competitive position in relation to the United States where a tax cut was enjoyed last year. There the economy took an upward surge, and there is no reason to believe that the same procedure here will not bring about the same result. Increased disposable income and more take home pay for consumers is bound to be represented in higher consumer spending, with the resulting strengthening of markets, rises in production and new job creations. Along with this the gross national product is most likely to increase beyond the amount of tax cuts, and on the whole bring about a more affluent economy. All this is to the good in a nation where thousands of new jobs are going to have to be found for an ever increasing labor force. It's something nice to think about anyway, for a nation that hasn't had too much to cheer about in recent years. The answer of course lies with Mr. Walter Gordon, who may be anticipating an election.

Canada Must Compete!

A great cry of betrayal has arisen from opposition quarters and other sources over the recent reduction in grain prices brought about by the Canadian Wheat Board. While this is something that no one likes to see, the hard cold facts of a situation must be faced. It simply boils down to the fact that if Canada wants to continue in the foreign market with her grain, she is going to have to be competitive. It would now appear that the "honeymoon" is over so far as grain is concerned. Wheat producers the world over are in a better position than they have been, and even importing countries have improved their lot. The demand for Canadian grain is dropping once again. It is all very well to say that we produce the world's best and hardiest wheat, but importing nations are willing to sacrifice a little quality for price. Let us not return to the old days of huge surpluses with no markets. If we want to sell we must compete. It's just as simple as that.

The Desire To Be First!

The insatiable desire to be first, the seemingly incurable determination that in all things where is a first, it must be us, has caused conflict between nations and resentment among individuals for generations. There must be a first of course in anything, for without a beginning there would be no progress, and the world owes a debt to those people who have been adventurous enough to give us something new and better. But sometimes, like the man who builds a better mouse trap with the only result that it attracts a better class of mice, there are times when the desire to be first does nothing but cause hardship and distrust. A good example in point is the new Canadian flag. Enough time was spent in arriving at a design, and bickering over whether or not Canada should have a distinctive flag, to settle almost all the economic and social problems that confront us today if they were attacked vigorously. Many Canadians waited patiently, or impatiently for parliamentarians to get down to business and come up with something, and as though this was not enough we find that Japan, a foreign nation, could not wait for the design to become official, and in their determination to be first in the market, have flooded the Canadian scene with a flag that is not official. Those Canadians who, in their own determination to be first in hoisting the new emblem, find that they have been fooled into purchasing a flag that is the wrong shape, printed in the wrong color and has the wrong maple leaf design. In their eagerness to exploit this brand new market the Japanese did not wait for the design to become final and were in production before it became official. Wily as they are, it was concluded that the average Canadian wouldn't even notice the difference, and such proved the case. The maple leaf on the Jap version has 13 points instead of 11, with the serrations pointed instead of rounded. The true Canadian version is printed in the same tones of red as the Red Ensign, while the Jap copy has a dark tired-blood red, does not have the proper dimensions, the leaf is too large and red hairs too narrow.

Officials in the trade and industry department in Ottawa are concerned with this invasion of the flag market, and well they might be. If the Japanese version is not exact, a stop should have been put to its distribution at the outset. Certainly all unsold versions should be returned to the manufacturer immediately. The Japenese, besides being discourteous in presenting a faulty design, displayed poor taste in attempting to force Canadian manufacturers out of the market. Besides this, Canadians should have the privilege of manufacturing their country's own flag.

INCOME SNOOPERS!

Another department besides immigration that needs careful scrutiny in the interests of freedom and justice is income tax. A joint brief of the Canadian Bar Association and the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants had a number of things to say but one in particular indicates the encroachment on the citizen's basic right. An exchequer court official who issues a writ of assistance to an income tax division official cannot be questioned by a higher court. That writ of assistance can authorize the official to enter any home in Canada and seize and take away any "books, documents or other records which may afford evidence as to the violation of any provisions of the act." The word "may" should be noted. — Letter Review.

★ MACDUFF REPORT

Pension Procrastination

OTTAWA — The Ontario brief to the joint Senate-House of Commons Committee on pensions unrolled another cloud of ambiguity over the Canada Pension Plan.

In a statement to the legislature Premier Roberts appeared simple and clear. He was accepting the National Plan with, seemingly no condition. He added that there would be a brief which would be critical. Now the brief is out and it is not very critical. It is demanding. At the very least it appears to be taking a bargaining position for further negotiations with the Federal Government. It proposes (a) a 20 year transition period instead of the 10 years now proposed and elimination of the $75 per month exemption (b) an increase of $25 a month to everyone receiving the old age security payment on and after January 1, 1967 to be paid out of Pension Plan contributions.

If the Government should accept either or both of these proposals it would mean a new agreement with the provinces probably a reconvening of a Federal-Provincial conference.

There was an almost audible sigh of relief from members of the Committee when they heard the Roberts' statement. Until then, there had been some tension. The Committee has 41 briefs before it, many of them giving very valid evidence of the need. But to all these the Committee could afford to turn a deaf ear. They were examining Legislation based on a negotiated plan which could not be really be changed.

The one criticism that bothered them — and it was unanimous — was that the Plan did meet for the man who needed it least and nothing for the man who needed it most. Members were paying far more attention to the sections of Bill C-136 which amended the Old Age Security Act than those relating up the earnings related pension. There is no doubt that neither hike in old age security payments is in the offing in some form or other. But to accept the Roberts proposal that it be paid for out of CPP contributions again upsets the delicate balance of a uniform plan built on compromise.

A lengthening of the transition period to 20 years is a horse of another color. This was the original Quebec plan and the change to 10 years was a hardly won concession to Ottawa. The Federal thinking in the words of Miss Judy LaMarsh was to get pensions "out as many people as quickly as possible".

Presumably Quebec would be ready to go back to the 20 years and with Premier Roberts demanding it other provinces might be tempted to follow suit. But Ottawa thinking on this point has not changed. It was one of Prime Minister Pearson's eight non-negotiable points when he let it be known that the Canada Pension Plan, second edition, was not the final word. There is no suggestion at the moment that the Federal Government has changed its mind.

These were clearly disclosed in a brief prepared for the pensions committee by Alexander and Alexander, Toronto and Montreal firm of actuaries. The brief did not name their clients beyond stating that they represented industry, government and universities. Its conclusion is sufficient similarity of views to suggest tat Ontario may be among them.

By shortening the maturity period to ten years or in other words providing a maximum pension after ten years a large degree of stability has been sacrificed. With a 20 year period contributions calculated on actuarial basis would not increase for at least 50 years. With a ten year maturity the plan switches from funding to pay-as-you go at some point between 10 and 25 years and thereafter, without a very substantial increase in rate of contribution falls very rapidly into a deficit position.

The chief actuary of the Federal Insurance Department, Mr. E. F. Clarke, making certain assumptions, found that the rate would rise more than ten per cent and the Alexander brief suggests that this is reasonable. Assuming that there was no further increase in Old Age Security payments except to keep pace with the cost of living this would mean that the next generation would be paying out for flat rate and earnings-related pensions 20 per cent of their contributory earnings between $600 and $5000.

The brief lists other advantages of lengthening the period to 20 years:

It would narrow the inequity in the amounts received as redistributed wealth by the low earner and the higher brackets. If two men, one earning $2,000 a year and another earning $6000 or more are 65 when the Plan starts and retire at 65, the $2,000 man gets a pension value at 65 of $4,797 over and above the amount of his contributions plus interest. For the $6,000 man the value is $11,462.

It would reduce the number of people who with a combined Canada Pension and private pension would receive more than they had been earning.

It would make integration of the private and national plans easier.

Two phrases have been used to describe the new Ul-Canadian agreement for rationalizing the automotive industry. Both are misleading. It has been called free trade and it has been suggested that it is the beginning of a "common market". Far from being free trade, it is one of tariffs to induce parent companies to provide a larger share of the market to their subsidiaries. In this sense it is comparable to imposition of the tariff in the first place which is the real reason for Canadian subsidiaries. Nor is it in any sense the beginning of a common market. The automobile industry has had the scheme tailor-made to fit it. In its present form it could not be applied to any other industry.

Pastor and Mrs. R. Jacobsen have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Nordin and Philip Nordin the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster Tennant and Dan accompanied by Mrs. Tennant Sr. of Edgerton returned Monday from almost a week of visiting with relatives in Edmonton.

The Amisk PUA local met for the February meeting on the 2nd at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hawley. Among the items discussed was the annual PUA benefit coming up and selecting of a rink to enter the PUA district 7 bonspiel to be held at Wainwright. Alden Johnson was appointed to make arrangements for the local bonspiel when the rink is available.

February 3rd the Amisk hockey team played against Czar on home ice. The score was 4-2 in favor of Amisk.

Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Peddicord visited the Don Weldas at Hay Lakes February 1st to help Helen celebrate her birthday.

Mrs. Leif Pedersen is a patient in the Wainwright hospital. While there Mrs. T. Pedersen is keeping house for her son and the children.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Peddicord motored to Edmonton Friday to attend a wedding in the city on Saturday.

George Strempquist was a patient in Hanlisty hospital, receiving treatment for a painful ear.

Mrs. Glen Mitchell is home from the Hardisty hospital where she received treatment for a crushed hand and acquisition of the little finger when her hand got caught in the pump jack at home.

Congratulations and best wishes are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mitchell who were married at Lougheed February 6th and entertained relatives and friends to a dance in the Amisk Hall the same evening.

A shower honoring the newlywede Mr. and Mrs. Burdette Lehne was held at the Pentecostal Church the evening of February 4th. Arn Hardin was the MC for a short enjoyable programe before requesting the young couple to come to the front and be seated. This was followed by Arnold and Philip Nordin bringing in a miniature Gilman's Oil Tank (a rain barrel) filled to over flowing with gifts and well wishes for Burdette and Jill. Mrs. Myers, sister of the bride, Sandra Lehne and Janis Anholt assisted with the listing, opening and displaying of the gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Lehne both expressed thanks for the gifts, the social evening and extended an invitation to visit them at their home in Amisk. The serving of a tasty lunch brought by the ladies concluded this friendly gathering.

TEEEN TOWN TALKS

Hardisty Teen Town was host to 128 teenagers for a curling bonspiel on January 29, 30, and 31st. Although the weather was bad the bonspiel was successful and enjoyed by all.

The winners were as follows:
FIRST EVENT
Grand Challenge: winner Cumberland, Sedgewick; 2nd Long, Irvine; 3rd Lee, Wilson, Hughenden; 4th Bateh, Camrose.
SECOND EVENT
First in Sheets: Camrose; 2nd Newman, Wainwright; 3rd W. Johnson, Hughenden; 4th E. Maurer, Hardisty.
THIRD EVENT
First Penman, Czar; 2nd Alexander, Wainwright.

We would like to thank all the parents who came, the ladies running the book, the concession and the ice, those who opened their homes for billets and also those who offered to help in any way. The storm came on Saturday night. Their support was greatly appreciated.

John Crocker in 1940 and his wife Mary in 1949. Mr. Crocker came to Hardisty in 1912 and took up farming. He was also employed as caretaker on the CPR until his retirement in 1946. Funeral services were held in Calgary on Friday

Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Prever and Mrs. Kitty Wells attended an auction sale at Settler on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hayes have returned from Calgary where Ray has been working for the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Snake motored to Calgary to attend the funeral of Mr. John Crocker.

Mr. Doug Mills of Prevost was an overnight visitor with the parents Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Mills this week.

Busy Bees met at the home of Jean Rambaugh on Wednesday evening. Bridge winners were Barbe Matthews and Maryon Dragger.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Alvie Miller on the birth of a daughter.

Mr. Percy Chadwick passed away very suddenly at his home here on February 3rd. The sympathy of all is extended to his son Bob and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Orian Markwart were caught in Saturday's blizzard when their truck stalled. Forced to walk about a mile for help and warmth they had to walk back. Orian's hand had his hands badly frozen and spent some days in hospital.

Mr. Ken Grover was a Lethbridge visitor this week.

SHOCKING WAY TO DRY HAIR

"The way some women use their electric hair dryers is enough to curl you hair!" reports the Iowa State Department of Health. Since the dryer can be clipped in two men's bolts they are going places they never should, such as into laundry rooms and bathrooms. Some women wear the dryers on their heads while doing the laundry and while soaking in the tub. It is dangerous to use an electric appliance around water because: (1) a razor is just a touch with one hand the dryer may fall in the tub with you, short, and send an electric charge through the water if there is a possibility of a current being conducted through a wet-soaked hoce to the wearer's head.

So remember — bath and laundry are off limits to portable hair dryers.

WHITER THAN WHITE

To retain color and cleanliness in your clothes, remember: The greasy soil present in your clothes undergoes chemical changes upon laundering and it is sometimes impossible to wash out. In particular, remember to launder collars and cuffs of men's shirts.

HERE'S HOW TO CHECK SNAP-BACK

A fabric that can be stretched to the moon and does not return when released is useless for garments.

It's already panic, the capacity to recover quickly and completely is as important as the power to expand. The better the snap-back the fabric's "bounce to the inch" is excellent or very good. If a piece of "bubble" remains on the first inspection but quickly disappears before your eyes, the snap-back rating is good or fair. If the "bubble" persists after 30 seconds even though it has diminished somewhat in size, the panic have been made of a "lazy" fabric with a poor or very poor recovery rating.

Lougheed News

(Mrs. Marion Couturier)

Congratulations to the newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Burdett Lehne (Jeanne Odegaard) who were married in Trinity Church Friday, Feb 5th. A wedding dance was held in Amisk the same evening.

Lougheed 14 senior hockey team motored to Hughenden on Thursday evening but came home with a loss of 8 to 4.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Sutter and Susan accompanied by Mrs. J. Quast and Valeria and Kendall were business visitors in Viking on Thursday.

Despite the storm Saturday, Jan. 30 the Ladies Auxiliary held their Tupperee Whist with three tables being in play and 12 ladies playing. Ladies high went to Mrs. Sadie Nelson, low to Mrs. Jean Watts. Mens high to Andy Knapp and mens low to P. Sutter.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kile and family of Edmonton visited recently with the latter's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Shantz and family.

The UGG Grain Elevator has a crew working.

A couple of Lougheed rinks entered the Killam Ladie's Bonspiel held last week end.

Forming A Basic Herd

A low income year is a good time to think about forming or enlarging a basic herd

Dr. Glen Pursell, Director of Alberta's Farm Economics Branch, says no livestock breeder can afford to overlook the advantages of a basic herd. These animals are treated as capital gain and therefore exempt from income tax. Although the herd is subject to estate tax upon the death of the owner, this rate is lower than the income tax rate.

When animals which have been raised on the farm are placed in a basic herd, they must be recorded as income for that year. If they have been bought, the owner cannot claim them as an expense against the farm. In either case the net effect is an increase in taxable income for that year. By establishing a basic herd during a low income year, says Dr. Pursell, it may be possible to avoid increasing that taxable income to the point where it falls into a higher taxation bracket.

Anyone engaged in raising cattle, sheep, pigs or horses on a regular basis is able to establish a basic herd. The herd can comprise one or an unlimited number of mature animals and a breeder can have several different basic herds at one time. He might have a basic herd of purebred cattle and another of commercial cattle, sheep or swine.

A farmer who wants to form a basic herd before having a dispersal sale must file an application form with his taxation office 30 days before the sale date. If a farmer dies before having established a basic herd, his executor can apply to have one established within six months after the farmer's death.

Dr. Pursell points out that farmers considering forming a basic herd must indicate this on their income tax form and submit a basic herd application, either simultaneously or later in the same tax period. Basic herd application forms can be obtained from taxation officials, accountants and often from banks.

The rules on the back of the basic herd form should be carefully followed to prevent the applicant being turned down on a technicality. Using the same form and procedure are used to increase or decrease an existing basic herd.

Advantages and procedures involved in forming a basic herd, incorporating a farm and estate planning are being discussed by Dr. Pursell at meetings in many areas of the province during the next few weeks. Information on these meetings can be obtained from local district agriculturists.

1965 Stamp Program To Include Flag Stamp

Canada's new flag will be honoured on a special commemorative postage stamp to be issued on June 30, 1965. This announcement was made by the Hon. John R. Nicholson, Postmaster General of Canada.

The date of issue was chosen to coincide with July 1st, our nation's al holiday. The design will feature the new flag, flying from a flag pole, against a sky of blue. The word "Canada" and the denomination "5" will appear in middle left position. The words "postes" and "postage" will be included at bottom left.

The two colors of blue and red will be printed in intaglio, using hand engraved steel dies. The design was developed by the Canadian Bank Note Company, at the request of the Post Office Department.

The inclusion of a flag stamp has necessitated a rearranging of the previously announced philatelic programme. The stamp to honor the centennial of the choice of Ottawa as the national capital has been moved from June 30th to September 8th, where it will share a date of issue with the stamp commemorating the Inter - Parliamentary Union Conference.

The updated stamp program now reads as follows:

February 8th — New Brunswick and Nova Scotia floreals.

March 8th — International Cooperation Year.

Spring — Space Research.

April 28th — British Columbia and Manitoba Floreals

June 30th — Flag stamp.

August 4th — Prince Edward Island floral.

September 8th — Inter-Parliamentary Union Conference and Centennial of the choice of Ottawa as the national capital.

October 19th — 5 cent and 5 cent Christmas stamps.

First day of issue arrangements for the new national flag stamp will be handled in the normal way by the Department's Postage Stamp Division.

Flagstaff Lodge Auxiliary Meets

Highlight of the Flagstaff Lodge Auxiliary meeting held February 1 in the Lodge dining room was the display of articles and materials purchased by Mrs. Brandt for "occupational therapy" for the guests. At present the ladies have been engaged in varnishing and polishing the dozen or so night tables that had been donated to the Lodge in the past year. Also revarnishing and painting some wicker chairs and benches. The ladies are being occupied in textile painting and embroidering dresser scarves, and a number of other sample crafts. A most fascinating piece of work to hold the interest of all is the chipped pork Master of the "Last Supper" to be hung on the wall of the dining room.

This is just a small beginning, and as work of this type gives the guests more interest and purpose in life, is quite native to finance more material for the therapy it was decided for the Lodge Auxiliary to sponsor a Bake Sale to be held in Admiral Store on Saturday afternoon, February 20th at 2:30.

Another project the Auxiliary is working on at present is the providing of needed for a small snack bar to be installed in the upstairs dining room by the Kinsmen.

An enjoyable evening closed with a tasty lunch served by Mrs. Strand and Mrs. Bafus. Next meeting March 1st.

4H BEEF CLUB SALE — 1965

The 4th Beef Club Adult Advisory Committee met in Sedgewick on Tuesday evening, February 2nd to discuss plans for the 1965 4H Beef Club Sale.

Killam's invitation to hold the sale in Killam was again accepted. An invitation was also received from Daysland Lions to hold the sale in Daysland. The Adult Committee members from all parts of the M.D. of Flagstaff felt that there were advantages in holding the sale in one location rather than rotating the sale around the district. They also liked the idea of the more central point for the sale.

The possibility of holding the Achievement Day and Sale on one day was discussed. A one day event would keep the 4H members out of school and the adults away from work only one day. This proposal has its merits but it also creates problems. The committee members voted to discuss the possibility of a one day 4H Achievement Day and Sale locally. They agreed to meet again in mid-April to make the final arrangements for the 4H Beef Club Sale for 1965.

FARM BUSINESS ASSOCIATION FORMING

Twenty farmers met at three different meetings last week to see if they could sort out their farm records well enough to fill out a Farm Business Analysis Sheet. The outcome was favorable and all going well they plan to join with farmers from Rietzler, Paintearth, Provost and Wainwright areas who have done the same, to form an East Central Alberta Business Association.

These farmers are working with their District Agriculturist and the Alberta Department of Agriculture Economics Branch. The analysis from each participating farmer will be processed in Edmonton and a Farm Business Report compiled for the District.

We hope to receive valuable information from this report to help us improve the management decisions that the farm business needs so badly these days.

Any farmer interested in this Farm Analysis should contact Art Edwards, your District Agriculturist at Sedgewick for further information and how you can get ready to join the Associates next year.

GRAIN VARIETIES

Many inquiries are being made about varieties of grains at this time of year. The new leaflet on varieties has not been published as yet. Watch for notification of when it is available. Farmers are making request about the following grains.

Park Wheat

Is a hard red spring wheat possessing early maturity and high yield combined with excellent milling and baking qualities. Park is rated fully equal to marquis. It is a potential) replacement for Manitou in Central Alberta. It is as early as Saunders and has consistently outyielded it. Park is considerably easier to thresh than Thatcher and does not weather as readily in the swath.

Canthatch Wheat

Very similar to Thatcher in all respects and also resistant to stem rust.

Husky and Jubilee Barley

Are late maturing, 6 row, high yielding varieties rated high for soil zones where moisture and season are satisfactory.

Parkland Barley

Is a malting grade barley, higher yielding than Olli.

Eagle, Glen and Rodney Oats

Eagle is high yielding, late maturing and has a small kernal. Glen and Rodney are medium early and medium late respectively.

TENDERS CALLED FOR EGGS

OTTAWA — The Canada Department of Agriculture will buy 2,000,000 eggs as a contribution to the World Food Program.

The CDA's Agricultural Products Board is inviting tenders on these eggs.

The Board is also asking for tenders from egg powdering plants to process and package the eggs in powdered form.

The Products Board intends to buy about 5,000 cases of shell eggs per week commencing with January 25th. Bids to supply them must be in lots of 800 thirty-dozen cases or more.

Detailed information on how to tender for supplying the eggs and for the powdering may be obtained by writing, wiring, or telephoning the Poultry Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Constance Marie Befus Married At Sedgewick Adventist Church

The Sedgewick Seventh-day Adventist Church was the scene of a beautiful candle-light wedding, when Constance Marie, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Befus of Sedgewick and Mr. Dennis Walter Zbarschuk of Saskatoon were united in holy matrimony by Pastor Norman Mathe of Saskatoon.

The bride entering the church on the arm of her father and given in marriage by her parents, looked beautiful in her traditional floor length gown of Gemsun lace moulded bodice, highlighted with sequins and lily-point sleeves. The very beautiful shirt of silk organza featured three lace embellished flounces caught up with hand fashioned roses. Her veil of imported silk illusion misted from a floral headpiece embellished with crystal dewdrops. She carried a star shaped bouquet of cascading red roses and white baby mums.

Her attendants, Miss Shirley Andrews of Lacombe, Alberta; Mrs. Vance Peters of Berrien Springs, Michigan; and Miss Judy Graham of Armstrong, B.C. were attired in identical frocks of white chiffon velvet with matching wedding hand headpieces. They wore short white gloves, red shoes and carried star-shaped nosegays of silver tinsel red carnations.

The little flower girls Debra Diane and Gen Marie Anderson, nieces of the bride were frocks of red velvet, with matching circlet headpieces, and short white gloves. They carried baskets of white baby mums. The candle-lighters were Billy and Randy Anderson, nephews of the bride.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anatoly Zbarschuk of Prince Albert, Sask. was attended by his brother Ivan of Champaigne, Illinois; Mr. Ronald Wambold, Olds, Alberta; and Mr. Elwyn Befus, Sedgewick, Alberta, brother of the bride. Ushers were Mr. Vance Peters and Mr. Marvin Nicks of Berrien Springs, Michigan.

Wedding music was provided by the groom's brother-in-law, Mr. Curtis Wolfe of Milo, Oregon, rendering beautiful selections on the violin and Pastor Elmer Kornuhe of Moose Jaw, Sask. singing "Thanks Be To God and Prayer Perfect. During the ceremony Pastor Nicks and Pastor Kornuhe sang the Wedding Prayer. Organist was Miss Carol Anderson of Berrien Springs, Michigan.

A reception for 120 guests followed in the Sedgwick Community Hall, with Pastor Kornuhe as MC. Mr. Ivan Zbarschuk proposed the toast and the groom ably responded. The bride's table covered with a beautiful hand crochet lace cloth was centered with a 3 tier cake resting on a 3 tier clover topped with a lattice backdrop and poinsettias. The bride's mother received guests wearing a light pink and silver knit dress with jacket, with deep pink hat and gloves. The groom's mother wore a navy silk dress with bone accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of tiny pink baskets.

The bride's going away outfit was a navy-two-piece wool suit with a corsage of pink roses. After a short honeymoon, the happy couple will reside in Saskatoon.

Saskatchewan. Out of town guests were from Michigan, Oregon, British Columbia, Illinois, Saskatchewan, Lethbridge, Calgary, Olds, Lacombe and other Alberta points.

SEDGEWICK UCW HOLDS MEETING

SEDGEWICK — Fifteen ladies met on Tuesday for the February meeting of the United Church Women. The President opened the meeting with prayer, and Mrs. Stu Gatfield was in charge of the devotional period which heralded an inspiring talk "The Echoes Of Life".

During the business meeting reports were given and discussed. Correspondence included a letter of appreciation from the All Peoples Mission for clothing sent to them. It was decided to begin the study book "God And His Purpose" at 8:00 p.m. on Feb. 14th in the church. Several ladies plan to attend the annual meeting of Presbyterial in Camrose.

Ball call next month will be answered with a get-wi card and a stamped envelope.

During study period Mrs. Lewis showed a film on Trinidad and the work of the church there.

Lunch was served by the hostess Mrs. W. Haines and Mrs. Davis.

SUGAR AND SPICE

by Bell Smiley

HE WAS FOREVER ENGLAND

With his usual superb sense of timing, Winston Churchill chose to die during a rather dull winter period when it was possible to attract the attention of the entire world without fear of anyone stealing the scene from him.

It was time to go. There is nothing more pitiable than a great man reduced to dotage and senility. He was spared this.

Despite the avalanche of anecdotes and eulogies and reprints of his speeches, I don't think there was a deep and widespread sorrow at his demise. Certainly, there was none of the heart-in-throat grief that accompanied the death of President Kennedy.

It was more of a nostalgic sadness, a sense of the loss of an institution. One can imagine the English feeling like this when Queen Victoria died, after 60-odd years on the throne.

Quite a man was Sir Winston. And just that. Not a superman, but a man.

And that was why he was able to seize and shake and straighten the hearts of the free world, with his courage and his tears, his defiance and his perspex, during those days when Europe, and the world, were threatened with "a thousand years of darkness."

Most of us have several elements in our character. Churchill was a kaleidoscope of the colors of life. He was reactionary and reformer; he was earthly realist and poet; he was dreamer and doer; he was selfish and selfless; he was arrogant and humble. He was part pirate, part preacher; part imperialist and part imp; he was ruthless, but he wept easily. He was a hundred other things, just as contradictory.

I was 19 when the "phoney war" ended, and the German legions smashed through Belgium, and life suddenly became very real. And I shall never forget the thrill, the sense of hope and of resolution, that surged through us when the lion's growl ripped over the Atlantic on the airwaves, "We shall never surrender." It's difficult to explain that he was 66 then, an age when most men are retiring from life and the struggle.

I saw the old fire-eater once, and was almost trampled to death in the process. It was on an airstrip in Normandy, in the summer of 1944, a few weeks after the invasion.

We were drawn up on parade in the dust and heat, officers in front, other ranks in the rear, and we stood there, muttering curses, for half an hour.

Suddenly a little monoplane and a big transport plane dropped out of the sky, and squatted 60 feet in front of us. The pilot climbed out. We could see his air-vice-marshal's stripes and grumbled our disgust for all brass. Then the back ramp opened and a vast cherubic figure, with a cigar in it, beamed at us.

He came out of the thing like a baby whale coming out of Jackson's zyg. He stood on the wing, grinning. He put up two fingers in the world-famous V-sign, but with just a suspicion of the senior-man's naughty gesture which looked much the same but meant something quite different.

Then he waved, an embracing wave that said, "Come on in closer." Our total compliment of officer pilots was almost wiped out when the rear ramp surged through, around and over us, in cluster sticks, bursting distance of the old war-horse.

He talked for five minutes, earthly vocabulary Caesar employed when addressing his legions. And then he was off, his incredibly foolish and gallant old man, hopping to another airfield, rushing his skin to have a look at us and let us have a look at him.

And human he was! My favorite story is the one involving Lady Astor, the hard-hated, nap-tongued old aristocrat. She became enraged during an argument with Churchill, and fired what she thought was the parting shot, "If you were my husband I'd poison your coffee." To which the great man replied promptly and politely "Madame, if you were my wife, I'd drink it."

We shall not see his like again.

SEDGEWICK 4H BEEF CLUB

SEDGEWICK — The January meeting of the 4H Beef Club came to order by Roger Ferrow reciting the pledge. The roll call was taken by each member giving their problems with their calves and how rectified. Dale Djec gave the treasurer's report. It was decided to invite Merna to a curling bonspiel on a night set by the club members.

A letter was received from Tom Hines saying that he could come to show his films of Russia on a certain date. The date he set was too inconvenient, so we wrote to him to change the date and are waiting for a new date.

During the business meeting the following reports were given; The Library Committee reported that the Christmas gift in the library of $90.00 was to be given to the Principal Mr. H. Carroll. This money is to be spent at his discretion in conference with the Librarian, Mr. L. Nather and the other teachers interested in obtaining more books for their particular needs.

The membership committee, Mrs. Ethel Graham, reported a membership of 24 The average attendance for the year is 40 people per meeting.

The next program will be rounding up the Hobby Fair for the spring. Mrs. Eva Werbeskie will be on hand with suggestions for everyone

Travelling baskets will be going the rounds this year to raise funds for Red Cross. It comes your way, be generous

The program for the evening was planned especially for those parents who attended the Nursery program, indicating a problem of loss of interest on the part of the children, as far as school subjects, especially reading. The film which was presented was called Skippy and the Three R's. It presented the story of a beginner at school. It showed how Skippy lost interest and how his very able teacher realized this, found out what the trouble was. Skippy discovered he couldn't be accepted until he put away his tricycle and acquired a big boy's two-wheeler. The parents' reaction and the way the teacher used Skippy's new interest made up the story

Mr. MacKenzie Elliott, student counselor for the Camrose School Division was the following suggestions from the film and his broad fund of experience. First, most of us, for very reasons, mostly human and selfish, expect too much sooner than a minimum of our own children. If the child can't come up to our expectations we are disappointed and usually show a certain amount of it. Remember, you can't always have that all children want more than anything to please. We tend to assume that if the child does not measure up to our wishes he is doing this to spite. Most of us haven't taken the trouble to find out the child's capabilities. Are they reasonable to be attained in any school where a regular curriculum is followed. Mr. Mackenzie-Elliott pointed out that IQ's are only an duration. A third point was made. If you want to help your child with school work, consult the teacher. The teacher is always glad to assist. Mr. Mackenzie-Elliott answered individual questions. The meeting closed with lunch and conversation.

WATER — WATER

Our farm in Manitoba, while it was on exceptionally productive farm, (in the good years), lacked, not only GOOD water, but a sufficient supply for house and stock. And, to make matters worse, BOTH were very "Alkali".

We were told, when we first went there, "O" pail" became used to that shall in time".

Our family, while they NEVER relished the taste, they became immune to the effects of the alkali, but so often they would add fruit juice or baking soda, vinegar and sugar, (Making a "Sour" drink or, sometimes a bit of rolled oats, (Uncooked), anything that would take that most napalatable taste of alkali out of the water.

During baying time and harvest, especially, they ALWAYS added SOMETHING that would counteract the results of what that awful water would do to them. If they failed to do this, they almost inevitably became quite ill, especially a new man just starting to work at our place.

There were just two wells in use all the years we lived there, one in the barn and one near the house. Grandpa had several other "Pet wells" dug or bored, hoping to strike a vein of good water which neighbors all around us had. But no such luck. The two wells which we did have were quite shallow, but held sufficient water for normal use.

However, over the years, as our herds increased, the possible lack of enough water was posing quite a problem. Therefore, one Fall, after the Fall work was all "Wound up", our men decided to dig a well-hole, out in the pasture.

The P.F.R.A. offered to do it. (They were digging several of these holes throughout the country at this time, (In the 30's). But our name was so far down the list, we despaired of it ever getting done that Fall. So the "Man of the house" suggested they attempt doing the job themselves.

So he arranged for one of the neighbors to bring his tractor over, and, renting a "Fresno" from the town council, and using his own tractor with that of the neighbor's, a good sized water-hole was dug "In no time at all".

Of course, this being in the dry years, no rain fell, but during the winter months enough snow fell, piling up on the banks along side the water-hole and melted in the Spring, there was a surprisingly amount of water, by Spring time. Not only the melting snow helped to fill the hole, but when the men were digging they struck a small vein of water, (Also very much alkali) but this continual seepage kept some water in that hole all through the summer months, even during those dry years.

Slowly though this water too, had alkali in it, at least it was WATER, and the stock, although they didn't exactly RELISH it, it answered the purpose, and they did become gradually used to it.

I might add that in the Winter months, when the stock didn't drink as much the barn well held sufficient water, which, was a relief.

But what about water for the house now? The house well held plenty, such as it was, (But hard "AS NAILS", and no amount of Lye would soften it) our family did drink it, but certainly NEVER got to really liking it. So, when a new man came to work for us, and simply couldn't "Stomach the stuff", but some of them tryned it), we would send a cream can, in the car, to one of the neighbor's who had good drinking water, thus saving the man from possibly becoming quite ill.

We had a small cement cistern built under the kitchen to catch the rain water, but during the 30's, when the cistern became dry, one of the men had a brain storm, ing water-tank of lovely soft water from a deep well about four miles East of us, just about every other week until freeze-up.

Then during the long Winter months we used ice. (The ice was just for washing and NOT FOR DRINKING purposes). This big was a real FREEZING one, as any of the Old-Timers who have hauled a winter's supply of ice can testify. Our men would spend possibly three or four days down at the Creek, cutting out the blocks of ice, and, with "Ice-tongs" pull these blocks out onto the solid ice to be picked up later and hauled home. The farmers all through that part of the country got their ice at the same place, the big swimming hole on "Gimby Creek", and no one would even think of taking a block from the other man's pile.

When the "Man of the House" figured he had enough blocks out to do the family for most, if not all, the winter, he would haul it home with a team and sleigh, piling it on the Nort side of the house sometimes covering the pile with old blankets in case Mr. Sun decided to cast his feeble eye on it some mild day, and start to melt back and forth to the ice pile, upping the out-side door so often, that, too, kept the old kitchen very much on the cool side for hours.

Generally, we milked enough cows during the winter that there was always a surplus amount of cream on hand most of the time. So, with all of that ice on hand, (And, I might add, a big family of youngsters who ALL loved ice-cream), what could be more delectable for desert than a dish heaped with freshly frozen ice-cream? (For old tad young alike).

In these "water-years", we, on the Prairie farms took these chores in our "Stride", so frankly, there was no alternative. But with all the hardships (?) it entailed, no I have sild numerous times, and I REPEAT, "We were a HAPPY lot, and seldom complained".

SEDGEWICK — At the February meeting of the W.I. 10 members and 2 visitors were present. An executive meeting had been held on Jan. 19 to plan the year's program.

The secretary read a letter of appreciation from CMHA for our donation of gifts towards the patients' Christmas Fair at Oliver.

A representative from the TB X-ray clinic will be a guest at our March meeting to instruct the group on planning for a clinic the following month.

One of the members volunteered to attend a meeting at the school this week to hear a speaker giving ideas on a Centennial project.

The EMO has asked us to support their group in some coming activities.

We were reminded that Education Week falls between March 7-13.

As a project we plan to start a scrap book on Alberta to be exchanged with a women's group in the British Guiana.

A travelling basket has been started among the members to be passed around for the coming month.

Mrs. Helen Whitten, convenor for handicraft introduced her program by explaining the point system of judging used at our annual conventions when we put on a handicraft display. Newsletters from the home economist were passed out. Plans are under way for a course in sewing lessons to be held in early spring. The members were interested in a new craft of wooden work, and enjoyed some samples. Then a film on textiles was shown. Lunch concluded the evening.

Bridal Shower Held For Miss Shirley Olsen

SEDGEWICK — A bridal shower was held on Friday evening the 6th of February in honor of Miss Shirley Olsen. The program was M C'd. by Mrs Gordon Taylor and consisted of a reading by Mrs. H Christenson, duet by Mrs. Margar et Carlstrom and Mrs. Harry Gascoyne, and contests.

In opening the gifts, the guest of honor was assisted by Mrs. Harry Gascoyne and Mrs. John Brandle, upon which her mother listed the gifts. Miss Marlene Coates, Mrs. Margaret Pederson and Mrs. H. Christenson were in charge of the packages to and from the table. Shirley thanked everyone sincerely. Lunch was served.

Who will you nominate ?

These enterprising young Albertans have good reason to be proud of themselves - as have the public-spirited weekly newspaper readers in their home towns. They, in why we are proud to award special certificates to the nominators of Alberta's Junior Citizens of the Year. Typical qualifications for Junior Citizen Awards are acts of courage, initiative, work done for community, church and in the home since August 1964. If you know a young person between 6 and 16 years (or a group) deserving of special recognition for any reason whatsoever, please help them to become Junior Citizens of the Year. Simply give the details to the editor of this newspaper.

Winners selected each year by a panel of Alberta's Weekly Newspaper Editors. All young people nominated will receive a special certificate of recognition

Baptist Church

In place of the regular news items, it was felt that the words of the following song would prove a blessing to all. This song is one of the favorites of our congregation.

NO OTHER PLEA

My faith has found a resting-place, Not in device or creed;
I trust the Ever-living One, His wounds for me shall plead.
Refrain:
I need no other argument,
I need no other plea,
It is enough that Jesus died,
And that He died for me.
Enough for me that Jesus saves. This ends my fear and doubt;
A sinful soul I come to Him,
He'll never cast me out.
My heart is leaning on the Word. The written Word of God,
Salvation by my Savior's name, Salvation thro' His blood.
My great Physician heals the sick. The lost He came to save;
For we His precious blood He shed, For me His Life He gave.
—Lidie H. Edmunds, 19th Century

Annual School Meeting Told
Budget Over Million Mark

(By Staff Reporter)

KILLAM — An attendance of less than fifty interested citizens attended the annual meeting of the Killam School Division last Friday, to learn that the district's budget was one million dollar mark in the expenditure column for the first time. The attendance consisted mainly of rural people, most conspicuous by their absence being town and village residents. In spite of the numerous activities on the same evening, it was observed by this reporter that there is evident apathy on the part of the ratepayers and citizens generally in the affairs of school and education. It was the choice of the meeting that Russel Grant chair the affair, and after a few introductory remarks he called for the reading of the minutes of the last annual meeting. No business arising out of the minutes, the meeting passed on to the Board Chairman's Report. The Chairman reported that there had been increased services rendered in 1964, especially in the areas of Pre-Employment Class at Sedgewick, more bus services and broader courses in Business Education, along with a policy for admitting students to Vocational Schools, and increased allowances for libraries and homes. He also mentioned the inclusion of Galahad into the Division, and the contemplated closing of Meeron. Increased expenditures were partially caused for by a 4 1/2 Mill increase in Municipal Requisitions. The Heisterie Colony east of Alliance is now a part of the Division and the classes are to start this month. In conclusion the chairman said that further centralization of the school system is to be considered.

Out of this report it was stated that the Killam Colony had built their own school and will provide the light and heat for same. The Division provides a teacher and levies a tax on the Colony.

Superintendent's Report

The Supt. Report indicated that the Pre-Employment Class, a new adventure, appears to be succeeding in that interest is high and the vacancies filled. The Division has also provided a teacher and levies a tax on the Colony.

Secretary-Treasurer's Report

The Supt. Report indicated that the Pre-Employment Class, a new adventure, appears to be succeeding in that interest is high and the vacancies filled. The Division has also provided a teacher and levies a tax on the Colony.

Financial Report

The Financial Report given and explained by Secretary Borth, was accepted without too much comment in spite of the fact that it involved a figure of over a million dollars. It would almost seem that the larger the budget the less the worry.

Almost ninety thousand over the million mark, to be exact, this sum was obtained by some $900,190.69 through the School Foundation Program, with total Supplementary Requisitions taking care of the rest. Of this latter the M.D. of Flagstaff is the biggest contributor with the sum of $50,800.96. On the year's operations the Division showed a deficit of $8,294.30.

During the period when the meeting was thrown open for general school issues, the following items in spite of the fact that it involved the confusion caused by the use of more than one text book in the teaching of any one subject; the use of school plants for extra-curricular activities such as 4-H meetings, etc; marking students absent when roads are impassable and buses cannot operate; marking students down as disciplinary measure; admitting students to school buildings in the morning before a specified time during colder weather; and teaching in the late schools; student behavior on buses; plowing of roads after storms. All these items were discussed and opinions offered wherever possible.

Killam B of T Urges Town Status

KILLAM — A general meeting of the Killam District Board of Trade was held in the Village Hall on February 1st with president Roy Manning in the chair. Mr. Manning introduced his guest Mr. John Maxwell to the members. The latter has recently opened a barber and beauty shop in Killam.

The matter of changing the Village of Killam to Town status was discussed, and motion made by J. Laciuk and R. Link that the Board of Trade recommend that the Village Council call a special meeting for the purpose of passing a resolution to approve the change.

The matter of fluoridation of the town water supply was also discussed, but the matter was tabled.

With a view to organizing a recreation commission in the Village, a motion was made that a dinner meeting be held at the regular meet in March and that we obtain a guest speaker for the occasion from the Department of the Provincial Secretary, Recreation and Cultural Division.

Legion Auxiliary

SEDGEWICK — Ten members of the Ladies Legion Auxiliary met at the Legion Hall on Wednesday evening at 8:30 p.m. Armed with supplies for the Polio Canvas and working in pairs, the members covered the town and met back at the Hut at 8:30 for the February meeting.

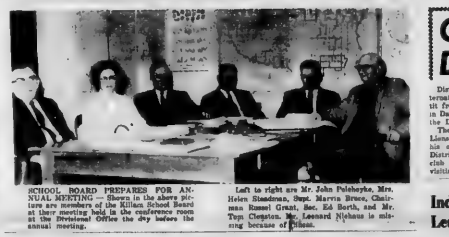
Twelve members answered the roll call, with Mrs. Joy Hampshire, the 1965 president in the chair. It was decided to pay a membership in the Pinpoint Lodge Auxiliary, and one member attend their meetings.

Discussion followed re catering. We were unable to cater to the Board of Trade dinner meeting due to the Hut being in use that evening.

It was decided to cater to the lady curlers for a buffet meal in March.

Mrs. E. Tweedy and Mrs. Edith Johnson volunteered to meet with Dept. Heinrich to discuss plans for a future social evening.

Dues unpaid by the March meeting as the per capita tax goes in at the end of March. Roll call for the March meeting is a cup & saucer for the kitchen.



SCHOOL BOARD PREPARES FOR ANNUAL MEETING — Shown in the pictures are members of the Killam School Board at their meeting held in the conference room at the Divisional Office the day before the annual meeting.

Killam Ladies Plan Red Cross Canvass

KILLAM — Mrs. Lars Erickson was hostess for the February meeting of the Killam Presbyterian Ladies Association. There were 14 members and three visitors present.

The devotional period opened by singing hymn 494 followed by a prayer. The topic was taken from our study "Missions on our Doorstep" and was read by Mrs. Ross Grant. The Devotional period closed by singing hymn 571 followed by prayer.

The business meeting opened with roll call followed by the reading of the minutes. Plans were made for the Red Cross Canvass and an interesting report was given on the coming TB Christ Chlist

The Lien rink, Arnold (ship), Alfred (third), Harold (second) and Ken (lead), from Lougheed, and the Killam M.F. Curl-o-rama winners, were the runnersup on the M. F. playdowns in District 10 at Stettler on Feb. 10th and 11th.

Represented were teams from Bashaw, Forestburg, Daysland, Cadogan, Provost and Stettler. Stettler was the eventual winner.

The Lien rink won the 4 Event at Stettler but lost out to the Stettler foursome in the finals.

Lougheed Homemakers

LOUGHEED — A skating party with invited guests was the highlight of the February 3rd meeting of the Lougheed Homemakers. A short meeting opened with O Canada and the 4H pledge followed. The roll call was to demonstrate an exercise and describe why it was good for the body. After the secretary's minutes, correspondence was read. The treasurer's report was given. A demonstration on the proper way to apply a waist band and make apron ties was given. Short talks were on proper pressing and why I chose cooking as my project. The meeting was adjourned with God Save the Queen. During lunch games were played.

Midgets To Play Rockey Mountain House Saturday

SEDGEWICK — Next Saturday night at 7:30 p.m. the Sedgewick Midgets will be hosts to the Rocky Mountain House Midget team in the Provincial Midget Hockey play downs.

A team always plays better when the fans turn out to support them so be there on Saturday night to help the boys win.

Governor To Visit Daysland Lions

District Governor of Lions International District 37B, Andy Mutrie from Fort St. John B.C. will be in Daysland, Feb. 25th in connection with the Daysland Lions Club.

The Governor is on a tour of the Lions Club in the area now making his official visits as Governor of District 37B. He will visit each club once and some twice. While visiting the Daysland Club he will meet with the executive and members to discuss matters of administration and service and progress.

Mr. Pevill of Fairview, Fort St. John and a member of the Lions Club in that area. He has served as club as Director, Vice President, President, Zone Chairman and has three years perfect attendance.

District 37B covers an area from Peneka in the south to Fort St. John in the north, Edson in the west to Dawson Ck in the east. The Lions club has become the fastest growing service club organization in the world.

Mr. Pettit will also visit Forestburg and Camrose on Feb. 23 and 23 respectively.

Indians Finish League Schedule

KILLAM — Last week saw the Killam Indians play three games at home as they rushed to finish the regular scheduled games of the Battle River League. The league officially ended on Monday night but there were several games to be made up that had been missed during the cold weather.

The Indians lost to Hardisty on Monday night by a score of 8 to 3.

On Wednesday night the Daysland Northstars were at Killam in a high scoring game that ended 14 to 12 for the Red Men.

Friday night the Irma Aces visited the Killam Arena and were trounced to the tune of 6 to 1 by the Indians.

Sabers Win 1st Round

SEDGEWICK — Last Sunday afternoon the Rocky Mountain House Juvenile Exsonnities were at Sedgewick to play the Sabers in the second of a two game total point series. This was the first round of the provincial juvenile playoffs in which the Sabres are entered.

The Sabers had played the same team at Rocky the week before and won by a score of 7 to 2 which sent them into this game at home with it the same way on the total point series.

When the first period started it looked a little bad for the Sabers as they couldn't seem to get untracked and the visitors controlled the play for better than 6 minutes. The Rocky lads opened at the 5.5 second mark but the Sabers held them off and started rolling with their first goal (and first shot on the net) at the 7:55 point. From there on it was hard skating hockey with both teams having their chances but the Sabers countering the scoring as they added two more to end the period ahead 3 to 1.

The second period featured good fast action which saw tempers starting to rise. At one point the Sabers found themselves two men short but put up a good defence which stopped the opposition from scoring. Both teams scored once during this period to make the score 4 to 2.

Action was fast and rugged during the third period but the hockey wasn't as good. Eight of the twelve penalties handed up two majors were handed out in the third period. Both teams were given six penalties for a total of twelve in the game. Each team scored one more goal in the third to end the game with the score 5 to 3 for the Sabers and 12 to 8 on the two game series.

We understand the Sabers will next play the winners of the Provincial series which is starting this week.

Interest In Public Affairs!

It is a natural follow-up it seems, for public officials to become lazy in office when the public shows indifference in the realm of civic affairs. To some extent such reaction may be justified, for a public official finds it most difficult to carry on an efficient and productive administration when public apathy is noticably apparent. An administration to do a capable job, should have the backing, or at least the interest of the people it is serving. On Monday, February 22, the various towns served by the Community Press will be holding annual rntepayers meetings, when the affairs of the municipality will be discussed and a review made of the past year's activities. The day is far gone when the average town operated on a few paltry dollars, for now most have reached figures large enough to merit attention by everyone concerned. Many important things are transpiring today in the small communities, and the ones who want to continue to advance, must have the interest and the assistance of its inhabitants. It is the bounden duty of everyone to attend the annual meeting, to suggest, to find fault and to assist in the affairs of the municipality. We recall a statement by a former Mayor of Edmonton who said, "If you haven't got something to find favor with, you surely have something to grouch about." Attend your meeting on February 22nd. Do your part to keep your community alive.

Slow Drivers Impede Traffic!

It has been often contended, and with a good deal of merit, that the angry driver is the most dangerous operator on the road. Angry drivers are apt to perform in a way not only dangerous to himself but to others as well. One of the main reasons for this apparent anger on the roads is the slow driver; the one who dallies along at 15 to 20 m.p.h. because he has nowhere to go particularly and has all the time in the world to get there. Man generally today in is a hurry. Perhaps too much of a hurry for his own good but nevertheless he's in a hurry. Highways have been improved to the point where slow speeds are outdated. The man in a hurry to get where he's going is antagonized by the doodler and in an attempt to get away from him is often led into dangerous situations. This in itself is the cause of many a road mishap. While the driver who drives slowly has his rights on the road, it does not include hugging the centre line and holding up traffic. On the other hand the fast driver does not possess the right to endanger others or himself in order to get away from the situation.

The raising of speed limits on roads where such is warranted, is a step in the right direction. To cut down accidents traffic must be kept moving in an orderly way. Just the same, the Hon. Gordon Taylor is right in stating that he has no intention of rushing legislation to make slow driving an offence. He is right too when he predicts legislation to make it an offence to impede or block traffic. A driver travelling at 40 or 50 m.p.h. on a two-lane highway where the speed limit is 60 nearly always forces a pile-up of traffic behind him. In such cases he should be compelled to pull over until traffic is cleared or increase his speed to something reasonable. As it stands at present the slow driver may go merrily on his way, oblivious to the fact that trouble may be brewing and building up behind him. One pass at the wrong time and the damage is done. It should be an offence for the slow driver who fails either to speed up or pull over to let others go by.

Scandals In High Places!

The pence-maker is nearly always the one that ends up getting the punch on the nose. Did you ever try solving the marital problems of a married couple and end up being alienated from the affections of both? Did you ever try interfering in a squabble between two people and have both of them turn on you? These are hazards of living that if you haven't experienced you just have not lived life to its fullest. Going along to another man's business activity, it has always seemed peculiarly inconsistent that one who digs up evidence of malfeasance in public affairs is the one who is considered of low character, an ingrate and a rubble-mucker or even a communist. This attitude on the part of the public ensures a low standard of performance on the part of those in public office and positively assures them of safety from exposure.

People who uncover unhealthy practices in public affairs are to be commended in all cases where their original intentions are honorable, and the exposure justified. Scandal for the pure sake of scandal is something of another color.

The present Dorian inquiry into the affairs of certain federal officials is probably long over-due, and besides culminating in the discharge of some officials, should emphasize the fact that honesty and integrity in high places is essential. Prime Minister Pearson will have an obligation to Canada when the inquiry is over to keep close watch over the activities of his subordinates.

The recent hearing on the Feeders' Assn. in southern Alberta is another classic example of men using their offices for personal gain. The fact that a Minister of the Crown was involved, to any extent at all, indicates to some degree a lack of watchfulness on the part of government.

Premier Thatcher's accusation that certain of the government records have been removed from the files by the former Socialist party in Saskatchewan, if found true, wowuld indicate that there is accusation that certain records have been removed files by the former Socialist party in Saskatchewan, if found to be true, would indicate that there is something to be hidden from public exposure.

The entire point is that the people who are responsible for uncovering these things, in most cases, should be commended for their watch-dog activities. If we are to ever have honesty in public affairs we must have people who are willing to risk their political and public lives by exposing malfeasance in office.

★ MACDUFF REPORT

Pyrrhic Victories

OTTAWA— John Diefenbaker, a veteran of 38 years in Parliament and one of his original party, is best back a growing revolt within the Progressive Conservative Party, against his leadership. He emerged the victor in the struggle to oust him from office, but it was a near thing and undoubtedly it left him somewhat shaken and less sure about the erosion of his strength.

At the previous annual meeting when Douglas Harkness, his former Minister of Defence, rose to challenge his leadership, Mr. Diefenbaker by the magic of his oratory and the suggestion of his parsonality, was able to rally the party delegates to his banner and they gave him an overwhelming vote of confidence in February, 1964.

One year later is the National Executive meeting held in ottawa, Mr. Diefenbaker found that he was not able to exercise the same power to extract another overwhelming vote of confidence. Many delegates at the convention meeting, spoke of being disillusioned and said they were receiving instructions from their home organizations to convey to the Executive, the desire to have a new leadership convention.

The day before in the Conservative caucus Mr. Diefenbaker was able to win considerable support from the Western, Maritime and some Ontario M.P.'s to emerge from the closed door session with what he had won a "virtually unanimous" vote of confidence. Later reporters learned from members, that out of the 97 who attended, about a dozen or 15, at the most, abstained from voting for "The Chief".

Mr. Diefenbaker when he came out of the caucus was beaming. As he told newspapermen clustered around him that he had been given an overwhelming vote of confidence by the caucus he was obviously delighted and exultant. But his exultation was short-lived, because the next day, Saturday, Feb. 6, he went to the National Executive meeting and he found it a less enthusiastic for his leadership.

The reaction of the staunch supporters of Mr. Diefenbaker was expressed up by Gordon Churchill, Winnipeg M.P. and House Leader of the Conservatives in the Commons. He said that Mr. Diefenbaker had indicated to help the caucus and the next day in the National Executive that he (Mr. Diefenbaker) was prepared in the not too distant future to step down.

"That's why we, his friends," said Mr. Churchill, "have been resisting these efforts to knife him. Now his enemies have been told he is going of his own free will after a decently honourable interval.

He along with other supporters of Mr. Diefenbaker were hoping that the meetings of caucus and later of the National Executive had "cleared the air". But this did not appear to be the case.

Leon Balcer, Chairman of the Quebec Conservative caucus, and the leader of the latest revolt against Diefenbaker, indicated he was far from satisfied with the announced results of the questionnaire taken during the National Executive session. He contended that the official party declaration that the call for a leadership convention had been "rejected" by the poll in the meeting, did not, in his view, reflect the tenor of the discussions at the meeting.

This reaction from Mr. Balcer brought an even more vigorous and explosive reaction from Richard Thrasher, National Director of the Progressive Conservative Association. He attacked Mr. Balcer for daring to suggest that the announced result of the poll — as tabulated by the Executive Officers of the organization — was not entirely accurate. Bitterly he denounced Mr. Balcer and others whom he suggested, were helping split the Tory party apart by their tactics.

The following day Joe Clark, President of the Progressive Conservative Student Federation, appeared before Parliamentary Press Gallery and held a press conference. He said he had sent a letter to Mr. Diefenbaker. He declined to disclose its contents, but he said in reply to questions that he believed the Conservative Party would be better served by another leader.

Clearly the Conservative Party is in sad disarray. Those trying desperately to patch it up say they want it coming apart at the seams were clinging to the hope that in the not too distant future Mr. Diefenbaker would declare his readiness to retire. This would enable the party to call a leadership convention and select a new, youthful one who would have greater appeal to all sections of the country.

The prospects of this happening are mounting. But he is a fighter. The more people try to get him out of office, the more he reacts belligerently and fights back. But his Tory critics were to take encouragement from his declaration that he has no intention of being coerced as to the reigns of office indefinitely.

He told the caucus and later repeated at the National Executive meeting that he was not a supplicant for leadership. He emphasized there were no further honours he could wish. He recalled with a chuckle that during the Cabinet revolt the suggestion had been made that he be appointed Chief Justice. And he understood that certain persons in the Tory party were eyeing it the offer of the office of Governor-General might have appealed to him, in the event that the Conservatives were returned to power.

Mr. Diefenbaker emphasized that he was not going to be leader forever and he urged the bright young men in the Party who aspire to the leadership to restrain their impatience a little longer. He indicated that they would not have too long to wait. It seemed to some to have the germ of a farewell address. But others scoffed. They had heard the wily old politician too often suggest he would be soon resigning and then carry on to fight another day.

The Conservative Chief had won decisively in the caucus. He had scored a win in the National Executive on points — but it had been close. But they may turn out to be pyrrhic victories. It begins to look as if Mr. Diefenbaker may split the party asunder if he persists in remaining in office and does not decide to call it quits sometime this year.

Dear Editor:

The Canadian Mental Health Association is always trying new ways to help educate the public about Men tal Health. Since the summer of 19-64 they have had a new program out which they have found very beneficial to political meeting in our large mental hospitals. It is called "Adopt A Patient" program.

Either a group or individual may take part in this. To inquire only that they be interested enough to help a patient in as small or large a way as he seems fit. Forms are available through the provincial office of the CMH Assn. at 618 — 10301 — 104 St. in Edmonton. The form is filled out by the Adoptor & needs such information as, likes, agno, race, churc, affiliation, etc; whether you wish to send small gifts such as tobacco, magazines, cards, etc or to purchase a pocket book for $1.00 & how often. The latter allows the patient to purchase small items at Christmas. This could never pay a relative or have a visitor, and have been abandoned by relatives. Often the authorities receive the Adopter Form, and after it is matched with a patient and a patient formis sent back the system starts to work. In this way you too can help a fellow human. — Mrs. Marion Fulmer

(From the press of Feb. 14, 1935)

The Sedgewick rink made up of W. W. Rose, Chub Irish, Bill Murray, and Geo. Crooks won first in the Grand Challenge at the Edmonton Bonspiel. This is the first occasion to do so.

Arrangements are being made to hold a Social Credit Convention in Sedgewick for the purpose of forming a Constituency Association.

The Daysland CCIT under the leadership of Miss Jasp Hayward held a very successful tea, sale of home made candy and 10e novelties on Saturday. Proceeds totaled $20.

Fifty-five fans from Lougheed attended the show in Hardisty on Saturday night.

People came from long distances to attend the big Carnival put on by the Sibbald High School on Friday evening. The numerous spectators were highly pleased with the many entertaining features of the evening.

20 YEARS AGO

(From the Press of Feb. 18, 1945)

An inter-town high school bonspiel was held in Strome on Saturday last week with rinks from Daysland, Killam, Strome, Bawlf, and Sedgewick, competing. Bawlf was the big winner, not losing a game.

The annual meeting of the Sedgewick Red Cross elected T. J. Dobbin, Chairman and Mrs. Cumberland Treasurer and W. Fowlds as Secretary.

The congregation of Killam United Church caught Rev. Richards' sermon at the close of Sunday evening service with a party honoring his birthday.

Members of the Hardisty Skating Club journeyed to Coronation on Saturday to put on a display of fancy skating.

Don McMillan's new Service Station on the highway at Strome is now officially open for business.

After a couple of nights of 20 below now we are promised 30 or better above. On the whole one of the nicest winters I remember, and spring just around a couple of corners.

"COLLECTING"

In the days of the big threshing machines, (Steamers), each farmer who owned an out-fit always had his pre-arranged customers, with possibly enough jobs to keep him busy until maybe the last of October or even November. In fact, I can recall a few years when the machine wasn't put away until near Christmas time.

Keeping books for the numerous jobs connected with a big threshing out-fit definitely was no "Child's play", and, as I look back now and think what a good job my late husband did along that line all through those years, I am paradoxically bound

There were the men's wages to keep track of. That alone, with broken hours on account of foul weather, or odd cases of sickness, as well as an occasional break-down. (Which I might add, was very seldom, as my Husband always tried to discern any possible weaknesses before a breakdown occured). Of course there were record-keeping, but then the men would have a few hours rest.

But all of this had to be kept straight in his "Little Black Book". With eighteen or more men, some at one wage, some at another, it nestly took concentration and accuracy.

The BIGGEST part of this bookkeeping was keeping strict account of the number of bushels recorded for each farmer. Wheat, in Manitoba during the thirties, threshed as, (I am not sure of those figures) but I believe was as follows: four tents a bu., while coarse grains was threshed at three or three and a half, and flax a bit less. (Frankly, my memory fails when I try to recall those prices, but suffice to say, it was close to that, anyway). If any of our readers CAN remember those prices in Manitoba during the 30's, and find I am wrong, I would appreciate hearing from you.

Inevitably, the day arrived for the Thresher to start collecting. There was a law in Manitoba, (and likely in all of the Prairie Provinces) that the farmer MUST pay his threshing bill FIRST before settling any other bill which may have accumulated during the year.

Although there are several well-to-do farmers in that district now, no one could boast of any ample amount of cash during those hard years. So, naturally none of those farmers envied to pay out MONE than they had to, (Any more than the trasher wished them to).

There was one farmer for whom my husband threshed who had the reputation of "Pinching every penny" before parting with it. As I used to say, he must have had any experience at threshing at all longer that every prospective son-in-"Talley" which measured the grain as it was thrashed, and that was what was supposed to be paid for to the owner of the outfit, at so much a bushel.

However, this one farmer of whom I am thinking would haul his grain to an elevator IN ANOTHER TOWN to which the other farmers hauled their's, and usually in the early mornings when he thought there would be no one on the road. He would have his grain cleaned at the elevator, then, after setting up with the thresher would produce the elevator slip which stated the weight of the bale, MINUS THE SCREENINGS, which he hauled home for chicken feed etc.

I always took a certain amount of pride not only in my husband's accuracy at keeping books, but in his honesty in giving a little when ever there was the slightest doubt. He always maintained, "What's a few dollars to anyone in friendly". But when this farmer resorted to such a "Scrooge" trick, my Husband didn't think much of HIM either.

Finally, this farmer decided to give up farming and move East. The last year he threshed for him had much grain, (In 1936, I believe), Bill, there was no love lost for ANYONE not paying for what he DID have threshed.

This man was putting off settling up his threshing bill for so long that my Husband said, "I'll pay up within a week, OR ELSE -

In a day or so he came to the house, pa,d part of the bill and said, "I have put a young steer over ; Joe's pasture, which, if left for 2 or 3 months, will more than square us up. O.K.?" Then he left for the East the next morning.

My husband didn't get to see that steer for about another month as he was so busy, but decided, one morning he may as well get it and put it in with our herd.

Can you imagine his reaction when he saw a scrawny, skinny, sickly looking little thing with its face all covered with "ring-worm" except; able to stand, it was so puny? Bloore, at last time, in the VERY BEST of shape, just sold for "A mere song", but one IS THAT condition, W—E—L—L — My Husband just left it there, telling Joe he could have it, or he could about it, as far as my Husband was concerned, he be certainly didn't want it.

So the balance of that bill was NEVER paid, and never will be, as that man has long since "Gone to his reward".

There were amusing sagdon to the job of settling up, too. Another farmer, as honest, upright citizen, had a fairly good crop, (Five bushels anyway), and, instead of waiting for my Husband to go to HIS home to settle up threshing bill, he drove over to our place one morning, quite early. Taking some slips of paper on which were rows of figures, from his pocket, the man, (My husband with his "Little Black book") settled at the kitchen table, over a cup of coffee.

Then, this man discovered he had left his glasses at home, and could not see the figures without them.

"I guess I will have to trust to your figures and your words, as I can't see my figures at all", he said. I took off my glasses and offered them to him.

"Oh no, Mrs. C., that would NEVER do. That would wear out your glasses, so maybe they would not be any good to you anymore. If I looked through them for any one at all. But thanks anyway."

So he took my Husband's word for what was owing, paid up, and started to leave the same out-fit as his threshing again next year. What a contrast to that other farmer. With customers such as this last one, it MIGHT be possible to forget that other type, I might add.

All of the other farmers for whom we threshed, My Husband and I, every one as honest as the land on which each depended to yield their livelihood.

One can not help but notice, if one takes the trouble to look, that the world is FULL of good, honest, God fearing folks, (The other type being strictly in the minority). We ALL have our petty faults but it is so much better to try to overlook these things, and to prune so to higher things.

FEDERAL - PROVINCIAL CALF SCOUR STUDY!

The Canada and Alberta Departments of Agriculture are co-operating in a joint study aimed at reducing the heavy cattle losses caused in Alberta each year by calf scours.

The purpose of the study, says Dr. E. Ballantyne, is to collect just as much information as possible on the bacteria involved, drug sensitivities, predisposing factors under the western climatic conditions and the characteristics of the disease itself. Other objectives include pin-pointing areas requiring further research and the expansion of diagnostic handling facilities at laboratories

The western section of the Federal Animal Research Institute at Lethbridge and the Alberta Veterinary Laboratory in Edmonton will continue to do the laboratory work.

Luring the last five years they have found a considerable change in the effectiveness of drugs used against this disease. Since effectiveness also varies from one town to another & even from Pen to Farm, a Veterinarian should always be consulted in cases of calf scours. He is in a position to prescribe the best drug for his particular area. Dr. Ballantyne says many veterinary clinics now have laboratories for conducting drug sensitivity tests.

Under theperesent project, Veterinarians will be supplied with bacteriological swabs and shipping containers to enable them to send samples of sick or dead calves for examination. Cattlemen can also take such animals directly to a laboratory where an autopsy and other tests will be done.

Dr. Ballantyne says a limited number of farm and ranch visits are planned for later this year by Federal Health of Animals and Provincial Veterinarians. These visits will be designed to determine effectiveness of recommendations and to collect data on factors that may have contributed to an outbreak of scours.

The probe and calf scourge is certainly not going to be easily or very quickly solved, says Dr. Ballantyne. However, the knowledge through the co-operation of beef cattlemen and Veterinarians, these losses will be considerably reduced during the next few years.

SUGAR AND SPICE
by Bill Smiley

BAD? IT'S EVEN VERSE

There's no better indoor sport than versifying. And there's no better versifyer around these days than George Bain. Find out for yourself. Read this book, Verses Been Around . . And Around and Around and Around . . . ."

Bain is a newspaper man with a lively eye for the ridiculous, and he has been around, Washington, Ottawa and London come under his gaze, and he seldom misses when he lines up his rhymes and fires a parody of anything from a folk song to a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta.

He's also a wicked man with a pun. To wit: a chapter entitled "How To Get Down From A Bull, Elder You Know Or You Don't." In this chapter, he's talking about an elderly west provincial MP, his high dignitary. Bain continues, "No doubt, somewhere in the Commons North, there is now a proud elder duck strutting around with his little bald chest stuck out, envy of every duck for miles around." And he adds a comment:
Said a chap to the proud denee duck,
"Pa, what do you credit your luck?"
Said the duck, "Goodness knows, But one must, I suppose, Assume that I deserve lots of pluck."

Just a snapper from a rattling good book. A combination of roufui humor and satire with an edge to it.

This business of writing verses for facetious purposes people. Me, for one. Every so often I get the urge, and burst into rhyme that has the modern air of this column wincing, or running to the bathroom, tugging. Don't worry, not this week.

But just by sheer coincidence, I have come across some old verses (not mine) that consolidate my opinion that the English language is about the most illogical in the world. The following is dedicated to English teachers and the poor, baffled devils of foreigners who are trying to learn the crazy stuff.
The wind was rough
And cold and rude,
She kept her hands within her muff.
It chilled her through,
Her nose grew bluish
And stiff the smell the feeler Uncle.
And yet, although
There was no enough,
The weather was a cruel feagh.
It made her sneeze
(Pray do not enough);
She couldn't until her head bleagh ough.

What's this? You want more? I think you're out of your mind, but there's that old folk saying, particularly applicable these winter days:
It's not the cough
Wat carries you off,
It's the coffin
They carry you off in.

Several of the very clean limerick in the world also reveal the oddity of the English tongue. For instance.
At fifty-five minutes past eight,
The blade at a Fewrish night
Are seen rushing toward school,
And you'll find, on a chool,
It's because they're afraid they'll be leight.

Aw, come on. You don't REALLY want another! Well, I just happen to have it.
A streetcar conductor once said
To a can full of people, "My hald
Has sorb a lot bad odor
That I fear it will brathe,
So I shall ask you please and in hald."

There you are. A brand new party game. Think if the fun you'll have on these long winter evenings with things like.
A man on a picnic said, "Please hand the cream to the mosquito I should scream;
I've observed from my youth
The horrible truth
Is it's caused by the scent of the bream."

Got the idea. Let's try making one up. It'll be funny, too . . .
A sailor, attempting to ski,
Ran his head right into a tri.
Although almost dead,
He angrily said,
"It ain't none so soft as the at."

There. That ought to give you a few sleepless nights.

Battle River 4-H

The fourth meeting of the Battle River 4H Beef Club was held in the basement of the Hardisty Catholic Church on Jan. 26th.

Doug Bast, the President called the meeting to order by having the members give the pledge. Ruth Matthews, the secretary, read the previous minutes and assisted in reading the directions on feeding and management of the club calf.

H. Elm and Ben Olbert spoke briefly on warble flies, and the scientific reason for the difficulties encountered when putting calves on feed and changing the rations.

Roger Johnson reported briefly on the recent trip to Forestburg, and Phillip Hartley mentioned some methods of raising funds for the club.

Pete Gaward informed the members that the Hardisty School could be used as a regular meeting place, as since there were several problems in connection therewith, he advised using the church basement.

Due to the severity of the weather no definite plan for entertainment were decided upon. Doug Bast informed the members that a curling team will most likely be formed to compete with other 4H curling teams in the district.

Members are reminded to have their record books fully entered for the next meeting.

IODE MEETING

(Mrs. Doug Kisner)

KILLAM — Princess Royal Chapter met at the home of Mrs. Fee with the usual opening ceremonies, members prayer, presentation of the Flag and O Canada.

Roll call answered with interesting current events.

Members discussed the IODE Centennial Project. Books were taken to the hospital. Committee reported on the presentation of the School Award to Benjamin Whitburn at the Home and School meeting.

A letter of thanks was read from the CNIB Edmonton, thanking the IODE for the cairns, which totalled $2000.00.

Services at Home and Abroad Secretary Mrs. M. Manning reported two tables were shipped to headquarters, a value of $41.25. Four pairs of sox were handed in, material and wool was distributed among the members. Plans were made to make a quilt. Each member to bring a nursery bag 12x15 to next meeting.

Mrs. Lackey gave the Library report. Several new books have been added to the Library. Meeting closed with God Save the Queen. Lunch was served by Mrs. R. Brodie assisted by the hostess.

Forestburg Wins Tourney

KILLAM — On Sunday afternoon the Killam Pee Wee Hockey Club sponsored a four team hockey tournament in the Killam Arena.

In the first game the Killam team defeated Sedgewick 4 to 3 and Forestburg beat Viking 6 to 3 in the second game.

The final game was between Forestburg and Killam with the nod going to the Forestburg boys by a score of 7 to 4.

There was a lot of fast action for the fans and good, clean fun for the boys competing in the games.

Dayland Council Busy At Regular Meeting

The regular monthly Council meeting of the Town of Dayland was held in the Town office in Dayland at 7:30 p.m. on February 5th.

Present were six Councillors with Mayor Pryor presiding. The minutes from the last meeting and the financial report were read and discussed.

Mr. D. Weld, Co-ordinator for Civil Defense in Dayland discussed fire protection with Council with council. He stated a radiation monitoring course would be held in Dayland, February 15th to 19th and a welfare course would be held in Sedgewick in April.

Cr. Cranston, who had recently attended an Emergency Measures Convention in Edmonton, gave a report of the proceedings to Council.

Mr. Alex Blain and Mr. John Pawlachyn of the Dayland Drainage District met with Council and discussed the present connection between the Dayland Sewerage Lagoon and the drainage ditch. Council was invited to send a delegation to a Drainage Meeting in the future to discuss improvements, with a possible meeting after the spring run off to inspect the present system to see if renovations could be made if necessary.

Mr. Malcolm Robson and Mr. Stan Gould, as representatives of the Hospital Board, asked if the Town would consider constructing a sidewalk from the Town to the Hospital this year. Council could not commit themselves at this time but pointed they would give it consideration.

Correspondence handed by Fire Chief Hanrahan to Council was discussed. It explained the forthcoming convention in Red Deer, March 2 to 5th sponsored by the Inland Alberta Fire Association and the Fire Chiefs. It was moved that Fire Chief Hanrahan be sent to the Convention with his expenses paid.

A letter received from the Municipal Services explained water testing facilities provided by the Engineers. Council instructed the Secretary to write Municipal Engineering Services requesting a copy of the driller's contract.

A letter received from H. E. Cirrell, principal of Dayland High School informed Council that Mr. Gordon S. Robertson, public relations officers of the Federal Commercial Commission would be giving a short talk in Centennial projects at the School in February 8 at 2:30 p.m.

Council was informed that Mr. A. Jedlin, a private appraiser had been in Dayland to appraise Lots 22/30, Block 7, plan 1/V which belong to the Alberta Government.

Constable Schatz's Police report for the month of Jan. was read. Constable Schatz also asked for an interview with Council, as he was enjoying full time for Dayland now he thought he should receive $300 per month. This would include use of his car. Council said they would discuss this.

A letter from the Dept. of Health stated the Town would have to make application for a Cemetery License. Fee to be $5.00. It was moved that the license be appld for.

It was moved to have the Community Press from Sedgewick print annual financial statements.

A letter from the Department outlined different Fire office training schools throughout the summer. Council advised the Secretary to forward those applications to the Fire Chief.

After some discussion it was decided that the town pay Constable Schatz $300 per month, starting Feb. 1st. When not busy with police duties Constable Schatz is to assist with other work for the Town.

Cr. Josephinon was appointed to Works Committee, the town maintenance man is now to report for work order twice a day to Cr. Josephinon.

Arrears in taxes were discussed and council instructed the Secretary to write all taxpayers in arrears over one year and suggest they pay their taxes so as to avoid having their property placed on the tax arrears list at the Land Titles Office.

Mayor Pryor appointed Cr. Wirth as Deputy Mayor for the next 3 months.

Dayland traffic by-law was discussed but tabled to the next meeting for further discussion.

H. & S. Preparing For Annual Hobby Fair

(Delores Dalzan)

The Dayland Home and School Association will hold its regular monthly meeting on Thurs., Feb. 25th at 8 p.m. "Rounding up the Hobby Pair" will be the theme of the program. There will be an informal panel of hobby specialists who will explain how they became interested in their hobby. A large number of articles will be on display. New hobbies will be welcome. Please bring your ideas that might be of help to the success of our fair. The social committee will be in charge of the entertainment. Lunch will be served. The Home and School Executive wishes that each member will bring a guest or prospective member. Everyone is welcome.

The following Lions and their wives attended the combined Charternight of Wainwright and Hughenden held in Hughenden on Friday evening: Mr. and Mrs. A. Boisbouvy; Mr. and Mrs. G. Karpovich; Mr. and Mrs. E. Bowman; Mr. and Mrs. E. Patterson; Mr. and Mrs. M. Mandrusiak; Mr. and Mrs. A. Shaw; Mr. and Mrs. R. Kostiuk; Mr. and Mrs. J. Keebli; Mr. and Mrs. J. McCarroll Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. L. Dolnat.

The monthly meeting of the Hospital Auxiliary was held Tuesday evening in the Hospital with 16 members present and nine visitors. Mrs. F. Zenck the first vice held the president's chair for the evening as the president Mrs. Reist was absent. The Secretary's and Treasurer's reports were read and were read followed by the roll call. This was followed up with the introduction of Mr. Pugh from the Alberta Tuberculosis Association also representing various clubs in the town and Spring Lake. Mr. Pugh spent some time explaining how important it is for everyone in the district to be X-rayed especially those people who answered a few questions about TB that were asked on the ballots. The meeting closed with a delicious lunch served by the Sisters.

TB Clinic Slated For Dayland Dist.

Sponsored locally by the Dayland Hospital Auxiliary the Mobile TB Chest X-ray Unit will visit Dayland in the near future.

This service, sponsored jointly by the Department of Public Health and the Alberta Tuberculosis Association Christmas Seal Fund, is to ensure that early discovery not only of unsuspected Tuberculosis but many other chest abnormalities, including: tumors, emphysema, heart irregularities, pleurisy, etc., and is especially valuable in the discovery of lung cancer which the chest x-ray will reveal considerably in advance of symptoms becoming obvious.

Mr. C. B. Pugh, Director of X-ray Surveys, Alberta Tuberculosis Association, is in the district making arrangements for the Tuberculin Testing and Chest X-ray Survey. A home to home canvass will be conducted to register every family in Dayland and district. All persons not attending school will be enrolled in this registration.

School children are being screened by means of a Tuberculin Test at school through the services provided by your local Health Unit, and will not be required to attend this clinic.

In charge of the program are: Mrs. H. Reist, General Chairman; Mrs. G. Beggs, Advance Registration Chairman; Miss Laura Graham, Clinic Appointments Chairman; Mrs. L. Dolnat, Publicity Chairman; Mrs. Bob Hanrahan, Volunteer Help Chairman.

You Will Benefit From This

Safeguard yourself and your family by attending the clinic when it is in your community.

Time and location of the Tuberculin Testing and Chest X-ray Clinic in your district will be announced as soon as the pre-registration of each family is completed. For further information you may call anyone of the above names.

LINING A SKIRT

Have you been sewing lately? If so, you may be concerned about lining winter fabrics.

Why line a shirt? Basic straight cut suits are usually lined to prevent sagging, stretching and wrinkling when they are worn. Not only does lining give body to the shirt fabric but it also eliminates any irritation from scratchy, harsh fabrics.

Consider the weight of the shirt material when choosing lining. A lining that is lightweight, firm and pliable will ensure best results. The color of the lining should match the shirt but if this impossible select a lighter color.

Before cutting preshrink the lining — that is, soak it in warm water for half an hour and drip dry. Use the shirt pattern for cutting the lining.

Make sure the lining is on the straight of grain and take care to eliminate excess bulk in pleats or unnecessary seams.

There are three methods for sewing linings in garments:

True Underlined Garments

The lining is sewn as one with the shirt fabric.

Make markings only on the lining.

Place the lining on the wrong side of the fabric; diagonally baste the two pieces down the side seams, centre front and across the top.

Staystitch the basted pieces across the top and about 10" down each side seam to prevent stretching.

Sew darts as one — machine baste down the middle of the dart first to hold the fabric firm.

Sew front and back side seams; be sure to hold the four layers of fabric taut as you sew everywhere.

Hems — the fabric may be hemmed directly to the lining or the lining can end right at the top of the hem.

This is the quickest method and one that gives most shape retention.

Lining Sewn Separately

Make markings on both ling and fabric material.

Staystitch each piece.

Sew darts and side seams separately.

Join the separate shirts at the waistline.

Partial Linings

Length of the lining comes to just below the hips.

Lower edge must be perfectly true.

Method of construction may be either of above.

The method used in lining a shirt varies with the pattern style and the skill of the homesewer as well as the fabric used. Try all 3 methods and find the one most suitable for you.

Farm Machinery Credit Act News

A farm machinery syndicate is a group of three or more farmers operating independently of one another or who are members of a cooperative farm association, the majority having farming as their principal occupation, and who have signed a written agreement for the joint purchase of farm machinery primarily for their own use. Before a loan can be approved the agreement must be acceptable to the Farm Credit Corporation.

This Act, which is administered by the Farm Credit Corporation is one more progressive step in the expanding field of Federal Farm credit. Cooperative use of machinery is not new. Cooperation between farmers has been a tradition in Alberta since pioneer days and sharing the use of machinery has been an essential factor in the development of any agricultural economy.

Technological advances often dictate the need for larger and more varied types of farm equipment. Frequently the cost or the limited use of this equipment by an individual farmer makes private ownership impractical and uneconomic. The object of the new legislation is to provide acceptable plans for the organization of machinery syndicates on a simple and workable basis for the joint ownership and operation of farm equipment.

Under the Act, the Federal Government, through the Farm Credit Corporation, will lend a syndicate up to 80 per cent of the cost of any machinery which can be used cooperatively by the members in the operation and development of their farms. A syndicate may borrow up to $15,000 per member or $100,000 00 whichever is the less.

Shares of the FMBCA will depend on its acceptance by the farmers it is designed to serve. When considering some of the economic factors involved farmers can ask themselves the following questions:

Does the cost and upkeep of machinery take too large a share of your farm income?

Do you take a big depreciation loss every year on machinery that is not used properly?

Is the financing of additional or replacement machinery a major problem in maintaining a good farm budget.

Could you use a substantial portion of your present machinery investment for more productive purposes?

Do you find that you cannot afford the machinery necessary for practical development of your farm?

Does the lack of modern equipment — result in a strain on the labour you have available, prevent you from maintaining a strong competitive position in agriculture.

If your answer is "yes" to any of these questions and there are other farmers in your neighbourhood with similar problems who are willing to share machinery with you, it may be to your advantage to organize or join a syndicate for the purpose of obtaining the necessary machinery under the provisions of the FARM MACHINERY SYNDICATES CREDIT ACT.

The procedure set up by the Farm Credit Corporation is designed for processing FMBCA applications with the least possible delay. Local Farm Credit Corporation Credit Advisers can provide information and are ready to help farmers organize syndicates.

Neither an existing Farm Improvement Loan nor farm mortgage loan under the Farm Credit Corporation debars a farmer from becoming a member of a machinery syndicate. All credit agencies recognize the need for farm operators to cut their cost of operation without sacrificing efficiency. The FMBCA offers farmers another new means of doing this.

Baptist Church

On Monday night several young married couples from the church attended the Interdenominational Young Couples meeting at the J. Bulles residence at Alliance.

The Young People enjoyed a very busy week end with a Social evening on Friday night, and a day of fun and fellowship on Saturday with sixty-five other YPC young people. Everyone is looking forward to the next YPC rally on Monday evening, Feb. 26, when Wes Asmun will be our guest.

Rev. Grunstad ministered at the Sunday services, which were well attended. Pastor was also in charge of a time of fellowship at the Auxiliary Hospital on Sunday afternoon. One of the hymns led the evening song-service. Included in the evening service was a trio, and a "Poet's Corner".

The following notice was displayed on the church: CHTCH What is missing?

Defence expenditure in Canada declined from 39.5 per cent of budgetary expenditure in 1945 to 22.1 per cent in the current fiscal year.

Strome Basketballers Play At Camrose

(Merle Butler)

The Strome Junior High School girls' and boys' basketball teams travelled to Camrose to play St. Pat's on Thursday, Feb. 14th. The girls played and lost with a score of 25 to 8. This was the first loss of the basketball season for the Strome girls who are the Killam Divisional Champions. The high scorers for the game were Sandy Lindseth and Terry Mitchell.

The boys played a very fast game and won by a score of 35 to 32. Highest scorers were Dale Kruse 34, Terry Reeve 6, Dale Jorgenso 4. This was the first defeat for the Camrose team this season who found the Killam Divisional Champions tough opposition. Strome boys will participate in an invitational tournament at Camrose on Feb. 27th.

Mrs. James Curtis is a patient in Daysland Hospital.

A card party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl McDougall on Monday evening. Ten tables of 500 were played. Ladies' high score for the evening went to Mrs. Merrin Kreisch. Gent's high went to Mrs. John Spehn. Consolation for ladies went to Mrs. Earl Williams. Gent's to Mr. Merb Dennerlein.

Jack Butler came home on Monday after spending the past two weeks in Killam Hospital.

Mrs. Frank Robson entertained the Ladies' Aid at a social afternoon. Mrs. Jane Rawe won the prize for high score; Mrs. Gertie Watkins received the consolation.

Mr. and Mrs. Verne Beechael and family visited at Z. W. Watkin's on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Nelson and daughter of St. Paul visited her Dad, Mr. Jake Fjolstead last week end and also Mr. Ole Hansen.

Due to the furnace being out of working condition, the service at St. Paul's United Church had to be cancelled. Choir practice had to be held at the home of Mrs. A. Gordon.

The Strome CGIT are now busy with their mission study, under the leadership of Mrs. Ed Nelson. On Friday they held a special business meeting at the home of Mrs. Butler and were pleasantly surprised with a Valentine lunch supplied by Mrs. Butler and Mrs. Jack Johnson. Plans for their anniversary party and social evening were finalized. The date which had been set for Feb. 28th had to be changed and will now be held on Saturday, March 7. Mrs. Huston of Camrose, who was responsible for the organization of the Strome group was sent a special invitation to attend, as well as all former members.

Two music pupils of Mrs. Alvin Gordon who wrote their grade 2 theory are to be congratulated, as Francis Anderson of Sedgewick passed with first class honors and Joyce Anderson of Meeres passed with honors.

Jim Watkins is a patient in Killam hospital having undergone surgery.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Kreutch were Edmonton visitors on Friday.

The boys basketball team from Daysland High School played in the tournament at Wainwright on Saturday. Judy Morgan and Marilyn Golden went along to watch the games.

Former Killam Businessman, N. S. Johnson, Passes At Vernon

After many years of failing health, Nicholas Sigurd Johnson passed to his rest in a Vernon hospital on January 27, at the age of 66 years.

Born in Duluth, Minn., he lost both parents at an early age and was raised by Wm. Wilson, in Lindsfell, Alberta, where he received his education.

After service in World War I, he farmed, but turned to storekeeping, first in Irma, Alberta, for ten years then Meeting Creek for two years; Killam for eight years and Vernon for the past twenty. His family is British Columbia, for a short time in Kelowna, then in 1944 to Enderby, which he been his home ever since.

Here he conducted an insurance and real estate business.

For seven years, from 1940 to 1947, he was Mayor of Enderby, when Enderby started on a real upgoing momentum, and he fostered the new trend in every way until ill health forced his retirement.

During this time he had the honor of meeting the present Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip on their Royal Visit to the Dominion.

On September 8, 1927, at Kinsella, Alberta, he married Miss May Shackleton of Irma, Alberta who survives him.

They had three sons and a daughter, Jack Johnson of Meeres Arm; Glenn Johnson of 180 Mile House; and Stan Johnson of Calgary; Mrs. Norman Collick (Barbara) of 100 Mile House, who survive.

One brother and two sisters also survive, J. E. Johnson of Calgary; Mrs. Elsie Wade, North Vancouver and Mrs. Doris Kinket, Victoria.

Before his health failed, Mr. Johnson will be remembered for his leadership as mayor, and for his great interest in his church, Enderby First Baptist Church, and Killam.

Central Highlites

SEDGEWICK — On Thursday afternoon all the students of Central gathered in the Gym to listen to a talk given by a representative from Mount Royal Junior College in Calgary. He outlined the courses which may be taken and what standards are needed to take the various courses. He also talked about the programs of the College that could give academic training in certain subjects that would for university entrance require matriculation. At Mount Royal they are prepared to give students a second chance and deal mainly with the subject such is interested in. This opportunity may be had without high school matriculation.

Central published a paper again this week. Our paper has been published since the beginning of the term, and the publishing is a project of the grade 10 students.

The Chorus group met on Wednesday and Friday during noon hour. The Chorus is planning to present a program, and is trying to get a few numbers arranged.

The Jive Club met on Thursday and held a meeting of members. The Club is planning to hold a dance on the 26th of February in the Gym.

Sports

The girls basketball team went to Camrose on Friday night to watch a game being played there. The also went to Wainwright on Saturday to an all-day tournament. The girls won the league championship, and are now in the Provincial Playoffs.

Co-op Directors Hold Workshop

KILLAM — The seven-man board of the Killam District Co-operative attended a day-long directors' workshop here February 10th.

Sponsored by the Parkland Co-op Federation the workshop was designed to assist the directors in carrying out the many complex duties associated with directing the affairs of a modern day co-operative.

The workshop was conducted by Eric Hopkins of Edmonton, manager of the Alberta retail services department of Federated Co-operatives Limited, and A. E. Turner of Red Deer, federation public relations officer.

In attendance from Killam were directors Dick Risner, Harold Cottam, George Bonnett, Ed Skinner, Tony Schnettler, Bruce Young, Fred Forster, and Bob Casavant, manager.

Other workshops sponsored by the Parkland federation have been held this winter at Stettler, Innisfail, Bashaw, Bawlf and Strome. There are 20 central Alberta Co-operatives in the Parkland area.

Hedley Bailey Heads 1965 Board of Trade

SEDGEWICK — The annual meeting of the Sedgewick District Board of Trade was held on February 17th, in the form of a supper meeting catered to by the UCW President C. Beairsto was in the chair and fifteen members were present.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read, and the financial statement given by the secretary both of which were passed as given.

President Beairsto gave a detailed account of the work of the Board during the past year. During his remarks the president informed the meeting that the College East Central Chamber of Commerce has to all intent and purposes ceased its activities.

The election of officers for 1965 resulted as follows: President, Hedley Bailey; 1st Vice, Grant Chernen; 2nd Vice, Gordon Taylor; Secretary, Georg Weilman; Business and Publicity Committee, Clyde Clark, Art Easely and Ralph Cooper; Agricultural Committee, Tenny Wilson, Leonard Berg, Peter Keehl, Lundey Arntzen and Art Edwards; Program Committee, John Krill, Dr. Cecil Pereira, and Rev. Donald Lewis; Membership Committee, Art Gollan and Cavin Beairsto.

Immediately following the annual meeting, a regular meeting of the Board of Trade was held with the new executive taking offices.

This first meeting of the new year decided to commence the sale of supper meeting tickets earlier in the month to avoid a last-minute rush.

Although some work has already been done in regard to a Centennial Project, a committee was set up to handle or assist in this regard, and to lend support to the Village Council who is seeking suggestions from the ratepayers. This committee is headed by Dr. Pereira and Ernest Keehl, who were given the authority to add to the committee. They are to bring in a report at the next meeting.

Mayor Howard Smith reported progress to date regarding natural gas, and that while no definite agreement has been reached between the two supplies, no definite and final arrangements had been made.

Secretary was instructed to write to the Recreational Centre Board with a request that it assume half the cost of a building which had recently been moved to the Rec. Centre grounds.

ATA Local Meets

KILLAM — A meeting of the ATA Local chaired by Mr. J. Stein was held in the Killam Public School on Feb. 16th with nearly all the schools in the Division being represented. General business included notice of Regional Conference to be held Feb. 27th in Hardisty beginning at 9:30 a.m. and discussion of plans for Education Week. It was decided that each staff would be responsible for its own project for this occasion. Mr. A Smith of Sedgewick Central High and Mr. M. Dawson were elected by acclamation as delegates to the ARA at Easter time. Delegates for the Easlf Workshop in August are Mrs. Kirk with standby, Mr. Quil. Mr. Stein was asked if he would consider running as a candidate for district representative in the next election in Central East. From a motion, the Killam ATA Local will be participating in an English workshop scheduled tentatively for Oct. and Nov. 1965, at Wainwright. The speaker for the evening was Mr. Joe Berzanke, Field Supervisor of the Economic Council of the ATA, Edmonton, who spoke on the economic situation of the country relative to the teacher's salaries.

The fourth Educational Council held its meeting in Killam on Tuesday, Feb. 16th with attendance being very low. There were a few members present in each division who carried out the regular program. Those who attended found the effort worthwhile. The Math Council was postponed until the following evening as their film did not arrive.

LOUGHEED WI

LOUGHEED — The Lougheed WI held their February meeting at the home of Mrs. H. Probst with nine members present. The roll call was answered with a layette article to be sent to the Unitarian Services. Receipts were received for donations to the Cerebal Palsey and Heart Funds. It was decided to enter into an exchange program of information with a WI of British Guiana. The material from the Home Economist on the sheet covers offered was read and discussed and an application form filled in. Lessons on hat making had been given by Mrs. M. Skoberg and Mrs. J. Waite and seven ladies attending and finishing a hat.

Plans were made for bake sale in March and also for the annual family supper to be held in the hall after the meeting. A quilt tag was made by Mrs. G. Probst Sr. and donated to the WI to be finished and given to some needy family.

Mrs. H Probst, convenor of Home Economics, presented a paper on farm life of thirty years ago in contrast to that of today This proved both amusing and informative.

Alberta Weather Playing Tricks

Alberta weather seems to be as unpredictable as a successful fishing trip, and betting on either is precarious. There is little doubt that this winter will go down as one of the "tougher" ones in recent years, if not for all time. Cold weather hardly ever exerts climates long-time residents of the "Sunshine" Province, for they expect it, prepare for it, and generally are ready to handle it. But what seems able to "beat" the average citizen is that their predictions are worthless unless the weathermen cooperate.

As an example, last Friday afternoon the thermometer registered 42 above shortly after noon, but by 4 p.m. weather bulletins were out for a coming storm. By 8 p.m. wind and blowing snow had cut visibility to an absolute zero. By 10:00 that night it was 15 below.

Cars and trucks were piled up in ditches all along the line, school buses were lost as drivers and students sought refuge at farms. Traffic officers were closing highways and warning all drivers to return home and stay there. Hotels and Motels were taxed to capacity and nursing away stranded motorists.

In spite of all this Alberta's take it in stride, convinced that spring cannot be around more than two

Apartment Block Now Incorporated

SEDGEWICK The 8-unit apartment block in Sedgewick has now been incorporated under the name of Sedgewick Apartments Limited. Headed by President Tom Wilson and a Board of 7 members, the new building is rapidly rising on the sight of the old Sedgewick Hotel block. Frame work has been completed and windows installed, so that subcontractors can carry out the plumbing and other work except in the coldest of weather.

This large new development will contain six 3-bedroom suites and two 1-bedroom suites. Automatic laundry and dryer units will be installed and all suites supplied with electric stoves and refrigerators. The living rooms are large and all suites designed for utmost efficiency along modern lines. Floor coverings will be mostly vinyl linoleum in modern designs, supplemented by some carpeting.

The structure of the building was designed by M. Strusiecki, Architect of Edmonton, with mechanical plans laid out by Vente Engineers. The entire structure is being erected to CMHC standards and inspected to CMHC standards and inspected. There is fir construction throughout.

Rentals in this housing project will run from some $70 to $85 less than in the cities for the same type of accomodation, and the secretary of the Board informs that nearly all suites have been spoken for at this date.

Completion date is set for June of this year, and barring unforseen problems crisis should meet this deadline.

Final landscaping and installing of car ports in the rear of the building will commence with the spring season.

The building adds significantly to the housing quality of the building projects outlined for the Village early this year.

The Community Press

"Independent, But Not Necessarily Neutral, In The Public Service"

Established on July 16th, Nineteen Hundred and Eight

P. R. In P. A.

Public Relations in People's Affairs is such an important matter today that we wonder why somebody hasn't thought of the idea. So much confusion and misunderstanding is generated in society simply because somebody, somewhere failed to "get through" to people that it is no wonder society is on edge. Lack of communication, or perhaps just as important unintelligible communication, engenders doubt in the minds of the unconvinced, and leads to hostility even among friends. But nothing is so serious that the conference table cannot solve for the open and receptive mind. That is one of the important reasons why the UN must at all costs be kept operative. The idea that is aired in public contains fewer barbs and more discretion than resentment borne in solitude. Local community affairs, by the same reasoning is best handled in open forum, in informal discussion where the opinions and ideas of each are respected even though complete agreement is not an established fact. One of the foremost and primary requisites of a group or society should be the establishment of a public relations branch whose duty it should be to communicate with the uninformed. Such a procedure would undoubtedly eliminate a large portion of the lingering doubt that pervades the thinking of the uninformed. Public relations is more important in our society today than ever before.

Employment Of Words

By some strange paradox people who really have something to say can usually get it said in a minimum of words, while the person who has nothing to say manages to take volumes to express nothing. The average private citizen would be amazed if he, for instance, were afforded the opportunity to write and peruse the daily mail that comes into the average publication centre. It is small wonder that Canada enjoys the reputation of holding down top spot in the production of newsprint and paper materials, for most of us are convinced that Canadians are the talkinest people on the globe. Enough useless material comes into our office each week to fill the average waste paper basket — and it generally does. Perhaps it is just as well that all this material and propaganda finds its way to the printing offices and not into private homes, for no better way could be found to crumble the cornerstone of our society than to erode it with this junk. Imagine if you can, a tired working man arriving home to find his helpmate, having been subjugated by this barrage of brain-washing material has completely forgotten that the corn beef and cabbage is burned to uselessness. Marriages have been wrecked on less than this, so let us keep this stuff coming to the publication house if it must go anywhere for we are amply supplied with garbage cans and the days of brain-washing are long since gone for us.

But getting back to the over use of words. The Ten Commandments contain 297 words: The Bill of Rights is stated in 463 words; Lincoln's Gettysburg Address contain 266 words. A recent Federal directive to regulate the price of cabbage contains 26,911 words. 'Nough said?

Public Ownership

It has been suggested by the president of a large American electric power company that the public ownership of utilities is one of the most misleading in our language. In this suggestion he may be more correct than would appear on the surface, for there is in fact more direct public control therefore more participation in investor owned utilities than there could possibly be in state controlled enterprises. In truth the former might more aptly be termed as under "public ownership". While this may seem a paradox it could be the proper term. The somewhat popular conception that investor - controlled enterprises operate under a monopoly, may also quite properly be applied to a state-owned utility that is invariably operated by a politically appointed commission removed from the control of the legislature. Its rates are a matter in internal decision, and if it operates at a loss it has the recourse of falling back on the taxpayer to lift it back into solvency.. It can ignore complaints on poor service because the public has nowhere else to go. Investor-owned utility however is answerable to at least three groups. Its rates are subject to the approval of a public commission, its efficiency is subject to the scrutiny use of shareholders, and because of its publicly granted monopoly, service to customers must be above complaint. While all this may be a matter of opinion, there is one prevailing factor in that investor-controlled utilities, unlike state - owned enterprises, are huge taxpayers. The shareholders demand that they get a return on their investment, still about half of every dollar goes back to the public through taxation. That there is a lack of public perception in this matter is evident, and it is this very lack which allows politicians to seek to further their political ambitions by advocating the government take-over of investor-owned utilities. They might well concentrate on things more urgent than dragging red-herrings across the political scene.

Provincial Tax Benefits

Present indications are that the present session of the Legislature will bring down a budget approximating one half billion dollars. That's a lot of money in any language, and particularly so for a province with the small population of Alberta. But that seems to be the trend today, for people are asking for and in fact demanding more services and more modern facilities than ever before. In trying to keep up to this demand, coupled with the prevalent desire of governments to give more than the other fellow, governing bodies are almost compelled to up the ante year after year. In order to do this money or credit must be sought in ever increasing volume, and even with huge profit pouring into the provincial coffers our legislators find it inconvenient to offer any sort of tax relief to the citizens. In fact indications are that the burden of taxation will become heavier as time passes. Such is the penalty of progress and social services. Half a billion dollars is a lot of money. Just how much may be illustrated in this way.

A man gave his wife a million dollars and told her to go out and (egad) spend it at $1000 a day. She did and came back in three years to tell him that the money was all gone and she wanted more. So he gave her a billion dollars with the same instructions, and she didn't come back for 3000 years. Divide that by two and you've got at least a general idea of how much our Provincial Government may be spending in the next fiscal year.

★ MACDUFF REPORT

Showing the Flag!

OTTAWA When members of Parliament returned on February 16th to continue the session which was already the longest in history, the new flag was standing out proudly as the Peace Tower.

In the first few days of the resumed session there was no evidence that insurgencies of the new maple leaf flag, at long last, had worked any healing effect on the members.

Nor was it expected to.

The flag had been a chief point of contention between Liberals and Conservatives, a focal point of bitterness and political discontent.

Whatever may be the new flag may have among Canadians generally, it will not change indeed if it seems how inspired strong feelings of unity and common purpose among political parties.

The partisans are for too committed for compromise engaged in combat far too bitter in what has certainly been a turbulent year in Canadian politics.

The scene of politicri crisis has been maintained almost continuously with, Government scandals, historic and difficult accommodations with Quebec, Tory divisions, constitutional crises, parliamentary failings, and a painful but perhaps beneficial Royal Visit.

Even so, in the years to come this long and teeming session of Parliament will most likely be remembered as the flag session.

This was the Parliament that gave Canada, after 98 years of Confederation, a maple leaf flag that cannot be mistaken for the flag of any other country. And Prime Minister Pearson, whatever else he said will surely be remembered as the man who gave Canada its flag, a crowning event of his career.

These thoughts were in the minds of many who attended the curiously restrained and moving flag-raising ceremony on Parliament Hill on the 15th of February.

The Government deliberately plan ned the ceremony in a low key.

It was a pity, in a way, that all the school children in Ottawa could not have been released to flood the Parliamentary lawns and pour out their youthful enthusiasm. It was a pity there wasn't a public holiday, fireworks, parades, a little bonnel-jingoism.

But the planners never forgot that this was a flag-lowering, as well as a flag-raising ceremony.

The slow descent of the Red Ensign, which had served as Canada's flag for many years, was a sad, grateful moment for many in the crowd.

Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker, who led the Opposition to adoption of the new flag, could not bring himself to show any warmth towards it.

He had agreed to attend the ceremony as a chief guest, after his party's national executive, at his request, had advised him to attend. But it was Prime Minister Pearson's invitation to speak.

Mr. Diefenbaker dubbed his eyes with a handkerchief when the Red Ensign came down. He bravely glanced at the red maple leaf flag as it rose to the top of the pole, to become the national flag standing for Canada all over the world.

Mr. Diefenbaker obviously did not share the emotions of most of the unexpectedly huge crowd, up to 20, 000 persons, which had gathered on the Hill for the ceremony.

As the new flag reached the top of the pole, a spontaneous cheer went up. It was a leap of the heart, a moment of self-recognition.

The cheer was louder and more impassioned a few minutes later, when the Royal Standard was lowered from the Peace Tower, and the new maple leaf went up. It flared bold and strong from its high vantage.

For those who had waited for this moment, the red flag instantly became theirs. No one can deny that the flag is being accepted only grudgingly by many Canadians including a substantial part of the Conservative Party.

But no one can doubt either, that within a few years that flag will be in every respect the flag of all Canadians. A few more pages of Canadian history will have to be turned under visa.

This maple leaf flag, in a somewhat disagreeable sense, symbolizes within its bright folds the colors of political discontent and the Canadian quandary.

The flag itself will hardly be a strong political controversy in the years to come. But as yet it has not healed any of the political wounds which are depressing Parliamentary life and political activity.

The resumed session of Parliament has taken up just where it left off. On the first day, a one day and a half hours of sitting, only two matters were devoted to the business at hand, debating the national labor code.

There was the same frequent disorder, partisan cross-fire, extravagantly large and counter-charges, inconsequential complaints, and political jockeying.

It seems too much to expect that Parliament will right itself of its new vuillies. More and more, an effective appears to be the solution. Yet may not solve things either, but then again, it might.

MR DOUGLAS SHOULD KEEP QUIET

University of Alberta students at Calgary might be forgiven for foolishly forming a peace committee to urge United States to pull out of South Viet Nam, and keep the peace keeping to the United Nations.

But it is another matter when T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic party, states substantially the same thing. Mr. Douglas should know better.

If the United States did withdraw from that region, a communist army from North Viet Nam would be in occupance before any UN peace-keeping force could be organized.

The United States is involved too deeply in South Viet Nam to pull out now. The US government knows that if the communists win in that region the Far East would be dominated by Communist China in no time. The Eighty Dokatsu of Japan would ally his red state immediately; the fledgling country of Malaysia would be gobbled up in short order to be followed by Indonesia, Burma, Thailand and the other independent states.

Had the United States not taken a first stand against Red China in Korea, today Japan and the Philippines would be in the communist orbit.

The United State's position in South Viet Nam protects southeastern Asia from Communist domination. A further protects the sub-continent of Australia and possibly New Zealand and their 18 million people.

Mr. Douglas should be less naive and more aware of a very critical and dangerous situation. — Brooks Bulletin.

CENTENNIAL NEWS BULLETIN PLANNED

A regular bulletin, designed to inform the public of the latest developments within the communities throughout Alberta, will be issued monthly beginning April 1st, said the Hon. Ambrose Holowach, Provincial Secretary today. Mr. Holowach, is chairman of the Alberta Centennial Committee.

The Bulletin, which will be prepared and issued by the Alberta Government Centennial Publicity Bureau, will describe centennial plans and advise of regulations and deadlines applicable to Alberta communities. It will keep the public informed of federal centennial plans and encourage general public participation.

The bulletin will emphasize regularly the Dec. 31, 1965 deadline date for application for grants from the federal treasury.

Persons or organizations desiring to receive this bulletin should advise the Alberta Government Publicity Bureau, Highways Bldg., Edmonton.

Marked Interest In Canadian Stamps

A tremendous increase in interest in Canadian stamps, demonstrated by the number of requests and orders received at the Post Office's Philatelic Sales Office at Ottawa, has prompted the Post Office to issue postage stamps for philatelic purposes in a new high during the past year.

Post Office records show that total philatelic sales for 1964 amounted to over $775,000 as compared to $500,000 in 1963 and the total number of orders was up 67% over the previous year.

The basic reason for the upsurge is that postage stamps are now being regarded more and more as an investment and more people are buying them in quantity with a view to reselling them later at a profit. The practice, it was noted, is perfectly legal.

The demand for some stamps has been so great that, although single copies of most recent issues are still available, "blocks" of some stamps are now completely sold out. For example the seven-cent regular stamp released last March was sold out of plate blocks by August. Plate blocks are stamps with the printing plate number and the name of the manufacturer printed on the white paper margin.

The Post Office has also noted a marked increase in the number of philatelists taking advantage of the Philatelic Account Service, a service by which philatelists receive their requirements of new issue stamps without the bother of submitting an order for each issue. In 1964, the total number of depositors increased by 25 percent.

SUGAR AND SPICE

by Bill Smiley

FROM EVERYWHERE THEY COME

I've had a preview of what I'm going to feel like when my daughter is married. I've just been through two piece rectals. Not by Glenn Gould, or Van Cliburn, or Artur Rubinstein. No. By Hugh Smiley.

Marrying off your daughter must be just like it. A heady brew of emotion and exhaustion, bliss and bouquets, that leaves you feeling like a caterpillar that has been run over, but not quite killed, by a tractor.

In short, you wind up absolutely flat, but rather proud that you're not dead.

The first recital was at the Conservatory in the city. We picked the date six weeks before. And, boy, can we pick 'em. It was 10 below zero. And the humidity and wind gave it a discomfort index of 67 below.

The Old Girl was sick. Physically, mentally, spiritually. I was sick sympathetically. We figured 36 relatives, tried and true and five friends to be safe. I cared money, would turn up.

Blew the bosman race, and all dear friends. We had 150 bodies in the place, struggling in, or away, at night, from all over the country. Some made a round trip of 800 miles to hear the kid play.

It was a curious combination of characters in the audience. Basic were the relatives who live in the city, and their friends. They made up the size we've had expected.

But then they started to trickle in: old college friends; old flighter pilots; old weekly editors; my son's former public school principal; the chap who has the mortgage on my house; the fellow who handles my insurance; the orthodontist who straightens my daughter's teeth; a girl I hadn't seen since we went skinny-dipping at a beach party 20 years ago. And they all, bless them, brought their wives, and, or husbands, children and friends.

Last but not least came my sisters. One drove for six hours, in 20-below weather, with her daughter to make it. The other came the same distance by train, with two kids. Neither knew the other was coming. Neither had seen the great artist since he was picking-up-and kissing-time.

It was heart-warming, to say the least. And I was a very proud father and husband, when it was over. A proud father because my son showed a great deal of polish I wish I'd had at that age, and a competence I've never had at any age. A proud husband, because my wife had crawled out of what she claimed was her death-bed, to get there, and looked better than anybody, despite the facts that she's lived with me for 18 years, and coached the kid for ten.

Next day at noon, we hiked for home, 90 miles, and were through the whole thing again that night. A recital in the home town. It was not 20 below, for a change. It was 30 below. But 800 people left their television sets, and shivered through the halfing night to hear my young virtuoso, as he doesn't like to be called.

What impressed me most about the whole week-end was the kindness of people. My sister-in-law wanted to hold a reception for the whole mob, in the city. Our neighbor insisted on making the sandwiches for the bash at home. Even my wife got carried away and told me, caring one lapse, that I was a good husband and father, which shook me up a bit.

The only thing that's bothering me is the kid's attitude. One of my misguided friends sent him a bottle of champagne. A door lady sent him ten bucks. And perhaps worst of all, he got a clutch of fan mail.

After the week end, we had a heavy fall of snow. I told him to get out and shovel the driveway. He handed it right back and asked, "How many fan letters did you get this week, Pops?" I shovelled.

Harry Hays

THIS STUFF CALLED SNOW. These pretty young ladies are visiting Canada from Latin America, and this is their first taste of snow. Keeping on their finest-style straw hats, they take a try at skiing. Said all right, however, is cautious, and couples herself with a strategically-placed pillow. This are among 11 Latin-American students studying at the Convent of Holy Immaculate in Pembroke, Ont.

REPORTS FROM PARLIAMENT HILL

Within a few weeks, Parliament will again have one of the biggest nights of its year — budget night.

At 8 p.m. on that night, my friend, Finance Minister Walter Gordon, will rise in his front-bench place in the House of Commons and outline, to a larger than usual attendance both of MPs and interested citizens in the public gallery, the government's taxation and spending plans for the new fiscal year.

I am going to present a comprehensive review he recently made of these government policies for the last-and some of their measurable effects on the over-all economic welfare of our country.

I thought it might provide some useful background to the new budget, when he presents it in the Commons later on.

If we cast our minds back to the economic situation prevailing in the spring of 1963, you will recall there was some real cause for concern about the prospects.

The recession of 1960 was more than two years behind us and while production and incomes were still rising, the economy was not expanding at a rate commensurate with its real potentialities.

Business investment in new plant and equipment seemed to be levelling out. And despite two years of economic expansion unemployment still remained much too high.

It was clear that something more should be done to stimulate the economy to the point where it would create many more new job opportunities to match the larger number of young people entering the labour force.

Furthermore, it was glaringly apparent that certain regions of Canada, particularly the Atlantic provinces and eastern Quebec were not participating adequately in the general expansion of our country: the high levels of unemployment in these areas could not be tolerated.

There were other problems, including the need to take stock over the long run, would reverse the low level trend in our share of expenditures on foreign capital. But at the top of the list of immediate objectives was the need to obtain a higher rate of economic growth.

To achieve this, certain other objectives had to be sought:

The restoration of confidence in our dollar, and in the soundness of the economic and financial climate generally.

The achievement of a better balance in our international trade and payments.

The encouragement of new capital investment in industry generally and, especially in regions of slow economic growth.

A further increase in the training and education of young men & women to fit them for the fast changing requirements of the economy.

The reduction of seasonal fluctuations in employment by encouraging more work in the winter months.

The promotion of economic expansion by means of new or expanded government lending programs has operated mainly in the field of municipal construction and housing.

In June 1963, Parliament enacted a Municipal Development and Lending Act which provided a fund of $400 million for lending to municipalities across Canada.

The purpose was to provide municipalities with the major part of the funds required to augment and accelerate their capital programs.

As an inducement to speedy action by the municipalities the plan offered a government grant equal to 25 per cent of the amount loaned on such projects or parts of projects, as could be completed before April 1, 1966. The specific tax effect of this stimulus to municipal investment — not to speak of its indirect benefits — has been impressive.

Up to last December 15, 1,248 loans had been approved covering projects in 770 municipalities, for a total loan amount of close to $300 million. The total value of additional or accelerated works represented by these loans is about $560 million.

Another major activity which we have sought to stimulate over the last eighteen months is housing. Home building involves a very large amount of empowment in itself and responds quickly to change as it is the terms on which it can be financed.

In addition, the servicing of new subdivisions and the furnishing and equipping of new homes and apartments stimulates a multitude of other industries.

Most of the benefits in terms of production and employment tend to remain in Canada instead of going abroad by way of increased imports.

The aim, therefore, has been to encourage a high level of residential construction during the last two years, and to concentrate a greater proportion of it in the winter months.

The NHA rate of interest has been reduced, and down payments and other lending arrangements have been made. Winter construction has been greatly stimulated by the payment of a $600 bonus. And the CMHC has been authorized to make direct loans to builders on a substantial scale to ensure that adequate financing was available during the winter period.

Largely as a result of these changes, housing starts in 1963 and 1964 have been extraordinarily high, increasing by 14 per cent in 1963 over the previous year and then by about 10 per cent in 1964. The volume of construction and home improvement in January last winter and this winter has been beyond all expectations.

"The time is now opportune" Mr. Bobey stressed "for increased spending by the Department of Agriculture, especially in the area of agricultural products marketing research. We believe that such research would increase returns to farmers by means of improved marketing methods".

FUA Newsletter

"Agricultural research, most of it Government sponsored, and the application of the new technology in modern methods of production have been successful in increasing farm output, and this has placed extra strain on traditional marketing methods," states FUA President Paul Bisbey.

"Unfortunately," says Mr. Bisbey "farmers have not been able to retain for themselves a significant amount of the savings and benefits made possible by their own use of modern production methods". Most of the savings are passed on to the consumer, because our marketing procedures are unable to retain these for farm people, he said.

Farmers and farm organizations are seeking increased assistance for Agriculture from government, Mr. Bisbey continued. He pointed out that the budget of the Alberta Department of Agriculture is only about 1 1/3% of total government expenditures, and he commented that this seemed pitifully small compared to the contribution that agriculture is making to the provincial economy each year.

MERNA 4H SEWING CLUB

Our last meeting on February 16 opened with the singing of "O Canada". Then we repeated the 4H Pledge. Several matters of business were discussed, & a community project we decided to paint mail boxes with the consent of the owners. Several sewing demonstrations were given by club members. An extra on the care of clothing was given by our leader which proved profitable to all. Three of the members gave two minute speeches on topics of their own choice, as a portion of total government expenditures, and he commented that this seemed pitifully small compared to the contribution that agriculture is making to the provincial economy each year.

Lunch followed.

IN MEMORY OF MARY TETLOCK

When I heard that you were gone
From your world of pain set free,
How my heart ached and broke
About days that used to be!

What a gay and happy Miss
With a word of cheer and fun,
You spread radiance and bliss
You were loved by everyone.

A victim of a cruel plague
With each day so full of pain,
Though you had hoped were
That you'd ever walk again.

Yet you never ceased to smile
You were always just the same,
When I saw your indomitable style
My poor head I bowed in shame.

Now I thank God for His grace
You're done with the old wheel chair,
And Heaven is a better place
Because you have entered there.

Submitted by a life long friend,
Bertha (Palla) McPherson.

The first rules for ice hockey, and still the game's basic rules, were laid out by students at McGill University, Montreal, in 1875.

ALBERTA JUNIOR CITIZEN OF THE YEAR BULLETIN:

Who Is An Alberta Junior Citizen?

Read what some of them have done - then nominate young citizens of YOUR choice!

Enterprising Alberta youngsters between 6 and 16 years can win Junior Citizen Awards for many reasons. Some save lives, like David Kilford of Sherwood Park and Lynda Dann of Vulcan. Some assume tremendous family responsibilities like Albertine Clearhout of Bashaw and Gay Fry of Edmonton. Some perform outstanding community work, like the Junior Red Cross Group of Cayley School. Heroism, quiet courage, community service, special talents, or just plain old-fashioned Alberta independence and initiative! Qualities like these can qualify youngsters you know.

But it's up to you to send their names to the editor of this newspaper.

Nominate an individual or a group for any act of merit since August 1964.

Remember, young people like these deserve recognition. You can see that they get it in our Alberta.

The Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year Program is sponsored by Alberta's investor-owned electric utility companies, with the co-operation of Alberta's Weekly Newspaper Editors.

THE BIG WHEEL. Now there's a new craze rocking North America, the "penny farthing bicycle" fad. People are buying them by the dozen at yesteryear, and the larger American cities they are forming "Penny Farthing" clubs. A pretty model poses on one of the skinny, although most find it difficult to ride modern-saddle. Other than cross sweeping the country in east of Mississippi. 'n ouch!

Rev. and Mrs. Robert Stewart, missionaries to Haiti, serving with the West Indies Mission, ministered the Word at both services on Sunday. The need of Haiti, which is bound by superstition and poverty, stirred our prayers and support. The choir provided special music for the morning worship service.

The Building Committee will meet with the members of the Church on Wednesday to discuss further plans for the new manse.

The WMS has also been busy arranging their program for the year 1965. This week they will be meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cotton.

The Young Peoples service was cancelled because of the storm however a full program is planned for weeks ahead with an area rally slated for March.

Our life; a little gem of time in the universal [illegible] Alberta from now until early in April.

The schools, sponsored by the provincial Dept. of Agriculture through local officials and agricultural service boards, are primarily designed to inform chemical dealers and agents of the latest developments in agricultural chemicals. However, farmers are also invited to attend.

Discussion will cover a variety of chemicals used in both field crop & livestock production. Under field crops, information will be given on recommended chemical application methods and rates, the most effective herbicides for various species of weeds and the pros and cons of a number of herbicides advertised in farm newspapers.

In the case of livestock chemicals, the main emphasis will be on those recommended for lease and grub control. Feed additives will also be discussed at a number of schools. Chemical agricultural schools have been arranged for at Wainwright on March 2nd and at Castor on the 16th of March.

Farmers and Chemical dealers are invited to attend this school on Agricultural Chemicals.

KILLAM BEEF FAIR

The Alberta Department of Agriculture has announced the 22nd Provincial Junior Beef Fair, to be held at the Exhibition Grounds in Calgary March 4th and 5th. The Junior Fair will be again held in conjunction with the Calgary Bead Fair and Agricultural Short Course. An imposing list of prizes and prize money is offered for any farm boy or girl who prepares and submits a fitting steer for entry. Special classes are open to 4H Clubs in both beef and project books competitions. Four wrist watches or equivalent are among the prizes offered.

Pamphlets containing fair rules and regulations, prize lists & entry forms are available from the office of any District Agriculturist.

SPRING'S COMING!

Spring will be here before we know it. Now is the time to be thinking about your seed and fertilizer.

Send a sample of grain and get a seed test before you have it cleaned. This can save disappointments. Consider the value of treating your seed. Both the fungicide and insecticide treatments can pay handsome dividends. Book a time to clean your seed now — with your local Seed Plant Operator.

Fertilizer is almost a necessary evil as far as grain farming is concerned. It takes time and costs money to handle fertilizer, but the dividends for using fertilizer are worth the effort. Keep your plans now and order the fertilizer you want. Make sure you order the proper analysis of fertilizer too.

High School Students Subject Of Study

STUDENT VOCATIONAL CHOICES TO BE STUDIED

A study of the vocational plans of Alberta Grade 11 and 12 students is being undertaken by the Department of Education in cooperation with the schools, the Alberta Teachers' Association, and the Alberta School Trustees' Association.

The study is concerned not only with the nature of training programs and vocations students are planning to enter after high school but also with the reason why students make the choices they do. The degree to which students are aware of educational and vocational opportunities beyond high school will also be assessed.

The information will be obtained by means of a questionnaire to be administered in all high schools in February. Close to 40,000 students are now enrolled in Grades 11 and 12 throughout the province. In addition to providing useful information on anticipated enrolments and the need for expanded facilities at various training institutions such as the Northern Alberta Institute of Technology, the data should be of considerable value to the schools in assessing the plans of their students and in making comparisons across the province. It is anticipated that the study may be repeated at intervals in order to provide information on trends in the plans of students.

The director of the study is Dr. Donald Fair, on leave from the University of Alberta in Edmonton. An advisory committee has been appointed consisting of representatives from the Department of Education and interested outside groups. Preliminary information from the study should be available in about three months; more detailed analysis of the data and the final report will probably require a year or more.

McPhersons Win Killam Co-op Bonspiel Recently

KILLAM — A rink consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Grant McPherson of Killam and Mr. and Mrs. Calvin McPherson of Sedgewick won the Killam Cooperative's 4 rink bonspiel held here Feb. 14th.

But the McPherson rink had to do it the hard way. They finished the regular spiel tied at 89 points with a rink consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Barth and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Larsen all of Killam.

The issue was determined by the two skips throwing two rocks apiece.

Each of the 14 rinks entered in the one-day bonspiel played three six-end games. A point system was used to determine the final standings.

The McPherson rink is now eligible to compete in the Parkland regional 12-rink bonspiel to be held in Killam March 14.

Knox UCW Meeting

KILLAM — The February meeting held in the church was opened with a worship period led by Mrs. H. Wilson. Mrs. J. Christenson continued the study of Israel. There the wagons of the peasants is from nothing to $100 a year, spending a lifetime in the service of the few wealthy land owners. The production increase of late is 22 percent but the population increase is 38 per cent.

A letter from a former member, Mrs. F. Sherwood Sr., was read.

The members made plans to clean the church basement on Feb. 11th. The Knox UCW donated their share of the postage for the chest of clothing cards and issued a canvasser to help with the Red Cross drive.

The month of March, it appears, will be a busy one with entering for a Board of Trade contest. March 2: taking a part in the World's Day of Prayer in the Pentecostal Church March 5 and holding a tea and bake sale and candy sale in the church on March 13th.

The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. Forster.

The UN Club had a film on Wednesday during noon hour open to all the students. Te film was entitled "Religions of the World".

Wes Asava came to Central on Monday and entertained the students of Central by playing the piano. This was sponsored by the Youth for Christ Club.

The Jive Club is sponsoring a dance in the school gym on Saturday 27. Admission is one dollar per person. The dance is not open to the public.

On Friday all the students gathered in the gym to hear a few things about Canada's new flag. Everyone sang "O Canada" and then Mr. Stowe read a few things about the flag. The winners of the essay contest sponsored by the Canadian Legion were awarded an encyclopedia and dollars and given a scroll. The winners in Central were Helen Jacobson and Glenn Armitage.

A pep rally is going to be held in Central next week to give the Centralettes a big send off to the provincial playoffs which are taking place in Wainwright on the 27 of February.

SPORTS

The Centralettes, Central girls' basketball team played in Wainwright last Saturday in a basketball tournament. The girls left Sedgewick at 8.00 a.m. and arrived in Wainwright at 10:45 a.m. They played their first game at 11:45 against Vegreville. Vegreville won this game with a score of 20 to 14. The girls played their second game at 2:30 against Vermilion and won with a score of 24 to 16. After an hour rest they played their final game against Salsbury. The girls were so tired that they lost the game to Salsbury with a score of 21 to 27.

The winners of the playoffs at Wainwright go on to Lethbridge.

Prayer Service Planned

The World Day of Prayer Service will be held in Prince of Peace Chapel this year. The date is the March 5th at 4:00 p.m. Sedgewick.

The World Day of Prayer Service for 1965 was written by Mrs. Jesse Jai McNeil, a gifted and distinguished American Negro woman, wife of the Rev. Dr. Jesse Jai McNeil, minister of Metropolitan Baptist Church, Pasadena, California, who is the author of a number of published books, and a wellknown Conference speaker.

Mrs. McNeil is a woman who has received many honors for her outstanding endeavors in many fields.

Her choice of theme was "What Doth the Lord Require of Thee?"

Three February Meetings Keep M.D. Council Busy

SEDGEWICK — If anyone thinks that Municipal Councillors fail to earn their pay, he should have followed them through the month of February when they held no less than three meetings to wade through the extra heavy agenda of business facing the MD Flagstaff.

MEETING OF FEBRUARY 23RD

An invitation was received from Wm. Peake of Oakhall inviting Council members to attend an FUA meeting, and due to the importance as many of the Council as possible were urged by the Secretary to attend.

A study was made of the minutes of the Flagstaff Farm Purchase Advisory Board with a recommendation to disband and discontinue activities under the Farm Purchase Credit Act.

A motion was made to meet with the Council of MD Palmerath in discuss gravel deposits on S4 40 16.

It was reported that the Sisters of Killam General Hospital were making a second request for a grant to renovate and convert the old hospital to a nurses' residence. Because of the potential feed shortage, Mr. Wallman, local Pool Elevator Agent was interviewed regarding the hauling of all oat supplies in the district, and a telegram was despatched to the Wheat Board to this effect.

Letter from the Hon. R. Reirson was indicating that all rural phone lines in the Daysland to Hardisty, and Forestburg areas would be rebuilt this year in a new underground project. There will be no noted difference of opinion as to whether those lines should be strung on the road allowance or set back a rod or two off allowances.

R. Lienhardt reported on the winter works gravel crushing program and indicated some completion as

A welcome diversion to the meeting was a visit from former

Mr. Alf Rands of Alliance.

MEETING OF FEBRUARY 19TH

Paul Vanderwoude, Municipal Constable and Welfare Officer made his regular report to Council, touching on such subjects as weigh scales, road bans, welfare grain release on court cases.

No reply was received from Camrose Co. re: Moved by T. Barton and seconded by H. Leonard that another letter be written to Camrose Co. In regards to the slogan contest only 2 entries have been received to date. Moved by H. Leonard and seconded by O. Probst it be open to adults as well as children and urged everyone to enter before next meeting.

C. Ingvaldson spoke briefly on the duplicating machine Chamber had purchased.

Moved by H. Leonard and seconded by T. Barton the new tickets for the Chamber be for the coming year.

H. Barton gave an account of what he had found out about the feed mill. Several other interesting subjects came up concerning the evening. The meeting was adjourned and all enjoyed coffee at the cafe.

WIN AM LEAGUE — The Sedgewick Midget Hockey Team finished in first place in the AM Midget League this year and were presented with the Lougheed Cup by Sherm Greseling (right) coach of the team captain Brian Simpson is League President Sigin Brown of Daysland.

Service Board Conference Hears Agricultural Talks

SEDGEWICK — Last Wednesday morning at 9:15 delegates to the Agricultural Service Board Conference began registering for the meeting at the Community Hall in Sedgewick.

The conference is held once each year to help keep Service Board personnel up to date with developments in their fields.

Guest speakers from the Provincial Department of Agriculture gave talks on their subjects in their gates broke up into discussion groups to hash over the new information.

Over 50 delegates attended the conference representing, County of Paintearth County of Stettler and County of Camrose; M.D.'s of Flagstaff, Provost, Wainwright, and Stirland. Also Hanna and other special areas.

Guest speakers were A. M. Wilson, Field Crops Commissioner; W. Hawkins, Supervisor of Weed Control; V. D. McCuaig, Supervisor of Horticulture; and Lloyd Rasmussen, Super. of District Agriculturists.

Centralettes Win East Central Ball Championship

The Central High School Girls Basketball team travelled to Wainwright on the 19th and 20th to participate in the East Central Zone Provincial Basketball playdowns sponsored by the Alberta School Athletic Association.

In the first game against a highly rated Camrose Lutheran College team, the Centralettes proved early in the game that they were out for victory, finishing up a lead-close lead of 19-11. A brilliant defensive game kept Lutheran College out of contention for the rest of the game, while sharp shooting allowed Central to almost double the lead to a final score of 37-20. All eleven members saw action in this game in a great team effort. Sandra Pederson was a standout on offense as she hit for 21 points, several on spectacular long shots which killed the College team's defence. Esther point getters

Need For Adequate Policing!

For some time past there has been rumors and speculation that the Province of Alberta was to come out with a uniform in the area of rural and municipal policing. That there has been for some time the need for revitalization in this area has been apparent for some time. However the present session of the Legislature has put a decided stop to any speculation along this line by announcing there will not be an Alberta Municipal Police Force. Instead there will be a new agreement with Ottawa for RCMP policing of Alberta. While the Premier indicates that the new agreement will be cheaper than a Municipal Force, we wonder if the service and efficiency in rural areas will be improved. This is not to undervalue RCMP activities, but to question the wisdom of continuing with a policing situation that is far from adequate, by its very set-up, to the rural areas and towns and villages. For various obvious reasons, local village policemen are reluctant to strictly enforce even apparent minor crimes such as speeding, unlawful possession of liquor, rowdyism and public disturbance, to mention only a few. In the new contract with Ottawa it is to be hoped that the Provincial Government will broaden the activities of the RCMP to give better protection in towns and villages.

While on the subject of policing, the Premier, who as the Attorney-General should give some very serious consideration to putting forth every effort to see that violators, once convicted, must bear more severe penalties, for it is in this area where Magistrates are being a little too soft, sometimes even downright ridiculous. You are never going to cure the evil without more severe punishment. That is quite apparent today, for even police officers sometimes find it useless to arrest, convict, and find the culprit turned loose with a warning, a suspended sentence or an unconsequential fine.

Religion In Politics!

How many times have you heard it said that religion has no place in politics? That this is not only a misconception but downright untruth, could be amply verified by giving a few religious and Christian basic principles a political trial. It goes without saying, and there is plenty of evidence today that with the total application of some of these principals politics can and will settle into the unholy morass of corruption and degeneration that we have on our hands today. When man's inhumanity to man becomes so evident that it smears the entire nation, it is time to apply a new set of principals, or revert to the old established ideas that

[illegible]

Starting from Ottawa, the lack of principle and integrity has integrated municipal set-ups in cities and rural areas, where the attitude has developed into a dog-eat-dog, holier-than-thou condition that is eating the very heart out of democratic ideas.

Spring Means Farm Accidents!

When March arrives it generally means that spring is not far away. At least this is the hope that springs eternal in Albertans. It will be more than welcome this year after the severe winter that has visited us.

But along with this joy comes a note of tragedy, for it is almost certain that before the spring farm work of tilling the land and seeding the new crop is completed reports will come into the office of injuries and death resulting from a farm accident. Such reports are the more saddening perhaps when it has happened to someone you know, perhaps someone you were talking to over the coffee cups only the day before. It is when these things happen close to home that they are felt more.

Farming is now classed as the third most hazardous occupation in Alberta,

It is far easier to suffer in silence if you are sure someone is watching.

There are a lot of Canadians today who seem to believe that living within their income is a fate worse than debt.

Your dollar goes farther today. In fact a lot of it ends up in outer space.

The well adjusted person today is the one who can play golf and bridge as though they were games.

Where Stands The Monarchy!

OTTAWA — Should we become a Republic of Canada or should we keep the Queen as head of state?

This question has suddenly become a live issue although it was only last December that both houses of Parliament passed resolutions asking the Union Jack the symbol of Canada's allegiance to the crown.

The issue on the monarchy was touched off by a series of resolutions passed by Liberal Party youth groups, starting with the Ontario section of the University Liberal Association.

This resolution said the monarchy should be abolished and that the Canadian Republic should remain within the Commonwealth with the Hon. Geo. Ien. as head of state.

It was immediately claimed that the young Liberal Republicans had out-exerted the monarchists at the Toronto meeting, which was not representative.

But it was soon followed by similar moves by a national meeting of the University Liberal Federation of Ontario, by the Quebec Liberal Federation and the Toronto and District Young Liberal Association.

Hon. Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker in a television speech, said all these events together and now in them an echo of the views of Senior Liberals did a "trying" cry for the abolition of the crown & the establishment of a republic in Canada".

He was seconded by George Nowlan, respected Nova Scotia Conservative and former Finance Minister, who demanded immediate assurance that the Liberals are not planning to establish a Canadian Republic.

Prime Minister Pearson seemed to think that the time had come for a statement. The next day in the Parliament he was asked by backbencher Alberta David Orest to restate the policy and feelings of the Government in respect to the monarchy. This is an often-used device to give the Government a chance to make a statement it wishes to make.

Mr. Pearson replied that there was no reason for speculation, the policy was perfectly clear.

"It is to maintain the monarchy as a cherished, strong and important part of our constitution which has earned and will receive our loyalty and respect."

This was clear and definite enough but even Mr. Pearson couldn't hope that it would end the debate.

Only the day before, in Montreal, Justice Minister Guy Favreau—Mr. Pearson's Quebec lieutenant—had given a much more equivocal reply.

"In the present political context, he said, the monarchy was "useful to the legislative process".

"But whether this should be something permanent is a different question," said Mr. Favreau.

And when the Prime Minister made his statement in the House greeted by applause from most of the members, a score or more sat stonily in their places. There are republicans in Parliament, even in the Cabinet, although only one, Liberal Augustine Choquette, is on record with a prediction that Canada will become a republic in 15 years.

Every member of the Commons had to swear, before taking his seat, that he would "be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth".

Every act of Parliament must have Royal Assent before it becomes law. Every action of the Government is done in the Queen's name. Canada's new flag was made official by her proclamation. Every officer in the armed forces and every Cabinet Minister holds his position by Royal appointment.

To change to a republic would involve thousands of changes in Canada's system of Government, reaching down to such mundane matters as the design of the change in your pocket.

Liberal monarchists in the Commons are deeply disturbed by the recent actions of their youth organizations and the occasional statements of older republicans. Some Conservatives see partisan advantage in the situation.

The agitation for a republic seemed partly an overflow of the emotions aroused by the flag debate. It may die down, as some Liberals predict. But if it doesn't, the struggle over the monarchy could make the flag debate fight look like a Sunday School picnic.

SUGAR AND SPICE

by Bill Smiley

THEY COULD HAVE ASKED ME!

That raging enfant terrible Pierre Berton, has churned out another book. With the encouragement of the Anglican church, he took what was supposed to be a long, hard look at contemporary Christianity.

According to the critical reviews, the result, entitled The Comfortable Pew, turned out to be a short, soft look.

For years I have envied Berton for a number of things—his facility with words; his TV interviews with gorgeous dolls; his colossal guilt his big, fat income. Every time the big farmhouse starts another crack, I get the green sickness.

But this is different. My jealousy is complicated by sheer hurt. If the Anglicans wanted somebody to write a book about them, why did they turn to a back-slid Anglican like Berton, when they had a front-slid Anglican, me, available.

Like most converted Anglicans I was hauled, kicking and struggling into the fold, on sexual grounds. My wife was an Anglican.

At first, she used to shame me into accompanying her to church a couple of times a year. Then the outfit unfortified its tentacles to the kids and the first thing I knew I was going to Bible Class pageants and Sunday School picnics.

The pressure increased. "Wouldn't it be lovely," she speculated with that phoney wistfulness that makes you want to run for the nearest ex-lit, "if you could be confirmed at the same time as your little nest?"

I'm not a long contest sheet, I was confirmed at the same time as my nest. And frankly, I must admit that once the last rug was pulled out from under me, I enjoyed every minute of it.

Now I can mumble the general confession and the creed with the best of them. And I take a certain childish pride in kneeling, straight-backed, through the long communion service, when all sheep—or other people my age are groaning and retorting sneakily to a squat, crouch, or a mere bending of the head. Sometimes my family has to lift me back into the pew and massage my knees so that I can come up for the next hymn, but it's worth it.

One thing I like about the Anglicans; they keep you busy. None of this stuff of sitting there dreaming for an hour while a preacher wanders through the dark forests of his own interior monologue. Here you

10 YEARS AGO
(From the Press of March 5, 1955)

A very good crowd enjoyed the pancake supper put on by the ganis of the Killam United Church, and they report a profit as they are capable cooks and waitresses.

We see where the M.P.'s were given a raise of $1,000 a year. Kind of a mutual benefit affair.

The M.D.'s could pick up a few points on running a jail, and the inmates a few points on how to wriggle out of a holding cell.

Central High Union held a Valentine Party in the Killam Community Hall on Tuesday evening. Agnes Murray of Sedgewick and Brian Gleeson of Killam were chosen Queen and King respectively.

The Hardisty United and Anglican Women participated in the World Day of Prayer on Friday with a very good turnout in spite of the cold weather.

Royal Purple To Sponsor Hardisty TB Survey

The Royal Purple Lodge of Hardisty entertained members of the Wainwright Lodge on the occasion of the official Inspection visit of D. D. S. H. R. Lady Dendale of Wainwright. At this meeting plans were formulated for the holding of the TB Survey in Hardisty in April, watch for more details of this at a later date.

D. D. S. H. R. Lady Evelyn Edwards paid the official Inspection Visits to the Wainwright and Kinsella Royal Purple Lodges on Monday and Tuesday of last week. She was accompanied by Mrs. Pauline Cavanaugh to Wainwright, and Miss Mildred Green and Miss Ann Laughlin to Kinsella.

Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Cavanaugh attended the Capping Ceremony of their daughter Marlene, nurse in training at Archer Memorial Hospital at Lamont.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Garland and family spent the week end at the home of Mrs. Garland's parents in Kerrobert, Sask.

Mrs. Edwerdny drove a car load of women to Vermilion on Saturday, Feb. 27th to attend the Annual Meeting of Correction Presbyterial United Church Women.

Shazi Dragar and Mrs. Bette Ritchalier spent the week end at F. Dragers, taking part in the Ladies' Banquet.

Mary Bess met with Fanny Wilder on Wednesday evening. Bridge winners were Maryes Dragar and Evelyn Edwerdny.

Mrs. French has returned home after spending the past two months with her son John at Golden, BC.

The Legion Auxiliary is busily preparing for their annual Talent Show to be held in Vista Theatre, March 19th. Watch for further notices.

The Red & White Store was broken into this week and some silver taken. Thieves also broke open a car on the CPR tracks and took some of the contents. RCMP are investigating.

popping up and down like a jack-in-the-pulpit, as your knees begin to quiver, on your feet singing, or on your seat getting your wind back.

Another thing I like about Anglican services is the prayers. I don't think I could ever get back to the interminable, home-made prayers in which the preacher acts as though God had nothing better to do on a busy Sunday morning than listen to him displaying his theological ignorance and his pomposity. At least, in the Anglican ritual, you can readily flip over the page and be reassured that there are only two more paragraphs of the thing.

Last, and I hesitate to say this, I like being an Anglican because of the snob in me. Anglicans, if pressed (up against a wall with a knife at their throats) will admit that some other faiths have certain merits. But underneath, I'm glad that the good Anglican is a couple jumps nervier heaven than a good R.C. or Methodist or Baptist or Presbyterian.

In this way, they are exactly like good R. C's, Methodists, Baptists & Presbyterians. But it's heretical to those who lack confidence.

I told you they picked the wrong fellow to write that book.

LOVE AND HATE

There has always been arguments about which is the greater force in the world today, LOVE OR HATE.

The last World War will give us a very plain idea of HATRED, in Hitler, especially. True, his MAIN motive in exterminating so many Jews and other people whom he thought might thwart his plans to become Supreme Ruler of the whole world, eventually, was the main cause of the "Hate-your-enemy-and death cells" where millions of innocent people were exterminated. Certainly we are all aware of the HATRED.

But his HATRED of these people, Men, women and children, alike) was exemplified in the atrocities committed, in fact, ORDERED.

HATRED, if allowed to be nurtured, can fester and eat away at one's heart until that person may become so mentally ill they may lose their mind competely, becoming dangerously insane.

(The above statement, I might add, is a Known medical fact). One definition in the dictionary for the word "Hatred" is "Abominable". The meaning of "Abominable" is "LOATHSOME". What stronger words do we need when we consider the HATRED in the world today?

I doubt if there are many men OR women who can hide, in their features, the fact that their heart is filled to overflowing with HATRED. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he", says God's word.

Did you ever sit in a crowded Bus Depot, R.R. Station or cafe and casually, study the faces of those around you? I have, and found it an interesting past-time. Some of these faces look peaceful, some excited or expectant, a few of the older ones weary, worried looks and care-worn, while some look so hungry, one can't help but feel happy with them.

Then there are the minority, whose facial expressions are FULL OF HATE, LOATHING AND BITTERNESS. Really diverting is a life-long struggle to make "Both ends meet", or deep sorrow has caused them to look as though nothing but an enemy to them. So day after day, we these wretched unharmed. The Mother-boy evidently had covered them with her own wing (feathers and body as the searing flames swept over, taking her life, but sparing her wee chicks. LOVE? Yes, even in our feathered friends.

Isn't it true? "LOVE NEVER FAILS". Kingdoms may rise and fall; Knowledge vanish away; Wars may be fought and won, (or lost) BUT LOVE ENDURES FOREVER.

While HATRED leaves a trail of destruction in it's pathway, LOVE leaves healing, happiness and security. "Faith, Hope and Love, but greatest of these is LOVE".

Thus, in my opinion, LOVE is the greater of the two.

Silver Link Rebekah Lodge Install Officers

District Deputy President, Sister Blanch Wren and her staff of eight sisters from Prevost, visited Silver Link Rebekah Lodge, Killam, to install the officers. Due to the cold weather all the members were not able to attend.

Review Year's Activities

On June 23rd, 1964, Silver Link celebrated their 50th anniversary, with 82 Oddfellows and Rebekahs from Prevost, Lougheed, Camrose, Wetaskiwin, Alliance and Killam. The evening started with a turkey banquet. The history of the lodge was given by Sister Eva Robertson. The programme of the evening finished with a fashion parade of hats, modeled by Sister Tweedy, Sister Johnson and Sister Backen.

During 1964 the Killam Rebekah Lodge made donations to: The World Eye Bank for Visual Research; Cancer; Cripples Children; Nursery Fund; Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism; CNIB; Killam Elementary Association; The United Nations Youth Pilgrimage; and for person in our students' room look part in the contest.

We would like to thank all those who helped make our money raising projects a success.

Percy Chadwick Service Held At St. Marks

Percy Norvel Chadwick, a long-time resident of the Hardisty district, passed away quietly at his residence on Tuesday, February 2nd at the age of 79 years.

He was born in London, Ontario, on January 21st, 1886. On June 15, 1911 he married Beatrice Cooper. In 1919 he moved West to Hardisty where he farmed some of town until 1918 when he retired to town. In 1952 his wife passed away. In 1956 he married Agnes Rankweed who predeceased him in 1960. He was a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters since June of 1911.

He leaves to mourn his passing one son Robert, and two granddaughters, Beverly Sharon of Lacombe; one brother William of London, Ontario, and numerous nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held in St. Mark's Anglican Church, Hardisty on Monday, Feb. 8th. The service was conducted by Rev. Page. Hymns rendered by Cross Crawley. Pallbearers were, Jack Thorpe, Ing Johnsrud, Art Herrick, Jim McClane, Jim Goodrick and Delbert Galloway. Interment took place in Hardisty Cemetery. Kirkman Funeral Home of Lougheed was in charge of the arrangements.

JUNIOR HIGH BONSPIEL SUCCESS

(By Raymond Nilsen)

SEDGWICK On Saturday, February 20th there was a Junior High Bonspiel in which sixteen rinks participated. There were two teams from each of the following schools: Strome, Killam, Sedgewick, Hardisty, Killam, Lougheed, Forestburg and Daysland. Each team had to have a grade seven, a grade 8 student, and a girl on the team.

The teams started to show up at 9:15 a.m. Valarie Cox and Mr. Kvill handed out the score cards and prizes are handed in their fees. At 9:30 the first games got under way, and the spiel lasted until 6:00 p.m.

Sedgewick "A" won the trophy for the school, and members of the team each won an individual trophy. Those were a small square making easy for a stand and a wooden trimmer with the bottom corner cut off so it could sit evenly. On top was a gold colored rock. On this winning team were, John Anderson (skip), Diane Colbert, Ricky Hopkin and Martin Chapman. Killam "A" came out Killam "B" in the second event. They won balls for the boys and a wallet for the girl. On this team was Jack Hilker (skip), Sharon Hayghe, Darl George and Laurie George.

During the day there were some of the Sedgewick Juniors working in the kitchen. They had a few mishaps, but all in all it was a rather enjoyable day.

HARDISTY UCW HOLD MEETING

Fifteen members were present at the February meeting of the Hardisty United Church Women. President, Mrs. A. Redman welcomed the ladies. The Devotions were led by Mrs. W. G. Belcher.

Mrs. F. Cantlon read a letter from our Korean Foster Child, and also read the letter sent in reply.

Mrs. H. Hayes and Mrs. A. Redman will act on the Committee to arrange the World Day of Prayer program, which will be held in the United Church this year.

The group accepted the 1965 Presbyterial Allocation, and also accepted the Supply Alocation for the Holborne Indian School.

Mrs. Redman thanked the ladies for their generous donating used nylons and to save good used clothing for shipment overseas. A display of articles from Korea made from nylons was also shown. It was attractive and useful.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. E. Elm and Mrs. Hayes and a social hour enjoyed.

Gordon Myrehaug, goal tender with the Sedgewick Midget hockey team has was the award for top goalie in the AM Hockey League for the 1964 - 1965 season.

AGRICULTURAL CHEMICAL SEMINAR

A School to serve the Flagstaff region will be held in the Community Hall in Castor on March 16th to commence at 9:15 a.m. The programme is arranged to discuss Livestock Chemicals in the morning covering the topics of Veterinary Drugs, Prepared Feeds, Livestock Pesticides & Feed and Drug Directives.

The afternoon program will deal with Field Crop Chemicals, covering Herbicides, Insecticides, Fungicides and Fertilizers. The afternoon and morning programs will be handled as panel presentations followed by question periods.

Chemicals play an important part in Agriculture every year. As new Chemicals and improved methods of using them are discovered the problem of selecting the best chemical to do the job becomes more difficult.

A special invitation is extended to farmers and agents handling Agricultural Chemicals to attend this Chemical School.

FACTS FOR THE FARMER!

An all-time record of 17,094 cows tested with an all-time high average of 11,008 pounds of milk and 381.3 pounds of butterfat, highlighted the Alberta Cow Testing Service for 1964. The 524 herds under test last year represented a net increase of 1,671 cows and 28 herds compard to 1963.

NEW CROP VARIETIES

Several new crop varieties have recently been recommended for use in various parts of Alberta.

One of these is a Polish variety called Echo. G. G. Bristvold, Supervisor of the Provincial Crop Improvement Service, advises producers growing Polish rapeseed to change to Echo as soon as supplies permit. Echo has yielded up to 2,500 pounds per acre since it was released last year and has a stronger straw than the common Polish rapeseed. Seeds are a new variety of medium-early oats which has a very strong and short straw. This feature makes it particularly valuable in areas where lodging is a problem. Mr. Bristvold says it is also recommended for areas where too much straw creates a problem from the point of view or working the straw into the stubble without resorting to burning.

A new variety of wheat, known as Park, is noted for its early maturity. According to Mr. Bristvold it is especially designed for areas where the growing season is just a bit short as it often the case in the black and grey-wooded soil zones. Although Park gives slightly less yields than Thatcher, it is easier to thresh and does not bleach readily.

Mr. Bristvold points out that there is always one crop, variety which fits the conditions of each farm better than any others. His recommending the variety and buying certified seed to be sure that nothing else is planted with it.

Guest of honor at the Lions meeting on Thursday evening was the District Governor of Lions International District 37B, Mert Pettit from Fort St. John. The Governor is on a tour of the Lions Clubs in this area. After the regular meeting he met with the Board of Directors.

Lion Tom Rossberg and Lion Les Dolans attended a Lions meeting in Lacombe on Monday evening. Tuesday evening Lion Tony Rossberg and Lion John Koehl attended a meeting in Alliance.

Mr. and Mrs. Steeth and Mary returned home on Wednesday after a three week holiday in Kansas.

Last winner of the blackout at the UCL bingo on Wednesday was Mrs. Tom Brown at Hamilton. Residence of Camrose won the door prize.

Mrs. Tony Rossberg was the lucky winner of a keg raffle sponsored by the Lions Club.

In the hockey game at Daysland Monday evening the Killam Indians defeated the Daysland North Stars 4 to 2. On Wednesday evening in Killam, Daysland was again defeated 6 to 3.

Mr. O. Wynnyk is in hospital after being in an accident with his car last Friday during the storm.

In 1963 in the United States the value of the Gross National Product per worker was $8,466; in Canada in terms of U.S. dollars, it was $6,300.

HEADACHES
ALWAYS THERE WITH YOUR HELP

THE Homemaker
By Mary Lou Phillip
District Home Economist
Camrose, Alta.

HAVE YOU CONSIDERED HOME ECONOMICS?

Girls of the 1965 Graduating Class — this is for you. Are you in a query as to career planning? Home Economics offers a richer variety of occupations and greater personal satisfaction than any other profession today. Most people are vague about the possibilities of our profession. A definition of Home Economics is the "science and art of homemaking". It means the study of every aspect of home life, from efficient planning of a kitchen to the relation of the family to the community.

The girl who has a degree in Home Economics has had a good general education including English, the sciences, psychology and art. She has also studied nutrition as well as the buying, preparation and service of food. She knows about fashion and the care and tasting of textiles, as well as sewing. Interior decorating, buying and caring for equipment, budgeting, child care and development, and family relations are also part of her studies.

There are sixteen Canadian Universities offering degrees in Home Economics. The course offered at the University of Alberta is a 3 year program following Senior Matriculation.

Upon completion of training, the graduate Home Economist can choose among scores of positions. Jobs are awaiting her in publishing, advertising, television, radio and research, as well as in government, welfare, utility companies, and institutions. Openings for teachers in the Home Economics field are equally varied. On the horizon are new fields, such as personnel and occupational training and family money management.

And so you can see that opportunities in Home Economics are open to girls of many different temperaments, talents and interests.

Baptist Church

The WMS meeting was held on Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cotton. Fifteen members and five visitors were present. Several members of the Forestburg WMS were in attendance. Hymns of Praise were sung followed by the devotional reading by Mrs. Cyr. The missionary sketch was given by Mrs. Grynalchuk. A solo by Mrs. Joanne White was enjoyed. Our Spiritual Life director, Mrs. Prudnich, led in a time of devotion and prayer. Mrs. Danielson acted as chairman in the absence of our President who is hospitalized. Committees were appointed to be in charge of the "Christ for the Homeland" Service on Sunday evening, March 14, and also for the purchase of bathroom mirrors, etc. Two members will be canvassing for the Red Cross. Plans were made to participate in the World's Day of Prayer. Lunch was served by the hostess.

Group No. 3 was in charge of the Friday night Young People's meeting. It was decided to invite Miss Olive Bjerkseth, to be our guest speaker on the evening of March 12th. She will also be speaking at the Sunday morning service on March 14th.

Last Monday night was Youth for Christ with Wess Aarum, Canadian Youth Director. A filled church enjoyed the message and good song service, resulting in a number of decisions for Christ.

The itinerant again experienced a weak and blizzard. However again a member of the rural families got through the storm and were in their places at the Sunday services. Six young people, members of the CYFA executive from Edmonton, took charge of the morning service. CYFA President Larry Miller, and Gail, formerly of Sedgewick were in attendance.

The Pastor ministered at the evening service. The men's chorus brought a message in song. Two new adult members were welcomed into our fellowship, and it is our prayer that this shall be of mutual benefit.

Sedgewick Ratepayers Hear Report On Gas System

SEDGEWICK — A total of 41 ratepayers and citizens of the Village of Sedgewick turned out last week for the annual Village ratepayers meeting, to air their appreciation and their beefs on the conduct of municipal affairs during 1964.

With A. W. Eastly acting as chairman, a thorough review was made of the financial report and the various activities of the village. The routine passing of minutes, financial statement and inspector's report, was followed by general discussion.

Mayor Smith in his report touched on the high costs of running a village, referring especially to the fact that the School Foundation Program requires a big slice of annual revenues, and that coupled with this, special school requisitions and health services take an additional bite, and in total takes a good percentage of total revenue, leaving little for other programs without a boost in tax levies. Mr. Smith gave a run-down on the utterral gas situation and informed those present that it appears the two company owners of the wells have finally reached an agreement, at least temporarily, on amount each will sell to the system. Apparently this will be on a 50-50 basis.

Councillor Culbert reported no welfare cases, and no fires to require any effort on the fire brigade. He also stated that 1000 feet of new sewer line had been laid with 13 new residential hook-ins. He told the fault of sub-standard garbage removal on the cold weather and blocked alleys.

Councillor Edwards reported on the Rec Centre, mentioning that while revenues and activities were curtailed by severe weather, the Centre was still paying its way. He also reported activity at the Lake and recommended the Kinsmen for their continued activities there. According to Mr. Edwards the golf club has almost completed its partial move, and that this year, as a result of this, some new and choice residential building lots will become available on sewer lines. The Council is looking for a suitable Centennial Project for the community.

During the open forum, the Council, while receiving praise for its efforts, came in for criticism on such matters as sending the streets, snow removal, street conditions and spring run-off. All these were thoroughly discussed, and recommendations made to improve the situations.

There was a lengthy discussion on taxing church dwellings and a motion was close to unanimously carried that while these assessments continue to be made, that such taxes be refunded to the various churches in question, in line with past procedure.

KINSMEN CELEBRATE 45TH BIRTHDAY

The 412 Kinsmen Clubs with their 15 thousand members across Canada have just celebrated the 45th anniversary of the founding of their organization.

An exclusively Canadian organization, the Kinsmen are however affiliated with the Round Tables of Europe, Britain and Ireland, The Apex Clubs of Australia, and the Active 20-30 International of the United States, all being member groups of the World Council of Young Men's Service Clubs.

The ability of the Kinsmen to organize rapidly in the emergency disaster field has been demonstrated by their participation and contributions to relief campaigns, such as the Rimouski Fire, the Winnipeg and European Floods, Hurricane Hazel in Southern Ontario, and more recently the Fort Alberni Flood Disaster in British Columbia.

Service work at home, however, is a continuing thing that the local group, the Kinsmen Club of Sedgewick has been carrying on for the past five years.

THE RED E Home TIME TO RENEW

1908 — FIFTY-SEVENTH YEAR — 1965 SEDGEWICK, ALBERTA. THURSDAY, MARCH 11TH, 1965 Volume 55 — Number 42

Poor Attendance At Annual M.D. Meeting

SEDGEWICK — The apparent disinterest of ratepayers in their own affairs was evident again last Saturday as only fifty of them attended the annual meeting of M. D. Flagstaff. This number was without counting council members, secretary and the Field Supervisor.

Mr. C. P. Hayes, former member of the council was elected chairman and read the proposed agenda which was adopted. Mr. C. Robertson was the recording secretary.

Due to the poor attendance, the meeting was adjourned until after the lunch hour to see if further attendance would be forthcoming.

Minutes of the 1964 meeting were read and adopted.

Meeting was informed by Reeve Matthews that the Council had been approached with suggestions that town and village fire brigades would answer calls in the country if a stand-by unit could be purchased by the M. D. and stationed in the town or village, with the latter responsible for starting, servicing and manning of the unit. Prices now range at about $10,000 per unit. Towns and villages are unable to procure their insurance if such a unit is not available while the local equipment is out in the country. In order for the M.D. to place such equipment in all towns and villages would require over $ mill expenditure. Council was asked to keep the matter under consideration for the time being.

Meeting was informed that M. D. Flagstaff had given a policeman full time to police the entire district. It is their opinion that co-operation between this police and those hired by the village could produce the best of results.

As the resolution of the 1964 annual meeting regarding the Mobile Equipment Licensing Act, had been presented to the Alberta Assn. of Municipal Districts and Counties and no decision had yet been reached at the Provincial Government level, Council decided not to take any action at present.

Meeting was also informed that the Agr. Service Board and Council had approved a Seed Cleaning Plant at Forestburg, but approval from the Gov. had not yet been given.

The financial statement was read by the secretary and received and discussed page by page, with a number of questions being asked.

Reeve informed that rotary snow plows are available to farmers who wish to mount them on farm tractors, but these doing so must be prepared to assist the M.D. in plowing in cases of emergency.

The Inspector's report was read, discussed and adopted.

Reeve Matthews in his report touched on the resignation of Alfred Rands as Reeve and Councillor. He said that tax collections for the 19-64 year had amounted to 102.56 per cent of the year's levy; 127 miles of roads had been gravelled and that stocks of crushed gravel had been increased. He understood that tourist greater operators had done a very good job. It was suggested from the floor that rates for plowing should be increased.

Regarding the Medical Scheme it was announced that the 1964 payments had exceeded the levy by a small amount, and that an increase in medical levy for 1965 is not contemplated.

Meeting was informed that Alta. Telephones is going to get all rural lines underground starting in 1966. The Reeve said it would save everyone money in the long run if these lines were put in a couple of rods back from road allowances. He stated for direction on this matter.

Reps from various Mutuals present expressed opinions and consensus seemed to favor the "off road allowances" idea, but that in some cases easements could be troublesome. It was thought too that the M.D. should be responsible for any crop damages.

The Agricultural Services Board report was given by the chairman Mr. E. Koehli and was accepted on motion of Maurice Hampshire.

Mr. A. E. Edwards, D. A., spoke briefly outlining some of the minor changes in regard to the Dept. of Agr. policy regarding the shrubs and trees available for planting.

Mr. Koehli reported for Flagstaff Lodge, indicating that a change in Matrons had taken place in 1964. Occupancy was low, but by the end of 1964 had been occupied to full capacity. If this continues, it would appear the Lodge may operate during 1965 without a deficit.

Mr. J. Hillman, M.L.A. addressed the meeting briefly and recommended that snow blowers owned by the M. D. be lent out to the farmers for their use. He was also of the opinion that the BCMT would be increased sufficiently to undertake all the poisoning in the province.

Mr. C. P. Hayes thanked the members of council for nominating him to represent the people of the M.D. on the Board of Municipal Financing Corporation, and moved a vote of thanks to the Council and office staff for efficient work in 1964.

Ruth Matthews Queen Hardisty Ice Carnival

(By Mrs. B. Matthews)

HARDISTY — The Hardisty Ice Carnival was held in the arena on Friday evening with a big crowd in attendance. Under the capable handling of Mrs. Lorna Hendricks and Miss Phylis Young, the figure skating, broom ball and parade went off without a hitch.

The first section of the carnival included the very smallest skaters in "Babes of the Forest." Besides other group numbers, a duet by Lee Ann Dewey and Ruth Matthews, and solos by Patsy Moody and Ruth Matthews were well received.

At intermission time came the crowning of the Carnival Queen, Ruth Matthews, who was sponsored by the Stampeder Hockey Club. A lovely lady-ice-sailing was Miss Gail Bowron, the candidate of Central High School. Gifts were presented to both girls, also to Lorna Hendricks and her assistants. The queen was crowned by Mr. Len Anderson.

The second section presented a "Holiday Tour," taking the crowd to Hawaii, Mexico and Italy. Two great skaters were Vicky Jolly MacArthur and Larry Dorward, gave a fine display. Lovely feature skaters in this section were D'Arcy Brougham, Bonnie Rosebough, Phyllis Young & Edie Dewey. Some very doubtful-looking characters showed up in the Hawaiian scene and provided much fun by their antics. We strongly suspect we'd recognize these characters better in hockey garb. The climax of the scene was provided by the appearance of a mere scooby finally captured by the lead "beauty".

The grand finale brought all the performers on the ice to receive the applause for a very fine show. As this was the first held here in several years, Mrs. Hendricks and her assistants are to be congratulated on the success of the evening and the fine skating displayed by all.

The prize on door tickets went to Mr. Jerry McDonald.

Snack Bar In Use At Flagstaff Lodge

MRS. FEDDEMA HEADS HOSPITAL AID GROUP

STROME — A small crowd turned out for the Strome Hospital Auxiliary cash bingo last Monday. The winner of the $10 Starbuck was Mrs Alvin Reil. Mrs. Wilfred Behme was the winner of the velvet bedcover and cushion raffle.

The executive of the Auxiliary this year is as follows: President, Mrs. Matilda Feddema; Vice, Mrs. Melvin Freshker; Sec., Mrs. Fay Blumhagen; Treas., Mrs. Kate Hay.

The Feb. meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Margaret Pyzer with nine members present. Members decided not to organize a T.B. x-Ray Clinic for the Strome district. Next meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Pete Stanko on March 11th. Roll call will be answered with hand towel or face cloth.

SEDGEWICK 4-H CLUB

SEDGEWICK — The February meeting of Sedgewick 4-H Beef Club came to order by Linda Glascoyne leading the pledge. The roll call was taken by each member giving a point to remember when shaving a calf. The club was invited to enter in a speaking contest but we decided to turn it down. A curling rink was picked to go to the bonspiel. Dale Djan moved we go to the rodeo on Tuesday. It was decided we buy twenty-five $3.50 tickets for the rodeo.

SEDGEWICK — Following the president's welcome at the regular monthly meeting of the Flagstaff Lodge Auxiliary to the 18 ladies in attendance, Mrs. Gwen Weber read the devotional "We Are Not Alone" from Rev. Hart Cantlen's thoughts for the day.

After some discussion on various business, it was voted to provide the Matron with stationery and stamps for the use of the Lodge.

It was noted with pleasure that the menfolk of the Lodge have been busy repairing and varnishing the wicker chairs and a number of other pieces of furniture, and the ladies have been perfect in their glory helping in the kitchen.

The Snack Bar has now been installed by the Kinsmen and is being put to good use by the guests.

To close the program of the evening Mrs. Andrew Anderson of Mercchipped rock monice work and lunch on gave a good demonstration of was served by Mrs. Johnsgaard.

All ladies welcome to the next meeting on April 8th to hear guest speaker Mr. Ernest Koehli chairman of the Flagstaff Lodge Board.

Katie May, Mrs. John Nielsens, Mrs. Ray Winchester and Mrs. Arnold Nixon for a very nice display.

Spring Is In The Air?

The old Indian Chief, and long range weather forecaster is more often right than wrong, and we can only hope that his latest prediction will bear fruit. This portly old gentleman, who often out-forecasts the technilogical inventions of the white man, has been correct in most of his "calls" for the winter. Lots of snow, plenty cold, and much discomfort. Now he has predicted that spring will arrive early, and in fact that we will see green grass in March. On this latter we have some reservations, but hope that the early spring part comes out happily. Frankly we are fed up to here with snow, cold and discomfort. See you on the golf course March 31st.

Risk Capital For Canadian Growth!

Nobody will argue with the fact that a plentiful supply of risk capital is essential for the proper continued growth and expansion of the Canadian scene. AND OF COURSE it is equally tenable that as much of this capital as possible should be provided by the citizens of Canada, for only then does our share in the ownership of our industries be what it should. We hear a great deal about the so-called economic take-over of Canada by the US., with the statement that foreign investors own more of our country than we do ourselves. To whatever extent this is true, lies in fact that Canadians are notoriously poor investors. A capital risk is considered suicide to many Canadians, who prefer to put their money in safe-keeping, content to take a modest return than risk losses. Apparently foreign investors have more faith in the future of Canada than its citizens. Unless this trend discontinues there is no possibility of diminishing foreign control of our economic life. Canadians must be made to realize that nowhere in the world is the opportunity presented to become a part of the growth of a nation, as it is right here. By investing in Canada's future you help to create a situation that cannot be ignored by the rest of the world.

We're Not Doing So Bad!

A disturbing feature of small town municipal affairs is the apathy of its ratepayers who seem to show an utter disregard for the functioning of their own business, unless by chance they have something to grouch about. Town and Village annual meetings were held recently at which time the business of each was discussed, reviewed and considered. Outside of this one aspect smaller communities appear to conduct their affairs in pretty good concord. Not so, by all appearances in the large urban centres, more particularly Edmonton. There it is not only the ratepayers who are on the warpath, but the Aldermen themselves, who lacking trust and confidence in each other are transforming City Hall into a Barnum and Bailey circus. Julia of the wrestling family takes on Hamilton while Ledger squares off with Hawrelak. In the meantime the city is endeavoring to finalize such things as through-ways and city centres, and finding the financial resources to carry it out. In their efforts, we of the small communities, who are continually looking for sources of revenue, have a suggestion to assist us both. Bring your gang out to the country, and stage your in-fighting to paid audiences. The Community Press will print the posters free of charge, advertising the Kinski Wrestlers vs. the Hawreluk Roustabouts. Reserved seats should be at a premium. The city could finance its Centre, each of our communities could extend its sewer lines, all paid for by a delighted and satisfied sporting public. Side bets could be an added source of revenue. Patterson and Chuvalo did it, with not half the entertainment this would provide. This deserves promotion.

The Church In Politics!

Whether we agree or disagree with the things that Mr. Berten says about the Church in his Comfortable Few, we must in all honesty admit that he has stirred things up, and got the church people thinking. It is reviving controversy between two groups in the church today; those who believe the Church should have nothing to do with matters social, economic or political, and that if it does it is betraying the church and forsaking its basic principles; the other which contends that the Church must, to be true to the ideals of its Founder, be concerned in every activity of the human race, social, economic and political. While both contentions have merit, the question seems to be to what degree should involvement or non-involvement be carried out. To be too involved actively in every phase of human activities would be just as wrong as completely ignoring everything that is considered not strictly "church". There is no denying that these two factions exist today in the Church and that each is adament in its position. But to bewail Mr. Berten's book and ignore what he has to say is to admit satisfaction with the status quo, and unwillingness to explore the possibilities. The book is preferred reading for all church people. Rather than condemn the author, we might explore his findings and absorb his reasonings for better or for worse. He has much to say to the Church, a good deal of which might well be heeded.

Lower University Entrance?

According to a couple of University Professors Alberta may be missing a bet leaving the university entrance requirements as they are at present. It is their belief that we are excluding a number of potential acceptable graduates by refusing those who may be academically unqualified. It is their opinion that an entrance score, so to speak, may be a poor prediction of future success in university studies. On the surface this sounds a bit absurd perhaps, and it might be likened to selecting flight pilots on their ability to read flight charts. One is an exactitude while the other is flexible. It might just be a good idea to permit the entrance of a few below par students to university, where specializing in a chosen field might bring out hidden talent. At present a student is required to have 60 percent matriculation, but who knows but what a 55 percent entrance may result in an acceptable graduate. This surely is worth a try. Canada has a crying need today for professional people in all fields, and it may be that we are losing many beause of our higher standard.

The Ghost Of $2 Wheat

OTTAWA — No one has ever tried to deny that the Liberal Party in its election campaign of 1962 promised the Western farmer a guarantee of $2 a bushel wheat in some form. From the hustings there were no variations in interpretation but an official Liberal booklet stated that if returned in power a Liberal Government would establish a minimum price of $2 on all domestic sales and that on all sales under the International Wheat Agreement which were below that level a deficiency payment would be made, presumably to the Wheat Board, to cover the difference.

There is no doubt that in this form, at least, that promise is as dead as Mr. Hazen Argue's chance of becoming a Minister in Mr. Pearson's Cabinet. And the two things are not unconnected. It was the one time CCF'er running as a Liberal candidate in his old constituency of Assiniboia, Sask., who said Mr. Pearson on the idea of $2 wheat to a means of winning back the Diefenbaker-loyal Province. He also, apparently became the liberal party's first candidate to denigrate not only in his own area but in the open of the Prime Minister to be.

Mr. Argue's sound defeat at the hands of a Progressive Conservative relieved Mr. Pearson of any obligation to carry him left to take Mr. Argue into his Cabinet. It also saved on the death knell of his wheat policy. Mr. Mitchell Sharp who became Minister of Trade and Commerce in both the Wheat Board and his wing had strongly opposed it and won support within the Cabinet. In a recent speech in Winnipeg which had the advance approval of the Prime Minister he had the 1963 promise to rest as effectively and as clearly as anyone could have done.

"It has been proposed", he said, "that the price to the producer should be fixed above the market and that the Wheat Board should sell at a loss. It has also been proposed that exports should be subsidized. The inevitable result of the adoption of these ideas would be to convert the Wheat Board from a producers' marketing agency to a Government agency."

And later.

"We therefore do not intend to adopt any policies that will interfere with the efficient operation of this producers' marketing agency or remove the Board's incentive to go after markets on behalf of the producers."

The strange thing about it is that neither Mr. Sharp nor any of his Cabinet colleagues will admit in the light of these statements that they have changed wheat price policies or rejected the demand for cheap wheat has followed the price down. It is even suggested that if it becomes necessary a $2 minimum price might be established on a limited quantity of wheat sold by the Board without destroying its incentive to go after markets.

Such a suggestion is convincing only in the light of a possible 1965 election and the Liberal necessity of capturing more than the three seats they now hold on the Prairies if the Government is to be returned with a clear majority. Perhaps there is some faint hope that instead of being haunted by the ghost of $2 wheat they can turn it into a friendly supporting spirit to be called up on occasions without being resurrected in the flesh.

Meanwhile Mr. Sharp has replaced it with a far sounder wheat marketing policy including a cheaper target for sales which, even if prices should drop to the International Wheat Agreement floor of $1.71, which no one expects, would give the Western farmer a higher cash income than in any previous three-year period if the crop year 1963-64 is omitted.

This bonanza year of bumper crop plus Russian sales saw 362,979,339 bushels delivered to the Board and handled at the lowest cost on record, $1.77 cents a bushel. With the average price to the buyer for No. 1 Northern slightly above $2 the return to the farmer is $1.97. Final payment cheques for a total amount of $371, 964,264 are being distributed, living up to Mr. Sharp's prediction that it would be the largest payment on record.

JANUARY ACCIDENTS UP 20% OVER 1964

Cold currents of air sweeping across the entire province coupled with heavy snows and frigid temperatures, during January, were partly to blame for the 20 per cent increase in motor vehicle accidents in the year's first month according t figures released today by the Alberta Safety Council in their monthly summary.

However, while January figures climbed from 2,780 to 3 620 the weather conditions helped keep higher speeds and speed driving to a bare minimum, thus resulting in no increase in injuries. As a matter of fact exactly the same as last year, 65.

Deaths dropped a resounding 30 per cent to 14 compared to 20 last year. The 14 deaths are parallel to the five-year average for motor vehicle deaths in the province.

According to year and statistics on all RCMP investigations road conditions were to blame in only 11 percent of all fatal accidents. Alcohol on the other hand was involved in 35.64 per cent of 2026 fatal collisions resulting in 296 deaths.

RCMP reported 12 of January's fatalities with Edmonton and Calgary reporting one apiece.

The city of Edmonton led the accident statistics with 1,602 accidents up 346 over last year's comparable period, with Calgary City Police tallying an increase of 434 to 998. The "Mountie" meanwhile reported 742 accidents up 106.

The Letter Box

Dear Sir:

After viewing the picture of the Daylond Merlin Star's Hockey Club in the March 4th issue of your Community Press, allow me to correct the error in the first picture on the top row. Ross Heck is not timekeeper and never has been, he is scorekeeper when present. Ever since the Daylond Arena has been built and even before when Daylond used the old Kilsman Arena to home base Fred Schmidt has been official timekeeper, and has never missed a home game in that capacity, during all these years. Also during the summer month's and baseball season he has been actively follow-in the baseball circuit as PA announcer and official scorekeeper for 17 consecutive seasons (trying for 20). He also had a fling at ring announcing for wrestling and boxing matches. This picture must have been taken when Fred was away from home. That is how he was not included in the picture. Very likely so at home, working as official timekeeper for the Daylond Elk's and Ladies Auxiliary Ground Mixmasters at that time.

NO BETTER TIME!

We are all the same. We like good measure from our two money. Suggestions to cut down on expenditures or to improve ways of spending money are always welcome. This winter has a story to tell. Some roads closed from time to time, others were always passable & some remained particularly clear. Why? The answer to this question might be worth investigating. There may even be more than one answer or even a combination of factors to consider.

One factor might be the position of berm or trees. Rows of tall poplar trees could do a great job for us. They would need to be ordered, planted and cared for. Now would be a good time to seriously consider the place of trees in helping everybody and insurance form the 1st dollar.

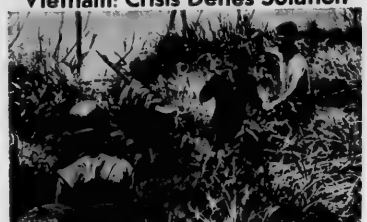
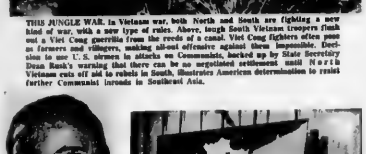
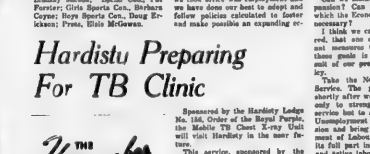
Vietnam: Crisis Defies Solution



THIS JUNGLE WAR, in Vietnam war, both North and South are fighting a new kind of war, with a new type of rules. Above, tough South Vietnam troopers flush out a Viet Cong guerrilla from the reeds of a canal. Viet Cong fighters often pose as farmers and villagers, making all-out offensive against them impossible. Decision to use U. S. airmen in attacks on Communists, backed up by State Secretary Dean Rusk's warning that there can be no negotiated settlement until North Vietnam cuts off aid to rebels in South, illustrates American determination to retain further Communist inroads in Southeast Asia.



ON MIDELAND, Mo Chi Minh, frail 75-year-old president of Communist North Vietnam, has managed to cling to power while staying out of sight. The Russian-Chinese ideological split, Peking and Moscow, is bound on an equal footing in Southeast Asia, embracing Soviet United is anxious to maintain a sphere of influence in the area.



COMMITTED, U. S. forces (23,000 men, backed up by 7th Fleet) are now more deeply committed than ever to defend South Vietnam in face of increasing Communist pressure. Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara points to a map, showing how Geneva Conference of 1954 ended post-war revolt against French regime, splitting French Indo China into North and South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. U. S. was not a signatory to Geneva pact, but has used its influence to contain Communism in this area of foment.

Stamp To Mark Cooperation Year

The Honourable Rene Tremblay, Postmaster General, announced today that a special stamp honoring ICY — International Co-operation Year — will be issued by the Post Office Department on March 3rd, 1965.

Mr. Tremblay said that the stamp forms one part of Canada's contribution to the United Nations sponsorship of 1965 as a year of international co-operation. Its aim is to foster greater interest in United Nations efforts in the field of international good will, in order to achieve a deeper and wider understanding of the aims, purposes and achievements of the United Nations family of organizations. Canada, as a member of the United Nations Committee for ICY., heartily endorses this aim, and the Year's theme: "Peace and Progress Through Co-operation".

Those diagonally interlocked links, with Canada's maple leaf in the centre are featured and symbolize Canada's role as a link in the world-wide chain of nations. The upper right corner shows the ICY symbol: the United Nations wreath encircling two finely clasped hands. The words "International Co-operation Year 1965" and "L'Année de la Coopération Internationale 1965" appear at the top and bottom borders.

The stamp will be printed by the intaglio process, a method designed to delineate detail and values with utmost precision. Of large size, the stamp will be dark green. The Canadian Bank Note Company executed and printed the stamp.

C. G. L. T. GIRLS GROUP MARKS FIFTY YEARS

The Edmonton CGIT are celebrating the 50th Anniversary of CGIT in Canada on March 21st, 1965. It is to be held at the Northern Alberta Jubilee Auditorium. We are extending a special invitation to the public to celebrate with the girls from 7 to 9:30 p.m. To celebrate this Anniversary, the girls will, by an extra effort, raise $50,- 000.00 to build and equip a Christian Conference Center in Indonesia. Their motto is "Canada for Christ".

In the east disastrous Great Lakes storm in 1913, a dozen ships were sunk and two dozen more driven ashore, and 251 sailors drowned.

STROME CO-OP ASSOC. 43 1 c

Strome U.C.W. Meeting

STROME — The afternoon group of the United Church Women held their March meeting at the home of Mrs. Jack Butler, with president of the unit, Mrs. Earl McDougall, in the chair. Ten were present. Mrs. G. Seward led the devotional, and Secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting.

It had been decided to hold card parties at the homes of members who have the room, other members helping supply the lunch. Mrs. Earl McDougall having held the first one reported she had ten tables. Charge of 50c each was made. Next party to be at home of Mrs. J. Curtis. The members are knitting six inch wool squares to be made as Afghan for Over seas Mission. Two wedding receptions, one in April and one in May, will be catered to. Soliciting for the April one was done in March.

The flower and sick committee reported a number of cards sent and sick calls made. The April meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. James Curtis. Meeting closed with the Benediction. Lunch followed with a social time over the tea cups.

REPORTS FROM PARLIAMENT HILL

The first annual review by the Economic Council of Canada is a most important one and it is being given the most careful consideration by the Government.

It may have come as something of a shock to some people to be told that in the next seven years our economy is going to have to produce another one and half million jobs. It came as no shock to Parliament.

One of our first concerns when we took office was employment and we have done our best to adopt and follow policies calculated to foster and make possible an expanding economy and to provide employment both for our unemployed and for people coming on the labour market for the first time.

Up to now our economy has not just kept pace with this problem — it has kept ahead of it.

In 1964 we've had the lowest unemployment rate in eight years despite record growth in the labour force. Average employment over last year was up 250,000 — the largest annual increase in jobs since the war.

Can we maintain this rate of expansion? Can we meet the goals which the Economic Council say are necessary?

I think we can and I am convinced, that one of the most important necessities to help us to meet those goals is the continued pursuit of our present manpower policy.

Take the National Employment Service. The government decided, shortly after we came to office, not only to strengthen this essential service but to separate it from the Unemployment Insurance Commission and bring it into the Department of Labour where it can play its full part in the sort of positive and active labour market policy recommended by the Economic Council which we are already striving to follow.

The Economic Council calls for an integrated program of labour market services.

The job of separating these two services and of integrating the National Employment Service into the Department of Labour has been a massive one.

Labour Minister MacEachen has had to go into the organization at the head office and regional levels as well as at some 200 local offices.

He has had to work out a detailed plan to ensure that in the division of staff his department would be making the best use of its manpower and personnel while at the same time protecting the interests of the some 16,000 people who have worked in CESO/NES for both services under what have often been very difficult circumstances.

He informs me that the main arrangements for the transfer are almost complete and he expects it will be effective April 1st — the beginning of the next fiscal year.

The National Employment Service in the Department of Labour will then be the key agency for implementing our manpower programs and co-ordinating them, particularly at the local level.

I guess no homemaker needs to be told there's a demand for new clothes and prices are climbing. What has been encountered on economical necessity is becoming, in some families, a real luxury. Budget conscious homemakers are already looking for substitutes.

According to Canada's Food Guide, we need one serving of potatoes a day for good health. Families that are used to having potatoes two and even three times a day can find a number of substitutes for potatoes.

Macaroni, spaghetti and noddles are good substitutes for potatoes. Macaroni and spaghetti can be combined in a casserole with creamed vegetables or luncheon to make an interesting supper dish. They can also be used with creamed meats or meats in sauces to make a hearty main course. Noodles can be served buttered with meat sauces or alone, if your family prefers.

Rice is another staple that makes a good potato substitute. However, watch that the fried you buy is cheaper than potatoes. Some of the partially cooked or instant varieties are quite expensive. Rice can be served alone as a vegetable or in casserole combinations or as a base for meats in stews.

Baked beans, lima beans and kidney beans can be used alone or in combination with meats for a hearty supper.

Dumplings, biscuits, muffins. Try dumplings with stews, biscuits on top of Shepherd's Pie and muffins as potato substitutes. Again be sure they are not more costly than potatoes!

Don't stop using potatoes — we need them for health. But do plan to use substitutes to help your budget.

In the 12-year period 1961 to 1965, labour income in Canada more than doubled — from 9.6 billion to 21.6 billion.

FLAG STAMP

Details of a commemorative postage stamp depicting Canada's new flag were announced today by the Honorable Rene Tremblay, Postmaster General. The new stamp is to be placed on sale January 30th to coincide closely as possible with Canada's national holiday.

The flag stamp will be printed in red and blue and will be of the horizontal type size, The flag, main theme of the stamp, will be in the official colors of red and white and the background will be blue. The only wording to appear on the stamp will be "Canada" in the top right corner, the words "Postes-Postage" along the lower right border and a large five in the lower left corner.

In making the announcement Mr. Tremblay explained that the Department expected a greater demand for the new stamp than for other commemorives. As a result, some 30,000,000 stamps are to be printed as compared to the usual 17,000,000. The stamp was designed and is to be printed by the Canadian Bank Note Company Limited.

The "Drill Box" Method
Seed treatment for cereal and flax crops is a good farm practice. It provides protection against smut and other seed borne diseases and helps protect the seed after it is sown improving stands and improving the yield and quality of the new grain crops. Seed treatment is, in fact, crop insurance at the lowest possible cost.
Approved Chemicals. Many different seed treatment chemicals are available today. Among these are the mercurials which are sold under a variety of trade names for application in either dust, slurry or liquid form. The mercurials are highly effective for treating grain crops. Their chief limit is their poisonous character. Several chemicals are less poisonous than mercurials are now available, some of which have proved quite effective for farm practice and one, Semesan, a fungicide, such as Mergamma C, are also available and should be used where wireworms as well as seed borne diseases are to be controlled. Drill Box Application. Recently a simple and effective method of applying dry seed treatment chemicals to small grain crops has been developed. It is called the "Drill Box" method. It consists of mixing specially formulated dirsenic with the seed in the Drill Box, either as the seed is run into the box, or by spreading the chemical evenly in layers over the seed and then mixing thoroughly with a shovel. The Drill Box method has many advantages. Three important ones are: 1 it eliminates the danger of chemical seed being accidently mixed with commercial grain that is delivered to an elevator. 2 It prevents contamination of granaries, truck beds, and sacks. 3 It is a solution to the problem of carry-over of treated grain.
Use Caution. Most seed treatment chemicals are poisonous. Observe one's directions and precautions should therefore be strictly observed when treating seed, handling treated seed, in treating seed a year in advance of planning. Consult your Agricultural Representative for further information. 42 1 c

SOME SPRING FANCIES

We all know what a young man's fancy is supposed to lightly turn to in spring, but when your gut right down to it, young men are vastly uninteresting, except to themselves, recruiting officers, and, of course, young women.

So we will ignore the fancy of young men this spring, especially since it's lightly turned to the same sort of thoughts in the other three seasons too. Let's examine the fancies of some of the more interesting of the same one he turned over last year. She catches him cleaning up the front lawn by chopping perpendicular shins into the cool trunk crabgrass with a golf club. They have words. She dares her boots and rakes the lawn, sending him to the cellar.

When he doesn't show up for supper she figures he's really hacking down to it, and goes down cellar to call him. And there he is, crunched on the remnants of the coal pile with his fishing rod, practising his flycasting into the large pool between the vegetable bin and the furnace.

What about the oldster, the codger? What kind of fancy does he have, come spring? After dicing with death through a long, cruel winter, when his old aches and pains are appearing with monotonous regularity on the obituary page, I imagine he's pretty pleased with himself. In fact, I know he is. I was talking to one the other day. As he sunned himself in front of the post office, he told me:

"Didn't think I'd make it, back there in January. Flat on my back and gettin' worse every day. The old lady practically had the insurance collected and off to Florida for the rest of the winter. "Shit," with an evil chuckle, "she got fooled. She caught cold and I buried 'er the end of February. Have smart new wheres ever I feel like it. Say, can, when do them termites start to arrive? I'm going to spend the whole summer watchin' them girls in their shorts. I figure it won't do them any harm and should do me a lot of good."

United Church Presbytery Has Busy Annual Meet

The Coronation Presbytery with 84,201 people under pastoral care, met in session on February 23 and 24 in the Forintosh United Church, Camrose. Warm welcome and hospitality were extended by the Rev. Dr. E. R. Brundage, Pastor of New Norway Charge and his congregation.

All the first evening was devoted to a study of the proposed Constitution and Service of the United Standard Version of the Bible of twentieth century literary style, and advocated discontinuing Roman numerals.

Resolutions of the Evangelism and Social Service Committee on presentation of the Convener, Rev. G.A. Park of Provost, were endorsed by the report. Under the Greaves' Redemptive Act in Nature, it was agreed that we request the Alberta Conference Executive to get full information on the effects of chemical insecticides and pesticides on plant, animal and human life, and if the use of the said chemicals is found to be of more harm than benefit to human life, we recommend that necessary control be placed on their distribution and use.

The delegates endorsed a detailed resolution passed by the National Committee of International Affairs in Toronto on February 10th, 1965, which may be summarized thus:

"Whereas the war in Viet Nam is a tragedy of terrible suffering and prevents the formation of responsible government and

Whereas the bombings by United States planes of North Viet Nam may provoke the intervention of China and of Russia and thus increase the danger of a world war

We request the offer of Prime Minister Pearson of the participation of Canada in a peace conference. We urge the Canadian Government and the Government of the United States to refrain from the invasion of North Viet Nam, to discontinue air attacks and to agree to a cease-fire in South Viet Nam.

We request the Canadian Government to ask the United States to agree to the formation of the New Standard Version of the Bible of twentieth century literary style, and advocated discontinuing Roman numerals.

Rev. J. DeVries, Statistical Secretary, reported that the value of Church property in Coronation Presbytery is $1,605,799. During 1964 the congregations raised $239,160.

Mrs. L. S. Strandberg, President of the UCW Presbyterial, told the delegates that the 1964 members raised $9645. They sent 3000 lbs. of clothing to Kenora and many other charitable acts.

Rev. D. Lewis of Lougheed-Amisk-Sedgwick Charge dealt with the uses of audio-visual methods for missionary education.

Rev. A. R. Reid reported on Christian Education and Youth activities.

The Missionary and Maintenance Fund, which is the unified budget of the United Church of Canada, rose to $10,979,874. The Churches in Coronation Presbytery contributed $36,-300, which is an increase of 9.18% over the year before.

A request for a full-time travelling evangelist for Alberta was approved by the presbytery.

The Sunday School has quit the New Curriculm which is designed to interpret the scriptures "Word in the new age", said Rev. J. Wood of Donalda.

Laymen in attendance were Messers Stan Heather of Camrose; C. Redel, Castor; Steve Gregowich, Banff and H. A. Spicer of Daysland. Ladies in attendance were Mrs. A. D. Hose, Mrs. L. Wright, Mrs. W. Stinoff, Mrs. D. Courtney, Mrs. D. Awes and Mrs. O. Peddicord. Other ministers giving reports were Rev. W. Huston and Rev. D. McCrae.

Baptist Church

KILLAM — The Column this week is dedicated to the memory of Mrs. Hilda Cotton who passed away in the Killam Hospital March 4, 1965. How blessed the dead who die in the Lord

For their works to follow them, thus saith His word.

Though we cry out in anguish and dark is the way,

We know that He giveth us strength for the day.

This comforts the heart, though tears dim the eyes

Of him who on God's precious promises relies

So may we look upward, our hope fixed on God,

And follow the pathway our loved one has trod.

Rildegarde Van Waveren

After brieing here a member of the Killam Baptist Church for 46 years, Mrs. Cotton's passing has left a great void. During all those years she has served her Lord well. She was "given to hospitality" and was an active member of the WMS, serving in many ways beyond the call of duty. She will be remembered for her quiet unassuming ways and her loyalty to her God, family and friends.

Tell me not in mournful numbers Life is but an empty dream,

And the soul is dead that slumbers Life is not just what it seems;

Life is real, life is earnest, And the grave is not the goal.

Dust thou art, to dust returnest, Was not spoken to the soul.

Indians Capture First B. R. League Playoff

WIN PLAYOFFS — Elton Ill, President, Gord Mills of Wainwright presents the Duff Layton Trophy to Killam Indian Captain, Gordy Cochair after the Indians defeated the Wainwright Stampeders in the sixth game played at Killam last Wednesday evening.

KILLAM — For the first time and after many years of trying the Killam Indians hockey club have won the Battle River Hockey League playoffs. They won it last Wednesday night when they defeated the Hardisty Stampeders in a crowd thrilling, sixth game of the playoffs.

Indians way parties have been going forth for many years to do battle with rival tribes of the BARL, but they never have been able to win the big prize. Several times they have finished in first place in the regular league schedule only to have some rival lift their scalps in the playoffs. But not year the Indians were first in the league but the Hardisty Stampeders were first spot in the regular league and Indians won the playoffs.

Now for the first time the championship Trophy is resting in the Killam Memorial Tee Pee and the Indians are nothing plans to keep it there.

The arena was packed to the rafters as 916 people paid admission to see the sixth game of the playoffs between the Indians and Stampeders at Killam last Wednesday evening. Crowds were good all during the playoffs. 920 brought tickets at Hardisty the previous Monday for the fifth game and why not? You can't get better hockey anywhere.

In the semi finals Hardisty defeated Provost and Killam beat Daysland for the right to meet in the finals. Stampeders won the first game but the Indians came right back to win the next three games, one of which went into overtime. In the fifth game, last Monday night at Hardisty, the Stampeders won. The sixth and final game which the Indians won 4 to 3 was a close, hard fought battle that kept the crowd yelling on both sides had large numbers of fans in attendance.

It wasn't until the third period that the Red Men were able to pull ahead in the evening and the fans began to realize that the Indians were going to win the series. With the final whistle the Killam fans went wild and the celebration started.

Presentation of the Duff Layton trophy was made by the league president to Indian Captain Gord Coates immediately after the game.

HAPPY INDIANS — Members of the victorious Indians are shown closing in on their captain and the newly won trophy just seconds after the official presentation was made.

Strome C.G.I.T. Mark 50th Anniversary

(Mrs. Marie Butler)

STROME — On Sunday evening, March 7th the Strome CGIT held a 50th anniversary celebration in St. Paul's United Church.

The twelve girls and their two leaders Mrs. Kilburn and Mrs. M. Johnson, all in current uniform, marched in, in single file, to take their places for the service. Judy Morgan, a senior member of the group, read the call to worship, which was followed by singing hymn "Will Your Anchor Hold". The Scripture reading was given by Carol Rabbitz, another senior member. Judy Morgan led in prayer, and then read a very appropriate poem "If". CGIT history was given by Janice Gordon and Gale Johnson described the CGIT uniform and insignia. Meg Clark gave a detailed report in regard to the Indonesia Project which is in connection with the CGIT 50th Anniversary. The CGIT hymn which was taken to raise $50,000 as an anniversary gift to provide a Christian Education camping and conference centre for the Indonesian Council of Churches. The Strome Group sold 50th Anniversary buttons to make a contribution to this fund, instead of asking an offering for the service.

Following the service, the parents and congregation were invited to the social evening which followed in the Church Hall, which had been decorated for the occasion in blue and white, the CGIT colors.

Mrs. Reuben of Camrose, sister, and Mrs. Olive Galletly, daughter, of Mrs. Ethel Ball, who died suddenly and the recently appointed Minister of Lands and Forests, Mr. Arthur Doerr, Mr. Adams gave an interesting discourse on the latest budget and Mr. Route spoke generally on government activities.

The candidate, Mr. Barber is a resident of Edberg, where he is principal of the school. Born in Edmonton he has lived most of his life in the Camrose constituency. Other nominees were Walter Valesan of Wainwright, Adair Rasmussen and Arthur Rasmusen both of Camrose.

The new executive was elected as follows: Pres. Dick Shyrska; First Vice Pres. Gord Cameron; Sec. and Vice Ray Pottage, Sedgewick; Treas. Mrs. Steinthorpe, Killam Vermilion. The secretary is Mr. J. Pelechyke of Daysland.

SOCREDS NOMINATE FRED BARBER

VIKING — The Battle River - Camrose Federal Social Credit Association elected Mr. Fred Barber to contest the next federal election.

Well over 200 attended the annual nomination held in Viking on Saturday last, with 154 of them being delegates.

Council Hears Plan Of Daysland B of T To Construct Sign

(Delores Dolans)

The regular monthly meeting of the Town of Daysland was held on Monday, March 1st in the town office.

Present were Mayor Pryor, councillors Wirth, Schnell, Stevens, Bwo. t -ott and Josephson.

Mayor Pryor opened the meeting and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

The Secretary is to inform the Daysland Provincial Hospital Advisory Board, because of the long story of sidewalk invoived, which would be costly, Council could not at this time commit themselves to construction of same in 1965.

Mr. Elgin Brown represented the Daysland Auction Mart and reported on a cat in issue. Council requested more data from the owner before giving this further consideration.

Mr. Martin Mandrusiak, manager of the Daysland Hotel approached Town Council for another cut in sewer charge. He requested the monthly cut from $40.00 to $35.00 per month.

The Daysland and District Board of Trade informed Council they were planning a large sign advertising Daysland at one of the Town entrances. They requested financial support insofar as material and painting.

Norbert Flack again requested rent of the pasture north of the old golf course next to the road. His bid was the same as last year $10. golf course next to the road. His Mr. Walter Cis again requested to rent the slough north of the hospital road and south of the golf course. A cheque of $20.00 was included with his bid. It was moved that Walter Cis bid be accepted and Norbert Flacks bid be accepted also if he submits a cheque for the rent.

A letter from Mr. H. E. Carrel, Sec.-Treas. of the Daysland Flin Board requested a contribution towards the Flin Board as in the past.

A motion was made that the Town of Daysland contribute $10 towards the Daysland Flim Board in 1965. Cd.

A letter received from Mr. E. E. Wilson, property commissioner of Public the Alberta Department of Public Works stated that lots 25,26, blk. 7, plans 55 had been appraised at $6000.00 and the Town could now advise if they wished to purchase same so they could raise Bylaw, condition for Order-in-Council authorizing disposal of this property to the Town of Daysland. It was moved that we advise the Department of Public Works to proceed with Order-in-Council to transfer lots to Town of Daysland. Cd.

It was resolved that the Town of Daysland requisition the Chief Provincial Assessor to appoint an assessor for the Town of Daysland for the year 1966.

It was also resolved to appoint T. H. Gregory and Co. of Camrose as auditors for the Town of Daysland for the year 1965.

The requisition forms the Alberta East Central Health Unit No. 19 was received. The amount required Photos Turn To Page Six.

Cadet and Kadette Night Proves Very Popular

SEDGEWICK — On Friday night March 12th the members of Sedgewick Legion entertained the Cadets, Kadettes and parents in the form of a dancing party.

The older generation endeavored to demonstrate and teach the fancy and finer points of the Old Time Waltz, the Military Schottische, the Heel and Toe Polka and Fox Trot. The younger set retaliated with the Butterfly and Bunny-Hop. The most enjoyable music was supplied by Lyle Mets' Klanmen Club Orchestra.

Young and old danced merrily together from nine to eleven, when a tasty lunch was served by the Legion Ladies Auxiliary. Pictures of the officers and Cadets were taken by Calvin Benkrats. Cpl. R. Dick on behalf of the Sedgewick Cadet & Kadette Corps, thanked the Legion and the Auxiliary for their hospitality. Mr. Brian Lee, M.C. for the evening, replied on behalf of the Legion. Dancing continued until one i the morning.

Judging by the reports from old and young alike, the party was a success. Plans are being made to hold another one in the future.

Legion Auxiliary Polio Fund

SEDGEWICK — The March meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Legion was held in the Nut on Wed., evening last. Reports indicated the total of $146.50 collected for the Polio Fund when the ladies covered the town on February.

Twenty five dollars was donated to the Polio Fund by the Auxiliary. Mrs. H. Bailey is to represent the Auxiliary at the Flagstaff Lodge Auxiliary meeting in April.

Plans were completed for catering to approximately 100 lady curlers attending the Sedgewick Bonspiel. A donation of $6.00 was given to the W. I. to purchase Diabetic Test Kits to be distributed at the Chest x-ray clinic.

Mary Chesens, Marg Kobesr and Jean Johnson are convenors for the banquet for the ladies afternoon bowling league the end of March.

First Skating Review

SEDGEWICK — The Sedgewick Figure Skating Club was held at the Recreation Centre on Sunday, March 14 with a good crowd in attendance. Under the capable direction of Miss Ruth Matthews, the figure skating club presented a fine effort.

There were six group numbers from the Sedgewick Club, all very colorful and well executed.

Two guest skaters from Hardisty gave a fine display. Miss Ann Young and D'Arcy Broughton did an excellent job in both their duet and solo numbers. Their help was greatly appreciated by the Sedgewick Club.

Miss Ruth Matthews was one of the feature skaters in the Review. Her solo was received with great enthusiasm by her pupils and the crowd. Following the Review, Concessions, on behalf of the Figure Skaters, presented Miss Matthews with a gift in appreciation of her help and instruction this winter.

The Club Pins were brought all performers on the ice to receive the applause from a good show. As this is the first winter of skating instruction in Sedgewick, Miss Matthews is to be congratulated on the success of the afternoon and the good skating displayed by all.

The First Day Of Spring

The first day of spring will be officially with us before this edition of the Press is in the hands of some readers. Usually spring makes its entrance on the scene in a grand manner with warm, sunny weather, water from runoff of the winter's accumulation of snow gurgling and rushing along the gutters, to seek its level in the low-lying spots, forming pools that will last in to the summer. Spring is the time too when small children go adventuring into sloughs and mud-filled areas wearing rubbers and boots that never seem to be high enough to keep them from arriving home soaked. While getting soaking wet is not a tragedy in itself, except where sickness may follow, or a good paddling result, there is extreme danger in youngsters exploring the depths of overflowing streams, or testing the safety of thin ice. Now is the time to issue the annual warnings on such things as these. They will probably be ignored but at least you will have tried.

THE UNCOMFORTABLE PEW

A Boy And His Dog

Today, Thursday, March 18th marks the opening of the Annual Easter Seal Campaign for crippled children, an appeal that reaches the very heart of human charity, for nothing touches the emotions more deeply than the thought and sight of a child handicapped by physical disability. The net result of this plea to the generosity of Albertans is in large measure due to the publicity the programs can derive from newspaper coverage. Just what all this has to do with a boy and his dog may be illustrated by the following little story from the publication of the Masonic Service Association:

HE UNDERSTOOD

This is the story of a man who put up a sign, "Puppies for Sale". He no sooner had the sign up than there was a small boy standing by wanting to know how much the puppies were going to cost. The man told him that since they were pretty good dogs he did not expect to let any of them go for less than twenty-five dollars. With a look of disappointment on his face, the youngster asked if he could see them.

The man called, "Lady" and whistled. Out of the kennel and down the run way came Lady with five bails of fur rolling along behind her; one lagged considerably.

The boy spotted the lagger and asked; "what is wrong with him?"

The man said: "Well, the veterinarian has examined him and says there is no socket in the right hip. The dog will live but he will never be much of a dog."

"That is the one I want to buy", replied the youngster. "I will give you all I have right now, two dollars and eighty seven cents, and pay you fifty cents per month until I get him fully paid for."

The man shook his head. "No, we will make a deal alright, but you don't want that dog, he will never be able to run, jump and play with youngsters. You want one of the other dogs."

The youngster very slowly pulled up his little trousers. There was a brace running up both sides of his leg—a leather knee-cap, a badly twisted leg. The boy said; "You know I don't run so well myself and he'll need somebody that understands him.

Well, it's just a boy and a dog, but it's a great idea; the desire to understand, the ability to put one's self in somebody else's position and to understand and care.

Buy and use Easter Seals and in this small way help to bring happiness and perhaps physical recovery to a crippled child.

Education Week

Education Week which has been more or less observed in Canada for some years now, has become so commonplace that actually there is little or no formal observance of the occasion. As in every such observance, the longer it goes on the less interest there is taken in it, except by those who are directly involved. This "let it go" attitude may be partly due to the fact that the word education is confined too strictly to what takes place right in the classrooms of our schools. But there is more to education than the three R's, history and geography. If you don't think so, let your mind dwell for a moment on such things as health education, a branch of knowledge that has helped Canada by her advancement in medicine, hygiene and sanitation, to conquer contagious diseases that once took thousands of lives annually. To make students as well as the general public aware of the programs that are dedicated to physical and mental health, is a branch of education that is most important, for a nation is only as good as the physical and mental condition of its citizens. Important too is the education of the drivers of motor vehicles and power farm machinery, in the proven rules of safety. The only human asset that Canada has is live human beings, and the nation cannot maintain and improve its economic standards and output, if its citizens insist on playing Russian Roulette with health and safety standards.

Car Costs

Three out of four households in Canada, according to figures recently released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, now are equipped with a passenger car. Five years ago the proportion was only two out of three. The total of government revenues from motor vehicles is a figure that will likely surprise most Canadians. The federal government takes in about $100 million a year from the sales tax of 11 percent on the manufacturer's selling price. The provinces take in $380 million from taxes on motive fuels, $187 million from registration fees, $12 million from drivers' licenses, $2 million from chauffeurs' licenses. The total is $831 million annually, those figures are for 1963. The total would have been higher for 1964 and will be higher again for 1965. — C.J.H.

★ MACDUFF REPORT

Early Budget - Early Election!

OTTAWA — Prime Minister L.B. Pearson has forecast that his Minister of Finance Hon. Walter Gordon, will be in a position to bring down the new budget around the end of March or early in April.

While Mr. Pearson made this observation in newspapermen, shortly after he had told the Commons that he hoped it would quickly wind up the session before the old second session and get started on the new third session, he did not make any comments regarding an election. But his prediction that the budget may be soon brought down in the House, aroused election speculation.

The 1965-66 budget is believed to contain some healthy tax cuts. It will be a "sunshine" springtime bud get that might well be the forerunner of a June election.

There is a growing conviction in the Commons that this present Parliament has outlived its usefulness. After the Christmas and New Year recess some members, particularly on the Government side, had hoped that the House would get on with the business of the country with more co-operation and less acrimony and unhealthy.

However several angry sittings have led many M.P.'s, to believe the sooner this Parliament is dissolved and an election called the better for the country. It may be that the Government has the decision to dissolve taken out of its hands. This would come about if the Government is defeated on a vote of confidence in the House.

As soon as the second session of the present 26th Parliament is completed — in mid-March, the third session will be convened. There will be a throne speech and throne speech debate. There will be also the customary motions of non-confidence. If the Government survives these motions it will be in a position to bring down its budget. Mr. Pearson pointed out to newsmen that March 31st is the end of the fiscal year for the Government. He added he would like to have the budget before the House a day or so ahead of that date — but it is highly unlikely that he will reach his goal.

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said recently that Prime Minister Pearson has a responsibility to the Canadian people to "clean house" in his administration or the Prime Minister would lose the support of the Socreds in the confidence votes. He said that his group would have to vote against the Liberal minority government if the official opposition in the next session introduced motions of confidence on the politicians monthly question.

Mr. Thompson said he personally did not want to see a spring election. He believed it would mean another Liberal minority government, but with the New Democratic Party occupying a position where it might hold the balance of power.

The Social Credit National leader did not expect however that just because his group would vote against the government on non-confidence motions this would mean inevitably that there would be an election. He remained to be convinced that Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker would be able to retain sufficient P. C's. in the House for the confidence tests to provide enough opposition votes to turn out the Liberals.

But it will be difficult for Conservatives to avoid voting for their own non-confidence motion, particularly if it is based on political morality. The official opposition would run the risk of making itself the laughing stock of Parliament if it could not muster a large majority of its members to vote in favor of its own motions challenging the Liberal government.

Consequently the administration may find itself defeated on the floor of the House. But if the Liberal administration squeaks by and is not defeated, the time may be short and come very soon, when Prime Minister Pearson may decide that he should go to the country.

Mr. Pearson up until the end of the year was firmly determined not to go to the polls prior to 1967. But many of his colleagues have argued that to try to carry on under present circumstances would be foolish with Mr. Diefenbaker administration as "scandal-ridden", and making progress in Parliament difficult.

Liberals calling for an election contend that once the Canada Pension Plan is passed this will be a feather in the Party's cap. In addition if the budget can be brought down with tax cuts it will be to their advantage.

These appealing measures guaranteed to win friends for the Liberals are blurred by the reward final payment of what to be distributed to Western wheat farmers. The total amount to be distributed is $272,500,000. Meantime Finance Minister Gordon has hinted at an expansionist tax-cutting budget and has pledged the Government "to do everything we can to ensure a rapid and sustained rate of growth in the Canadian economy this year and in the years to follow". He indicated the budget deficit for the current fiscal year would be only $150,000,000 to $200,000,000. This would be the best showing since March 31, 1952 and contrasts with the $465,000,000 deficit forecast last year.

In addition helped by the huge wheat sales to Russia this country came out of 1964 with a trade surplus of $811,500,000 which was more than double the 1963 surplus of $621,000,000. Import and export records were shattered as Canadians went on their biggest buying and selling spree in history. Imports climbed by an impressive 14.2 percent while Canadian commodities went to other countries at a rate of 19 percent above 1963. The Canadian economy is strong and healthy. It is a good record for the Liberal Government on which it can go to the country.

Meantime the country is in a lending cloud that will produce a report sometime in the next two months. No one can anticipate what that report will say.

However, politicians think it would be a dangerous gamble for the Government to bring down an election while the Dorion report is pending. It would mean the report would be ended and while the campaign was underway.

Expected to that risk would be the fact that the election campaign could very likely be one of the toughest and dirtiest to be experienced in Canada in years. Certainly the bad feeling and angry exchanges in the House of Commons augur ill the kind of campaign in which the voters of Canada will be subjected.

CAPITAL HILL

A Senate Committee on the aging has been told by information that 77 percent of Canadians over the age of 70 were living in their own homes. This sounds like an affluent society and no argument for a general pay increase for old age pensions until other statistics are added. But the figures also show a high percentage of homes badly in need of repair and a relatively small number with running water. These statistics coincide with the start of an investigation undertaken for ARDA by the Canadian Welfare Council into rural poverty.

Finance Minister Walter Gordon has put pressure of his decennial bill to revise the Bank Act in jeopardy by announcing a provision that no provincial government shall hold shares in a chartered bank. This necessarily gives Premier Bertrand's second planned venture into the banking field but it has brought a threat from his Social Credit allies in the House of Commons to filibuster the bank bill when it comes up next session.

Tree Shelterbelts For The Prairies

Many of the early homesteaders in the Prairie Provinces planted trees around their homes and gardens and along the boundaries of their fields not only to relieve the monotony of the level, treeless plains but also as protection against climatic extremes, and more particularly to slow the force of the "wind". Thousands of prairie farmers have found tree shelterbelts or windbreaks a good investment.

Farm Shelterbelts. Good, well-planned shelterbelts protect the farmstead from cold winds, snow-drifts and dust storms. Experiments have shown that they can reduce home fuel costs 15 per cent or more. Shelterbelts also help to accumulate moisture from melting snows and reduce evaporation in ornamental plantings, flower beds and gardens. Furthermore, they offer protection to livestock, encourage bird life and enhance the value of property.

Field Shelterbelts. A barrier of living trees and shrubs of sufficient extent and proper design present a real obstacle to the wind. Field shelterbelts improve climatic conditions and crop production by: (1) Reducing wind and soil erosion. (2) Modifying air and soil temperature. (3) Reducing evaporation and transpiration. (4) Improving the distribution of snow and moisture. (5) Protecting newly-seeded crops from blowing-sand. Besides, field shelterbelts provide beauty to the countryside and are a source of food and cover for wildlife. The benefits of shelterbelts far outweigh the time and effort required to get them started. In soil and water conservation alone they create a real need, long-term investment.

Help Available. Provincial Departments of Agriculture provide technical on-the-farm advice on the planning and care of shelterbelts as well as financial assistance toward their establishment and maintenance. Consult your local Agricultural Representative or District Agriculturist for details and application information and for application forms for free trees from government nurseries. Dr. W. H. Cross, Superintendent, Forest Nursery Station, Indian Head, Saskatchewan informs us that there are 12 million free trees available annually. Mrs. Beryl Chapman led the devotions. A thank you letter for 12 face clothes sent to the John Neil hospital was read. During the month used stamps and used spions were sent to Mary Hoover. A motion was carried to have a bake sale April 10th. Mrs. E. Hansman gave a report on the Convention Presbyterial UCW Annual Meeting held in Camrose February 27. Mrs. Kersby asked to be host for the April meeting on the 14th at 2:30 p.m. After the meeting had closed with prayer, the sewing committee of Mrs. Carson and Mrs. Kersby displayed material and ready made articles on hand. Lunch was served and supplied by the hostess. Several of the ladies rode back to Lougheed on the bus, enjoyed curling in at the homes enroute.

World Day Of Prayer Held At Hardisty

The World's Day of Prayer Service was held here on Sunday afternoon, the committees having found it necessary to change the day. Held in St. Paul's United Church, there was a good attendance. Mrs. Bodman was the leader, with members of both United and Anglican Churches taking part. The CGIT sang a special number. Mrs. Zwicker was the speaker and emphasized the idea of all our small efforts adding to a great whole.

Following the service, ladies of the UCW served tea.

St. Mark's WA met at the home of Mrs. Elden Bean on Monday afternoon. The devotional period was led by the hostess. Material was given out for sewing for the Mother's Day bazaar. The report on the Diocesan Annual meeting was received from Mrs. Bloom as none of the local members had been able to attend.

Mr. Wilf Devitt of Wainwright spent a few days with his family here. Mrs. Devitt returned to Wainwright with him and while there visited Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bronson.

Mrs. F. Dreger spent the week end at the coast, flying from Calgary with her sister Mrs. Craig.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Metz and children and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Schultz and daughter spent Sunday at the Devitt home. Mrs. Metz (Geraldine) and Dennis Devitt celebrated their birthdays, Dennis' being his 8th.

Busy Bees met at the home of Jean Garland on Wednesday evening. Bingo winners were Norah Zwicker and Barbe Matthews.

Mrs. N. McShane with friends from Alliance went to Edmonton on Friday to attend the 'Folkiens' Mexican Ballet, and report a very wonderful show.

Miss Janice Miller is home from Edmonton for the week end.

Miss Dianne McShane spent the week end at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hill were recent visitors at the G. Boshco home.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Evans of Edmonton were visitors with the Ken Drewers and Mrs. Doris Sutter.

A number of our pipeliners are home again Chuck Broughton, Walter Baske, Leroy Hendricks, Ray Drever, Lorne Morrison and Milt Hall. They expect to be home until the new contracts open in the spring.

SEDGEWICK — At the March meeting of the W. I. the guest, Mr. Pugh gave an informative and interactive talk on the Chest and X-Ray Clinic to be held here in April.

The Health Units of the province are to be responsible for the Chest X-Ray tests for all pre-school children, teachers, janitors and school bus drivers. Mr. Pugh made the suggestion that Diabetic Test Kits could be handed out to the public at the same time as the chest X-ray is being conducted.

Letters are being written to other organizations in the district enlisting their support as this project lacks financial support from the government.

During the business meeting, the handicraft convener reported that arrangement had been made to hold a Clothing Instruction Course at the home of Mrs. A. Edwards on the 16th of March.

The travelling basket can be handed to friends and neighbors as well as members, at a minimum charge of 50c.

School only lasted half a day for most of the students of Central last Thursday. The Eldon Loughead & Hardisty buses came and took students from out of town at 1:30 p.m. Most of the Sedgewick students remained until 3:00 and took classes even though the numbers were not very large.

The United Nations Club had a meeting on Thursday, March 11 during the noon hour.

The Centralettes did well in the Provincial Basketball Playoffs at Lethbridge March 5 and 6. They played their first game against Lethbridge Mount 5 and 6. They played their first game against Lethbridge Mount and lost 59 to 20. This loss put the girls in the "B" Event which Central won. The first game they played in this event was with Vauxhall with Central winning 39 to 32. In the second game they met Vegreville and won 34 to 15. This made the girls the winners of the B section. They received a beautiful trophy as a reward.

The girls played a game with the Daysland girls on Friday at Central and won again 51 to 12.

ECONOMICS OF FARM MACHINERY — AT KILLAM!

An afternoon School on the "Economics of Farm Machinery" will be held in the Co-op Hall at Killam on Tuesday, March 23rd starting at 1:30 p.m.

The Alberta Dept. of Agriculture and the Killam District Board of Trade are sponsoring this meeting. Mr. Jerry Jones, Agr. Economist & Les Reid, Extension Engineer, both from the Dept. of Ag., will be the guest speakers.

This School will cover such topics as: Rentals vs Owning; How we Used machinery; Time to Trade; Substitution of Machinery for Labor; and Income Tax; Farm Machinery Lease and the Procedure for Leasing. This should be a very interesting meeting. Everyone is invited to attend.

COMMON NAMES FOR PESTICIDES!

This year more pesticide labels will carry ordinary names than people can get their tongues to pronounce and their memories retain.

The Common Names Committee is beginning to see some results of years of work in this field. The need for simpler product or brand names was felt a long time ago but it became imperative when many more new chemicals began to appear in pesticide products in recent years. There were 227 active chemicals in Canadian registered pesticides in 1957 and last year there were 490. Many pesticides (insecticides, fungicides, etc) are described in formulas running into several lines of type. Even scientists joined control officers and inspectors in seeking more recognizable names.

The name DDT is a classic example of a common name which was manufactured to meet the demand. DDT means something to the ordinary consumer but the full chemical "name" would be meaningless to anyone but a chemist. Other common names include Aldrin's (which replaces about 20 words and symbols), Nicotine, Endrin and Dieldrin.

The Common Names Committee was convened 10 years ago under the auspices of the Canadian Stand ard Association. It has worked with similar groups in other countries to compile and publish three lists of common names. Shortly after the lists are published the manufacturers must adopt them and use them in compliances with the Pest Control Products Act and Regulations in Canada. The Pesticides Act requires the name of a product, whenever practical, to be descriptive of its active substances, physical form and purpose. The latest Standard published in 1964 consists of 816 names which must be used on labels from January 1st next.

SUGAR AND SPICE

HUMOR ISN'T FUNNY

For the past few weeks, I've been confronted by an enigma. This word does not mean as one of my students told me, "Building a cement grave for you in the hospital, before you have the operation."

The enigma is this: what is humor? And the second is: confronted by the same misguided people asked me to be one of the judges in a competition (contest) to find the most misguided by an inflated ego, I accepted.

I should have known better. Not only because I am not built to sit in judgment, but I've judged public speaking contests with great success. Everyone I've judged ever with my decisions. Except those who didn't win, and their parents and friends.

I've judged races at the Sunday School picnic. And had to fork over a dime to every runner because, "I woods beat him if he hadden trip-ped on dat rock right dere, or bust dat gum."

And there'd be no trick to judging a beauty contest, I'm sure. Although there's always the danger of getting a bean in the eye from some disgruntled contestant. Or even from the disgruntled nose.

But judging humor is a horse of a different color. There's always, in fact, the menace of misjudging the dark horse, which turns the whole thing into nonsense at a nightmare.

The character of humor is as perverse as most of his qualities is the character of women. Picking the winner in a humor contest is as tricky as picking a winner everybody else thinks you made a bum choice. Do you trust Mabel, who bosses you over on first acquaintance? Or do you say to yourself, I will wear well over the years? Do you want an hilarious companion for an evening, or a quiet chuckle among a week for generations? Humor is in the eye of the beholder.

...It's no use. Let's get back to the enigma. What is humor? Ask the first person you meet, and he'll say "It's anything that makes you laugh."

Well, it's not, necessarily. People do not react with laughter from short nerves, giggle interminably from drink, or titter uncontrollably from a sleepy nurse pulet they have missed completely.

People will laugh at practically anything. Only yesterday I was looking out the window. A young man was there with one leg missing, part of himself, minced along, across in her mink. Right in front of our place, zip went her foot on a piece of ice.

More words cannot describe the half-galone she performed, the way she looked, flat on her tummy, for but over her nose. Only a camera could capture his wild, desperate look she threw around to see if anyone had spotted the spill. Only the great Charlie Chaplin could have imitated the frantic scramble to her feet, the desperate effort to stroll off as though nothing had happened. Did I laugh? Thought I'd split a gut. I was glad also wasn't hurt, but like most people, got a tremendous bang out of seeing the deflation of a stuffed shirt. Or girdle, in this case.

What is humor? I've no idea. For

Killam Presbyterian Ladies Association

KILLAM — The Killam Presbyterian Ladies Association met at the manse with 12 members and one visitor.

The Devotional period was under the joint direction of Mrs. Joseph Grant and Mrs. Macilachery and opened by singing Hymn 382 and reading Scripture taken from Psalm 96, followed by prayer. The topic was taken from our study book and traced the family tree of the "Women's Missionary Society" of the Presbyterian Church. Devotions closed with singing Hymn 465 followed by the Lord's Prayer.

The business session opened with roll call followed by reading of the minutes.

The thankoffering realized of those who had taken part in the World Day of Prayer service.

The visiting committee reported many hospital and house calls and sent cards. Plans were laid to welcome a Sunday School study group headed by Miss Barbara Woodruff, Regional Secretary of WMS on March 27th. Meeting closed by the recitation of the Mizpah Benediction. A lovely lunch was served by Mrs. F. Nelson and Mrs. Marion Gehb.

In Memoriam
In loving memory of William Grant who passed away March 17, 1964.
There's an open gate at the end of life
Through which each must go alone
And there in a light we cannot see
Our Father claims his own;
Beyond the pain our loved one
Finds happiness and rest,
And there is comfort in the thought
That a loving God knows best.
Ever remembered by: Mat, Dorothy, Lynda and Brian of Sedgewick and the Grant Families. 44 - c

Career Day Held For Dayland Students

by Delores Delaus

In connection with Education Week the Dayland High School held a Career Day on Friday morning March 12th. Dayland students in grades nine, ten, eleven, and twelve participated in the event and had as their guests the Heisler High school students. The Career Day speakers spoke on: Nursing, RCMP, Vermilion School of Agriculture, Armed Forces, Engineering, University, Teaching and the Northern Alberta Institute of Technology.

Business Education: Mr. Harvey manager of the Dayland Bank of Montreal invited students who are interested in banking to visit the bank at a later date to see its operation.

On Thursday evening, March 11, the Iowa Colored Ghosts played an exhibition basketball game against the Dayland Dynamos. The Ghosts, putting on a tremendous show for the audience, beat the Dynamos 91 to 90.

The following ladies were winners in the Dayland ladies bonspiel March 4, 5 and 6.

First Event:

Second Event:

Third Event:

The hard luck winner was Wilma Bevens rink of Rosalind. The largest end went to Melba Kent.

The UCW catered to the lunches and also the Smorgasbord that was held on Friday evening.

Mrs. Wm. Conrad was the lucky winner of the blanket at the Elks bingo last Wednesday. Mrs. Fredema of Camrose was again the lucky winner of the door prize.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. L. Evinson on the arrival of a baby boy. Also congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. F. Nahaljewich on the arrival of a baby girl.

MOST VALUABLE PLAYER — Ed Stork of the Dayland North Stars was voted most valuable player in the Battle River League for the 1964-65 season. Ed was presented with the award in Daysland Tuesday by Mr. John Gadza at a special playoff game in Killam. Voting for the MVP was done by three men from each team with the restriction that they could not vote for anyone on their home clubs.

Daysland Council

to be paid by Dayland $613.74.

The Equalized Assessment for the Town of Dayland as set by the Alberta Assessment Equalization Board for 1965 will be $719,-176.00.

It was moved that we approve the blue print of the new Alberta Government Telephones Building as submitted, and that they be notified of this. Also that they may build on the front end of the lot.

Other lottery received were from Workmen's Compensation Board, clarifying the definition of a volunteer fireman and from Waterous Equipment Ltd. inviting anyone interested to a one day Equipment Seminar on March 19th. As Mr. A. Langhe, the town maintenance man had expressed his desire to attend this seminar, Council expressed their willingness to give him the day off to attend.

Annual statements were received from Flagstaff Lodge, Flagstaff Beaver Auxiliary Hospital and Dayland Drainage District.

By-law G 127, Canadian Celanese, Calgary Power Ltd., had transferred Lot 39, Block 3, Plans 56 back to the Town of Dayland, and whereas it was past the date to exempt the assessment, therefore Council of the Town of Dayland enacts to pass By-law G 127 to cancel taxes on this property for the year 1965 and until such time as the assessor has exempted this property. This By-law to be passed subject to the approval of the Minister of Municipal Affairs.

Mayor Pryce and Cr. Stevens agreed to represent Council at the Dayland Drainage Board meeting on March 19th.

Churchill Stamp

Sir Winston Churchill will be honored on a special Canadian postage stamp to be issued late this summer. The announcement was made today by the Honorable J. R. Nicholson, Postmaster General.

This will be the first time in the history of the Canada Post Office that a stamp has been produced to honor a person who was neither a a member of the Royal Family nor a Canadian. Mr. Nicholson explained that Sir Winston's tremendous contributions to the Commonwealth and his many associations with this country were adequate reasons for a departure from normal policy.

August 12th has been chosen as the date of issue. It was on this day in 1941 that Sir Winston and President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the Atlantic Charter. The signing took place aboard a warship in Placentia Bay, on the southeast coast of Newfoundland. The August date also coincides with the first Quebec Conference, where in 1943 Sir Winston met with President Roosevelt and Canadian leaders to plan the prosecution of the war.

Miss Ann Proehler spent a couple of days at home.

Mr. Reg Johnson is home after spending a few days in Dayland hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Mel Johnson were in Camrose to attend the Hoo! Donor Clinic.

George Hayes spent the week end with his Dad.

Miss Linda Robbins was home last week end.

Mrs. Verne Borchard and family of Killam were visitors at the the Morgan home last Sunday.

Mr and Mrs. Maurice Stark and family spent last week end at the J. Butler home.

A card party was held at the home of Mrs. J. Curtis on Friday evening. Eleven tables of 500 were played. High scores for the evening: Ladies, Mrs. Wheller, Gents, Mr. Wheller. Consolations were: Ladies, Mrs. Smith-Gander, Gents, Martin Kroetch.

Vic Linz who has been operating the Strome Pool Room and beauty shop left this week. Ken McBride is now in charge of the pool room until other arrangements are made.

Elden Carlson and Grant Parley are at St. Paul this week end to play with the Dayland Dynamo basketball team, who are playing in a tournament there.

A meeting for the purpose of organizing a TB Clinic for Strome and district was held in Memorial Hall on Tuesday night.

Mrs. Marie Watkins of Hardisty visited at the N. Pottens and Bill Watkins homes on Friday.

Lady Of Fatima C. W. L. Meeting

(Mavis Butler)

STROME — Our Lady of Fatima CWL monthly meeting was held at the home of Mrs. M. Kroetch, Sunday, March 7 Mrs. J. Heisler acted as hostess.

Prayers were led by the President after which 12 members responded to the roll call. The president thanked the ladies who had helped at the ladies bonspiel supper. Used clothing will be sent to the Marion Center. Also eggs to St. Mary's Home and Sisters of Attouement, Edmonton. Anyone wishing to donate may contact Mrs. D. Pfeffer before March 21. Three dollars will be sent the National Office at Ottawa for the 1964 Annual National Report. Mrs. M. Kroetch Mrs. H. Gudaitis and Mrs. J. Kobeter will act on the nominating committee. Mass intentions for March is in honor of St. Joseph for a happy death.

Rosaries for peace, T. Sick calls etc. Mrs. D. Pfeffer won attendance prize. After meeting was adjourned Mrs. Heisler and her assistants, Mrs. L. Spahn and Mrs. L. Miller, served a delicious lunch.

The Ontario town of Brockville was once called Searingtown by outsiders because of the bitter arguments of villagers over whether it should have the name of Williamstown or Elizabethtown.

SALMON SHELL CASSEROLE

1½ cups baby shell macaroni
6 cups water
1 tbsp. CO-OP cooking oil
4 tbsp. CO-OP margarine
4 tbsp. CO-OP flour
¾ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
½ cup CO-OP Skim milk Powder
2 cups water
½ cup onion, chopped and cooked
4 tsp. lemon juice
¼ cup parsley, minced
1 tin (15½ oz.) CO-OP pink salmon, drained and flaked
1 cup medium Cheddar cheese grated

Cook macaroni until tender, in boiling water. Add oil to water to prevent "boil-overs". In a heavy saucepan melt margarine and blend in flour, salt and pepper. Remove from heat and stir in milk (made from skim milk powder and water). Bring to boil and boil 1 minute. To this white sauce add onion, lemon juice and parsley. Fold in salmon, macaroni and cheese. Pour into a buttered 2 quart casserole.

REPORTS FROM PARLIAMENT HILL

The new far-reaching program for the Canadian automotive industry which came into effect on January 1st is designed to achieve a substantial expansion in production and employment in the motor vehicle and auto parts industries in Canada.

It is also intended to promote improved competitive efficiency in these important sectors of Canadian manufacturing.

One of its main features is a mutually beneficial Agreement between Canada and the United States. Through this agreement, signed Jan. 16 by the Prime Minister and the President, the United States Government is committed to seek Congressional authority, during the Congressional session which has just commenced, to admit duty-free treatment of imports of vehicles and original equipment parts produced in Canada and to to make such duty-free treatment reciprocal.

To enable the Canadian industry to proceed at once with the expansion, the Government of Canada brought into force on the same date, effect immediately by an Order-in-Council.

Thus, automotive producers who qualify under the terms of the new legislation can import motor vehicles and parts used in their manufacture duty-free from all countries.

Original equipment parts may also be imported duty free by parts makers or others for use in the assembly of vehicles by vehicle manufacturers.

The second major feature of the program concerns the changes it introduces by individual Canadian motor vehicle producers. They will be able to gain a fair and equitable share of the expanding North American market.

Such assurances have been received from producers who represent close to 100 per cent of Canadian motor vehicle production.

By the 1968 model year, production in Canada of vehicles and parts going into the manufacture should be expanded by about one-third over their present level. This is in addition to production to supply normal growth in the market.

Altogether, it is expected that the expansion over the next three and a half years should achieve an annual rate of production several hundred million dollars greater than existing production levels.

The Agreement represents a joint approach by the two governments which recognizes the existence of the special situation confronting this industry and lays the groundwork for more effective and lasting solution.

The expansion of this important industry will result in economic benefits for the whole country.

For the first time, Canadian motor vehicle producers will have free access to the United States.

The Canadian automotive parts industry will have a largely expanded market for components in Canada and will also have new opportunities to sell its products throughout the vast United States market.

KILLAM HOSPITAL AUXILIARY MEETING

(Mrs. Doug Kinzer)

Nineteen members attended the Hospital Auxiliary meeting held in the hospital Thursday, March 4th.

Prior to the business meeting Mrs. J. Kneller, occupational therapist from Forestburg spoke to the meeting on the value of occupational therapy for long term patients and the roll we could play.

She displayed some of the handicraft of the patients and appealed to all members to salvage a wide variety of seemingly worthless articles for use in "Arts and Crafts". Her talk was lively, interesting and constructive and enjoyed by all present. Mrs. Gibb agreed to help set up work for future classes.

The course for the TB Clinics was nearly finished. It will be held in Killam April 1st.

Committees were appointed to plan a spring carnival to be held by the HA after Easter and a bingo party for the entertainment of the Auxiliary patients on March 17.

266 visits to the club were reported.

2906 swabs were folded at the meeting.

201 plastic faced bed pans had been turned in. Assistance had been given to a hospital auxiliary sewing committee will be Mrs. H. Spiller and Mrs. Schaffer.

Birthday helpers Mrs. Watkins and Mrs. Nikiforuk.

Mrs. A. P. Grant and Mrs. C. Krichaus will man the cart.

Mrs. G. Fee and Mrs Thompson served lunch.

NURSES MEETING

KILLAM — Guest speakers from Edmonton and Camrose were welcomed by Sister St. Bride, Killam General Hospital, at a meeting of some thirty nurses from Strome, Galahad, Heisler, Killam and Sedgewick in the Killam Hospital on Friday night March 12th. The meeting chairmanned by Sister Justice of the Flagstaff Beaver Auxiliary Hospital was held with the object of forming a local chapter of the Alberta Association of Registered Nurses.

Miss Mona Staven, Nursing councillor of the AARN, Edmonton, gave a talk on the highlights of forming a Chapter.

Sister Cecelia of Camrose outlined briefly the advantages of state and the by-laws of such a formation were laid down by Sister Mary Claire of Camrose who is Chairman of the By-Laws Committee of the AARN. The objectives were given as follows:

To maintain the honor and status of the nursing profession.

To advance the educational standard of nursing.

To elevate the standards of nursing practice in order to render efficient service in patient care.

To promote and regulate sound employee-employer relations in the nursing profession.

A vote of thanks was extended to the guest speaker by Mrs. H. Smith of the Auxiliary Hospital after which lunch was served by the Killam branch of the hospital brought the meeting to a close.

Letter From Missionary in India

The following is a copy from The Rebel Side Reporter, a church paper at Seattle, Washington also was sent to the Community Press and Mr. Adam's office.

"A very encouraging letter from Miss Johnson in Punjab, India, came to us. She writes: "Soon we shall have a new field I am to have the big supply of Christian cards at first. It means a lot to me. Before I took over I had to make all of New Testaments a present, and I distributed 40 Quarts of Shalom. The Bible Society has been good. Now I have to order the Synagogue and Gospel Portions. I go to Tel Aviv to attend the state supply and have over 100 miles around me. Two districts where they make many contacts. Besides Haifa has Nazareth and also Tel Aviv four days' work here (Sunday, getting out basic Christian material. No heater but petrol stove. I sit with two sweaters and overcoat and mittens too when not writing. Woolen scarf on and around my neck. Have to keep warm and Christmas, only God knows how long we can have freedom."

TOURING EUROPE

"Mr. Herbert Armitage has visited 28 countries in Europe and North Africa since he left his home member last year. He and a honeymoon friend, Jack Hanan, covered twenty thousand miles . . . also hospital in a second-hand Volkswagon and the remainder by chassis.

"Herbert is now vacationing with relatives at Derrinvohil House, Borrisokane, where his grandparents William and Mrs. Armitage emigrated to Canada a long time ago. They never returned nor has it's father, Herbert senior, ever visited this country. Tall, blond, muscular, and in job make-ventes, Herbert is the second of five sons in a family of eight. He took his degree in Engineering in the University of Alberta.

He also confessed he'd like to visit most of those 28 countries again. The language difficulty was a very big problem and there were times when he felt an awfully long way from Ireland. But Miss Ireland and would love to stay here.

Since September Herb has been working in England on a new six-in-one machine from Birmingham. A fodder mixer he had plans to work on in the spring.

STEAMERS

As I am still receiving requests to write more about the "Old Steamers" I am only too glad to do so, as "Steamers" are full of fun and "Put" subjects.

Mrs. Liz Robson, a real conscientious interest, Ken Riddells articles titled "The Last of The Steamers" in the Feb. 18th issue of the "Western Producer".

Being the Wife of an Ex. R.R. man does not give one the right to make fun of combating disease. But when progress takes from us such beloved things as "The Old Steamers", with their mournful, yet musical, whistle, it does need to make most of us "Citizens" sort of rebel.

I presume some of this generation would consider me wise to say term "Square". But I AM SENTIMENTAL enough to miss a great many of the older ways of life, among them, "THE OLD STEAMER."

Unrivalled comfort! Unexcelled performance! Unsurpassed ride!

Meteor- The most beautiful car

Model illustrated: Montcalm 2 door hardtop, one of the Ford Family of Fine Products, built in Canada

Meteor surrounds you in the most luxurious comfort! Beautiful thick-pile carpeting, plush padding at broad arm rests and thick sweep-away dash, deep foam-cushioned under-each-upholstery. There is a new suspended accelerator pedal that can't clog with dirt or trap dirt, a new double-edged key that locks either side up, a deeper trunk for more stand-up luggage space and a lower sill for less lifting distance . . . and lavish cloaths blend a roving-away steering wheel, elegant vinyl roof, courtesy lights, power windows and seats. Meteor sets the unrivalled standard of luxurious comfort in the popular-priced class!

Meteor performs with impressive new spunk! The standard engine has 240 cubic inch "Avenger" Six and the husky 352 and 390 V-8's take to the road with spirited action . . . especially with Meteor's 3-speed dual range automatic transmission.

And the 3-speed and 4-speed manual transmissions, both fully synchromesh, are silky performers. You've got the by to driving pleasure when you turn the key at a new Meteor!

Meteor has the most and remarkable ride on the road! It is designed to virtually eliminate road shock and vibration, with a long 123-inch wheelbase, new "double-box" frame construction and an improved all-coil suspension without that "floating" sensation! You'll feel the difference these engineering refinements make in the unsurpassed quietness and smoothness of Meteor's ride!

Meteor has the year's most beautiful new look! It began as beautifully as an impression on every way as it is in appearance!

Now 240 Cubic-Inch "Avenger" — Biggest, Most Powerful Six in Canada!

150 horsepower and a 234 torque rating achieve a new height in high per-formance! Refinements in efficiency and durability mean a smoother, quieter "6" with a big lead in economy!

Saves like a "6"—goes like a V-8! It's the best!

4-H CLUB ACTIVITIES

BATTLE RIVER 4H NEWS

The fifth meeting of the Battle River 4H Club was held Feb. 23rd in the Catholic Church basement, Hardisty. Due to the absence of both president and vice president, Phillip Milroy chaired the meeting, and did a very good job.

From the adult committee Homer Elm reported on the meeting at Sedgewick followed by reports from Frank Alsterdice and Ben Ohlert who attended the club leaders committee meeting in Camrose. Judging by the amicable covered in the above reports it appears that the adults in 4H are being well trained in assisting the juniors, and of course are also learning a lot.

Both Matthews, the secretary, read an article on the club to come to Lougheed March 26, where various clubs can hold their own individual meetings, and later assemble as a group to view a film shown by Art Edwards relative to 4H work. All members present agreed to several 4H publications.

Richard Milroy spoke briefly to the members regarding some form of recreation or entertainment, but due to the inclement weather, and small turnout at the meeting, nothing definite was done. Steven Kinzer presented his assigned report, which was well organized and very interesting. All Hardisty 4H members are urged to try and attend the next meeting.

MERNA MEMBERS 4-H CLUB

MERNA — The meeting was called to order at 7:30 on the third of March with the singing of O Canada followed by the 4H Pledge. The secretary, Joyce Anderson, read the minutes. We received an invitation from the 4H Beef Club to go in with them in preparation of Parents Nite in the near future. This was accepted.

Sewing demonstrations were given, also two participants in public speaking. The leader Mrs. Simpson gave some pointers on the making of our project book. A short time of volleyball was enjoyed.

Mr. C. R. Pugh, director of X-ray surveys, Alberta Tuberculosis Association, is in the district making arrangements for the Tuberculin Testing and Chest X-ray Survey. A house to house house survey will be made to register every family in Sedgewick. All persons not attending school will be included in this registration.

School children are being screened by means of a Tuberculin test at school by your local health unit.

In charge of the program are: Mrs. G. Wellman General Chairman, Mrs. B. Whitten Advance Registration Chairman, Mrs. H. Steve Clinic Appointments Chairman; Mrs. R. B. Cooper Publicity Chairman, and Mrs. R. Reinhardt Volunteer Help Chairman.

Safeguard yourself and your family by attending the clinic. Time and location will be announced in the near future.

Large Meeting Makes Plans, Annual Hardisty Stampede

TOP GOALIE — Bill Malmo of the Daysland Elks Juvenile Hockey Team, shown with the trophy he received as the best goalie in the league. The award was presented to Bill by league President John Patten.

HARDISTY — Over 150 people of Hardisty and district answered the call of President John Golka, and turned out for the annual meeting of the Hardisty Stampede Association, held on Saturday evening of last week. Held in conjunction with this meeting was the meeting of the Hardisty Light Horse Association, whose President is Bill Barnes.

As has become the custom, the affair got underway with a banquet catered to by the Ladies' Aide which President Golka called the meeting to order.

A preliminary to the meeting was a report on the Light Horse Ass'n by Bill Barnes, who by the way was re-elected as president of the organization. Alexis Wilson is the Secretary, replacing Mary Goodrich. Vice President is Ted Young. Others on the executive are Pete Gunnard, Bill Schoss, Jim Wilson, F. Lehman and Bobby Young.

President Golka got the meeting away by calling on Kenny Dever, long-time worker with the Stampede Ass'n who brought greetings on behalf of the Town of Hardisty, and congratulated the Ass'n on its fine efforts in moving and improving the stampede grounds. Following this the minutes and financial report were presented and passed by the meeting.

That the Hardisty Stampede has become big business was indicated by the financial report showing receipts for 1964 of over $12,000. However expenses seem to increase too, and left a net balance of $2,[illegible].

The nominating committee had prepared a list of officers for 1965, and upon presentation, the following were elected: President, Jack Golka; Vice Reg Barnes; Sec. Mary Goodrich. These were all re-elected. As was Kitty Wells as treasurer. The various committees were set up, mostly consisting of returnees from 1964. The opinion seemed to be when the sailing is smooth there is no use in rocking the boat.

Introduced to the meeting was Jack Barnes, Cowboy and Vice Pres. of the RCPA. This new name (Rodeo Cowboys Protective Ass'n) replaces CPA.

It was suggested by motion that a committee be formed to set up a polite program for this year's Stampede, to avoid accidents and keep order on the grounds.

An extensive program of improvements is scheduled for the Stampede grounds, to get under way as soon as possible to take advantage of the Winter Works Program. Committee hands were set up to undertake this program of grounds improvement, bleachers, fencing, buildings, wiring and road improvements.

Under new business the meeting was informed that the Light Horse Ass'n will now meet every month, with the next meeting being in April at the Arena.

Quite lengthy discussion took place on the construction of a Medical Centre at Hardisty, it being indicated that this was becoming a necessity for the area. Out of this came the formation of a committee to investigate the possibilities, and attempt to get something of this nature under way.

In closing the meeting President Golka indicated that plans call for a bigger and better Stampede in [illegible].

F.U.A. President Hits Government

A return of only 4.2 cents on the dollar to farmer-creditors of M. M. Veregin Stockyards Limited is "completely ridiculous", states PUA President Paul Bibby.

He was commenting on Agriculture Minister Harry Strom's statement in the Legislature Monday on the Veregin bankruptcy. Mr. Bobby was speaking to about 80 farmers at an FUA District Convention in Medicine Hat Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Strom had said that the bankruptcy of the Northern Alberta livestock buying firm was a "real disaster for the people in the area concerned." Mr. Bobey agreed with this assessment. But to his spokening audience, he added that it is not enough for Mr. Strom to suggest "social welfare" for those hardest hit. "It's time we unify money for agriculture!" Mr. Bobey asked. "Would the government rather pay welfare to farmers than to see they get their treatment?"

There were 823 livestock producers affected by the Veregin bankruptcy in the Medicine Hat District, are owed $827,557 by the firm. Only one $10 000 bond covered the operation of ten livestock buying yards in communities scattered through central and northern Alberta. Liquidation of company assets in this case will benefit farmers very little as farmers are not considered preferred creditors under the Bankruptcy Act, a federal statute. Only after secured debts are paid will money owed to farmers be paid.

This case has prompted adoption of new regulations by the government. These were announced Monday, and include requirements for a $10,000 bond on each buying station. And dealers either buying or selling livestock must henceforth set up livestock trust accounts. This last item will guarantee that all money involved in such transactions will be handled through special accounts, which will ensure payment of the cheques issued for livestock purchases.

Mr. Bobey said he agreed with the bond and trust account regulations. And said he approved Mr. Strom's stated intention "to prevent, by closer scrutiny, that this ever happens again." "However, Mr. Bobey pointed out, "this does not help those people receiving 4.2 cents on the dollar. The PUA recommended increased bonding for livestock dealers several years ago. These suggests have now been carrid out, but only after this unfortunate affair took place. Surely these innocent people deserve more consideration than to be placed on welfare.

Killam Trade Board Talks Recreation

KILLAM — On March 2nd some 60 Killam District Board of Trade members & guests attended a dinner meeting to hear a talk on organizing recreation programs by Mr. J. W. Riddel. Mr. Riddel is Assistant Supervisor of Community Programs with the Recreation and Cultural Development Branch of the Provincial Government. He spoke on the need for recreation for everyone & in what way his department would give assistance.

The purpose of the department is to assist communities with the organization and operation of broad recreational programs that offer an opportunity to all. The main problem in communities is co-ordination of the existing facilities; that is to make better use of what is already in existence.

A discussion followed on the problems pertaining to Killam and district, what the needs of the community are and the activities presently available. Mr. Riddel advised that the services of his department were available and if they could assist the community in any way, they are happy to do so.

Mr. & Mrs. Swoboda Married 60 Years

by Delores Dolan

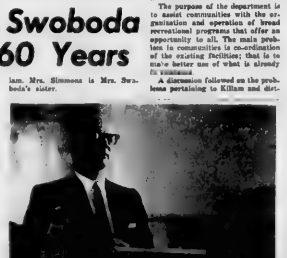
DAYLAND — Mr. and Mrs. F. Swoboda, pioneers of Dayland, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on Sunday, February 28th, with a family dinner at their home Saturday evening. All of their children were here for the occasion. Open house was held during the afternoon at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Swoboda. Many of their friends came to congratulate them. The received a congratulation message from the Queen, Lester B. Pearson, and Premier Manning of [illegible].

Mr. Swoboda was born in Moravia, Austria, May 31, 1875 and Mrs. Swoboda in North Dakota on July 22nd, 1883. They came to Wetaskiwin in 1901 and to Daysland in 1906. They operated a harness business till 1944 when Mr. Swoboda retired.

They were presented with flowers from the Lions Club, the Royal Purple Lodge, the CWL and the Sisiters of Providence; also a basket of basket items from the Hospital Auxiliary. From the family they received a television set and from the grandchildren a bouquet of flowers.

They have four children: (Anna) Mrs. Leo Williams of Vancouver; (Christine) Mrs. Wallis of Calgary and two sons Ralph and Joseph in Dayland.

Here to help them celebrate were Dr. and Mrs. Len Williams and daughter Mary Ann of Vancouver, Mrs. Christine Wallis, her daughter Mrs. Gordon Shitch, Mr. Shitch and their five sons from Calgary; a grandson Ronald Wallis, Mrs. Wallis and son and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Swoboda and two children from Edmonton; Mrs. Simmons and Mrs. Konopacke of Killam. Mrs. Simmons is Mrs. Swoboda's sister.



EDITOR ADDRESSES MINISTERIAL — The Editor of the Community Press is shown [illegible] addressing a regular meeting of the Flagstaff Ministerial Ass'n held recently in the Baptist Church at Killam. Discussed was the role of the Church in the Economical, Social and Political activities of the nation and the world. Also present were laymen from various churches in the area.

C. Robbins Rink Wins Co-op Spiel

(Mrs. Marie Butler)

STROME — A bonspiel sponsored by the Strome Co-op Association was held in Strome on Feb. 19th with eight rinks praticipating. The Cliff Robbins rink was the first event and the right to represent Strome at the Federation Bonspiel in Killam.

The winners of the second event was the Don Hayes rink. Prizes were donated by the association and coffee and doughnuts were supplied free, courtesy of the Co-op and Maple Leaf Petroleum.

A special thanks to the ladies who worked at the counter.

A note of interest is that the Robbins rink, of Cliff and Sheila Robbins and Pete and Mina Carter won the bonspiel at Killam and to receive a cup as a momento of the event. It is hoped a bigger and better bonspiel will be held next [illegible].

Sedgewick Board Hears Chamber Rep.

SEDGEWICK — Mr. Al Kerchy, Western Representative of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, was a guest speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Trade held in Sedgewick last week.

The meeting was held in the newly constructed banquet room of the Sedgewick Cafe, which has a capacity for around sixty people.

Routine business dealt with the present situation with regards to natural gas, Centennial report and correspondence. It appears that a start will be made on the natural gas installation as soon as weather permits. Suggestions were made for a Centennial project for the community, and the committee in charge of this recommended that their suggestion be forwarded to Town Council.

The meeting of the C of C will be held in Red Deer in May, and it was noticed that April 1st is the deadline for resolutions for that meeting.

Meetings of the Sedgewick Board were changed from the third Wednesday to the third Tuesday in each month, and some discussion took place regarding the placing of a monthly Calender in the Press to keep all people informed on various meeting times and dates.

Mr. Kerchy brought greetings from the C of C, and stated that his main job is travelling about the nation and reporting to Boards on the state of the economy in general, and the activities of the Canadian Board in particular. He reported that there are now 276 Boards and Chambers across Canada, and in distinguishing between a Board and a Chamber, said that Boards originated in England and Chambers in France, but with either name the functions and activities were the same. He warned that a Board of Trade is not a Service Club, its primary functions being to deal with the economy, business, agriculture and industry. A local board's primary function is to improve local economy and strengthen the community. Some 90 per cent of Canadian Boards of Trade are in areas with less than 5000 population, with 85 per cent of these being in towns under 1000.

In closing Mr. Kerchy said that sent to the Federal Government, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce possesses the most information and facts on Canadian economy, business, industry, and society in general.

School Board Holds Regular Meeting

PROJECT GEMINI — John W Young, co-pilot, (left) and pilot Virgil I. Grissom are pictured above in the cramped confines of the Gemini-3 first manned Gemini space flight. The two men were rendezvous into orbit at about 7:30 a.m. eastern time and circled in the ocean just after noon having completed three orbits of the earth. They added a new space feat by changing orbits while in flight.

The Regular meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Killam School Division No. 22 was held in the Divisional office at Killam. The Superintendent and the following trustees were present: Grout, Chem., Hall, Sedgewick; Hamilton, Killam; Mekawa was absent due to illness.

That the minutes of the last meeting be adopted as read.

That payment of bills be confirmed and approved.

That the hiring of George Wilkinson as teacher of the Hutterite School at the South Bend Hutterite Colony be approved.

That resignations from the following teachers be accepted: John Hill, C.R.S., Sedgewick; David King, Grade 7 Hardisty; Irene Carlson, Grade 4, Hardisty.

That a capital grant of $200.00 be made to the Camrose Association for Retarded Children to help in the construction of a new school for retarded children at Camrose.

That the Forney Ave Welder used in the shop and belonging to Stan Coyne be purchased for $285.00.

That the following school reports be filed as no negligence is apparent: Gordon Hall, Strome School; Randy Johnson, CHS; Mavis [illegible], Killam.

That a public notice be sent to the Alberta Advisory Committee on Educational Research.

That regular lodging grams for pupils be stimulated from Sunday scheduling.

That this meeting adjourn.

LOUGHEED WI

(Mrs. Marion Contorier)

LOUGHEED — The Lougheed WI held their March meeting in the Community Hall with eleven members and three guests present. The business at hand was the Red Cross canvass and a babe safe to be planned for. The roll call was answered with a camouflage dish recipe used for the Red Cross family supper.

Mrs. A. Hunt of Alliance, our constituency convener gave an interesting talk on WI organization from local to the Federated level. The nine read a paper on Education including many high school boards and the duties of trustees. Lorna Sterbakhen, winner of the 4H Homemakers Club speaking contest gave her talk on the Camrose Pa r ampp for 4H clubs.

At the close of the meeting tea was served and supper preparations made. Later members, their families and a few guests, numbering 63 in all sat down to a delicious and varied meal, after which Mrs. C Deutsch chairman of the Canada Economic Council.

CO-OP MANAGERS TO ATTEND MEET

SEDGEWICK — Mr. Hedley Bailey, Sedgewick, Mr. Bob Cleavenat, Killam and Mr. and Mrs. A. Pearce of Strome will be among those registered for the annual conference of retail Co-operative Managers being held in Calgary this week.

The Conference sponsored by Federated Co-op Ltd., is being attended by managers from all parts of the prairies. Among speakers on the program are Mrs. A. Plumtre, Ottawa, president of the Consumers' Assn. of Canada, and Dr. Jean Boyerch chairman of the Canada Economic Council.

Political Baseball!

Anyone who has played Alberta's favorite summer game of baseball, knows, and in fact fans who watch the game, will verify, that a runner who "gets on" has to be wary of leading too far off base lest he be "tagged". The game is so calculated that each side has an equal number of members, but when the runner gets on base he has nine in the opposition, all endeavoring to get him. While this may seem unfair, remember that the runner has eight back-benchers pulling for him. When something comes up where disagreement becomes too violent, the umpire steps in and settles things.

Now you take Alberta's favorite winter game of politics, on the other hand, and you have a horse of a different color. Here the home team has 59 players while the opposing team has 3. At the very outset this seems an unfair game. But with the political "umpire" here being a "homer" too, the settling of controversies can become something only settled by the rule book. Here it seems the players can range as far off base as the occasion requires without danger of being "tagged out".

Actually what all this is leading up to is remarks made recently in the Legislature by Ray Davidson "bencher" for the Social Credit party, on liquor advertising in newspapers. As far as we are concerned he was away off base, and it will be surprising if the publishing fraternity does not tag him out.

"When you think of all the wrecked lives, homes and properties it makes you wish there were no advertising," said Mr. Davidson. "If such a move were made," he went on, people who print liquor advertising should be prepared to be responsible for damage liquor did."

Our first reaction to this statement was to wonder how naive a member of government can get. The only thing he said that made sense was "These people would be much better off had they never come under the bondage of liquor." This of course was referring to those who are alcoholics and for whom the government is proposing to erect an habilitation centre for their treatment at public expense to the tune of $375,000.

While we do not for one moment think that Mr. Davidson suffers from agnosexia, he was certainly playing around with mental gymnastics when he warns that newspapers must take the blame for harm done by liquor if they print liquor advertising. He might far better concentrate on the real source of the matter; the very government he represents. His government imports the liquor into the province; his government alone sells the stuff; his government controls its outlets, and his government takes the profits. Profits made up by contributions from people who have ruined their lives, wrecked their homes and frittered away their possessions.

His is the government which has increased liquor sales from a low of 2 1/2 million to almost 86 million, since the day in 1985 when they first conceived the idea of banning liquor advertising.

When you think of all the ruined lives, homes and property Mr. Davidson contures, it makes you not only wish there were no advertising, but NO LIQUOR. Without local advertising, Mr. Davidson's locan seems to have done quite well. Alberta's unadvertised per capita consumption is $60.60, while in Que. ec wh:re the stuff is advertised freely, the rate is only $41.00.

In view of these facts we invite Mr. Davidson to rewrite his script and present it anew on the floor of the house. He's away off base.

Home and School Says Too Little!

When the Home and School and Parent Federation says, as it did in an official release recently that financial support for the publicly-owned CBC should be increased, it confined its thesis into too narrow an area. In pleading for more financial support for CBC, the Association has confined its argument to the one area of education, in advocating that the amount and the quality of programs should be stepped up in the area of youth educational programs, and school broadcasts. There are two things, at least, that the Federation overlooks, the first and primary one being that children are not interested in educational programs over TV. They get filled up to here with the stuff at school, and like adults, they turn on the TV set mainly to be entertained. This has been amply proven by polls taken on program viewing by teenagers and younger. Secondly, the Federation asks for more money for the CBC without one word of condemnation for the large expenditures already being used up for some of the most nonsensical, uninteresting, far-fetched and unattractive programming imaginable. It may ie truly said that if there is a way to arrange a program to appear wierd and one-tracked, the CBC will find it. It is a pity that the staff of writers consists of one man with a one-track mind. Festival is a good illustration, for if ever a program is introduced to the screen to scare children into the clothes closet, it's it. You cannot give the CBC more money to concentrate on youth education without taking something away from the people who pay the shot. In any case the schools are doing a pretty good job on education.

GOVERNMENT OVERSPENDING

Sometimes we get a little annoyed when with each increase in government spending the politicians lay the blame at the feet of the people, declaring that the people are demanding more services and the only way to meet this demand is to spend more. We want to say that what this country needed was a good 5c cigar. Today what we need is politicians not scared to death to say no. It is political parties, more than ordinary citizens, who are competing with each other to see who can promise and give the most. The big question is what are we going to do for money? The young bride who asked her husband if he thought if they missed a payment or two on the stove, they could buy a television set, didn't get the answer she wanted.

CONTROLS ON POPULATION

Steps are being taken to standardize the fees across Canada for marriage, birth and death certificates, and the thought occurred that this might be a feasible method of controlling our socalled population explosion. Say, for instance that the marriage certificate price as set at $100, the birth one at $250 and the death at 50c. We don't think that when we get ideas like this, but you will admit it would make people think first instead after its too late.

★ MACDUFF REPORT

Making Amends

OTTAWA — Scratch a politician these days and you'll find a constitutional expert. In Parliament, and in many provincial legislatures they are preparing themselves for historic debate, not just on the proposed formula for amending the constitution but on the whole course of Confederation for years to come.

The political battle lines have been taking shape since last October when the Federal and Provincial Governments agreed on the amending formula which will permit the "repatriation" of the Canadian Constitution.

The mental combat will be joined within a few months, when the proposed bill is submitted to Parliament for approval. Some observers say the debate will make last summer's flag campaign look like a game of paddy cake.

The Federal Conservatives have chosen this constitutional issue as the field on which they propose to do battle with the Government on fundamental issues of Confederation.

They find themselves in a kind of superficial unity with the National Union Party in Quebec, which also has sworn to fight the amendment formula "to the death."

On the face of it, it's difficult to understand this determined opposition to a move which has been sought by all major parties for the past 20 years or more.

It has become increasingly embarrassing and humiliating to successive governments that Canada must still go to Britain for amendments to its own constitution, long after this country has assumed full independence in other respects.

The British Parliament, of course, is willing and even anxious to relinquish its anomalous role in Canadian constitutional affairs.

The difficulty has been that the Canadian Parliament and the Provinces have been unable to agree on what the formula for amendment should be, once the constitution has been brought home.

In the past 30 years, at four series of Federal-Provincial conferences on the basic principles have been developed. Little by little, the Canadian authorities have been able to agree on what sections of the constitution should be amended by Parliament alone, what sections by a simple majority of the provinces and parliament, and what sections to be amended only if or made subject to amendment only by the unanimous consent of the Federal Parliament and all provincial legislatures.

The formula agreed upon last October therefore, is the fruit of many . . . of work. The Conservatives certainly have as much paternal responsibility for it as the Liberals. The Fulton formula is practically identical with the Pickup formula developed under the previous Diefenbaker administration.

That fact, however, will not prevent present-day Conservatives from opposing the formula as the result of a Canadian Confederation.

Mr. Diefenbaker's stand, now in opposition to the formula, is a complex one. It is involved with the Chief's pride in Federal-provincial relations, the flag, the spring out, Quebec's drive for a special position in Confederation. It is involved with his own position in the party, with his attempts to rally his divided party around him for a united attack on the Government.

The constitutional formula accords to Mr. Diefenbaker will make him the central authority and tend inwards the "balkanization" of Canada.

In the debate that is coming, it will be important for the ordinary Canadian to remember that the constitutional formula itself really changes very little.

Amendments to the constitution will henceforth be made entirely by Canadian political bodies, and set by the British Parliament. Amendments will be neither harder nor easier to make. The procedure will be stated in written form, whereas in the past, a varied and often confusing procedure of seeking provincial consent was carried out.

The constitutional amendment obtained last year to permit the Federal Government to pay survivors benefits in connection with the pension plan, for example, was obtained after the consent of all provinces had been given.

If the new amending formula had been in effect, the very same course would have been followed. The only difference would be that instead of asking the United Kingdom Parliament to make the amendment the Federal Parliament would have been able to enact the amendment.

The Conservative attack on the formula will be not so much on the formula itself, as on the course Confederation may take as a result.

In other words Mr. Diefenbaker is predicting that the formula, and particularly the delegation clause, will permit the provinces to invade any area of Federal jurisdiction, instituting monetary policy, defence battling, immigration.

The delegation clause is designed to provide some flexibility in the constitution. It permits four provinces to exercise Federal powers, by agreement, or it permits the Federal Parliament to exercise provincial powers, by agreement.

These agreements can be revoked at any time, by either side.

Unquestionably this delegation clause is a new departure in Canadian constitutional practice. No one knows how it will work out.

It's at least conceivable, as Mr. Diefenbaker argues, that it could lead to the dismemberment of Confederation, and the dissipation of Federal power.

It's equally conceivable that it could work the other way, permitting the Federal Government to take national action in fields normally reserved to the provinces.

This is the argument of major perspective that will be heard on the constitutional question this year. It is a matter of supreme importance to Canada's future.

Constitutional questions of this magnitude are far too important to be left to the lawyers, or even to the politicians. In the historic debate, it behooves every Canadian to inform himself, and to take a stand on the future of his country.

The Letter Box

Dear Sir:

In answer to the letter from A Stanech Subscriber in the March 11 issue of the Community Press, I would like to further inform The Press and the Stanech Subscriber with pertinent information. Not only is Rene Hoch an efficent accountant at all home games, but he is also the Secretary of the Dayaland Hockey Club.

Obviously, the Stanech Subscriber was not an ardent hockey fan or else this info would not have been overlooked.

Personally I fail to see any connection with the picture of the Dayaland Hockey Club in the March 4th issue and the amusing appraisal of Fred Schmidt's career.

Another Stanech Subscriber.

The Department of Trade and Commerce is at work developing a national energy policy for Canada aimed at the most effective use of energy sources including water-power, gas, oil, coal and the newcomer in the field, uranium. A reviewing world demand for this source fuel, sparked by the current negotiation of a long term contract between the French and Dominion Mines Ltd., has made exploration for new reserves an urgent need. The energy survey is part of a joint study being undertaken with the U. S. A. which now suggested nearly 2 years ago by Trade Minister Sharp.

IT'S TEACHER'S CHOICE

Rather an interesting time to be a teacher, the spring. Even before the snow has completely gone, the school boards and principals are flipping over logs and stones, in the forlorn hope of finding a teacher under one of them.

There are three reasons for the frantic spring scramble. The first two are about evenly divided. The third, and major cause for the panic is the population explosion. Classrooms are multiplying with the rapidity of rabbits.

Every one of these classrooms is full of kids. And the kids, like baby rabbits, expect to have something stuffed into them. Therefore, according to tradition, there must be a beefy, surveyor little it resembles a Momma Robin, standing up there in front of the class, stuffing something — pebbles, or pearls, or even worms — into the gaping mawa.

It is the time of year that has principals grinning wildly at old teachers, peering on the chaos with potential new ones, snapping at their own wives and biffing their own children about the ears, because they've heard by the snake-grapevine that the vine that runs from the staffroom to the bridge-club to the Saturday night party to the after church coffee — that they're losing half their staff.

It is the time of year that has school board members deciding to take a holiday in January, or if they can't afford it, going to bed with the 'flu. On the one hand are the taxpayers, shouting that school taxes are away out of hand. And on the other are other taxpayers, declaring that the board must hire the best possible teachers.

And in between are the teachers, with 10,000 jobs open to them, every one, at first glance better than their present one.

Last week-end I was in the city, and out of sheer curiosity it mags me dropped in at the local which is the centre of teacher-hiring for the coming year. It was interesting. My first impression stood with refreshments served by the hostesses, Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. Zwicker.

Picture an old-fashioned classroom. Now Grisman, 1965. O. K.? Now, picture a slave market in which every slave has the highest market report on slave-prices reached under his left arm, in which furiers hope of finding a teacher under one of them.

Centralettes Do Well At Provincial Basketball Playoffs

The Centralettes, winners of the East-Central zone A.B. girls basketball playoffs metured to Lethbridge, Friday, March 5th. The 1st game of the 8-team tournament got underway at 4:30 with Central opposing Lacombe. The first quarter looked very promising with the Centralettes opening the scoring on a spectacular long shot by Sherryl Grant. The whole quarter was evenly matched scoring with a score of 8-8 in Central's favour. Penalties on Lacombe dominated with their height advantage and effective ball control. The final score was Lacombe 37, Central 20. The loss put the Centralettes into the Consolation event.

The following games saw Barrhead defeat Vauxhall, Medicine Hat trounce Beaverlodge and Lethbridge soundly defeat Vegreville. All players were invited to attend a record hop and lunch in the gym that evening.

The match continued Saturday morning with Central and Vauxhall fighting a tight battle, both teams anxious to stay in the competition. The first quarter ended with Central down 11-8. With 4 seconds remaining in the half Sandra Miller hit on a long shot to keep Central ahead 10-7. The third quarter ended at 16-14. It was still anybody's game although Central dominated more than the score would indicate. In the final quarter the pressure was taken off the girls when Sandra Pedersen and Sherryl Grant intercepted passes and capitalized on them. The score ended at 24-18 in Central's favor. Scoring for Central were Sandra Pedersen 12, Sherryl Grant 4, Anita Harris 3, Sandra Miller 2 and Barb Cameron 2.

The final game of the evening was the championship game between Lethbridge and Barrhead. This was won fairly easily by Lethbridge who showed terrific teamwork in their ball handling and pass patterns.

Following this game, Mr. Jack Hicken presented Sandra Pedersen, captain of the Centralettes with the consolation trophy. The Lethbridge Clipper Quartet, provincial champions for the second consecutive year were presented with the A. Joy Page trophy and a smaller replica of it.

The Centralettes found this tournament to be very well organized and were very glad to be part of it. A special thanks goes to the drivers and chaperones, Mr. J. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. P. Hooper and Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Hill of town. Thanks is also extended to Mrs. Edna Palmer who sent a telegram wishing the team luck and to Mr. Chevreux's uncle, Mr. A. Cameron, who had a box of peaches sent to the team.

The Centralettes have had a very active and successful season of basketball. Much of the credit for this success goes to Mr. John Hill, coach, and Mrs. Hooper manager of the team. The team would like to take this opportunity to thank them for their time and interest.

Bishop To Visit Local Churches

Dr. E. C. Pillai of Madras India, who is a consecrated Bishop of the Indian Orthodox Church, will be conducting a series of meetings from March 29th to April 1st. The Sunday services together with the evening week day meetings will be held in the Killam Baptist Church. The morning sessions will be held in the Lutheran Church in Sedgwick.

Bishop Pillai was born and brought up as a Hindu. He was converted to Christ in India many years ago, where he also received his Theological Seminary training In England he was consecrated a Bishop for the Indian Orthodox Church. He is in the United States on a special assignment to interpreting the Bible in the light of Eastern thought.

Dr. Pillai is claimed by many to be one of the leading authorities in America in explaining those portions of the Bible that are obscure to the Western mind. He titles his messages "LIGHT THROUGH AN EASTERN WINDOW".

He interprets the phrases, parables, customs and traditions of the Bible in the light of Eastern thought and ways of life, bringing new light to old truths.

All are cordially invited to attend these meetings. adv.

Press Editor Recieves Three Letters Of Interest

A number of trite sayings could be evolved from a phrase coined some years ago, "Men must work and women must weep". For instance: Some can and some can't, or, some do and some don't.

Gerald McShane is one of those who can, and to prove it a letter arrived on our desk from Gerald, saying that he left Edmonton Feb. 8th, and arrived at Magahan on the 13th to encounter snow at the Mexican border. For a minute he thought he was back home. He saw the bull fights and ran into an excursion party from Alberta on tour. Gerald, along with Norman Holt of Alliance and Roy Rands took off for a day or two to Acapulco and a boat to Panama, accompanied by a storm and an upset stomach or two.

Soon after this a letter came in from Percy C. Baker, who will be remembered as Bingo avon here. Percy lives in Cloverdale, B.C., and had just returned from a 15-day vacation in Honolulu where it was no above in the daytime and 75 at night. Percy says that's a long way from Alberta in February. How right he is. It's also 30 above at Cloverdale. Percy enjoys the Community Press and wishes to be remembered to everyone.

Last but not least we got a welcome letter from an old school chum in the person of Frank Stowell. Frank and I used to relax cub reporter at the Sedgwick Enterprise. It got too rough for him and he left years ago for B.C. and the solitude of the mountains. Since leaving Frank has earned himself a degree or two, has taught school and was a member of the B.C. Legislature. He also has been to be remembered to old friends. He recalled a great event or two, but we will just skip that. After all I still live here.

Hardisty Home and School Meeting

HARDISTY — The regular meeting of the Home and School Association was held March 16th. The meeting was opened by reading of name of the objects of the Home and School Ass'n.

Minutes of the February meeting were read and the treasurer's report given.

A motion was made to send two delegates to the Banff work shop but no delegate was found to be the annual Home and School Ass'n convention.

The card party which was to have been held March 26th was postponed and the new date set for April 2nd.

The principal Mr. Gerry Miller gave the school report. The second parent teacher interview was successful, and the teachers feel that a second interview is necessary.

Mr. Miller introduced guest speaker Mrs. L. Regnanack, inspector of schools for the Killam School Division who gave a very interesting and informative talk on music in the Junior Hi.

Lunch was served.

UCW Meeting Week Late

(Mrs. Doug Kinzer)

KILLAM — Because of postponement the March UCW held their March meeting a week late at the home of Mrs. John Forster. The meeting was opened with a devotional period led by Mrs. W. Davidson. The study of Brazil continued with Mrs. W. Forster being in charge.

Each member answered the roll call with a bible verse beginning with the last letter of her name.

The menus and costs for entertaining prepared by the KUC club were studied and passed to the social committee for their approval.

It was voted to again sponsor a high school boy or girl for the Easter short course at Alberta College.

The April meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. G. Murry and the roll call will be answered with a Lenten offering.

Young Social Crediters Plan Thompson Night

The regular meeting of the Hardisty Constituency Young Social Crediters was held on March 16th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Pettape. Members present were from Alliance, Killam and Sedgewick. Most of the business concerned the forthcoming visit to Sedgewick of our national leader Dr. Robert Thompson. Reports were given from Advertising, program and decorating committees. Considerable time was spent progressing ideas for the "Thompson night". It was decided that each member of the group could invite a guest to the luncheon. It was also pointed out that a few memberships were recently expired.

Lunch was served by the hostess.

20 YEARS AGO THIS MONTH

CROSSING THE RHINE. It was 20 years ago Western allies stormed across the Rhine and entered Germany. While Canadian troops liberated the lowland countries of Europe, the U. S. First Army was seizing the Ludendorff bridge intact at Remagen, and troops under command of Gen. Omar N. Bradley smashed into German territory. Heavy weight of army equipment finally caused Ludendorff bridge to collapse March 17, 1945.

HOME DESIGN SCHOOL

Dear Chief Cook and Bottle Washer

Did you ever feel that a good percentage of those ten thousand steps you take every day may be unnecessary?

Are you wore to a frazzle at the end of each day? Why?

You can learn how to save both your time and energy. Let Miss Pat Macaluk, Home Management Specialist with the Alberta Department of Agriculture, show you how to organize and plan your kitchen so that your work can be done efficiently.

Whether you are building a new home, remodelling your old one or making do with the kitchen you have, I am sure you will find this information interesting.

Don't you agree that most dreary homes of today leave much to be desired in the way of a dream kitchen? The reason for this may be that many contractors and cabinet makers have never worked in a kitchen enough to know how a homemaker would really like things arranged.

So, ladies and gentlemen, let us all learn "The ABC's of Kitchen Planning and Organization".

Wednesday, March 31st, 1965 at Provincial Building, Camrose, at 1:30 p.m.

TOO MANY OVERFINISHED HOGS!

Alberta could easily slip back into its previous position of being the lowest grade A bog producing province in Canada unless the increasing number of overfinished market hogs is curtailed.

According to A. J. Castrucchi the Livestock Supervisor for Alberta, federal grading personnel report too many pigs are being marketed at maximum weights for Grade A carcasses. The accepted range is from 135 to 170 pounds dressed. Mr. Castrucchi says that many Grade B carcasses, weighing 185 pounds, could easily have qualified for an A grade if they had been 18 pounds lighter. This would have meant a saving in feed and a larger net profit per pig. The difference between A and B grade pigs of the same weight is $4.50 per head. Mr. Castrucchi recommends marketing hogs between 180 and 210 pounds liveweight, depending upon type, quality and degree of finish.

The indiscriminate use of low protein feeds during the early feeding period is another factor which contributes to lower grades. This practice prevents young pigs from attaining their full growth potential for red meat growth.

Cross breeding on the basis of color or mixing breeds without regard to quality or genetic potential for higher market grades in both parents is the quickest way to lower grades. Mr. Chernecki points out that cross breeding programs can only work to advantage when top-quality purebred boars from high testing stock are used on top quality grade or purebred sows of another breed.

SHARING ADVANTAGES!

Some of the many benefits that may be obtained from belonging to a well-planned Farm Machinery Syndicate are as follows:

1. Saving in capital cost by owning a share of a machine as opposed to outright ownership.

2. Farmers may have the use of efficient machinery which would otherwise be beyond their means.

3. By sharing in the capital costs it should be possible for farmers to buy new machinery to replace their present machine as they become obsolete or inefficient.

4. The exchange of labor can be facilitated, resulting in greater labor efficiency and savings in the cost of hired help.

5. A reduction in the capital invested in machinery can release the money for other and more profitable use on the farm.

Daysland Hospital Auxiliary Meeting

by Dolores Dolanz

DAYSLAND — The hospital held their monthly meeting Thursday evening in the hospital with fourteen members present.

The Secretary's and Treasurer's reports were read and adopted.

The Secretary Mrs. Nels Criss had resigned and was replaced by Mrs. Geo. Boggs for the evening.

The correspondence was read which consisted of letters from the TB Association, Cancer Campaign, Mrs. Gould and Association of Auxiliaries.

The following ladies will be catering for cancer starting April 1st, Mrs. Knudson, Mrs. B. Lee, Mrs. F. Schmidt, Mrs. Wagner and Mrs. Reist.

The Auxiliary donated four different magazine subscriptions to the hospital. They also donated a scale which will be for the children's ward.

The ladies are still looking for help if anyone has some they'd like to get rid of. Cottons are preferred.

Nominations were made from the floor for a new Secretary, Mrs. F. Schmidt accepted this position.

After the meeting a delicious lunch was served by the Sisters.

Cancer Society Takes Protective Steps

The Alberta Division of the Canadian Cancer Society has made full disclosures regarding the deficiencies discovered last fall. During its annual meeting in Calgary on February 6th the Alberta Division gave a detailed description of its affairs.

As a consequence many changes have been implemented in an effort to protect donors and the public at large. They are solving problems as quickly as possible, and regrets if the misfortune has adversely affected other public organizations.

As reported the proven deficiencies were $191,411.88. A civil judgment has been obtained in this sum and the Society solicitor is proceeding under its authority to make recoveries. Investigations are continuing and the Society will request any additional proven losses if and when substantiated.

Following are some of the improvements which have been implemented by the Society to date:

Six more directors, to increase the number to 24.

The provincial executive committee was enlarged and given official status.

Improved organizational and accounting procedures are now being implemented.

A special committee is conducting an extensive study of the Division's Welfare Services program in an effort to provide more effective services for cancer patients in Alberta.

While Society affairs have been under scrutiny by firms of outstanding auditors, now the Division Auditors shall maintain an audit throughout each year.

Interim financial statements shall be presented to the Divisional Board or its executive every three months, showing detailed receipts and expenses against budget approvals.

No records shall be destroyed without the consent of the Division-al Executive Committee.
